38 ARE KILLED IN RAILROAD WRECK

APPALLING DISASTER ON BALTIMORE & OHIO ROAD NEAR WASHINGTON.

OVER SIXTY ARE INJURED

PASSENGER TRAIN COLLIDES WITH EQUIPMENT TRAIN DURING FOG.

Washington, Jan. 1. — An appalling disaster occurred last night at 7 o'clock on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Terra Cotta about three miles from this city, in which about thirty-eight persons were killed and over sixty injured, some of them so seriously that they will die. The accident was caused by the collision of Train No. 66, due here at 6:25 p m from Frederick, Md., known as the Frederick special, with a deadhead passenger equipment special of eight cars. Over 200 passengers were aboard the ill-fated train.

Cause Not Determined.

The railway officials late last night were unable to assign any cause for the collision. As soon as the news of the wreck reached this city all ambulances available, with as many physicians as could be assembled, were sent to the scene. The dead bodies were found lying beside the track for a considerable distance. A dense fog was prevailing and made objects perceptible but a few feet ahead. It was impossible at first to determine the exact extent of the catastrophe.

Trainmen Arrested.

When the news of the accident spread about Brockland many citizens, with their wives, hastened to the scene to give their aid and comfort to the wounded.

It has been proved that the danger signal at Takoma Park a short distance from the scene of the accident, was set when the train of empty passenger cars passed. The train was going at the rate of sixty miles an hour, and Engineer Hildebrand stated that on account of the heavy fog he could not see the signal.

Both Engineer Hildebrand and the fireman on the special train were arrested and brought to Washington.

RUSSIA LIKE A VAST BEDLAM.

Czar's Mother Declared to Be Insane —Whole Dynasty Crazy.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 1. — A close friend of the czar's household physician, Dr. Hirsch, says that the dowager czarina, the czar's mother, has been undeniably insane for three months.

In fact, Dr. Tschechoff, the superintendent of St. Petersburg's noted asylum for the demented, St. Nicholas Tsbuderewitz, asserts that the majority of the foremost Russians are mad, from the Romanoff dynasty down — sovereign, ministers, generals, aristocrats, men of affairs.

The dowager czarina has been "clean daft" ever since Gen. Trepoff died last September. Gossips whisper that she loved him passionately and that losing him wrecked her wits.

Now she sees bombs and gallows everywhere in her imagination and is in a constant state of terror.

Czarevitch as a Changling.

In her mounderings she declares that the acknowledged czarevitch, the two and a half year old Grand Duke Alexis, is not the true heir to the throne, but a "changeling;" that her real grandson was born an idiot.

She has been taken away from Russia in the hope that she may recover her reason.

Count Witte, too, sees ghosts and hears mysterious voices, it is said, as the result of the mental strain to which he was subjected while premier.

WHOLE CITY IS TERRORIZED.

Reign of Violence and Bloodshed at Lodz—Many Are Killed.

Lodz, Jan. 1: — The situation here is rapidly becoming acute. Sanguinary encounters were frequent during yesterday. Six persons have been killed and twelve wounded.

The authorities, at first supine, are now more active, and are preparing to meet all emergencies.

Pipe Oil Across Isthmus.

San Francisco, Jan. 1.—The steamer Argyll sailed yesterday for Panama with 30,000 barrels of petroleum, consigned to points on the Atlantic coast. It will be piped across the isthmus through the recently completed pipe line.

Head Hacked With Hatchet.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 1.—Thomas Finning, aged eighty years, a wealthy property owner who lived alone, was murdered some time yesterday at his home in this city. The head had been hacked with a hatchet.

Brain Pierced; May Live.

Dubuque, Iowa, Jan. 1.—Through a spike penetrated its brain, the eight-month-old child of Mr. and Mrs. George Lewis, residing in Asbury, is still alive and there is a chance that it may recover.

BLOCK SYSTEM IS A FARCE

HAS NOT ADDED TO SAFETY OF TRAVEL—FIFTY-THREE PERSONS DEAD.

Washington, Jan. 3.—Entirely independent of any whitewashing investigation which the Baltimore & Ohio may make of the criminality which caused the loss of half a hundred human lives a few miles out of Washington Sunday night, the interstate commerce commission decided to have an investigation of its own.

Authority for this action on the part of the commission was found under the joint resolution of congress instructing it to make a special inquiry of the block-signal system as operated by the railroads.

Block System a Farce.

The frequency of rear-end collisions or the telescoping of one train by another has aroused the members of the commission, as well as congress and the entire country, to the belief that something is radically wrong in the pretended operation of the block system, and the commission proposes now to find out the facts.

Astounding statements made by experts of the commission indicate that the people of the United States have been misled into the impression that the block systems of this country are adding greatly to the safety of travel. On the other hand, the experts say these systems have had no such effect. The commission's statistics prove that a constantly increasing proportion of accidents occurs.

Fifty-three Are Dead.

The most conservative estimate of the dead is fifty-three, with threescore of injured in the hospitals or at their homes suffering from wounds and fractures. Several of the most seriously injured are expected to die and the death list may yet reach sixty or more.

RECEPTION AT WHITE HOUSE.

Washington, Jan. 3. — President and Mrs. Roosevelt's New Year's reception at the White House yesterday was a brilliant function and was attended by about 8,500 persons. The members of the diplomatic corps, officers of the army and navy and representatives of the national and district governments and of the citizen public attended.

After the diplomats had been received, Secretary and Mrs. Root left the line in the blue room and one by one the members of the cabinet and their wives deserted the president in order to hold receptions in their own homes.

It was generally remarked that the proportion of negroes in the line was smaller than in previous years.

Many Children in Line.

There was an unusually large number of children in line and all were greeted heartily by the president. One of the most amusing figures in the line was a ten-year-old boy, with soiled hands and clothes, who carried a pair of roller skates thrown over his shoulder. The president laughed heartily as he wished the little fellow a happy New Year.

A pretty little girl carried a great white Teddy bear past the receiving party and provoked a hearty laugh from the crowd gathered in the blue room.

TO BLOW UP AN OCEA NLINER

London, Jan. 3. — A dispatch to a news agency from Odessa says that a band of unknown men made an attempt to blow up the Russian Steamship company's Atlantic liner Gregory Morch, which has just completed her first trip in the new Odessa-New York service.

A desperate struggle took place between the crew and the members of the band, during which several sailors were shot. The lighted fuse of a bomb was extinguished before any damage was done.

PAINTER FOUND HANGING.

Noted Fresco Artist a Suicide in New York.

New York, Jan. 3.—Hunden Gudnest said to have been a well known fresco painter, whose work in the capitol building at Washington and in New York public and private buildings made for him a reputation, has been found in his room in Brooklyn suspended from a rope made from sheets. He was still alive when discovered, but before he was cut down by a policeman he had strangled to death.

NO CHINESE ON ISTHMUS.

Plan to Employ Celestials on the Panama Canal Is Abandoned.

Panama, Jan. 3.—Jackson Smith, in charge of the labor department of the canal zone, said yesterday that Chinese labor will not be employed on the canal.

Acting Governor Reed confirms this. The latter admitted this decision is the direct result of protests in the United States against the Chinese.

SNOW AFFLICTS RUSSIA.

Great Storm Has Literally Buried Many Towns.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 3.—The storm which passed over Great Britain at Christmas time has reached Western Russia, where enormous falls of snow are reported, and railroad communication is paralyzed, many of the lines being entirely interrupted. Dispatches from Orsha and Borissov say those towns are literally buried in drifts and all business suspended.

GANS WINS IN EIGHTH ROUND

HERMAN, CLEARLY OUTCLASSED, NEVER HAD A CHANCE WITH THE NEGRO.

IS CLEANLY KNOCKED OUT

DROPS LIKE LOG AND IT TAKES THREE MINUTES TO REVIVE HIM.

Tonopah, Nev. Jan. 3.—After playing with Herman for eight rounds, Champion Joe Gans landed a full swing on the point of Herman's jaw and Chicago's favorite went to the mat a beaten man.

It was apparent from the start that Herman had no chance. Gans blocked his blows with the greatest of ease, and at no time was Gans worried in the least. In the first round Joe started to feel things out. Herman was willing to fight, but the champion stalled him off.

Gans Opens Up.

In the second round Gans started to open up. Herman's attempts to land all ended in failure.

The third and fourth rounds were repetitions of the second. In the fifth rounds, Gans having measured his man, slowed down. This was the only round where Herman made any showing. The sixth and seventh rounds were all Gans'. In the eighth Gans started out by feinting and drawing Herman's fire. They fiddled around the ring until Gans worked his opponent into a corner.

Gans feinted with his left and Herman swung wildly with his left. He left an opening. Like a flash Gans whipped left and then a swinging right flush on the point of Herman's jaw. Herman dropped like a log and three minutes elapsed before he revived.

Herman was outclassed throughout. He never had a chance, and he will never have a chance when he meets a man of Gans' caliber.

NEW LAWS ARE NOW IN FORCE.

Anti-Pass Provision and Other Legislation Now in Effect.

Washington, Jan. 3. — Yesterday marked the beginning of the life of several legislative acts of congress, important alike to the nation as a whole and to the citizens of the District of Columbia. These are the free school law, the pure food law, the anti-pass section of the interstate commerce law, the modification of the navigation laws to simplify enrollments and licenses and a law with reference to the licensing of druggists in the District of Columbia.

The pure food law contemplates the barring interstate commerce of foods that are injurious to health. The free alcohol bill is intended to assist farmers and smaller users of power to have a fuel that in efficiency and cost shall be cheaper than gasoline or kerosene. The anti-pass provision of the interstate commerce law forbids common carriers, directly or indirectly, giving interstate free tickets or passes for passengers, except to their employes and families, agents of the carriers and their surgeons, physicians and attorneys, to persons engaged in religious and charitable work and to certain other specified classes.

HUGHES TAKES OATH OF OFFICE.

New York's New Governor Pays Tribute to His Predecessor.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 3. — Charles E. Hughes yesterday took the oath of office as governor of the state of New York, and with his Democratic colleagues began his two-year term.

The retiring governor, Frank W. Higgins, formally surrendered the reins of government to his successor and left for his home a private citizen for the first time since 1893, when he was first elected senator.

In his inaugural address accepting the office, Gov. Hughes paid a marked tribute to Gov. Higgins, commending his public services and conscientious devotion to the interests of the state.

The 130th session of the New York state legislature will convene to-day.

MILL MAN TAKES HIS LIFE.

Frederick S. Camp, Afflicted With Bright's Disease, Shoots Himself.

Norwich, Conn., Jan. 3. — Frederick S. Camp, one of the most prominent mill men in Eastern Connecticut and agent of the Poneman mills, the largest cotton mill in the country, took his life by shooting yesterday. He had been ill for about six months with Bright's disease and had been despondent.

Baby's Hand Burned Off.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 3.—Eight people were seriously injured and twenty-four others badly hurt in a wreck near Richmond, Ky. Among the injured was a baby whose hand was burned completely off.

School Destroyed by Fire.

Marshfield, Wis., Jan. 3.—The school of the Seventh Day Adventists, located at Bethel, seven miles from this city, was discovered to be in flames, and burned to the ground, with a loss of $12,000.

CHARGES OF FRAUD ARE FILED

FRAUD ORDER AGAINST THE NEW YORK COTTON EXCHANGE IS DEMANDED.

Washington, Jan. 3. — Charges of fraud were filed yesterday with Postmaster General Cortelyou against the officials and members of the New York Cotton exchange by Representative Livingston of Georgia and Harvie Jordan, president of the Southern Cotton association of Atlanta. They request that the department issue a fraud order against the exchange to bar it from the use of the United States mails in conducting what the charges term fraudulent practices.

The charges are that New York city has ceased to be a commercial cotton market and that the New York Cotton exchange has developed into a purely speculative or gambling exchange, and that the grades of cotton shipped to New York and tenderable on the contracts of the New York Cotton exchange cannot be used for commercial spinning, and that such grades of cotton are used solely to depress the price of spinnable grades in the South; to further the speculative features of the New York Cotton exchange to the heavy detriment of the entire legitimate cotton trade of the United States."

FINED FOR BAD WHISKY.

Faribault Saloonkeepers Arrested Under Pure Food Law.

Faribault, Minn., Jan. 3. — A pure food law inspector made a visit to this city, and as a result of testing articles of food and drink in the various grocery stores and saloons he caused the arrest of five saloonkeepers and two grocerymen. One saloonkeeper was fined $140 and the fines of the others were from $75 down. They were found with adulterated whisky on tap and for sale. The fines of the grocers were not so large.

FIRE LOSS $200,000.

Forty New York Families Are Made Homeless.

New York, Jan. 3.—A dozen persons were injured, forty families were made homeless, 2,000 persons were driven temporarily from their homes, fifty horses were roasted to death and property valued at $200,000 was destroyed yesterday in the worst early morning fire New York has seen in many months.

One big tenement house, with a large boarding [illegible] destroyed. Seven tenement houses were badly damaged.

HAS FOUND GUILTY MEN.

Purdy's Report on Brownsville Riot Will Reveal the Culprits.

Washington, Jan. 3. — President Roosevelt received a preliminary report from Milton D. Purdy, assistant attorney general, whom the president sent to Brownsville, Tex., to investigate the Twenty-fifth infantry affair.

Although the contents of Mr. Purdy's report are not known, it is strongly intimated that the assistant attorney general has found positive evidence as to who did the shooting on the night of Aug. 12 last year.

Floyd Elected Governor.

Concord, N. H., Jan. 3.—Charles M. Floyd of Manchester (Rep.) was elected governor of New Hampshire by the state legislature at the opening session yesterday. The choice of a governor by the legislature was made necessary by the failure of any candidate at the November election to secure a majority of votes.

Engineers Ask More Pay.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Demands on all railroads operating west of this city for an increase in wages and an eight-hour day were made yesterday by 57,000 locomotive engineers through their representatives at a conference with the railroad managers. The managers will reply to-day.

Punished by Brother's Dismissal.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 3.—Prince Paul Dolgourki, a prominent Liberal and a brother of the former vice president of the lower house of parliament, has been dismissed from the court chamberlainship he held.

Heavy Rain Causes Flood.

Hot Springs, Ark., Jan. 3. — The heaviest rains ever recorded here fell in an almost continuous downpour all last night, washing away bridges and houses. The damage is heavy.

Killed in a Fight.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 3.—One man is dead, one severely wounded and another slightly injured as the result of a desperate fight between Mexicans nine miles east of this place.

Mining Pioneer Is Dying.

Gans to Fight Britt.

First Run Is Fatal.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 3. — William Rantz, a brakeman, is dead as a result of injuries received on his first trip.

Found Dead in Cabin.

FIGHT FLAMES FOR 14 HOURS

LOSS MAY EXCEED $50,000

THREE-QUARTERS OF BUSINESS SECTION OF TOWN WIPED OUT.

Milaca, Minn., Jan. 3.—Milaca began the new year with the worst fire in its history. Three-quarters of the business section of the town is in ruins, including the State Bank of Milaca and the postoffice.

For fourteen hours nearly the entire male portion of the town's 1,800 population was engaged in fighting the fire, which at several times during the day threatened to wipe out the whole place. It was impossible to save even the smallest articles from any of the stores or offices in the block which burned, and the efforts of the volunteer fire brigades were turned entirely to keeping the blaze from spreading.

Damage is $50,000.

During the morning the wind blew a gale, reaching a velocity of between forty and fifty miles an hour, and had there not been a rain and sleet drizzle during that time it would have been impossible to prevent the fire's being borne to the roofs of buildings in the neighboring squares.

It is impossible at present to secure accurate figures on individual losses. The total amount of drainage is estimated at $50,000, with only $30,000 insurance. The extent of the bank's loss is not known, as the walls of the structure and of the vault were too heated to admit of inspection of the vault's contents. It is believed, however, that the heaviest loss occured to the bank.

The postoffice, in which the fire started, is a complete ruin, and every bit of its contents is in ashes, including letters and postage stamps.

CITY TO OWN TWO PLANTS.

Gas and Water Systems to Be Secured by Battle Lake.

Battle Lake, Minn., Jan. 3.—Municipal ownership and operation of public utilities is to be given a trial in Battle Lake, the people at the election held for that purpose having voted to issue bonds in the sum of $8,000. The gas plant, which is at present owned by individuals, is to be purchased for $3,500 and $4,500 is to be used for the purpose of establishing a water system. The bonds were carried by more than a two-thirds majority.

MRS. BROWN RECOVERS.

Former Wife of Congressman Buckman Regains Her Reason.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Jan. 3.—Mrs. John Brown, who was formerly Mrs. C. B. Buckman, wife of Congressman Buckman, has recovered her reason after a short course of treatment at the insane hospital here, and has left for her home at Sauk Rapids.

THRESH NEAR GREEN ISLE.

Crew Has About Six More Jobs for the Season.

Green Isle, Minn., Jan. 3. — Threshing in January is something uncommon in this state, but such is the case at the present time. A threshing crew is threshing for John Dwyer, one and one-half miles from this place. They have about six more threshing jobs for the season.

TRAPS FIVE WILDCATS.

Settler Says Animals Have Made Home Near His House.

Manistique, Mich., Jan. 3.—William Flowers, a settler living several miles out from Manistique, reports an unexplained invasion of wildcats in the woods about his place of residence. Within the last fortnight Flowers has caught five wildcats.

Wolves Grow Numerous.

Miller, S. D., Jan. 3.—Wolves are reported numerous about thirty miles southwest of here. James Lawler saw six in one bunch. The settlement of the country west of the Missouri river is causing them to leave that section, and as the stream is frozen over they come this way. There is talk of a big wolf hunt.

Stork Leads by Big Margin.

Elk Point, S. D., Jan. 3.—The vital statistics of Union county for the last year show that there were 236 births and 87 deaths reported to the clerk of court's office during the year. There were 93 marriage licenses and 30 naturalization papers issued during the year.

Two Killed in Wreck.

Livingston, Mont., Jan. 3.—A wreck occurred yesterday at Coal Spur, a station on the Northern Pacific twelve miles west of this city, in which two railway men of Livingston lost their lives.

On Board of Regents.

St. Paul, Jan. 3.—Gov. Johnson yesterday announced the appointment of S. J. M. Owen of Minneapolis to the board of regents of the state university to succeed J. T. Wyman of the [illegible]

BREAD POISONED IN STRIKE

FOUR ALLEGED MEMBERS OF BAKERS' UNION ARE ARRESTED.

Chicago, Jan. 3. — A startling conspiracy to poison bread has been discovered in connection with the strike of Local No. 247 of the bakers' union, and four men, alleged to be members of the union, have been arrested, charged with putting acid on hundreds of loaves of bread distributed among the Jewish residents of the Maxwell street police district.

The acid and quantities of iodoform were thrown on wagon loads of bread and rolls after they had left the bakeries where the strike is on. Capt. Mahoney has a detail of twenty men searching the district for the poisoned bread.

The police captain has confiscated baskets of poisoned bread and rolls and is holding them for evidence. He has sent warnings out advising the people to inspect all bread before they eat it, especially that from the kosher bakeries.

In the pockets of the four men who were arrested by Detective Frank Kline were found bottles containing carbolic acid and packages of powdered iodoform.

SUICIDE IN JAIL CELL.

Man Who Shot Mrs. Quam Hangs Himself.

Owatonna, Minn., Jan. 3.—Fred Zimmerman, accused of shooting down Mrs. Quam at her home in this city last Thursday evening, committed suicide some time Tuesday evening by hanging himself in his cell in the Steele county jail. His lifeless body was found on the floor of the cell by Deputy Sheriff Fisher, where it had fallen, the knot that the would-be murderer had tied about his neck having become loosened, allowing the body to slip to the floor.

"MONEY OR YOUR LIFE."

Blackmailers Make Life a Burden for Rich Wisconsin Farmer.

Chilton, Wis., Jan. 3. — Thomas Weeks, the wealthiest farmer in Calumet county, is threatened by anonymous letters, and the whole countryside is excited. Recently he received a demand to leave $500 under a bridge, and his barn was burned when he did not comply. Yesterday he got a demand for $5,000 or his life. There is no clue to the blackmailer.

BIG GRAFT IN CREAM CITY.

Padded Pay Rolls and Bogus Vouchers Said to Have Been Found.

Milwaukee, Jan. 3.—Because of the discovery of an alleged ring of grafters in the city hall, District Attorney Francis McGovern will call for a special grand jury to probe municipal corruption. It is said that many padded pay accounts and bogus vouchers have been found by Controller Paul Bechtner.

SUE FOR DEAD GIRL'S LOSS.

Le Mars, Iowa, Jan. 3.—Mr. and Mrs. Moses Kauffman of Sioux Falls, S. D., are to be sued by Mr. and Mrs. Polreis of Parker, S. D., for $100,000 punitive damages because of the death of their daughter Agnes at the home of the Kauffmans, and for whose alleged murder Mrs. Kauffman is soon to be tried.

Officer Is Arrested on Charge of Selling Without a License.

Salem, N. D., Jan. 3.—Sheriff G. H. Ausin of McCook county has been arrested on a charge of selling intoxicants without a license. The hearing is set for to-morrow. Ausin was elected sheriff two years ago and was a candidate for re-nomination, but was defeated at the convention.

Calls Doctor; Shoots Him.

Carthage, Mo., Jan. 3. — Dr. J. W. Meredith was shot and probably fatally wounded by Arthur Sanderson at the latter's home here yesterday. Sanderson had called the physician to attend his wife, and then met him at the door and fired at him. Sanderson, who was arrested, asserted that Dr. Meredith had broken up his home.

Family Sees Suicide.

Lake City, Minn., Jan. 3.—George S. Mabey committed suicide last evening by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. He committed the act in his home within sight of his wife and three children. Despondency over money matters is ascribed as the cause of his deed.

Kills Woman and Self.

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 3. — H. A. Drake of Little Sioux, this county, shot and killed Lucy Way, his housekeeper, and then killed himself yesterday. Despondency is given as the cause of Drake's act. He was fifty years old and the housekeeper thirty-five.

Forge Money Orders.

Moorhead, Minn., Jan. 3. — Railroad detectives and the police authorities are endeavoring to round up a trio of crooks who have victimized saloonkeepers and merchants of Moorhead by means of forged Great Northern express money orders.

Woman Commits Suicide.

Leon, Iowa, Jan. 3.—Mrs. Mary Bellamy committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid. She was poor and alone in the world and became deranged by brooding over her troubles.

OPERATOR'S BULL SENDS 33 TO DOOM

TELEGRAPHER LETS TRAIN SLIP BY AND IT CRASHES INTO ANOTHER.

SEVERAL ARE INCINERATED

WRECKAGE TAKES FIRE AND FIVE PASSENGER CARS ARE CONSUMED.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 3. — Two white men, a negro train porter and thirty Mexican laborers lost their lives, and fifty-five persons were injured when two passenger trains on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad collided head-on four miles west of Volland, Kan., yesterday morning.

The trains were Nos. 29 and 30, running between Chicago and El Paso. They met on a sharp curve. Fire from the lamps in the cars and from the locomotives was communicated to the splintered wreckage, consuming five cars of Train No. 29, west-bound, and burning several of the passengers. All but three of those who perished are thought to have been Mexican laborers.

The officials of the company blame John Lynes, the nineteen-year-old telegraph operator at Volland, who failed to stop Train No. 29, after receiving orders to hold it until No. 30 had passed. Lynes was arrested.

Five minutes before the trains crashed the operators for hundreds of miles along the line knew that the collision was certain, as Lynes had wired that he had let No. 29 pass. But there was no earthly means to prevent the disaster.

RAILWAY QUIZ TO COMMENCE.

New York, Jan. 3.—E. H. Harriman, president of the Union Pacific, the Southern Pacific and other lines in the Union Pacific system, and many members of his official staff, have been summoned to testify before the interstate commerce commission, at sessions which will begin in the federal building here Friday. Mr. Harriman will be present at the opening of the investigation, his health permitting, but it is not probable that he will be called to testify at the first day's session.

DIX'S CAPTAIN IS BLAMED.

Inspector's Report on Collision Filed at Washington.

Washington, Jan. 3.—A report of the steamboat inspection officers who made an investigation of the collision between the steamers Dix and Peanie on Nov. 18, near Seattle, Wash., in which about fifty persons lost their lives, has been received by the department of commerce and labor. The report places the blame on Capt. Percy Lermond of the Dix and exonerates Capt. Philip H. Mason of the Jeanie. The report says Capt. Clermond left the navigation of the Dix to the first officer, who did not have a pilot's license.

JURY PROBING INTO WRECK.

Coroner Begins Inquiry Into the Disaster Near Washington.

Washington, Jan. 3.—An endeavor to determine the cause and fix the responsibility for the Terra Cotta wreck of Sunday night on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, where a large number of people were killed and injured, began yesterday. The coroner's jury of six men has already been sworn and visited the scene of the wreck. More than half a hundred witnesses have been summoned.

Four Killed Stealing Rides.

New York, Jan. 3. — Elmer Dunn, Clarence Bennett, William E. Casey and William Bell, all of Newark, N. J., were killed by the breaking of a coupling pin on a Lehigh Valley train at South Plainfield, N. J. The boys were stealing a ride on a freight train and stepped off the train directly in front of the Chicago-bound flyer.

Lumberjacks Want More.

Missoula, Mont., Jan. 3.—Mill hands and lumberjacks employed by companies operating in Western Montana have asked for a general increase of 10 per cent in their wages. At a convention held here a committee was appointed to draft a new scale.

Russian Rebels Kill Two.

Warsaw, Russian Poland, Jan. 3. — Two terrorists shot and killed two gendarmes on Granitzna street yesterday and fled. Soldiers started in pursuit and opened fire on the assassins. The bullets went wide and wounded four pedestrians.

Shoots Wife and Landlady's Son.

Joplin, Mo., Jan. 3.—At the boarding house where he lived, F. W. Troy shot his wife through the head and breast and shot Ralph Quinn, son of the landlady, through the shoulder. Quinn will recover. Troy was captured. He refuses to discuss the shooting.

Big Dam Breaks.

Madison, Ky., Jan. 3.—The dam of the big artificial lake at Earlington four miles south of this city broke yesterday. The flood destroyed much property, including several [illegible]

Saturday, Jan. 5, 1907.

Are those New Year resolutions still in good working order?

There will be some very enthusiastic drainage advocates around here next spring.

In this bright new year that day seems lost that does not record a railroad wreck.

All of our ills, real and fancied, will not receive attention, as the state legislature will convene next Tuesday.

Forty towns in North Dakota report a fuel famine and unless there is a radical change in the weather it will be worse.

Now that the creamery production has reached the fifty-thousand-dollar mark, why not get at work and make it an even one hundred thousand a year?

Rockefeller has just given the Chicago University nearly three millions of dollars. This should advance the price of kerosine oil at least two cents a gallon.

If a great war was in progress and as many people were killed each week as are killed and injured by the railroads in the United States, all of the civilized world would shudder.

It is not so certain that the legislator-elect will have to walk as it is rumored that the railroads will issue passes good only in the state. Possibly they will be issued to the faithful only.

Cannon Falls Beacon: The inquiry into transportation conditions in the Northwest by the interstate commerce commission developed the fact that no feature of railroading had kept pace with the development of the country but the capital stock of the Great Northern road. That still has development beaten a mile.

The Polite Burman.

In the cities of Burma, where the natives have been long in contact with Europeans, says the author of "Burma, Painted and Described," they have lost some of their traditional politeness, but in the country districts old school courtesy is still the custom. An English gentleman who had bought a new pony was trying him out on a Burman road when the animal bolted and ran at top speed down a narrow road. In the way ahead was a native cart, in which was a family party out holiday making. The pony dashed into the back of the cart, threw his rider into the midst of the merrymakers and severely injured the Burman who was driving. Before the Englishman had an opportunity to explain his unexpected onslaught the Burman picked himself up and bowed low. "My lord, my lord," he said apologetically, "the cart should not have been there."

Inherited Memories.

A writer in the Nineteenth Century tells a strange story of "inherited memories." The ruins of an ancient Roman fortress rise from the grounds of a Mr. Phillips. A clergyman called upon the owner one day and asked to see the ruins. "He told me he had a distinct recollection of living there and that he held some office of a priestly nature in the days of the Roman occupation," said Mr. Phillips. "One fact struck me as significant. He insisted on examining a ruined tower which had bodily overturned. 'There used to be a socket in the top of it,' he went on, 'in which we used to plant a mast, and archers used to be hauled to the top in a basket protected with leather, from which they picked off the leaders among the ancient Gorlestonians.' We found the socket he had indicated."

When Paris Was Dirty.

It takes the labors of 4,000 to keep the city of Paris clean today, but in times past that capital did not care so much about the matter and was not always pleasing to look upon. In 1348 King John of France made the request that Parisians should not allow their pigs to roam the streets. Charles VI. (1368-1422) complained that the practice of throwing rubbish into the Seine made it a "great horror and an abomination to look upon." Until the seventeenth century everybody who could went about Paris on horseback in order to avoid contact with the filth of the streets. Various ordinances were made to compel the people to sweep the road before their own doors, but it was not until 1701 that the dust cart became an institution.

A Mean Dig.

Miss Passe—I have had many chances to marry. Only a short time ago a man told me of his love. Miss Pert—Did he also tell you the name of the lady?—Meggendorfer Blaetter.

Murder Will Out.

Thief River News: Chief of Police Erickson the first of the week received a letter from Jackson, Minn., written by a man signing his name Thorn Edel. The letter stated that in the year 1900 or 1901 a wheat buyer had been killed at Thief River Falls and robbed of his money. The letter further stated that John Beaver, of Kimbrea, Minn., could give full information regarding the murder and robbery. No grain buyer was ever murdered in Thief River Falls, but in the year 1904, when the Great Northern was extended north to Greenbush a laborer was murdered up near the Langseth farm and supposed to have been robbed of a considerable sum of money.

About four or five years ago the grain buyer in an elevator at Northcote, a station north of Hallock on the St. Vincent line, was killed and robbed of quite a sum of money and there have been similar happenings in North Dakota upon numerous occasions. The matter is being investigated.

A Leopard Collar.

"A leopard collar," he said, taking up a dog collar studded with sharp spikes three inches long. Fitting the collar on his dog, he resumed: "This piece of armor—for that is what it is—illustrates an oddity of the Himalayas—namely, the fondness of the Himalayan leopard for dog flesh. In the Himalayas last year I found that all dogs wore these murderous looking spiked collars. The explanation was that the Himalayan leopards conducted an unceasing dog hunt, and that in attacking a dog they always fell upon his neck. This collar with its sharp spikes is a great protection. It has saved many a dog from a hungry leopard. Often in the Himalayas a dog comes trotting home safe and sound, though with smears of blood and yellow hairs upon his collar spikes."

Names and the Law.

Speaking generally, the law of England allows a person to assume and use any name, provided its use is not calculated to deceive or inflict pecuniary loss. So the court of appeals laid down the law in Dockrell against Dougall, and this attitude of the law, the Law Journal remarks, is characteristic of our British love of liberty. French law is much more strict. It forbids any citizen to bear any name other than that which is expressed in the registry of his birth or to add any surname to his proper name. German law is the same, only it goes a little further in imposing a penalty on any one giving a false name to an official.—Dundee Advertiser.

Unique Rainmaking.

One of the oldest rainmaking plants is the invention of a native of one of the Indian provinces. By means of a rocket he sends more than a mile into the air a reservoir of ether attached to a parachute. This, being released at the highest point, floats gently back to earth, the condensation being caused by the evaporation of the ether. It is said to be decidedly efficacious even where there is scarcely a trace of cloud.

Cut It.

"Yes," said the college student, "dad got the idea that I was cutting up too much, and so he cut in and threatened to cut down my allowance unless I took a brace. I felt all cut up at first, but I didn't want my allowance cut off or cut into just for a little funny business, and so I cut it out." And the listening foreigner remarked, "What did the young man say?"—Somerville Journal

Breaking It Gently.

Captain of Steamer—Madam, it gives me great pain to be obliged to tell you that your little boy's hat has blown overboard. Fond Mother—Why, I thought it was tied on with a string! Captain—Yes. That was just the trouble. The string did not break.

Meeting Called.

A meeting is hereby called of the stockholders of the Farmers' Mill & Elevator Company of St. Hilaire to meet at the village hall at St. Hilaire on Friday, January 25, 1907, at 2 p.m., for the purpose of electing officers and transacting such other business as may come before the meeting. A full attendance is desired.

The Ball In Lawn Tennis.

It is a curious fact that every book written on lawn tennis cautions the player to keep his eyes on the ball at the moment of striking it, yet there are very few expert players who do so. A rifle shot looks at his target, a bowler looks at the pins, and a billiard player generally looks at the object ball, not the cue ball. I have found it next to impossible to carry in my mind, while moving rapidly to play a flying ball, the exact height of the net, the direction of the lines of my opponent's court and his position, so that it has become second nature with me and with most other players to look up in the direction that the ball is to go before it actually leaves the racket. It is principally because the reverse of this is necessary in golf that lawn tennis players have so much trouble in mastering the old Scotch game. From tennis habit they take their eyes off the ball too soon for golf success.—J. Parmly Paret in Country Life In America.

The Floor of the Pacific.

The red clay which covers the deep floors of the Pacific and the Indian oceans is made up of refuse and residue—that which can withstand the strong chemical action of the gases. In it may be found decomposed volcanic rock, pumice, zeolitic crystals, manganese oxides, meteoric iron, teeth of sharks and ear bones of whales. Few if any shore deposits are apparent in it. The rock is vitreous refuse, belched forth by subterranean or insular volcanoes. The minerals are supposed to be of cosmic origin—planetary dust and meteoric fragments that have fallen into the sea and have become disintegrated. The great quantity of sharks' teeth remains quite unaccounted for—at least their apparent gathering together in these ocean basins is considered very strange.—J. C. Van Dyke in "The Opal Sea."

A Missing Five Franc Piece.

Fully half the grownup people of France believe the old story that Napoleon Bonaparte put a check for 100,000 francs in a silver five franc piece and that the coin is yet in circulation. They say that the people did not want the five franc piece and that in order to create a demand for it Napoleon resorted to the device mentioned. The check or treasury order, it is said, was written upon asbestus paper and inclosed in the metal at the time the coin was made. Thousands of five franc pieces are annually broken open and have been so inspected since the story of the check was first circulated.

The French.

The French were first mentioned as the Franks, a tribe of warlike Germans in the northwestern part of the region now known as Prussia. They came into notice about 240 A. D., and with other German tribes invaded the Roman empire in the fifth century and settled in the country now known as France. The word Frank, or Frankman, means freeman. After their conquest of Gaul they named the country Frankenrie, or Frank's kingdom.

Helping His Finish.

"You'll find I'm hard to discourage," said the persistent suitor melodramatically. "Some day I'll make you admit you love me, and then—and not till then—I will die happy."

"I'll say it now," replied the heartless girl. "I don't mind telling a lie for a good end."—Philadelphia Ledger.

More Than Foolish.

He—Do you think it would be foolish of me to marry a woman who was my intellectual inferior? She—I don't know that it would be foolish, but it would be a difficult thing for you to do.

Discouraging.

When Cod Become Blind.

Several large cod are kept in one of the tanks of the Amsterdam aquarium, necessarily near the surface and therefore exposed to a strong light from above. Now, the cod, though not a deep sea fish, is not a surface swimmer and lives at depths where the sunlight must be very much modified by passage through the water. It lives in what to us would be semidarkness. Every one of these cod exposed to the strong light is suffering from an extraordinary hypertrophy of the eye. The whole organ has become overgrown, as if in the effort to adjust itself to the use of more light rays it had become overequipped and then useless. The cod, in fact, are blind. The most interesting feature in this change is the extraordinary rapidity with which increased supply of light rays has overdeveloped the organ for its use. It has taken place not by slow degrees from individual to individual, but in a course of time to be measured by months and in every individual in the tank. If this example is a measure of the rapidity with which such changes take place among fishes, the adaptation of those creatures which have migrated from the shallow waters of the deep seas, shown by the total loss or enormous development of their eyes and the growth of illuminating organs to light the abyss, may have been as rapid as it is marvelous.—London Spectator.

WINKJER HOLDS HIS JOB

State Dairy Commissioner Announces That He Will Still Be Dairy Inspector.

Inspector Joel G. Winkjer has received notice from the state dairy commissioner that he will still retain his office as inspector. It was announced that five men would be dropped, beginning the first of the year, as they would not have inspectors after that date. The people throughout the valley however, and the citizens of Crookston set up an energetic protest with the result that Mr. Winkjer will still keep his office.

The result will be gratifying to the dairymen throughout the valley who realize how much Mr. Winkjer has done to advance dairying in this part of the country and who wished to see him retained. The fact that he still keeps his office is due to the citizens who used all their efforts to have him retained. The Twenty-Five Thousand Club was a leading factor in this movement and did all that it could toward aiding in keeping Mr. Winkjer. —Times.

Adolph Brouillard, familiarly known as "Duff" came up from Crookston last Saturday and spent Sunday with friends here.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

News:—Shortly before noon last Saturday, Ole Fjoser was crushed to death between a box car and Oen & Granum's warehouse on the Great Northern right of way near the Hansen & Barzen Milling company's mill. Mr. Fjoser was to unload a car load of coal in the Oen & Granum's warehouse and was telling the Great Northern freight crew where he desired to have the car spotted. He stood between the track and warehouse as the car came down. At the upper end of the warehouse there is plenty of room for a person to stand and let a car pass by, but at the lower end this space is quite narrow. Mr. Fjoser was caught between the building and the car and rolled around a number of times. A large number of bones in his body were broken and he died almost instantly.

The deceased has been a resident of Thief River Falls for the past several years and is well known to most of the people of the city. He was about 45 years of age and worked in the saw mills during the summer and at odd jobs during the winter months. He was married and leaves a wife but no children. Mrs. Fjoser has never been in very good health and the sudden death of her husband has nearly prostrated her.

Engineer Here.

Hon. T. M. Hugo, representing the Duluth Engineering Co., has been here several days this week making preliminary surveys and estimates for the village council in regard to the probable cost of the proposed electric light plant. The Duluth Engineering company, of which Mr. Hugo is a member, will submit an estimate of the cost and if the plant is ordered installed they will also act as supervising architects during the construction. Nothing further will be done in the matter until Mr. Hugo's report has been received.

A Warning to Pledge-Makers.

Swan says it is a good thing to go on the water wagon for a while, but you must be very careful not to stay on too long for it is a very dangerous place. If you feel weak after you have been on for two or three days you should lose no time in jumping off and then take a good bracer, something that will give you life and energy. DE-NATURED ALCOHOL

Anyone Can Make Alcohol in his Back Yard, If He Wants to, Says Farm, Stock & Home.

It is said by the defenders of the prescribed system under which denatured alcohol must be made that "it is possible for anyone to make the alcohol in his back yard, if he wants to, and in any quantity he wants to." According to the letter of the regulations it is possible, but as a practical proposition it is impossible. If in a farmer's back yard, the distillery, even if of a capacity of 5 gallons a day, must be a registered distillery, and have a "bonded warehouse" separate from the distillery. "It must be constructed in the same manner as distillery warehouses are now constructed," which means that it must be as secure as a prison. In fact, a description of it would alone deter any small distiller from engaging in the business.

And in the fortress-like bonded warehouse there must be a denaturing room, part of the description of which is herewith quoted: "The ceiling, inside walls, and floor must be constructed of brick, stone, or tongue-and-groove planks. If any windows, they must be secured by gratings or iron bars, and to each window must be affixed solid shutters of wood or iron, constructed in such manner that they may be securely barred and fastened on the inside." The door must be equally secure and in every respect, and regardless of cost, the building must be made impregnable to any but a public official. How many 'stills with a capacity of from 30 to 200 gallons a year, as in Germany, are likely to go into commission under such conditions?

There are scores of ways to violate the law or regulations, and the penalty for violating any one of the ways is a maximum fine of $5,000, or a 5-year term in prison, or both, and confiscation of all the buildings and lands used in prosecuting the business, and the distiller is under bonds besides. There is no objection to the penalty, and surely there would be no disposition on the part of small distillers to incur it, and it does not require all of the cost and red tape prescribed to prevent it. It does not in other countries, why should it in this? Anyone can get a copy of the law and regulations by request of Hon. John W. Yerkes, commissioner of internal revenue, Washington, D. C., and after reading them he will be a brave and reckless man who will conclude to set up a "back yard" distillery. That the situation is not to the liking of the people who expect so much from denatured alcohol is shown by the fact that bills to amend the law were introduced in congress, soon after assembling, the amendments being designed to more nearly realize the expectations of the farmers who really secured the adoption of the present law.

To Keep the Salton Sea.

Now that the flow of the Colorado river into the so-called "Salton Sea" has been stopped, the dwellers in the surrounding region are beginning to realize that, although the indefinite increase of the lake would have meant ruin to them, its existence in a stationary form is in many ways a benefit. They are therefore talking of methods of maintaining it at its present size. It is a well known fact that golden grain belt beer is the ideal table beverage. Take a glass before each meal and you will not have to deprive yourself of the things you like to eat. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Hallock News: Be sure and plan your next year's crop so as to get a goodly portion of your land into hay. The prairie hay is about all played out. Said J. A. Ryden, the bonanza farmer to the east of town: "I have turned over a new leaf in farming now. I realize we must farm differently from what we have done in the past or go to the wall. I have summer-fallowed 200 acres of my land thoroughly this year but better still, I have seeded 300 acres to clover and timothy and have planned my crops and farm work so that in a few years my entire farm will be rejuvenated, and then I'll try to keep it rejuvenated." There are lots of other farmers who have started the same way. The result will be that soon there will be no real good land in Kittson county that will go begging for less than $50 per acre.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

The testimony of thousands during the past year is that the Canadian West is the best West. Year by year the agricultural returns have increased in volume and in value, and still the Canadian Government offers 160 acres FREE to every bona fide settler.

Some of the Advantages

The phenomenal increase in railway mileage—main lines and branches—has put almost every portion of the country within easy reach of churches, schools, markets, cheap fuel and every modern convenience.

The NINETY MILLION BUSHEL WHEAT CROP of this year means $60,000,000 to the farmers of Western Canada, apart from the results of other grains and cattle.

ELEVEN YEARS OF ECZEMA.

Hands Cracked and Bleeding—Nail Came Off of Finger—Cuticura Remedies Brought Prompt Relief.

"I had eczema on my hands for about eleven years. The hands cracked open in many places and bled. One of my fingers was so bad that the nail came off. I had often heard of cures by the Cuticura Remedies, but had no confidence in them as I had tried so many remedies and they all had failed to cure me. I had seen three doctors, but got no relief. Finally my husband said that we would try the Cuticura Remedies, so we got a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent Pills. Of course I keep Cuticura Soap all the time for my hands, but the one cake of Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment cured them. It is surely a blessing for me to have my hands well, and I am very proud of having tried Cuticura Remedies, and recommend them to all suffering with eczema. Mrs. Eliza A. Wiley, R. F. D. No. 2, Liscomb, Iowa, Oct. 18, 1906."

Reassured.

"Did you hear that noise? What can it be?" demanded the janitor of the fashionable apartment house.

His wife went out into the hall and returned. "It was nothing but a rat," she said.

"Ah," sighed the janitor, greatly relieved, "I thought it was a child."

THE PROGRESS OF THE CANADIAN WEST.

Nearly 200,000 of an Increase in Canada's Immigration in 1906.

The progress of a new country cannot be better ascertained than by noting the increase of railroad mileage in its transportation system, and, judged by this standard, the Canadian West leads all the countries in the world during the current year. Thirty years ago there was not one hundred miles of railroad west of the Great Lakes, and very little prospect of a transcontinental route for many years to come, but by the end of 1885 the Canadian Pacific Railway was within measurable distance of completion, and last year—twenty years later—over 6,000 miles of railroad traversed the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

In the past year the work of railroad construction has been vigorously prosecuted, and by the end of 1906, some 5,000 miles of completed railroad has been added, making a total of fully 11,000 miles in the three great grain producing provinces of Canada. Such an increase in the transportation facilities of the country is bound to make good times not only in the districts where the railroads are being built, but throughout the entire west. Allowing $20,000 a mile for construction, the sum of $100,000,000 will be put in circulation, and this in itself should cause good times to prevail in a land where work is plentiful, wages are high, and the cost of living is moderate.

But the building of new railroads through Western Canada means a greater benefit to the country than merely the money put in circulation by the cost of construction. Additional railway building means the opening of new agricultural districts and an additional area under crops; a largely increased output of grain to foreign markets with consequent financial returns; the erection of elevators and the growth of villages, towns and cities; and everything else that makes for the progress of national life, and the opening up of additional thousands of free homesteads, so extensively advertised by the Canadian government agent, whose address appears elsewhere.

It was stated on the floor of the Canadian Parliament recently by a prominent representative that ten years from now would see the bulk of the population of Canada residing west of the Great Lakes, and if the work of railway building during the present year is any criterion, the prophecy made by the Canadian statesman may be easily fulfilled inside of the time stated. During the present year no less than 189,064 persons have found homes in the Canadian west, of whom 57,796 were Americans who have seen the great possibilities of this new West, and have decided to cast in their lot with it. Certainly, our neighbor north of the 49th parallel is making a great record, and deserves the success that appears to be coming its way.

VALUE OF THE ARCHITECT.

Public Not Generally Informed as to His True Worth.

The real necessity for education in architecture, in our minds, says Brickbuilder, is not to teach the public what is good architecture so much as to bring them to a closer appreciation of the function the architect plays in public work. To many people he is still a sort of upper craftsman, less businesslike than a mason, not as practical as a carpenter, but one who increases the cost of a building from some unknown reason and keeps the builders all guessing.

Any one who looks back over the progress of the profession in this country for the last quarter of a century can readily appreciate how modern a thing the American architect is and how little he is understood. The nation, the cities, the individuals have thrown opportunities at the profession with both hands. The profession has never been quite equal to it, but has made a brave fight and is fighting still.

When we say that the public appreciates architecture we do not mean that the appreciation is a knowing or an intelligent one. It simply likes a large, handsome piece of building construction, and, generally speaking, the public that goes by on the street will take kindly to the really good architectural monuments.

There is, however, beyond a question a great work to be done, and the suggestion to educate the public by means of the creation of museums of architecture is one which deserves careful consideration, and which, if carried out very generally, would undoubtedly do a great deal to bring about the desired results.

It is safe to say that the collection of architectural casts in the Metropolitan museum at New York is studied and admired more than any other one feature of that magnificent collection and there ought to be a similar collection in each of our large cities. Whether the time is yet ripe for them to be independent collections is a question.

Even now nearly all of our museums have a more or less general collection of architectural casts, and if these could be enlarged so as to be more specific in their illustrations—to include models of complete buildings of the best type, with examples of decorations of furnished interiors and with perhaps in connection therewith exhibitions of architectural drawings—they would become powerful educational agents.

"GOT A MATCH, MISS?"

Women Carry Matches and in Match Boxes Also.

"I have suspected it for some time," said the man of experience, "but I didn't want to say anything about it till I was cocksure. Now that I know it is true I am at liberty to speak out. Women are carrying match boxes. They carry the matches as well. During the past few months I have seen scores of women take the little fancy trinkets out of their shopping bags or purses while searching for loose change. I wondered and suffered for a long time in silence, but finally the suspense was too much for me, and I asked a woman friend who, I had discovered, was also addicted to the match-box habit, what use her sex had for the sulphurous little implements. She answered Yankee fashion.

"'Why do men carry them?' said she.

"'To light their cigars,' said I, 'and for various other purposes.'

"'It's just that way with the women,' said she. 'To light their cigarettes and for various other purposes.'

"'Which applies to your case?' said I. 'Cigarettes or miscellany?'

"'Both,' said she, and she's a mighty fine woman, too."

Nervous Woman Stopped Coffee and Quit Other Things.

No better practical proof that coffee is a drug can be required than to note how the nerves become unstrung in women who habitually drink it.

The stomach, too, rebels at being continually drugged with coffee and tea—they both contain the drug—caffeine. Ask your doctor.

"I had used coffee for six years and was troubled with headaches, nervousness and dizziness. In the morning upon rising I used to belch up a sour fluid regularly.

"Often I got so nervous and miserable I would cry without the least reason, and I noticed my eyesight was getting poor.

"After using Postum a while, I observed the headaches left me and soon the belching of sour fluid stopped (water brash from dyspepsia). I feel decidedly different now, and I am convinced that it is because I stopped coffee and began to use Postum. I can see better now, my eyes are stronger.

"A friend of mine did not like Postum but when I told her to make it like it said on the package, she liked it all right." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Always boil Postum well and it will surprise you.

ODD CHARACTER IN CAPITAL.

Woman of Remarkable Mentality Lives There in Poverty.

Living in squalor in the suburbs of Northeast Washington is a little old blind woman who has a remarkable history. She claims to be a lineal descendant from Russian nobility, and as having been married to a "grandee" in that country when she was a very small girl. This venerable woman, though living in the most miserable surroundings, has a brilliant mind and is an advanced student of astronomy. One of her axioms is to the effect that this life would not be worth the living were it not for the spiritual side of it.

"I do not live here," she said, dreamily the other day. "I exist away up yonder (pointing skyward) where there are suns, stars and worlds, but, above all, where there is spirituality everywhere. Where the sordid and mean things of this life are not to be found. Where there is a genial brotherhood and sisterhood of spirituality."

This remarkable woman numbers among her other accomplishments the writing of poetry. Her friends claim she can foretell coming events with almost unerring certainty. She has been a student of materia medica since girlhood. Recently a number of prominent people have visited the shanty in which she makes her earthly abode while waiting patiently for the time to come when her spirit will be transported to "the land of the sky and stars," and every one remarks upon her phenomenal mentality.

WASHINGTON AS A MODEL CITY

The Movement Has Lately Been Given Decided Impetus.

The most notable piece of cooperation has been in the movement to make the national capital a model city in its social and economic environment, as well as in broad avenue and public building.

The Washington monument has a stone from every state in the union. The civic neglect of the District of Columbia has come from the same quarries. For congress is the common council of the district and year after year had administered defeat to measures that would restrict child labor and lower an excessive infant mortality; would require compulsory education for Washington children at the hands of the same authority which builds schoolhouses for the Tagalogs, and would raze alley shacks, fairly under the eaves of the capitol, which, on the word of two western senators, were not fit for cow stables.

The fight against child labor and for compulsory education has yet to be won. But a wife-desertion bill was passed, a juvenile court bill enacted and a judge appointed, two foul blind alleys were opened at once into minor streets, the president commissioned a special representative to investigate conditions, and a bill passed providing for the condemnation of insanitary dwellings, which had hung fire for nine years. Here was more social legislation in five months than in as many years before.

Speaker's Best Critic.

For a good many years Speaker Cannon has had critics galore, but the one person on whose judgment he ever depended implicitly was his late wife. Mrs. Cannon was kindly but severe in her criticism. Many a time after a speech in the house Uncle Joe, disregarding all other opinion, went home to hear what she had to say. Sometimes it was unstinted praise and congratulation, but again there were times when Mrs. Cannon would begin: "Well, Joe, that was very good, but not nearly as good as you are capable of doing. If you had given that one point a little more study and investigation you would not have floundered about so in that last colloquy you had," or, "Joe, you dragged miserably in your speech. That last story you told was so drawn that you quite lost the point you were trying to make. While I knew what you were driving at, I believe I was in a hopeless minority in your audience."

Has Fondness for Capital City.

Mrs. Elihu Root, wife of the secretary of state, despises Washington life as much as her husband likes it. Mrs. Root was instrumental in getting her husband to resign as secretary of war and return to New York. She did not know of the preliminary arrangements when the president invited Mr. Root to take John Hay's place in the cabinet, and the announcement that Mr. Root had accepted the portfolio of state came as a great surprise to her while she was visiting some relatives up state in New York.

She read a dispatch from her husband announcing his decision, and then turned to her friends and said: "I do believe that if they offered that husband of mine a place as policeman in Washington he would take it, he likes to live there so well."

Hot Shot for Depew.

Senator Depew called on the president. He was a sort of twelfth carbon copy of the old blithesome and debonair Depew, but he did as well as he could in the circumstances.

"Senator," said the always polite president, "you certainly drink from the spring of perpetual youth."

"Ah," said Depew, raising a warning finger, "as I remember my Pope, he says nothing about the spring being perpetual, but, anyhow, we've got that spring up in Peekskill."

"If you have," said another senator in a hoarse aside, "I'll bet you've got a bunch of stock in the exploiting company that was given to you for serving as a director."

Showed Tender Conscience.

The conscience fund at Washington is richer, an anonymous veteran having returned his civil war bounty. "As I went into the army because I thought it my duty to go, and as I have prospered in business, I now wish to pay back $500." It is unfortunate that prosperity does not more frequently beget the kind of conscience that makes returns.

Many a man's failure is due to his having wasted his time in envying the success of his neighbor's strenuous efforts.

MASURY'S HOUSE PAINT
THE PAINT WITH THE LONGEST LIFE

There is no question about it.

Masury's House Paints have been submitted to every possible test during the past sixty-five years. They have withstood the attacks of extreme heat, extreme cold, moisture and time. When properly applied on the proper surface they invariably give good accounts of themselves. Painters praise them because of their endurance and preservative qualities. Consumers endorse them because, by their use, they are spared the expense of repainting for the longest possible period. The wonderful success of the house of John W. Masury & Son for more than half a century is due to the care with which they select the ingredients used in the manufacture of their paints. Many substances could be used to lessen cost, but they are unhesitatingly rejected.

PURE LINSEED OIL

is used on account of its superior preservative qualities. The pigments ground with it are selected because experience has proved them to be best. In deciding upon paints for original painting or repainting you must remember it costs just as much to spread poor paints as it does to spread the best paints, and that in the interests of economy you should choose Masury's House Paints for the reason that they live the longest and retain their brilliancy of finish long after inferior paints have completely vanished. They are manufactured only by

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE

Many Important Recommendations Submitted for the Consideration of the Legislature.

The following abstract contains all the most important points touched upon by Gov. Johnson in his message to the legislature:

The governor finds much cause for congratulation in the general condition of our prosperity. He says:

State's Finances.

"We have particular reason for felicitation in the financial condition of the state. According to the report of the state auditor there has been much improvement during the past biennial period. Economy by the legislature, followed by economical administration on the part of the executive departments, will bring a further improved condition in the near future.

"Prudence and wisdom should mark your every action, and local demands should, as far as possible, be subordinated to the good of the whole state. The state auditor in his report to you has given his estimates of the receipts and expenditures for the ensuing three years. His estimate of the total receipts for the year 1907 is $6,300,936.09, with estimated expenditures for the same period of $6,376,876.03. For 1908 the income is estimated at $5,370,000, with estimated expenditures of $4,766,000. For 1909 the estimated receipts of the revenue fund are $5,470,000, with estimated expenditures of $5,061,000. In his estimate for the years 1908-1909, it will be necessary to raise about $500,000 a year by direct taxation, and to produce that sum a levy of approximately a one-half mill will be sufficient; and that, reckoning upon this basis, and taking into consideration the various extraordinary appropriations which are now in force, some $900,000 will be available during these two years for new buildings and other extraordinary appropriations. While this is not a very large sum, it is hoped that the legislature will be able to practice that rigid economy which will bring the appropriations within the estimate made by the state auditor."

Taxation.

"One of the greatest questions with which you will be called upon to deal is that of solving the problem of providing, at least in some measure, a wise and just method of distributing the tax burdens of the people you represent.

"From the birth of our state government we have had an unchanged system of taxation in the form of a direct tax upon real and personal property. The history of taxation in the form of a direct tax upon real and personal property. The history of taxation in our state has taught us that taxes have not been equal, and that the method has not been efficient. The cause has been in part the law and in part of application.

"The state constitution provided that laws should be passed taxing all property according to its true value in money. Laws have been enacted with this idea in view, and yet we know that the taxation of all forms of property, while based in some measure upon valuation, has seldom or never approximated full value. Real property has been generally assessed at anywhere from 25 to 50 per cent of actual value; and tangible personal property at much the same ratio; while millions of dollars of invisible and intangible property has escaped taxation entirely because of the ability of the owner to evade his lawful tax burden.

"It is not to be presumed that this or any other legislative body will be able to devise a system of taxation or enact a tax law, which is going to bring about in complete form the results commonly hoped for by all people compelled to pay taxes. The best that this body can do is to equalize as nearly as may be the burden of taxation and so adjust it that its weight will not fall too heavily upon those unable to bear it, and distribute the responsibilities in accordance with the privileges enjoyed under our government. During the year 1905, the total taxes levied in our state for all purposes amounted to $22,355,326.25, distributed in various ways for the carrying on of state, county, city, town and school governments. No law can be enacted by you which will in a very large measure reduce this burden of taxation, which was even greater in 1906 than in 1905; the total taxable valuation of the property of the state for 1906 being $914,000,000, in round numbers, as against $853,000,000 in 1905.

The New Constitutional Tax Amendment.

"Up to this time the legislature has never been able to modify in any material degree the system of taxation which, as we all know, is very largely one of direct ad valorem taxation upon personal and real property. There has been much complaint; and that too, very justly, by the people. This limitation has been due to constitutional restrictions, and for years there has been a clamor and much attempt to modify our constitution, removing the restrictions which have hedged about legislative bodies, and giving to them a wider and more general latitude in regulating, or in legislating upon this question of taxation.

"At the recent general election the people of Minnesota voted to modify the constitution, and adopted an amendment giving to the legislature this wider latitude; and it now falls to you to justify, in some small measure at least, the opinion of the people that this action, both by the legislature and by themselves, was a wise one.

"This amendment places in the hands of the state legislature of Minnesota, for the first time in its history, the complete and sole power and responsibility of taxation, with no constitutional restriction as regards the method of system of taxation provided, save that the taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects, and shall be levied and collected for public purposes.

"I appreciate that there can be no great and sudden change from an unnatural and unjust taxation to a natural and just condition. The burden of taxation will continue to fall largely upon the tangible and visible property of the state. It occurs to me that, while there is much temptation to indulge in many changes from our present condition, it would be wise to make haste slowly, and that it would be far better to take one short step in the right direction than to proceed any distance in the wrong direction, and later on be compelled to retrace our steps.

Taxation of Mortgages.

"Inasmuch as all classes of property should bear a just proportion of the taxes for raising the public revenue, efforts should be made by you to increase the taxable property valuations upon those classes of property which hitherto have escaped payment of taxes either entirely or in large measure. One of the difficulties heretofore experienced has been the failure of the provision for the taxation of mortgages and other credits. It has been patent for many years that mortgages have not generally been listed for taxes, despite the fact that stringent legislation has been enacted giving to the tax-collecting authority almost arbitrary and despotic power. The chief result has been fruitless effort and easy evasion of the law. Money has been loaned under fictitious names and power of attorney given exclusively for the purpose of tax evasion.

"It occurs to me that under the latitude afforded by the new constitutional amendment it will be possible for you to devise a registry and income tax on the credit, which will not be a hardship to either the loaner or the borrower of money, and yet will bring into the revenues of the state and counties a much larger sum of money than is realized under our present system.

Permanent Tax Commission.

"I would most urgently recommend legislation providing for the establishment of a permanent tax commission, which shall be empowered to make a careful and scientific study of this question. Specially important service can be rendered by the proposed state commission in seeing that the tax laws made by this legislature are enforced strictly, uniformly and impartially, and that assessments are free from discrimination as between counties, local assessment districts and different parcels of property in the same district."

Taxation of Iron Mines.

"On the iron ranges in the northeastern portion of our state, we have developed great mining enterprises which probably do not now bear their just proportion of the taxes of the state. Human mind can scarcely calculate the value of these properties, and it is not fair to assume that even at this time these properties have been listed at anywhere near a fair valuation.

Beginning with 1896, the mines have been assessed as other real property for direct taxation; the totals for St. Louis county, as equalized by the state board of equalization, being for the past ten years, approximately as follows: $3,900,000, in 1896, $6,000,000 in 1898, $10,000,000 in 1900, $30,000,000 in 1902, $42,000,000 in 1904, and $70,000,000 in 1906.

"How inadequate even the assessment of 1906 may be is apparent from the estimates of the companies themselves who hold the mining properties as assets for capitalization. In 1902, when the United States Steel corporation had much smaller iron ore holdings than at present, the officers testified in a chancery suit that the corporation had in reserve in deposits of tested ore upwards of 700,000,000 tons upon which the officials placed a value of $1 per ton. Subsequent reports of the corporation confirm this valuation and show, moreover, that the great bulk of this iron ore asset of the United States Steel corporation is located in Minnesota. Since 1902 the exploration and acquisition of iron ore properties in Minnesota have proceeded on a large scale, until the present estimates of mining, financial and government authorities, as regards the explored merchantable ore deposits in Minnesota are upwards of 1,500,0000,000 tons. It is, therefore, apparent that even the $75,000,000 valuation placed upon the iron mines of Minnesota by the state board of equalization in 1906 represents only a fraction of something like 5 to 10 per cent of the actual value placed upon the properties by the companies themselves for practical commercial purposes."

"The problem which confronts the state in the taxation of its vast iron ore properties is the practical impossibility of applying to these mines a valuation and tax rate which would cause them to pay a just proportion of taxes on a basis of equality with other property throughout the state.

State Versus Private Revenue From Iron Lands.

"The State of Minnesota has received one of the greatest heritages of mineral wealth ever bequeathed by mother nature to a commonwealth. The iron ore thus far surveyed and tested measures approximately one-half of the reserve deposits of the continent. The 1906 shipments of 25,483,000 tons from the Minnesota mines is over one-half of the American total and one-fourth of the world total. But the state itself is receiving a very meager share of the net revenue and general benefits.

"The great iron ore beds are being yearly depleted for the benefit of a few, and these chiefly non-resident corporations.

"There have been taken from the mines of Minnesota and shipped out of the state from the opening of the first mine, in 1884 down to the last shipment for the season just ended on Dec. 15, a total of 148,131,306 tons of iron ore, which, valued at the low average of $1.70 per ton, was worth to the shippers $251,823,220. The total revenue derived by the state during this period of twenty-two years has been $315,250 from mineral leases and contracts, $635,301 from royalties on iron ore, and less than $4,500,000 all told from taxes, including both state and local revenue, or a total of about $5,500,000, which amounts to the trifle of a little over 2 per cent as the aggregate share of the state from all sources and for all purposes from its great iron ore production and resources.

"The aggregate gross earnings of the three iron range ore carriers in hauling the total of 148,131,000 tons of iron ore from the mines to the lake, at 80 cents per ton, is $118,000,000, of which approximately $60,000,000 as shown by the official reports, represent net earnings.

"The royalty profits from iron ore tonnage to the United States Steel corporation, which holds the fee simple to the majority of the properties which it operates, and on the remainder pays royalties on contracts made at one-half to one-fourth the present royalty values, are beyond computation.

"From a portion of these iron properties, which are operated under lease, private feeholders during the past year have realized royalties exceeding $6,500,000 on the single year's output.

"During the seven years, 1900-1906 inclusive, the two iron range roads have declared dividends aggregating $21,000,000 on a total $7,112,000 of capital stock, and had on hand on June 30, 1906, after the payment of $6,453,000 of dividends during the past fiscal year, an accumulated surplus of $9,122,000.

"Thus, the State of Minnesota, which holds the resources and has yielded these magnificent incomes to a few private and corporate interests is the one party that receives only a beggarly income."

Iron Ore Royalty Tax.

"Under the new constitutional amendment it is within your power, as it is your duty, to provide some system of taxation which will give the state at least an approximately fair share of its just revenue income from this great iron ore wealth. One step in the right direction, it occurs to me, would be an income tax on the royalties or mineral rights, which are not now listed for taxation.

"This tax on mine royalties, however, would not reach the large fee holders, like the United States Steel corporation, who operate their own fee properties. The royalty value enjoyed from the use of such properties operated by the holding company is as great as from the leased properties, and the tax should reach, if possible, such royalty values as well as the royalties based on lease.

"The problem in such case would be to revise a method of arriving at or discovering a fair and just measure of such royalty values. Inasmuch as the tonnage of ore shipped is the basis for computing the royalties on leased properties, it is possible that you may be able to devise a practicable and lawful method of computing royalty taxes, using tonnage as the basis of computation. At the same time, great legal ability and care will be required to avoid the danger of double taxation, which is repugnant to the constitution and to the spirit of American institutions.

"Another feature of this problem occurs to me to be worthy of your most careful consideration. At the present time the state finances are in a healthy condition. Railroad and franchise taxes provide for a large portion of the state revenue. I believe that at this session of the legislature changes can be made in our tax laws which will substantially provide for the expenses of state government by this form of taxation; and when this can be done, taxation would be entirely left, as it ought to be, to the local governments for their self control.

"As much of the inequality arising from the application of the tax laws is due to inefficient machinery for assessment, you may find the following change worth your consideration, namely, the abolition of the office of assessor in cities, villages and towns, and in their place establish either a tax commissioner for the county, or in the larger counties, a tax commission of three or five persons, to be employed annually, with a view of the proper listing of property and the better equalization of existing values.

The governor calls attention to the necessity of changing the present law with regard to the taxation of sleeping car companies. Under the present law they are required to pay a tax of 3 per cent on the gross receipts of all business between points within the state. The governor declares that it is a well-known fact that the companies evade the spirit of this law. The remedy the governor suggests is that all sleeping car companies be compelled to report all of their business, local and interstate, and be compelled to pay in proportion on the same basis applied to railroad companies, and the tax be raised to 4 per cent.

Attention is also called to the necessity of amending the tax laws so far as they relate to telephone companies. These companies are now taxed on their gross earnings from business within this state, but no penalty is imposed for failure to pay. The governor suggests that a penalty be provided, and also that the companies be required to pay a pro rata tax on all interstate business.

Amendments to the law for the taxation of express companies along similar lines are also recommended.

The governor urges the advisability of requiring the railroads to pay their taxes semi-annually instead of annually as at present. He points out that great advantage in administering the state's finances would result.

The inefficiency of our present personal tax system is pointed out, and the governor strongly urges the necessity of providing for some reasonable method of the taxation of credits generally, including stocks and bonds and moneys, all of which are presumed under our present law to bear a proportion of the taxation, but which almost entirely have escaped this burden. A graduated income tax has been suggested as a remedy, but the governor says if this is attempted it should be approached very cautiously. The subject of a graduated income, however, he considers worthy of honest and careful consideration.

Attention is called to the recommendation of the state board of equalization in favor of levying an annual license tax on corporations, with the spirit of which the governor says he heartily concurs.

Mineral Leases.

"The state has a large area of land containing iron ore, and in the past has leased on terms wholly out of proportion to just and proper conditions. The statute now provides that from all iron ore taken from state lands the state shall receive a fixed royalty of 25 cents per ton, each ton to be reckoned at 2,240 pounds. In the light of the leases made between private parties this fixed sum is an absurdity, and should be changed without further delay. I would suggest that the provisions of the law be changed, fixing a minimum royalty on state leases of not less than 50 cents per ton, and authorizing a board consisting of the governor, attorney general and the state auditor to dispose of mineral leases at public auction to the highest bidder without fixing a maximum price by law."

Railroad Legislation.

"No problem with which you have to deal is of more vital concern to you and the people you represent than that of railway transportation, and a proper adjustment of transportation rates. Some idea of the importance of this question to the people of the state may be gathered from the fact that the total gross earnings of railroads within the State of Minnesota as reported by the companies to the railroad and warehouse commission for the year ending July 31, 1906, was $81,619,640.35. The gross earnings per mile of the railroads within this state were $10,263.28, and the net earnings per mile $5,100.00. The relative importance of this matter may be more clearly understood when we realize that the total gross earnings in Minnesota, being $81,619,640.35, is over 50 per cent of the estimated farm productions of 1906. The basis of our wealth is agriculture, and the total estimated agricultural products of Minnesota during the past year, including wheat, oats, corn, rye, barley, flax, potatoes, hay, butter, cheese, live stock, poultry, market garden, fruit and nursery products, is approximately $100,000,000. In other words, it required more than one-half of the agricultural products enumerated to satisfy the transportation demands of railroad corporations within the State of Minnesota.

Reduction of Freight Rates.

"The vast earnings of railway companies have been swollen by excessive rates of transportation, which have been higher in our own state than in the state south of us, or in Canada, to the north of us. There is a general and just demand that the people be relieved from the extortion and the abuse of high and unfair railroad rates of transportation.

"During the past biennial period efforts have been made by the board of railroad and warehouse commission looking toward a reduction of the rates of transportation, resulting in a reduction on merchandise rates, a voluntary reduction by some of the railroads in the matter of coal and grain rates. I am satisfied, however, that absolute justice has not yet been done to the people of the State of Minnesota. During the past year I caused to be made a complete tabulation of the prevailing rates of transportation between points on the several lines of railway within the State of Minnesota. Applying the Iowa distance tariff law to those rates I find that the shipper in Minnesota is paying a rate of transportation wholly without the bounds of justice and fairness, and to such an extent in my estimation as to retard the real progress of the people of our commonwealth.

"When we find the net earnings per mile of roads twice as great in Minnesota as in Iowa, and this, hand in hand with freight tariffs which in the main average 20 to 50 per cent higher, it is a fair presumption that the high net earnings of Minnesota roads are due in part to unjust and extortionate rates.

"The recent rate reductions are in the right direction. Compared, however, with grain rates in the Canadian provinces to the north of us and with Iowa merchandise rates to the south, it is apparent that Minnesota freight rates are still at too high a level, and especially in view of the enormously heavy tonnage passing over Minnesota roads from the several Northwestern states tributary to Minnesota distributing points.

"I would recommend the appointment of a joint legislative committee with a view of making a study of the prevailing conditions as to the various rates of transportation and establishing a distance tariff law, which will bring some measure of prompt relief. The people should not longer be compelled to pay great dividends on money that the people themselves have put into railroads by reason of excessive rates of transportation. They ought not to be compelled to pay a sum greater than that required to pay a legitimate and reasonable rate of interest and profit upon the actual value of railroad properties of the State of Minnesota. In addition to reduction of rates, stringent laws should be passed at this session of the legislature, in harmony with those of the general government pertaining to interstate commerce, which would serve to make impossible the granting of rebates and special privileges to classes in the handling of state business."

A Two Cent Passenger Rate.

"The time has come in our state when relief is also demanded in the matter of passenger rates. A maximum rate of 2 cents per mile should be fixed by law and fixed now. The public has demanded it; the public is right in making that demand, and the legislature should not defer action.

Abolition of Passes.

"The time has also come for some specific action in the matter of the enactment of law forbidding the granting of pass privileges by railroad corporations to people other than bona fide employes of railways and their families. So insistent have the people become in their demand for this reform that all of the several political organizations have been compelled to recognize the justice of the demand, and have incorporated planks in their various platforms looking toward the abolition of the pass system in the State of Minnesota. I urge most earnestly the early enactment of a law which will forever abolish the pass system in Minnesota."

The governor suggests the enactment of a reciprocal demurrage law, subjecting carriers to the same penalties for delay in furnishing cars as the carriers impose upon shippers for delay in loading cars. The conditions of so-called car shortage, which have afflicted this and neighboring states during the past ninety days, is pointed to as an illustration of the necessity for the passage of such a law.

The governor calls attention to the fact that the only way in which an order made by the railroad and warehouse commission can be enforced is by an application to the district court for a mandatory writ compelling the carrier to comply with the order. It is pointed out that the orders of the interstate commerce commission pertaining to rates under the new rate law, and of the Iowa railroad commission under the distance tariff law, are prima facie rates after a given day, notwithstanding appeal, and stand as such until the proper court has adjudicated otherwise. The governor declares that this should be the rule of law in Minnesota, if the orders of the commission are to have the authority and effective influence which the general interests of the state demand.

Insurance.

The governor devotes considerable space to the subject of insurance. He says in part:

"Since the last session of the legislature, the subject of insurance, and life insurance in particular, has occupied a conspicuous place in the public mind and will no doubt receive your particular attention.

"Life insurance has grown to be of the highest importance. A large portion of the savings of the people are invested in it, and life insurance companies have under their control vast accumulations, the proper use and management of which is of grave concern and necessary to the public welfare.

"Great evils have grown up in connection with this very important phase of our industrial life; extravagant salaries and commissions have been paid; ambiguous, deceptive and often fraudulent contracts have been sold; colossal accumulations have been secured by adroitly conceived plans and used for the benefit of favored individuals, or hazarded in the doubtful conflicts waged by captains of finance in the money centers of the country. That all this has not been followed by great disaster is due to the wonderful resources of our land, and is not to the credit of those who have thus abused their trust.

"You will have available a mass of information which should prove of great assistance to you in arriving at just conclusions. The legislation of the State of New York, adopted as the result of the extensive and fearless investigation of this subject by the Armstrong committee of that state, should be upheld by the various states as far as possible.

"In February, 1906, a conference of governors, attorneys general and insurance commissioners was held at Chicago to consider and further the adoption of uniform insurance legislation. A committee appointed by that conference has given careful consideration to the subject since that date; its report will be before you, and I bespeak for it your most earnest consideration.

"The recommendations of the committee consist of seventeen proposed bills, which may be summarized as follows:

"The adoption of standard policies, or at least standard provisions in all policies, so that for the future ambiguous and fraudulent policies will be unknown and open competition between the companies introduced; the abolition of the deferred dividend system, to which is traced many of the evils to which I have referred; a compulsory accounting for present supplies held by companies heretofore operating upon the deferred dividend plan; regulation of salaries and investments, preservation of vouchers for expenditures, prohibiting of discrimination in provisions to secure complete publicity through annual reports are proposed as measures which, while leaving the details of the management to the officers of each company, will result in fair competition, ample security and proper use of funds, while frequent accountings and full publicity will force honest and economical management.

Trusts and Combinations.

"Section 5168 of the Revised Laws provides that no person or association of persons shall enter into any pool, trust agreement, combination or understanding whatsoever with a view of restraining trade within this state, or between the people of this or any other state, or country, which would tend in any way to limit, control, or maintain, or regulate the price of any article of trade, manufacture, or use within the state, or which might in any wise prevent or limit competition in the purchase and sale thereof; and also provides a serious penalty for a violation of this section of the statute.

"Although this statute has been in force and effect for several years there have been no prosecutions or punishments for violation of the law, although it is generally understood and as a matter of fact positively known that combinations in violation of this statute have been effected, and to such an extent as to menace the public welfare.

"I call your attention to the fact that the price of lumber of all kinds has gradually risen to a point where the building of homes and the use of lumber are almost prohibited. This is not due in any great measure to tariff conditions, nor to the decreased product of lumber, but is the direct result of combinations between manufacturers, jobbers, and even retailers; and while the statute provides that the attorney general and the several county attorneys shall begin and conduct actions and proceedings necessary to enforce the provisions of this section, or that any citizen may do so, no attempt has yet been made to destroy the monopolistic control of the lumber markets by those engaged in this industry. It is possible that no amendment to the statute is necessary other than to provide more specific provisions as to the boycott and to provide machinery by which the attorney general may institute proceedings against offenders of this section of the statute. I believe that an appropriation should be made and placed in the hands of the attorney general, to procure evidence upon which he could base a prosecution and enable him to carry out the provisions of the statute which is, now mandatory in that he is directed to begin and conduct actions and proceedings necessary to enforce provisions of the statute.

"The attorney general advised us that the business of his office has increased many fold during the last two years. Suits are now pending directly involving more than one million dollars, and upon the successful outcome of this litigation depends a revenue to the state of many millions of dollars more. During the past two years there have been collected through the attorney general's department upwards of $300,000. Because of the volume of the business of this department, the attorney general and his assistants have been constantly occupied, and have been unable to keep up with the enormous press of business. I earnestly recommended the enlargement of the working force of the department, and provision by which this department may employ sufficient help from time to time, which will insure the performance of every needed duty as it should be done.

Primary Election Law.

"It is hardly necessary to call your attention to the need of some very important modification of our primary election law. It is urged, and not without some degree of reason, that the present primary election system cultivates perjury, fraud, deceit, misrepresentation, and a total disregard for our entire election system.

Some radical changes should be made in the present law to overcome some of the difficulties in the way of its successful operation. I believe the law would improved by providing that political parties through conventions might be permitted to nominate two or more candidates to be placed upon the election ballot, and to allow the people to choose between these nominations.

"A suggestion worthy of consideration is that nomination for the primary election, or the right of a citizen to have his name placed upon the ballot, should be by petition only.

"It has been suggested that improvement might be had by placing all the names upon one ballot and permitting the voter to vote whichever ballot he chose; providing, that he must vote for the names upon one of the tickets exclusively. There are many who advocate the extension of the primary election law so as to include state officers. While this is correct in theory, and should ultimately be accomplished, I believe that its extension to state officers should be deferred until the law is corrected in its application to its present field of operation. I would suggest the advisability of the appointment of a joint committee of the house and senate at the earliest possible moment to frame a new law and report to the legislature before the close of the session.

Labor Legislation.

"I desire to renew a previous suggestion to the legislature for legislation upon a subject which is of great interest to the working people of the state, and which is generally described as the common law doctrine as to the non-liability of a master to a servant for injuries occurring through the negligence of a fellow servant. The workman who is dependent upon his daily toil for the support of his family ought not to be called upon to assume the great risks of danger imposed by hazardous occupation, a risk which ought in all cases to be borne by the employer rather than the employe.

"Your attention is invited to the success that has attended the opening of a free employment agency under the auspices of the state labor department, and to the wisdom of an expansion of such free employment agencies.

"In connection with the subject of labor legislation, I also wish to submit to you the desirability of increasing the number of labor inspectors, not only for inspection of shops and factories, but for prevention of child labor and enforcement of the truancy laws, to the end that there may be an inspector in each of the nine congressional districts of the state.

Good Roads.

"The subject of better highways and of making good roads is still prominent in the public mind, and much more interest is being taken along this line than heretofore. We have come to recognize that the improvement of our public highways means better and more economical transportation facilities. The amendment to the constitution proposed by the last legislature relating to this question failed of passage by reason of the failure of a large number of the people of the state to vote upon this question. There was some opposition to the amendment by reason of the fact that the proposed amendment imposed certain limitations upon the legislature. I trust that provision will be made for the submission to the people of another amendment to the constitution, and that restrictions heretofore contained in the constitution be removed.

Drainage.

"The subject of drainage is one proper for your consideration at this time. Approximately 2,808,000 acres of the state holdings of 2,750,000 acres of school and state institutional land, which do not include 60,000 acres not yet patented to the state, are too wet for agricultural purposes. This large area is confined to thirty counties in Northern Minnesota; 90 per cent of the land, being in Roseau, Cass, Itasca, St. Louis, Aitkin, Lake and Cook counties. With this immense area of low lands which the state is able to reclaim at a comparatively small cost, it would seem to be an excellent public policy that the most advanced methods for their reclamation be adopted and that Minnesota co-operate with any satisfactory plan proposed by the federal government for drainage.

"I am glad to be able to say that there is in Minnesota but one sentiment on the question of the wisdom of some plan of drainage, and I would urge liberality in appropriations to this end.

Forestry.

"Much of the land which has produced pine timber is available for agriculture, but some of it, from being rocky, hilly or very sandy, is only fit for growing timber. Nature alone will restore a portion of the latter with pine if fires are kept out, but the greater part of it will need to be planted. On such land it requires on an average about sixty years for pine to grow to merchantable size, and a businesslike beginning of reforestation should be made without further delay.

"The proper treatment of our forest resources is a matter of serious importance and merits your best thought.

Indian War Pensions.

"At the last session of the legislature a law was enacted providing pensions for certain people who served in the Indian war of 1862. The law carried an appropriation to provide for the payment of the pensions, but it is found that because of certain restrictions comparatively few are beneficiaries of the state's bounty. The law should either be repealed or so changed as to make all who are equally deserving able to share alike.

Initiative and Referendum.

"I would call your attention to the merits of the advisory initiative and referendum. This permits the people of a state, county, city, village or town to express their views upon questions affecting their organizations. The advisory initiative and referendum is but a step farther than the right of petition, and is not binding upon their officers. The enactment of a law providing for an advisory initiative and referendum can be accomplished without a constitutional amendment, and I am firmly of the opinion that such legislation is desirable.

Public Ownership.

"Public ownership of public utilities is fast becoming an accomplished fact in many of the cities and villages of the state. The expression of an advanced public opinion is found in our neighboring State of Illinois in the enactment of the so-called Muller law, which has been sustained in the courts, and applies in that state to the acquisition by municipalities of street railway properties. The idea is just and correct and its enactment in this state would undoubtedly have the effort of regulating in no small measure our privately owned public utilities, if not in acquiring them for the public use.

Public Institutions.

"Our state has been reasonably generous in the past in dealing with and caring for the unfortunate people committed to our public institutions. It is gratifying to note that in some of our institutions we have kept step with other states in the general progress and improvement over former conditions and methods. We have not yet attained that degree of perfection which would satisfy even ourselves, to say nothing of satisfying those who have made a scientific study of charities and corrections.

"Every needed facility should be afforded, and the various hospitals made to conform as largely as possible to the general hospital idea. At two of our insane hospitals nurses' dormitories are being erected, which when completed will to some extent relieve the congestion at those institutions. Provision should be made at this session of the legislature looking toward the construction of a companion building at the Rochester hospital.

"The board of control recommends the construction of a building for the detention of the criminal insane, with necessary legislation to make legal commitments and transfers thereto, and advocates a sufficient appropriation to maintain it. This recommendation should either be followed or provision should be made at the state prison for their detention there.

Dairy and Food Department.

"The laws intrusted to the dairy and food department for enforcement have been administered with the single purpose of accomplishing the ends sought by the legislature. The department has been governed by the policy, first, of rigidly enforcing the laws, and second, to educate the dealer as well as the consumer to a realization of the necessity of complete co-operation in all efforts looking toward the sale and consumption of pure foods, and while our laws are recognized to be as fully advanced, and perhaps more so, than those of other states, there are some deficiencies and some necessity for amendment to existing laws in order to make the work of this department still more effective.

State Prison.

During the past two years the state prison twine plant has been materially enlarged, the output amounting during this period to twenty-four and a half million pounds, which was sold at a price amounting to $750,000, while the state at the same time has made a net profit of $410,000, thus yielding during the two years a net profit to the state and the citizens thereof of more than $1,100,000. The past two years have been the most prosperous and beneficial since the twine plant was originated. The product has given general satisfaction, and the demand is still beyond the capacity of the plant.

The Lobbyist.

"In several of the states steps have already been taken to exclude the lobbyist from the halls of legislation, and eliminate one of the greatest evils to political economy and to political decency. Provision should be made, it seems to me, by which the current of popular will could not be turned from its proper channel by representatives of private interest who desire to overcome the rights of the public. While it will be impossible, perhaps, to totally prevent the lobbyist from intrusion, it could be accomplished to some extent by compelling corporations and individuals interested in legislation to register and be required to submit all arguments to committees instead of to individuals."

In conclusion the governor says:

"In your every effort to bring about a healthier and better state of governmental affairs I pledge you the hearty co-operation of my office, and assure you, as well, that I will be glad to welcome any suggestion calculated to promote the prosperity of our people and the general domestic welfare."

SENATOR NELSON IS THEIR CHOICE

UNANIMOUSLY NOMINATED FOR THIRD TERM BY REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

LEGISLATURE IS ALL READY

BOTH HOUSES ARE FORMALLY ORGANIZED AND GOVERNOR NOTIFIED.

St. Paul, Jan. 9.—Without a dissenting voice the caucus of Republican members of the legislature last night nominated Knute Nelson of Alexandria as the Republican candidate for the United States senate. On Jan. 22 he will receive almost the unanimous vote of the legislature in his third election to the senate. The meeting was only technically a nominating caucus; practically it was a meeting, as was said by a speaker, to register the nomination made by the people of the Republican party.

In the Senate.

The thirty-fifth biennial session of the senate opened at noon yesterday, when Lieut. Gov. A. O. Eberhart took the oath of office administered by Chief Justice Start of the state supreme court, and members were in their seats and the gallery was filled with spectators. The senators were then sworn in by congressional districts by the chief justice, after which the chaplain, Rev. J. W. Eckman of Dunnell, offered a prayer.

The Republican caucus nominees for officers were then formally elected and assumed their duties. Resolutions were passed providing for formal notification to the governor and the house that the senate was organized and ready for business.

In the House.

The house of representatives of the thirty-fifth legislature of Minnesota organized according to schedule yesterday noon by electing the officers nominated at the Republican caucus Monday evening. The usual resolutions regarding rules of procedure were passed, seats selected and the governor notified that the body was organized and ready to receive his message.

The oath of office was administered to the members by Justice Brown of the supreme court.

The officers elected by the Republican caucus were elected as follows: Speaker, L. H. Johnson, Minneapolis; chief clerk, A. E. L. Johnson; assistant, A. H. Vernon. After the appointment of the customary notification committees the house adjourned until 10 o'clock to-day, when the governor will deliver his message.

St. Paul, Jan. 8.—What will prove probably the most important session of the legislature held in many years will convene at noon to-day. Many matters of great importance to the state will come up for action. Taxation, reciprocal demurrage, anti-pass laws and railroad legislation are among the important matters that will engage the attention of the lawmakers.

It is now conceded that Senator Nelson will be re-elected without opposition.

Officers of the two houses have been agreed upon by the Republicans, and all that remains is for the respective bodies formally to ratify their choice.

Officers Are Selected.

Separate caucuses were held last night by the Republicans of the senate and house and the officers were agreed upon without contest. The senate members selected the following officers: S. A. Langum, Preston, secretary; W. H. Alton, St. Paul, assistant secretary; J. H. Ege, Minneapolis, sergeant-at-arms; Rev. J. W. Eckman, Dunnell, chaplain.

The house members selected the following: H. L. Johnson, Minneapolis, speaker; A. E. L. Johnson, Minneapolis, chief clerk; A. H. Vernon, St. Paul, assistant; B. F. Selz, Red Wing, sergeant-at-arms; R. D. Phillips, Ceylon, chaplain.

Granada, Minn., Jan. 9.—The blacksmith shop of P. C. Hubert at this place was totally destroyed by fire. The loss is $3,500. The Cronch residence was also damaged by the fire to the extent of about $250.

T. R. Benson, while assisting at the fire, was hit on the head with a heavy pail and suffered a bad scalp wound.

OPERATOR BLAMED.

Permitted Two Trains to Enter the Same Block.

Livingston, Mont., Jan. 9.—Operator Charles Brady has been placed under arrest, charged with responsibility for the recent wreck on the Northern Pacific at Coal Spur, in which two lives were lost. The coroner's jury found that Brady was blamable because he had permitted two trains to enter the block at the same time.

Swindling Is Charged.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Jan. 9.—A. Hodgins, a Nebraska man, has been arrested on a charge of obtaining property under false pretenses. He claims to be a representative of an Omaha grocery house, and at the time he got into trouble was canvassing through the rural districts of Turner county securing orders for goods.

RAILROAD'S MOTIVE NOT CLEAR

STATE CAN SEE ONLY TECHNICAL REASONS FOR GREAT NORTHERN'S ACT.

St. Paul, Jan. 10.—In the view of the legal department of the state of Minnesota, the motive of the Great Northern road in refusing to submit to the state law by asking permission of the railroad commission to make its stock increase of $60,000,000 is not apparent from the hearing, which closed yesterday before Judge Oscar Hallam of St. Paul, on application by the state of Minnesota for a restraining order. Only the technical reasons are made clear.

Attorney General E. T. Young yesterday urged the company to obey the law like other people. Assistant Attorney General R. A. Stone also made an appeal that the company submit itself to state supervision.

All day Tuesday and this morning was taken up with extensive arguments as to the constitutionality or invalidity of the law prescribing this course. The legal machinery of the state and of the railroad company was employed in discussing a question which might have been simply obviated by the road's voluntarily application to the commission for permission to issue the stock.

ROADS ARE COMPETITIVE.

Consolidation of Interests Has Not Affected Competition.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Two attorneys representing the government made determined efforts yesterday to induce two traffic managers of transcontinental railroads to admit that the concentration of ownership means the stifling of competition in railroad traffic.

The attorneys were Messrs. Severance and Kellogg, and the traffic managers were J. C. Stubbs of the Southern Pacific-Union Pacific systems and J. M. Hannaford of the Northern Pacific. Both men contended that despite the consolidation of interests that has taken place between the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific and between the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern, competition between the lines which are under one ownership, is as sharp to-day as it ever was.

BRAVERY OF ENGINEER.

He Saves a Runaway Fast Mail From Being Smashed Into Pieces.

Boone, Iowa, Jan. 10. — Rushing throught the town of Belle Plaine at the rate of seventy-five miles an hour, fast mail No. 10 on the North-Western came near being smashed in its wild career because Engineer Lou Shull and Fireman Ed. McVey were badly scalded on account of the plug blowing out of the boiler head. It was impossible to shut off the steam. Shull, literally cooked from face to feet, crawled over the tender, where the express messenger met him with two guns, but Shull got in and pulled the air brakes just in time to prevent derailment.

SAY THEY PLANNED MURDER.

Alleged Counterfeiters Tell of Plot to Wreck Train.

Cincinnati, Jan. 10.—Prisoners arrested at Somerset, Ky., for counterfeiting have made a startling confession of a plan to wreck a passenger train on the Queen & Crescent railroad and to rob the passengers. They gave full details of how they would use dynamite to wreck the train and then rob the passengers. Their plan included the murder of a railway detective to make their discovery more difficult.

EX-MRS. BLAINE HAS LICENSE.

Gives Clerk Her Residence as Sioux Falls, S. D.

Philadelphia, Jan. 10.—A marriage license was issued this afternoon by the clerk of the orphans' court of this city to Paul Stanford Pearsall of New York, who is to wed Martha Hichborn Blaine. The latter, who was recently divorced from James G. Blaine, Jr., gave her address as Sioux Falls, S. D. It is understood the marriage will take place in this city next Tuesday.

PERISHED IN THE WOODS.

Aged Woman Found Frozen to Death —Probably Became Exhausted.

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 10.—Mrs. Maria Novack, wife of Thomas Novack, living near Holding, was found dead in the woods about two miles from her home last evening. She had, it is thought, become lost in the woods while on the way to visit her daughter.

EARTHQUAKES PROPHESIED.

Londoner Forecasts a Trembler in America on Jan. 12.

London, Jan. 10.—Hugh Clements, a London meteorologist, prophesies that there will be further earthquakes in America on Jan. 12. He also predicts an earthquake in Algeria.

Killed in Fight Over 6 Cents.

New York, Jan. 10. — Dominick Christie accused Frank Blaha, a butcher, of overcharging him 6 cents on a purchase of meat. A fight ensued in which Blaha was killed. Christie was arrested.

Gets Job; Killed in an Hour.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Five hours after his arrival in Chicago from Winona, Minn., and one hour after he had obtained employment as a brakeman, Emanuel Martin was killed while coupling cars.

No wonder there is a car shortage. Count the wrecks!

The supreme court decision in the county seat case is expected in a few days.

Senator Nelson proves an easy winner and will be a U. S. senator for six years more.

There seems to be no reason why the legislature should not give us two-cent railroad fare.

THE SPECTATOR will continue to publish the proceedings of Red Lake county for another year.

"When the days begin to lengthen, the cold begins to strengthen," says an old proverb. We believe it.

The rumor that passes would not be given to officials this year was a mistake, as legislators and other officers have already received their passes.

A financial journal informs us that money is steady at present. It seems to be timid up here and inclined to shy at the cold with a disposition to run away.

The lonesomeness of the three prohibition legislators will be as nothing compared to the solitude of Hon. John R. Howard, of Sauk Centre, who has returned his railroad passes.

The Sauk Centre Herald intimates that Lawrence H. Johnson, the newly-elected speaker of the house, should be indicted for obtaining a job under false pretenses, as he was born in Germany.

Northfield News: The newspaper men who are alarmed over the fact that their advertising transportation may be taken away from them next year should console themselves with the thought that travel on railways is becoming very dangerous. The death rate among passengers is increasing at an alarming rate. Without free transportation the editors will run no risk.

Roseau Region: Governor Johnson refused to take any action against the railroad and warehouse commission, deeming that Attorney Manahan's position was not specific enough. The governor further gives as reason for not ordering an investigation into Manahan's charges that the attorney general is the legal adviser of the commission and that when he says Manahan shall not appear before that august body any more, he shall not. Naturally. Had the governor considered the shippers of the state, when their interests conflicted with the railroads and the honorable railway commission, it would have been funny. Manahan was all right. He was after facts that would benefit the shippers of the state. He was not allowed to ask questions that would elicit real information, and ultimately was barred from appearing before the commission. We venture to say that the rate investigation will accomplish nothing that is not acceptable to the railroads. We are not a "reformer" either.

Big Paper-Making Machine.

GIST OF GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

Condemns the plan of imposing a tonnage tax upon the iron mines of the state, and favors tax of 5 or 10 per cent on royalties received by fee-owners.

Recommends a registry tax of ½ of 1 per cent on mortgages and a tax of not more than 10 per cent on the income of mortgages.

Urges license taxes on all corporations and more taxes from sleeping car companies, etc.

Recommends a permanent tax commission and laws to reach personal property that now escapes taxation.

Favors creation of a state department of mines, under a commissioner of mines, to enforce the mine inspection law.

Recommends increase in royalties on iron ore on state lands to a minimum of 50 cents per ton, and that leases be auctioned on a royalty basis with no maximum royalty.

Declares railroad rates are too high and recommends joint legislative committee to study rates with a view of establishing a distance tariff law.

Favors a 2-cent maximum passenger rate, total abolition of free passes, and the enactment of a reciprocal demurrage law.

Urges law to make rate orders of the railroad commission effective at once and remain in effect until set aside or suspended by the courts.

Calls attention to the lumber trust and urges enforcement of the state's anti-trust law.

Says primary election law needs amendment and suggests the nomination by political conventions of two or more candidates for the primary election, the voters making the final choice.

Urges liberal appropriations for drainage of state lands, private property benefited to be compelled to pay its share.

Recommends that another good roads amendment to the constitution be submitted to the voters, leaving the amount of the road tax to be fixed by the legislature.

Favors abolition of fellow servant rule in nearly all damage cases; extension of the state labor bureau; passage of uniform divorce laws; submission of constitutional amendment providing for the initiative and referendum; permitting issuance of bonds upon municipally owned plants and not upon the community; the regulation of lobbyists; the abolition of private banks; permitting banks to loan 25 instead of 15 per cent of their capital stock on first mortgages on improved farms.

Recommends extension of pure food law, including addition of standard of purity and label requirements for whiskey.

Favors extension of binding twine plant at state prison and authority to sell its output outside the state, and the manufacture of farm machinery at the state prison.

The Sultan's Rebuke.

An ambassador of a well known European monarch was riding in the streets of Constantinople when one of the sultan's carriages rolled by. Seeing it was guarded, his curiosity got the better of him, and when the carriage reached him he was daring enough to peep in at the passenger. He was surprised and pained to receive a blow in the face from an attendant in charge. Mad with rage, he demanded audience of the sultan. The sultan listened attentively and for a moment appeared lost in thought. At last he spoke: "My dear ——, I have gone carefully into the case and see exactly how it stands. You are, of course, a gentleman. Therefore you would never have committed such a breach of good manners as you allege to have taken place. Therefore no attendant could possibly have struck you. The whole affair seems to be a product of your fancy. Let us dismiss it."

His Constancy.

A story is told of General Sir Alfred Horsford, who believed in a celibate army. A soldier once sought his permission to marry, saying he had two good conduct badges and $25 in the savings bank. "Well, go away," said Sir Alfred, "and if you come back this day year in the same mind you shall marry. I'll keep the vacancy." On the anniversary the soldier repeated his request. "But do you really, after a year, want to marry?" "Yes, sir, very much." "Sergeant major, take his name down. Yes, you may marry. I never believed there was so much constancy in man or woman. Right face. Quick march!" As the man left the room, turning his head, he said: "Thank you, sir. It isn't the same woman."

A Pretty Experiment.

A very pretty effect may be produced by using some aniline dye in powdered form in alcohol. Fill a small glass with the alcohol and drop the smallest portion of the dye on its surface. It will shoot down through the liquid, like a strand of color, dividing into two branches, which will subdivide again and again until you have, apparently, an inverted plant in miniature growing before your eyes. An arrangement of mirrors may be made to throw the reflection of this on a screen or a wall, and the enlarged shadows will be very interesting to watch.

The Revolver.

The revolver is of dubious service in war. Its only function there is as a cavalry weapon. Indeed, it is an evolution of the mediaeval purpose to provide horse soldiers with a firearm. In the cavalry the weapon is effective only up to fifty yards. It has no value for hunting. The average man can do more execution on birds and beasts with a slingshot. The only purpose which the revolver serves is to kill another man, and even for that purpose its usefulness is overestimated.—New York Mail.

Where the Audience Was.

A London actor appearing at a cheap theater in Salford found so small an audience that he sought out the manager for an explanation. "You see," the manager told him, "my people are at the Halle concert." "Oh," the actor said, surprised. "I should hardly have thought your patrons would care much for high class music." "No," the other explained; "to tell the truth, they go to pick pockets."

Trouble For Nothing.

To smuggle a human skeleton into Canada from Detroit a medical student dressed it in female attire and, seating it by his side in a buggy, crossed over the boundary line. After he got safely into his house he learned that there is no custom duty on skeletons.

All Escaped but Him.

Mrs. Hastymatch—I had a dozen proposals before yours, all from smarter men than you too. Mr. Hastymatch—They must have been. How did they manage to crawl out of it?

Marriages in Bible Times.

From the Bible accounts of the marriages of Jacob with Leah and Rebecca and from other narratives of marriages in Jewish history it seems that marriage was not held to be a sacrament or religious rite in the times of the patriarchs. In those days the head of the family, the father, was priest and ruler of the family and the only priest or ruler whose authority it recognized. As far as we learn from the Bible narrative in the case of Jacob's marriages, the simple giving of his daughters by Isaac constituted the marriage, there being no religious or other ceremony whatever. Of course, however, marriages made in this way were just as sacred and just as binding as those performed in the most ceremonious manner. In these days in Protestant countries the marriage laws do not look upon marriage as a sacrament, but only as a civil contract, though most people prefer to give it a certain religious sanction by having it performed by a church minister.—St. Louis Republic.

David Hume and His Wine.

A jocular bequest of David Hume to his friend John Home was curious. Home liked claret and disliked port, calling it poison, and the two friends had many discussions on the subject. They also used to have disputes as to which of them took the proper way of spelling their common family name. The philosopher, about a fortnight before his death, wrote with his own hand the following codicil to his will: "I leave to my friend, Mr. John Home of Kilduff, ten dozen of my old claret at his choice and one single bottle of that liquor called port. I also leave him six dozen of port provided that he attests under his hand, signed John Hume, that he himself alone finished that bottle at two sittings. By this concession he will at once terminate the only two differences that ever arose between us concerning temporal matters."—New York Tribune.

Ringing In the Ears.

"Ringing" in the ears is a most peculiar condition. It is interesting to learn that, though the brain so distinctly receives an impression of sound, there is really no sound at all. The sensation is produced by derangement of the nerves of the ear, caused by poor circulation or such pressure and interference as come from hardened, excessive wax, boils, etc. Some one oddly remarked that when the ears were ringing they were "insane." Truly, they carry wrong impressions to the brain. They record things that do not happen.

A Weather Stone.

A writer tells of a curious stone that is to be found in Finland. It is a natural barometer and actually foretells probable changes in the weather. It is called a semakuir, and its peculiarity is that it turns black before approaching rain, while in fine weather it is mottled with spots of white. Investigation has shown the stone to be a sort of fossil, mixed with clay, rock salt and nitre. When the air is moist, the salt turns black; when the air is dry, the salt shows its white spots on the surface of the stone.

A Strong Face.

"Facial expression," said the thoughtful looking man, "is not confined to human beings by any means. For instance, some time ago I went to call on a friend of mine, who was not at home. However, a dog of his was there. I looked at the dog a moment, and he returned my look. Then something in that dog's face seemed to take hold of me and simply root me to the spot. It was his teeth!"—Chicago News.

The first illustrated message ever prepared by any president was the recent message on the Panama canal sent to the two houses of congress by President Roosevelt. Roosevelt, as has been said before, has broken a good many precedents and made a lot of new ones, and this may be added to the list. The message, full as it is of information, and illustrated with full page pictures of what he saw on his famous trip, is not only interesting to congress, but equally so to the general public. The government printing office has arranged to supply copies of the document to all applicants at 50 cents each.

Wolford, N. D. Mirror: Everybody knows the train service on the Great Northern, for the last few weeks, has been rotten, but it isn't a circumstance to the service the Soo has been handing out on the Thief River Falls-Kenmare "main line" during the same time. While going to Rugby, last Friday, we met a family that had then been on the road seven days in an attempt to get from Minneapolis to Omemee by way of the Soo, and wishing to reach their destination before spring, they, that morning abandoned the Soo near Munich and took the Great Northern branch to Lakota, and the main line to Rugby, where they would take the Bottineau branch to Omemee, arriving there late Saturday night, taking nine days to make the 50-mile trip.

The National Pure Food law which goes into effect January 1st will give the catalogue houses a blow from which they will never recover. For years they have been selling spurious articles as genuine because they are cheaper, thus making it possible to compete with the local merchant. The State Dairy and Food department of Minnesota has analyzed hundreds of articles from the Chicago catalogue huses and found them not only illegal but positively injurious to health. Jams, extracts, spices, tea, sugar, syrups, etc., adulterated with unwholesome and dangerous drugs. Not only have these concerns been permitted to defraud the public, but they also escape taxation, which the local merchant must bear.—Anoka Union.

My friend help the editor in his wild-eyed search for news. When your friends come to see you, if you are not ashamed of it tell him; when your wife gives a tea party, if you have recovered from the effects of the gossip, drop in with the news; when the baby arrives fill your pockets with cigars and call; if you go to a party steal some of the good things, and leave 'em with the items in our sanctum. If your wife licks you come in and let us see your scars and tender sympathy through the paper; if your mother-in-law has died don't be bashful about it; give in all the commonplace news. In short whatever makes you feel proud, sad, lonesome or glad submit it to our 24-karat wisdom and see our matted locks part and stand on end with gratitude which will pour from every pore like moisture from the dew besprinkled earth.—Exchange.

Wins $200 Prize.

The daily papers contain the information that Olaf Nelson, son of N. A. Nelson of River Falls, is a winner of the first prize of $200 for the best sample of wheat in the grain growers' contest for the rural school pupils of the state. The contest was decided at the meeting of the State Agricultural society and the inspection was made by A. D. Shamel, government expert. The contest covers a term of three years, this being the first year.

Steenerson's Views.

Washington, Jan. 10.—For the real thing in local government the canal zone leads all nations, according to Halvor Steenerson of Minnesota, who has just returned from a trip to Panama.

"I am not going to criticise what I saw down there," said Mr. Steenerson, today, "because the undertaking is of such gigantic character and tremendous responsibilities that it fairly takes a visitor's breath away when he beholds the magnitude of the canal.

"But a few things struck me as being rather peculiar. For instance, the government erected a house of state for the governor of the zone and over $300,000 has been expended upon it. There is no governor now to occupy it. If the state of Minnesota should exercise such judgment the officials who were in authority would soon be ousted.

"Uncle Sam also erected residences for the local judges, but they will not live in them.

"A great hotel equal in style and appurtenances to any in New York and Washington is a big losing proposition for the government.

"I paid $6 a day there and the service was first class, but the expenses are five times the income from the establishment.

"There are more than 20,000 people on the government pay roll in Panama.

"Good work is being done and there are good men in charge of the various branches of canal construction. It will be nearer ten than six years before it is completed. We enjoyed the trip because this is the dry season and the weather was fine."

Council Proceedings.

Regular meeting of the village council of St. Hilaire held at the village hall January 7, 1907, at 8 o'clock p. m.

Meeting called to order by the Clerk. Members present: Patterson, Wilson and Gigstad.

On motion A. S. Wilson was appointed president pro tem.

Minutes of last regular meeting read and on motion accepted.

The village marshall reported orally, stating that there was one arrest made during the month and he paid his fine and was duly released.

The road and bridge committee was instructed to look over the north bridge and if necessary to repair to report to the council.

The following bills were allowed in full:

Daniel Patterson, work	$1 30
K R Killand, salary and other work	51 10
K O Gigstad, salary for Oct., Nov. and Dec	25 00
A Satterberg, work	2 75
St Hilaire Spectator, printing	33 90

On motion meeting adjourned.

A. S. Wilson,

An Early Easter.

Easter will come early this year, falling on March 31, and all of the other days in connection with it are correspondingly early. Palm Sunday comes on March 24, and Good Friday on March 29. The first Sunday in Lent is February 17 and this makes the social season quite short.

The holidays in most cases always come on the same dates. Thanksgiving and Labor Day, however, are two that set differently. Thanksgiving this year comes on November 28, and Labor Day on Sept. 2.

The vernal equinox, which marks the beginning this spring comes on March 21, just ten days earlier than the monthly division. The summer solstice marking the true beginning of summer will occur on June 22. The autumnal equinox marks the opening of autumn on Sept. 24.

Four eclipses of the sun and moon are scheduled for 1907, two in January, on the 14th and 29th, and two in July, the 10th and on the 24th. The star event of the eclipse line will be a partial eclipse of the moon visible from 9:04 to 11:41 on the night of July 24th.

Old Settler Gone.

On Friday morning Jorgen J. Branum, after an illness of over three years, died at his residence in this village. Mr. Branum was one of the early pioneers, having lived here continuously since the spring of 1880. He was born near Tronjiem, Norway, in 1838 and emigrated to this country in 1880. In the spring of that year he bought the rights of Charles Brockway to 160 acres of land, thereby becoming the owner of the first house in what is now the village of St. Hilaire.

It was situated near where the saw mill now stands. In 1882 he sold the property to the St. Hilaire Townsite company. Mr. Branum leaves a wife and five children to mourn his loss. They are: Mrs. Annie Einarson, Ole Branum, Arnt Branum, Mrs. Bertina Philip, and Josephine Branum.

Bray Mutual.

The Bray Mutual Fire Insurance company held their annual meeting at the village hall last Monday and a large number of the stockholders were present. The figures are not at hand but the business was in a prosperous condition and considerably increased over last year. Something over $1200 was paid out in losses the past year. The stockholders gave the present officials the compliment of re-electing all of them. Agents will receive a slightly increased compensation for the coming year.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR
Secretary's Office.

Washington, Jan. 3, 1907.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Sir,—Referring to the circular of instructions to special agents of your office, approved by me on January 20, 1904, relative to their duties under the act of February 25, 1885, entitled "An act to prevent unlawful occupancy of the public lands," you are advised that said circular is hereby amended and modified as follows:

Strike out from said circular paragraphs 5 and 6, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

It shall be the duty of the special agent on receipt of any charge or complaint or upon information being acquired by him from any source that an unlawful inclosure is being maintained by any person or persons, association, or corporation, to at once proceed to secure sufficient data, including a description of the lands inclosed, with reasonable certainty, not necessarily by metes and bounds, nor by governmental subdivisions of surveyed land, but only so that the inclosure may be identified and the person or persons guilty of the violation, as nearly as may be, and by description if the name can not, on reasonable inquiry, be ascertained, and to at once submit such case, with the data thus obtained, to the United States attorney for prosecution.

It shall be the duty of the special agent, and he shall be so instructed, to be alert and vigilent to detect the existence of unlawful inclosures in his district and to proceed in accordance therewith as hereinabove directed, and that he is not to construe his duties as requiring that, before proceeding in the matter of an unlawful inclosure, there must first be filed with him a formal complaint by some person or persons acquainted with the facts, but it shall be his duty, as hereinabove stated, to take the initiative himself.

In this connection you are further instructed, by direction of the President, to at once notify all of the special agents and receivers and registers of local land offices throughout the United States, and to give the widest publicity thereto that the provisions of said act of February 25, 1885, for the summary destruction of inclosures and obstructions existing in violation of said act will be rigidly enforced on and after April 1, 1907.

Respectfully,
E. A. Hitchcock,
Secretary of the Interior.

Want Plant Doubled.

Thief River News: At the regular meeting of the city council held Tuesday evening very little business was transacted. About all of the time was taken up by the aldermen in discussing a proposed improvement to the electric light plant that would cost in the neighborhood of $20,000. Supt. Peterson recommends that the size of the present plant be doubled and a steam plant installed that would be run during the fall when the ice is forming in the river and in the spring when the ice goes out. The way in which this money could be raised and many other matters in connection with the plant were discussed by the aldermen at length and no conclusion was arrived at. All of the aldermen seemed to have different opinions in the matter and it will probably take some time before any definite action is taken.

It Pays to Advertise.

A subscriber to an eastern paper has the following to say on the subject:

"I tell you it pays well to advertise. I hung a valuable rug out of my window to air a few days ago, and somebody stole it. I put an advertisement in the local paper that the thief was known, and that he would save much trouble by returning the rug. When I opened the door today to take in the milk and the morning paper I found two large bundles awaiting me. One contained my rug and the other contained another rug.

BLOATED WITH DROPSY.

The Heart Was Badly Affected When the Patient Began Using Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. Elizabeth Maxwell, of 415 West Fourth street, Olympia, Wash., says: "For over three years I suffered with a dropsical condition without being aware that it was due to kidney trouble. The early stages were principally backache and bearing down pain, but I went along without worrying much until dropsy set in. My feet and ankles swelled up, my hands puffed and became so tense I could hardly close them. I had great difficulty in breathing, and my heart would flutter with the least exertion. I could not walk far without stopping again and again to rest. Since using four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills the bloating has gone down and the feelings of distress have disappeared."

Safe, Sure and Speedy.

No external remedy ever yet devised has so fully and unquestionably met these three prime conditions as successfully as Allcock's Plasters. They are safe because they contain no deleterious drugs and are manufactured upon scientific principles of medicine. They are sure because nothing goes into them except ingredients which are exactly adapted to the purposes for which a plaster is required. They are speedy in their action because their medicinal qualities go right to their work of relieving pain and restoring the natural and healthy performance of the functions of muscles, nerves and skin.

Allcock's Plasters are the original and genuine porous plasters and like most meritorious articles have been extensively imitated, therefore always make sure and get the genuine.

Irremediable.

WEIGHING OF PLANETS.

They Are Estimated as "Masses" by the Astronomers.

If a ham weighing thirty pounds were taken up to the moon and weighed there, the "pull"—the attractive force of the moon upon the ham—would amount to five pounds. There would be another weight of the ham for the planet Mars, and yet another on the sun. A ham weighing thirty pounds at New York ought to weigh some 800 pounds on the sun's surface. Hence the astronomer does not speak of the weight of a planet, because that would depend upon the place where it was weighed. But he speaks of the mass of the planet, which means how much planet there is, no matter where it might be weighed.

At the same time we might, without any inexactness, agree that the weight of a heavenly body should be fixed by the weight it would have in New York. As we could not imagine a planet in New York, because it may be larger than the earth itself, what we are to imagine is this. Suppose the planet could be divided into a million million million equal parts and one of these parts brought to New York and weighed. We could easily find its weight in pounds or tons. Then multiply this by a million million million, and we shall have a weight of the planet. This would be equivalent to what astronomers might take as the mass of the planet.

NEVER TIRES

Of the Food That Restored Her to Health.

"My food was killing me and I didn't know the cause," writes a Colo. young lady. "For two years I was thin and sickly, suffering from indigestion and inflammatory rheumatism.

"I had tried different kinds of diet, plain living, and many of the remedies recommended, but got no better.

"Finally, about five weeks ago, mother suggested that I try Grape-Nuts, and I began at once, eating it with a little cream or milk. A change for the better began at once.

"To-day I am well and am gaining weight and strength all the time. I've gained 10 lbs. in the last five weeks and do not suffer any more from indigestion and the rheumatism is all gone.

"I know it is to Grape-Nuts alone that I owe my restored health. I still eat the food twice a day and never tire of it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The flavor of Grape-Nuts is peculiar to itself. It is neutral, not too sweet and has an agreeable, healthful quality that never grows tiresome.

As soon as improper food is abandoned and Grape-Nuts is taken regularly, digestion is made strong, the organs do their work of building up good red blood cells and of carrying away the excess of disease-making material from the system.

The result is a certain and steady return to normal health and mental activity. "There's a reason." Read the little book "The Road to Wellville" in pkgs.

JOHNSON TAKES GOVERNOR'S OATH

INAUGURATED FOR SECOND TIME BEFORE JOINT SESSION OF LEGISLATURE.

BATCH OF BILLS IN SENATE

NUMBER OF IMPORTANT MEASURES INTRODUCED IN UPPER HOUSE.

St. Paul, Jan. 10.—John A. Johnson of St. Peter was inaugurated governor of Minnesota for the second time before the joint session of the legislature yesterday. There was a full attendance of members of both houses, and the galleries were crowded with spectators.

The oath of office was administered by Chief Justice Start of the supreme court. Former Governors Hubbard, Lind and Van Sant were present.

After taking the oath Gov. Johnson read his message, which was listened to with marked attention. At the conclusion of the reading of the message the governor held an informal reception, receiving the congratulations of the members of the legislature and others.

Senate Gets Some Bills.

The senate received its first bunch of bills yesterday, some of them of more than usual importance. Two anti-pass bills, one containing a 2-cent fare provision, were introduced. The more important bills introduced were: For the manufacture of farm machinery at the state prison; primary election law providing for election of delegates to state, county, congressional, judicial and municipal conventions; appointment of tax commission to prepare a tax code; providing for an information bureau for legislators and state officers; providing for representation of the state at the Alaska, Yukon and Jamestown expositions.

Easy Day in House.

No business was transacted in the house yesterday. The committee on rules advised that it was not ready to report, but will have its work completed to-day.

FACE LAID OPEN WITH AN AX.

Man Meets With Shocking Accident While Chopping Wood.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Jan. 10.—Rufus Perry of the town of Maine met with a shocking accident. He was cutting wood with Schuyler Bull, a neighbor and Mr. Bull's ax glanced accidentally and struck him in the mouth, cutting down through the palate and jaw and virtually laying open his face. A physician was summoned as quickly as possible, and he will recover, but will be badly disfigured.

BUSINESS MAN ARRESTED.

Charged With Swindling, Embezzling and Eloping With Young Girl.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Jan. 10.—Samuel S. Breman, a well known business man, was arrested here by an officer from Belvidere, Ill., on charge of swindling and embezzling. He is also accused of eloping to this city with a seventeen-year-old girl and leaving a wife and four children in destitute circumstances in Belvidere.

DEATH DEFEATS VOTERS.

Popular Sheriff, Re-elected While Under Knife, Succumbs.

Sidney, Iowa, Jan. 10. — Sheriff Charles T. Kent, after an illness of three months, is dead at his home in this city. He was popular, and at the last election was re-elected by the largest majority ever given any candidate. At that time he was in an Omaha hospital, where he underwent an operation for an abscess of the liver.

WOULD SELL OR LEASE WIFE.

Woman Secures a Divorce From Husband on Unusual Showing.

Milwaukee, Jan. 10.—That her husband, Louis Dingfeldt, sought to sell or lease her, so he "could get another woman," is alleged by Lizzie Dingfeldt, aged twenty-five years, in divorce proceedings. She was granted a decree by Judge Halsey upon testimony in support of her statement.

RUNAWAY VICTIM FREEZES.

Man Is Found Insensible From Injuries and Cold.

Yankton, Jan. 10. — Norman Davis of this county was found by Frank Moley insensible on a steep hill in this county from injuries received in a runaway. Davis had lain for two hours where he fell and was badly frozen in addition to his other injuries. He is in a serious condition.

Watch Saved His Life.

Rhinelander, Wis., Jan. 10.—August Kempke, at Bunday, was accidentally shot by Ed Gil. The bullet struck Kempke's watch, which was in his right vest pocket, and it saved the man's life. Kempke is at the hospital here and will recover.

Cut on Chimney May Cost Hand.

Nevada, Iowa, Jan. 10. — Mrs. A. Garrison of Radcliffe may lose her hand on account of a slight gash cut by a lamp chimney. She has a serious case of blood poisoning.

Clothesline Throws Man.

Waseca, Minn., Jan. 9. — Thomas Barden, employed by Dairyman Pat McGann in hauling sand, while driving into McGann's back yard, was caught under the chin by a clothesline which he had not noticed, and was thrown to the ground so violently that his collar bone was broken.

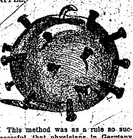
Skater Drowned in Pond.

Spooner, Wis., Jan. 9.—Harry Kopp aged ten years, while skating on the mill pond in this city, broke through the ice and was drowned.

Nails and Apples.

When our grandmothers were sick, when they were tired out, unable to work or sleep, when their cheeks became hollow, their rosy complexion began to fade and their eyes to lose their luster, they were told that they required "more iron in their blood."

Instead of swallowing bottles of medicine, containing strong acids (to hold the iron in solution), they would simply stick half a dozen or more iron nails into an apple, leave them in over night, remove the nails and next morning, before breakfast, EAT THE APPLE.



This method was as a rule so successful, that physicians in Germany are now recommending a preparation made from apple pulp and iron, as an excellent tonic.

This only shows, that the nearer we approach nature the more apt are we to find remedies for the sick.

Mr. Zaegel, established as a chemist at Sheboygan, Wisconsin, for the past 23 years, has given this matter of using nature's remedies much attention and if any of our readers will write him, he will be pleased to send the names of nine roots and herbs which, when mixed as directed, have been found an excellent remedy for Rheumatism, Constipation, Backache and Catarrh.

If you will mention the nature of your complaint he will also mail you a free sample of an extract he makes from these roots and herbs together with letters from people who have been greatly benefited by its use.

Address your letter to Max R. Zaegel, Chemist, 162 Main Street, Sheboygan, Wisconsin.

In order to get some of this extract free you had better write at once as the quantity is limited.

ALMOST A SOLID SORE.

Skin Disease from Birth—Fortune Spent on Her Without Benefit—Cured Her with Cuticura.

"I have a cousin in Rockingham Co. who once had a skin disease from her birth until she was six years of age. Her father had spent a fortune on her to get her cured and none of the treatments did her any good. Old Dr. G—— suggested that he try the Cuticura Remedies which he did. When he commenced to use it the child was almost a solid scab. He had used it about two months and the child was well. I was there when they commenced to use your Cuticura Remedies. I stayed that week and then returned home and stayed two weeks and then went back and stayed with them two weeks longer, and when I went home I could hardly believe she was the same child. Her skin was as soft as a baby's without a scar on it. I have not seen her in seventeen years, but I have heard from her and the last time I heard from her she was well. Mrs. W. P. Ingle, Burlington, N. C., June 16, 1905."

HANDIWORK OF QUEENS.

Pictures and Carving, All From Royal Hands, on Exhibition in Brussels.

An exhibition has been opened at Brussels consisting entirely of the handiwork of queens. There are several landscapes painted by Queen Amelia of Portugal.

The Queen of Roumania, "Carmen Sylva," exhibits a great number of miniature statuettes carved in ivory. These are busts of Bourget, Loti, Ibsen, Maeterlinck and various other literary celebrities.

The queen of Holland is represented by a series of cartoons illustrating the stories in the "Arabian Nights," in the designing of which she has whiled away her leisure. The young queen of Spain has a number of bird and flower pictures in water color. The queen of Italy, who has a passion for the sea, sends several Mediterranean scenes which are remarkable for their brilliant coloring.

AN IMPORTANT CASE

Patient Cured of Ataxia Gives the Entire Credit to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Mrs. S. C. Wellock, of 114 Cleveland Avenue, Everett, Mass., the wife of an employe in the government works at Chelsea, says:

"I had been troubled with nervousness for ten years and the disease kept growing on me. Then I learned that I was suffering from locomotor ataxia. I had terrible tremblings in my right leg which would get rigid and when this happened in the street I had to stand still until it passed away to keep from falling. My right arm felt as if a thousand needles were pricking it. The sheet touching my knee in bed would nearly cause me to scream out with pain and both knees were so weak I could hardly stand.

"I had to use a cane and be helped about by my son. Then the pain began to settle in the calves of my legs and the muscles became numb and quivered constantly. The cords under my knees seemed to be drawn up tight and the terrible shooting pains in my legs would nearly drive me insane. My toes became numb and at times would prickle as if needles were being thrust into them. My eyes became dull and black spots floated before them. My heart was very weak.

"My attention was called to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I bought several boxes right away and soon felt relief. I was so pleased that I kept on taking them until they cured me entirely, and I have had no symptoms of the trouble for over a year."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

His Ambition.

Yellow covered literature was not allowed in the Benson family, but Harold had friends who narrated to him some of the stirring tales they had read.

"What is your ambition, Harold?" asked an aunt who was visiting the Benson household, and was blessed with a long purse. "Perhaps you've not decided yet what you'd like to be or do by and by," she added.

"Oh, yes, Aunt Ellen," said Harold, shaking his head at such a suggestion. "I'm all decided. I should like to be such a man that people would tremble like leaves at the mention of my name."

BIG HIGH PRESSURE PUMP.

One Used in Hydraulic Mining in Oregon a Wonder.

The biggest high pressure pump in the world is installed in the Dry Diggings placer fields of Southern Oregon on Rogue river and is used to operate a battery of hydraulic monitors in the mines. This pump is one of the largest pieces of mining machinery ever manufactured and could never have been installed but for the fact that it was dumped directly from the cars to the foundation prepared for it in the mines.

The pump was built in San Francisco and was one of the last jobs done by the company before the earthquake and fire. The pump is of the five-step centrifugal type and it weighs, aside from bearings and gears, just 70,000 pounds. Other pumps have been built that lift as great a volume of water as does this one, but they do not deliver it under such enormous pressure. This pump is tested to withstand a maximum pressure of 250 pounds to the square inch.

Its capacity is 13,000,000 gallons in twenty-four hours, or 9,000 gallons a minute. This enormous volume is delivered through a half mile of pipe line, the pipe being of steel, twenty-two inches in diameter. The water is lifted to a height of 100 feet and forced through two four-inch nozzles, hurling streams a distance of 500 feet. These powerful streams are played upon the mountain walls to tear down the gold-bearing gravel.

MURDERER IS HANGED BY MOB

MAN WHO KILLED WIFE AND STEPSON LYNCHED IN HEART OF CITY.

LEADING CITIZENS IN MOB

MINISTERS AND WOMEN ARE IN CROWD—DOOMED MAN FIGHTS LIKE A TIGER.

Charles City, Iowa, Jan. 10.—James Cullen, who murdered his wife and fifteen-year-old stepson, was taken from the Flood county jail here last night by a mob and hanged to the Cedar river bridge, in the heart of the city. The mob broke the jail and quickly overcame the feeble resistance that Sheriff Schermerhorn was able to offer. The mob was composed of many of the leading citizens of the town, and even the leaders made no attempt to disguise themselves. Cullen fought like a tiger, but was overpowered. He declared that his wife and son had attacked him and that he had killed them in self-defense.

Four ministers and a large number of women were in the crowd.

Angered by Busse Pardon.

Judging from the expressions about town yesterday afternoon the hanging is largely the result of the pardon granted to Louis Busse, the Bremer county wife murderer. Busse murdered his wife within fifteen miles of Charles City and was twice granted reprieves, and then his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. One of Cullen's sons, it is said, was hanged by a mob in Missouri, near Joplin, a dozen years ago for horse stealing. Cullen had been married three times, his two former wives leaving him. Cullen's brother, Richard Cullen, a banker, from Warren, Ill., who was in the city, did not head of the mobbing until after it was all over.

TWO BIG FIRES MAR RECORD.

Winona's Loss for Year Is Over $100,000 Above Average.

Winona, Minn., Jan. 10.—Considering the efficiency of the city's fire department, the report of the fire department of losses during the last year is considered large. The total loss approximated $136,225, as against $10,082 for the preceding year. The latter amount is about the average for Winona since the establishment of an up-to-date fire fighting equipment. The heavy loss of the last year was due principally to two large fires last spring, one involving a loss of nearly $100,000 and the other of over $25,000.

Dayton, Ohio, Jan. 9. — Richard McCann shot and killed Mrs. Sarah Grael here last night. Then he turned the weapon on himself and fired a bullet in his left temple, but the physicians say he will survive.

What is Pe-ru-na?

Is it a Catarrh Remedy, or a Tonic, or is it Both?

Some people call Peruna a great tonic. Others refer to Peruna as a great catarrh remedy.

Which of these people are right? Is it more proper to call Peruna a catarrh remedy than to call it a tonic?

Our reply is, that Peruna is both a tonic and a catarrh remedy. Indeed, there can be no effectual catarrh remedy that is not also a tonic.

In order to thoroughly relieve any case of catarrh, a remedy must not only have a specific action on the mucous membranes affected by the catarrh, but it must have a general tonic action on the nervous system.

Catarrh, even in persons who are otherwise strong, is a weakened condition of some mucous membrane. There must be something to strengthen the circulation, to give tone to the arteries, and to raise the vital forces.

Perhaps no vegetable remedy in the world has attracted so much attention from medical writers as HYDRASTIS CANADENSIS. The wonderful efficacy of this herb has been recognized many years, and is growing in its hold upon the medical profession. When joined with CUBEBS and COPAIBA a trio of medical agents is formed in Peruna which constitutes a specific remedy for catarrh that in the present state of medical progress cannot be improved upon. This action, reinforced by such renowned tonics as COLLINSONIA CANADENSIS, CORYDALIS FORMOSA and CEDRON SEED, ought to make this compound an ideal remedy for catarrh in all its stages and locations in the body.

From a theoretical standpoint, therefore, Peruna is beyond criticism. The use of Peruna confirms this opinion. Numberless testimonials from every quarter of the earth furnish ample evidence that this judgment is not over enthusiastic. When practical experience confirms a well-grounded theory the result is a truth that cannot be shaken.

KINGSTON LAID WASTE BY QUAKE

CAPITAL OF ISLAND OF JAMAICA DEVASTATED BY AN EARTHQUAKE.

POPULATION IN WILD PANIC

MESSAGES LACKING IN DETAIL—LOOTING AND DISORDER FOLLOW DISASTER.

One thousand persons were killed, 90,000 persons are homeless and $10,000,000 financial loss was caused by the earthquake which devastated the city of Kingston, capital of the Island of Jamaica. The shock which laid the city in ruins occurred about 3:40 p. m. on Monday. Fire followed the earthquake and completed the work of destruction.

Famine Is Imminent.

Provisions are most urgently needed. There is no food for animals.

Rich and poor are homeless alike: all the buildings in and around Kingston were destroyed; few dwellings are safe to live in. The misery in Kingston is indescribable.

From the interior of Jamaica there is little news, for communication is difficult.

Kingston and the other points of interest of the island are at this season of the year thronged with tourists from both America and England, and the greatest apprehension is felt for the safety of many persons who had recently arrived at the Jamaica resorts.

Distinguished Englishmen There.

The most distinguished of these were members of a party of English statesmen, agricultural experts and men of affairs, who, under the leadership of Sir Alfred Jones, had arrived in Kingston within the past few days to attend an agricultural conference there. Among those in the company were Hall Caine, the novelist; Viscount Montmorres, H. O. Arnold-Forester, M. P.; Sir Thomas Hughes, Sir Thomas Shann and others of equal prominence. The earl and countess of Dudley also were passengers on the steamer which carried out the Jones party.

Dead May Number 1,000.

The devastation would appear to have been confined to the vicinity of Kingston, one dispatch giving ten miles as the radius of the damage. The rest of the island, including Port Antonio, does not seem to have suffered severely. The estimates of dead range from 100 to 1,000, but with the exception of Sir James Fergusson and perhaps half a dozen other white men there is no mention of fatalities to foreigners. The American tourists who were at Kingston at the time, estimated at 2,000, it would seem are safe.

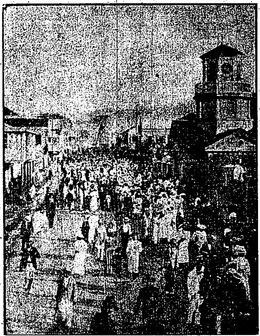
No Americans Missing.

Sir James Ferguson is said to have been instantly killed, but according to London reports no other Englishman, Canadian or American is believed to be missing.

The population, which numbers 50,000, is largely made up of native blacks. Many steamers carrying tourists to Jamaica were en route to the island when the earthquake occurred, but it so happened that, according to schedules, none of the ships from New York or Boston were in Kingston harbor Monday afternoon.

Thousands Injured.

The estimate of persons injured is placed in the thousands. It is feared that when the ruins of the city are searched these lists will be materially increased. A large majority of the 50,000 population of Kingston are negroes, and it is probable that nearly all the casualties were among these people. It is reported that about two score black soldiers were burned to death in a military hospital.



KING STREET, KINGSTON—JUBILEE MARKET.

HARBOR OF KINGSTON, JAMAICA.

Looting and disorder, including raids on rum shops by the blacks, followed the catastrophe, but prompt repressive measures restored order.

Population in Panic.

Panic prevailed, however, especially as the earth shocks continued Tuesday and Wednesday, and great numbers have fled to the neighboring countryside. Food supplies are urgently needed and the demand for medical supplies has exhausted the stock in hand.

The fire that followed the disaster, it was reported, was confined to that section of the city bordering on the water front. The flames were supposed to have been checked, but a later dispatch indicates that they have again broken out.

Shipping Undamaged.

The shipping in the harbor is said to have escaped undamaged, and the members of the party of Sir Alfred Jones are safe on board the steamer Port Kingston.

KING STREET, KINGSTON,
Showing harbor and Palisadoes sandpit.

The naval department has sent the battleships Missouri and Indiana from Guantanamo, Cuba, to Kingston to render aid.

A reliable estimate of the property damage is impossible. One estimate places the loss at Kingston alone at $13,000,000. It is reported that the business section is in ruins and that a large bank building and a big hotel has been destroyed, while other messages say that almost all the houses of the Jamaican capital have been destroyed and those in a radius of ten miles damaged.

The very much more serious aspect of the situation given by messages from Jamaica itself has not been confirmed by official reports.

Some messages emanating from Jamaica are without date, and it is impossible to tell whether they refer to the panic of the first hours and give exaggerated reports of casualties or are sent at a time when greater calm prevailed and actual estimates of the situation were made.

KINGSTON STREET, KINGSTON.

GIRL DETAINED NINE MONTHS.

Secretary Straus Allows Armenian to Join Her Parents.

Washington, Jan. 18. — Secretary Straus of the department of commerce and labor yesterday directed that Marian Zartarian, the fifteen-year-old girl who arrived at Boston last April, be allowed to land. When she arrived the girl was found to be afflicted with trachoma, but a recent examination developed that the disease had disappeared.

DEATH OF JUDGE GOULD.

Was a Member of State Board of Control and a Resident of Winona.

Minneapolis, Jan. 18. — Judge O. B. Gould died at the Northwestern hospital. Judge Gould was a resident of Winona and was a member of the state board of control. He had been in bad health for many months. His illness did not take an acute turn until within the past month, when he was removed to the Northwestern hospital.

SCARLET FEVER IN MILK.

Forty Evanston, (Ill.) People Are Stricken With the Disease.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18. — Tainted milk is said to be responsible for forty cases of scarlet fever reported at Evanston, Ill. In the report furnished the state board of health it was stated that all the families in which cases of the disease developed had been receiving their milk supply from the same source.

WITH THE LAWMAKERS

Work Accomplished by the State Legislators.

Will Go After Trusts.

St. Paul, Jan. 12.—The wiping out of the coal trust and the investigation of the reported farm machinery trust are two things which the legislature intends to give its attention to this session. Two resolutions were introduced in the senate and house calling for the appointment of joint committees to investigate the alleged combines.

Several important bills were introduced in the senate yesterday. Those of most general interest were:

Creating a state board of tax commissioners to examine methods of assessment and the execution of tax laws.

Requiring lobbyists to register and make a sworn statement of their expenses.

Gross earnings tax for sleeping car companies.

In the House.

Three bills fixing 2 cents a mile as the maximum passenger fare in this state were introduced.

An income tax on all personal and corporate earnings over $5,000 a year is provided for in one of the bills introduced yesterday.

The rules adopted by the house yesterday provide more stringent rules for the regulation of lobbyists.

Both houses adjourned until Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

St. Paul, Jan. 16. — The legislature resumed work after its short recess by holding brief sessions last night.

Four bills were introduced in the senate, as follows:

Authorizing district judges to select jury lists in counties of over 200,000 inhabitants. Passed.

Increasing royalties for iron ore in mineral lease on state lands.

Relating to indexes for session laws.

Among the bills introduced in the house were the following:

Providing for a tax on dogs and the establishment of a Pasteur institute.

Twenty-five-cent tonnage tax on iron ore.

Increasing personal property exemption to $200.

Anti-pass law.

St. Paul, Jan. 17. — The legislature seems determined to investigate every ill in the state. Yesterday enough work was provided to keep ferreting committees busy until the end of the session.

Resolutions were passed in the senate and house calling for a thorough investigation of the iron ore deal of the Great Northern railway.

A resolution was introduced providing for a joint committee to investigate the so-called lumber trust.

A resolution was passed unanimously calling for the appointment of a committee to investigate the mineral properties of the state and recommend laws looking to the full protection of the state in the control of the same.

The standing committees of the senate and house were announced yesterday.

Among the bills introduced in the senate were:

Increasing salaries of governor, justices of the supreme court, judges of district courts, secretary of state, auditor, attorney general and treasurer.

Prohibiting use of obscene language.

Relating to census and apportionment.

Creating law reform commission.

Regulating sale of patent medicines.

Taxation of sleeping car companies.

In the House.

A change from September to June in the time of holding the primary elections is proposed in a bill presented in the house. Other bills of general interest were:

Placing electric railways under the supervision of the railroad and warehouse commission.

Taxation of freight line companies.

A resolution was passed providing for the appointment of a committee to investigate and report on the advisability of providing a residence for the governor.

GAS PLANT BLOWS UP.

Killing Two and Injuring Three Players at a Card Party.

Wilmington, Ill., Jan. 13.—Two persons were instantly killed and a dozen injured here by the explosion of a gas plant in Woodman hall.

The accident happened while a card party was in progress in the hall. The gas plant was leaking and the two men killed went into a rear room to make repairs. The explosion followed, and the two men were blown through a partition.

PENSION INDIAN FIGHTERS

PROPOSITION TO PAY ALL WHO FOUGHT IN INDIAN WARS $12 A MONTH.

St. Paul, Jan. 17.—Two bills to prohibit donations for political campaign purposes by corporations were introduced in the senate yesterday. One of the bills confers certain powers on the public examiner for the purpose of discovering whether such contributions have been made. The other, after prohibiting the donations, requires all corporations to certify annually to the public examiner that no such donations have been made.

A bill requiring the annual apportionment among the policyholders by all the mutual companies doing business in this state was introduced in the senate. The bill covers all companies on a mutual plan in which the policyholders are entitled to share in the profits and surplus.

A bill providing for local option in counties containing over 10,000 inhabitants was presented in the senate. The only other bill of general interest was one authorizing the public examiner to examine books of domestic and foreign corporations.

In the House.

All citizens of Minnesota participating in the suppression of the Indian wars of 1862 will be entitled to a pension of $12 a month if a bill introduced in the house yesterday becomes a law. It lets all participants in.

A resolution calling on the governor for his views on county option, to be formulated in a special message to the house, was passed.

The house passed a law relating to legal publication of newspapers. It changes the present law so that hereafter newspapers will not be required to publish on a legal holiday.

Important bills introduced were:

Requiring the publication of railroad time tables in newspapers.

Registry tax on mortgages.

VAN HISE WILL STAY AT "U."

Name Will Not Be Presented to Smithsonian Directors.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 17.—Dr. Van Hise will remain in Wisconsin and continue as head of the state university. His name will not come before the board of directors of the Smithsonian institution, so there is no possibility of his becoming secretary. Dr. Van Hise announces that after full consideration of the matter he has requested President Angell of the University of Michigan not to present his name as a candidate at the meeting on Jan. 23.

INJURED BY EXPLOSION.

Gas in Empty Gasoline Tank Lets Go —Three Persons Seriously Hurt.

New Ulm, Minn., Jan. 17.—An accident occurred at the Rosner & Matsch machine shop last evening, in which three persons sustained severe injuries, and it is a miracle they were not killed outright. The cause of the accident was the igniting of a match near the head of a fifty-gallon gasoline tank, which it was supposed was safe because it had not contained any gasoline for two years.

TO DRAIN LARGE TRACT.

Long Canal Is to Be Built in Racine County, Wisconsin.

Racine, Wis., Jan. 17.—A drainage canal 17,500 feet long and having an average width of seven feet is to be built through the towns of Mount Pleasant, Racine county, and Somers, Kenosha county, at a cost of $16,000, to be paid for by the two towns and the owners of adjacent and benefited farm property. The drain will reclaim hundreds of acres of rich agricultural lands.

WIRE TAPPING IS CHARGED.

Telegraph Operator Is Accused of Robbing a Pool Room by False Returns.

Great Falls, Mont., Jan. 17.—After winning $2,000 in a local pool room on the results of the race at Oakland and Ascot, William H. Molden, a telegraph operator in the employ of the Postal Telegraph company, was arrested on the charge of sending false messages. The pool room management alleges that he was a party to a successful wire-tapping scheme.

Gen. Wood Stays.

St. Paul, Jan. 17.—Gov. Johnson yesterday announced the reappointment of Adjt. Gen. Fred B. Wood of Austin for a two-year term.

Charles Halvorson of Madison yesterday was reappointed to the state highway commission by Gov. Johnson for a term of three years.

Overdose Is Fatal.

Norristown, Pa., Jan. 17.—The boiler of a Philadelphia & Reading freight engine exploded at Bridgeport, near here yesterday and five trainmen were killed. The explosion is thought to have been due to low water in the boiler. All the men killed were on the engine.

The rear portion of the boiler was hurled about 150 yards, while the wheels of the engine remained on the track. Roy Scheder, a brakeman, received the full force of the explosion, and was torn to pieces. The others were shocked and scalded to death.

Congress.

Resume of the Week's Proceedings.

Washington, Jan. 12. — After more than five hours spent in a lively consideration of the subject of limiting the hours of service of railway employes, the senate yesterday passed a substitute for the pending bill and amendments on that subject, of which Senator La Follette was the author, as he was of the original bill. The substitute limits the time of train employes to sixteen consecutive hours of service, to be followed by ten hours of rest. There was but one negative vote to this action, that of Senator Pettus of Alabama.

Row in House.

The house yesterday not only was the center of a threatened personal encounter between Representative Gaines (Tenn.) and Representative Mahon (Pa.), growing out of Mr. Gaines' bill to "dock" members for chronic absence, but it also passed the army appropriation bill and began the consideration of the fortifications bill. Several amendments were made to the army bill.

Washington, Jan. 13. — A general service pension bill was passed by the senate yesterday which, if it becomes a law, will give to survivors of the Civil and Mexican wars who have reached the age of sixty-two years $12 per month; $15 to those of seventy and $20 to those of seventy-five years of age.

The first argument in behalf of Reed Smoot was made by Senator Hopkins of Illinois, who contended that the senate had no authority to pass judgment on the private acts of its members.

The legislative appropriation bill was taken up and read. Amendments to this bill, including the proposed increases in the salaries of the vice president, speaker and cabinet members were not considered yesterday, but will be taken up later.

House Breaks Record.

The house yesterday in an hour and thirty-five minutes passed 628 private pension bills, an average of seven bills per minute, exceeding the highest record ever made before.

Washington, Jan. 15. — All contentions that the race problem and politics are not involved in the Brownsville affair were upset Saturday when Senator Tillman uncorked the phials of his vituperation in an assault upon President Roosevelt and a dissertation on the negro that was so intemperate that it called forth a stinging rebuke from one of his Democratic colleagues, Senator Patterson of Colorado.

In summary it may be said that Senator Tillman charged the president with exceeding his constitutional and legal rights, with violating the fundamental principle of jurisprudence that innocent men should not be made to suffer for the guilty, with being himself primarily responsible for the Brownsville riot because he sent the negro troops there, and because he had taught the negro to believe he is the equal of the white, and finally with having virtually been guilty of lynching in the manner in which he had dealt with the colored troopers.

Washington, Jan. 15.—Taking but a brief time to pass the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation, carrying nearly $31,000,000, the senate devoted the remainder of the day to the Brownsville affray.

President Roosevelt's message was read and ordered printed.

Senator Mallory indorsed the action of the president. When Senator Clay, who followed, took the floor, the debate was given a lively turn by Tillman's interruptions. Mr. Clay said the people of Georgia heartily indorsed the president's action. Senator Bacon followed with what he said was reported as the precedent for the Brownsville error in the discharge of a company of South Carolina national guardsmen by Senator Tillman when he was governor. This involved Senator Tillman again.

Senator Spooner was in the midst of a constitutional discussion of the authority of the president in the case when adjournment was taken.

Washington, Jan. 16.—After a fight which lasted all day and extended to the floor of the house, threatening to bring about much filibustering at one time, the house committee on merchant marine and fisheries finally decided at 6 p. m., by a vote of 8 to 7, to make a favorable report on a ship subsidy bill prepared by Representative Littauer of New York as a substitute for the Grosvenor bill, which has been under consideration for many weeks.

Seven subsidized mail lines are provided for in the bill to be reported with an annual subvention estimated at $3,750,000.

CITIZENS FLEE FOR SAFETY.

Flood Suddenly Sweeps Down on Kentucky Town.

Mount Sterling, Ky., Jan. 17.—The heavy rains of the last few days caused a sudden rise of Rock Bridge creek, in this county, which flooded the town of Flat Rock. The flood came so suddenly that the inhabitants of Flat Rock were compelled to flee for safety in boats. Horses and cattle were drowned and a number of bridges washed away.

BROWNSVILLE TALK NEAR END

FORAKER OFFERS SUBSTITUTE RESOLUTION WHICH WILL BE ADOPTED.

Washington, Jan. 17.—Senate leaders regard the end of the Brownsville discussion in sight, and it is confidently expected that a compromise resolution, offered by Senator Foraker just before the close of yesterday's session, will be adopted.

Mr. Foraker will make his closing speech to-day. The substitute presented by Mr. Foraker directs the committee on military affairs to take and have printed the testimony for the purpose of ascertaining all the facts with reference to the affair at Brownsville. The committee is authorized to send for papers and administer oaths. This resolution is said to be satisfactory to the supporters of the administration.

The feature of the debate yesterday was the arraignment by Senator Carmack of Republican senators who have criticised the president for his action in the Brownsville matter.

Senators Stone, Money and Knox followed, each upholding the authority of the president to take the action he did.

The fortifications appropriation bill was passed yesterday by the house without amendment, an unusual thing with appropriation bills.

YOUNG WOMAN IS ARRESTED.

Accused of Passing Worthless Checks in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Jan. 17.—A handsome young woman, known as Mrs. A. L. Floyd, but who is reported to have another name, well known in Chicago society circles, was arrested here last night on a charge of having passed worthless checks for $500. After her arrest she said her real name is Sickley.

CORTELYOU CONFIRMED.

Along With Garfield, Meyer and Herbert Knox Smith.

Washington, Jan. 17. — George B. Cortelyou was confirmed as secretary of the treasury. At the same time James R. Garfield was confirmed to be secretary of the interior, George von L. Meyer to be postmaster general and Herbert Knox Smith to be commissioner of corporations to succeed Mr. Garfield.

FAMINE IS VERY SERIOUS.

Conditions in China Are Worse Than They Have Been Reported.

Washington, Jan. 17.—The American Red Cross has received cable news from Mr. Ellis, who at the request of the Christian Herald made a trp into the famine district of China, that he finds famine conditions worse than reported. He states that $3,000,000 must be sent within five months.

Bismarck Wagon Shop Burns.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 17.—Fire early yesterday destroyed the wagon and blacksmith shop of Bertsch & Son in this city. The loss is about $5,000, with no insurance. There was no fire in the building the day before and the origin of the fire is a mystery.

Ten Years for Murder.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 17. — Joseph Lach, who has been on trial here on a charge of murdering a comrade last summer, has been found guilty of murder in the second degree and has been sentenced to the penitentiary at hard labor for a term of ten years.

Fire Razes Stores.

Jamestown, N. D., Jan. 17.—Fire destroyed the business portion of the little town of Gackle, just across the southern line of Stutsman county, causing thousands of dollars of loss in buildings and merchandise. No one was killed or injured.

Zumbrotan Goes to Minot.

Minot, N. D., Jan. 17.—Maj. E. S. Person, formerly cashier of the First State Bank of Zumbrota, Minn., was selected as cashier of the Union National bank of Minot, to succeed Emery Olmstead, who was forced to resign because of poor health.

Rice Lake Gets School.

Barron, Wis., Jan. 17.—After an all-day session, the county board deadlock was broken and Rice Lake was chosen as the location for the Barron county training school for teachers.

Saturday, Jan. 19, 1907.

Prospects for the passage of a two-cent railroad fare bill by the legislature are good, so it is said.

Thirty-six legislatures and congress are busy at present grinding out new laws. Surely we are well governed.

It is reported that peach trees are in bloom in the state of Georgia. The banana trees of North Dakota have not yet started.

North Dakota is now suffering from the worst snow blockade in its history. There is bound to be a great deal of suffering before spring.

A decision in the county seat case before the supreme court has been promised "to-morrow" for the past week or ten days but it is not in sight at this writing.

The Standard Oil company has been indicted by an Ohio court on one thousand different counts. The public who uses oil will probably pay the bill if they are convicted.

Inconsistencies in the new code crop out at every turn but none of its provisions are more glaring than the provision regarding salaries permitted to be drawn by county commissioners for their year's services in behalf of the people. Though filling the important position of the county legislature and being responsible for its government they receive a mere pittance for their labor. They hold the official position of most importance yet have the best of reason for slighting their work at every opportunity for under the new law it will be extremely difficult for them to pay their expenses out of their allowance, leaving aside any remuneration for their time or services to their constituents.—Fosston Thirteen Towns.

The First Nails.

The first nails were undoubtedly the sharp teeth of various animals. Then it is believed pointed fragments of flint followed. The first manufactured metal nails were of bronze. The nail with which Jael killed Sisera was a wooden tent pin, probably pointed with iron. Bronze nails have been found in the Swiss lake dwellings, in several places in France and in the valley of the Nile. Until the nineteenth century iron nails were forged, a blacksmith being able to make only two or three dozen a day. The first cut nails were made by Jeremiah Wilkinson in Rhode Island in 1775. The first patented nail machine was by Perkins, 1795, and its product of 200,000 nails a day was considered so enormous that some persons deemed the result due to supernatural agency.

How to Grow Miniature Oaks.

Secure a good ripe acorn and suspend it by a piece of cord within half an inch or so of water contained in a glass. There let it stay, for if permitted to remain without disturbance for a few months it will burst, send a root into the water and shoot upward a straight, tapering stem covered with beautiful little green leaves. In this manner a young oak tree can be cultivated and become an interesting object to all that behold it. As soon as the plant has made its appearance it will be found beneficial to change the water frequently.

Exorbitant Premiums.

"What would you think of a 99 per cent premium?" said an insurance agent. "A premium of $99,000 on a $100,000 policy. Hardly worth taking out, eh?" Such a policy was once taken out, though, on a ship thought to be lost. It is a common thing on overdue ships to take out policies at 80 or 85 or 90 per cent. On the Bulgaria and the Croft in 1899 policies at 90 per cent were taken out, and on the Adelaide Mary, even after two of her lifeboats had been picked up, a policy of 92 per cent was issued.

One Evil Chases the Other.

Visitor to the West Indies (who has been warned against bathing in the river because of alligators, but has been told by the boatmen that there are none at the river's mouth)—By Jove, this is ripping! But, I say, how do you know there are no alligators here? Boatman—Well, you see, sah, de alligator am so turr'ble feared ob de shark.—Punch.

English Men and Women.

Englishwomen are inherently shy, and half the bad manners with which we are credited as a nation is the result of this shyness. Englishmen suffer from it to the same extent, only in their case shyness is merely self consciousness and part and parcel of an immense conceit.—London Ladies' Field.

THE $200 PRIZE.

The following letter from D. D. Mayne, principal of the State School of Agriculture, is self-explanatory:

SUPT. H. T. MCANULTY,
Red Lake Falls, Minn.

Dear Superintendent McAnulty:—

I take great pleasure in informing you that Mr. Olaf Nelson of St. Hilaire in your county secured the first prize in the State contest in growing wheat. This prize amounts to $200 in cash. Will you please convey this information to Mr. Nelson with our most hearty congratulations.

I sincerely hope that this large prize may be the means of greatly stimulating the work of growing better grain in your county and that all the students in your schools may take up the study with greater interest.

Will you kindly fill out the enclosed bland and return to me at your earliest convenience. In the case of the very large prizes we feel it due to the donors that they receive some assurance from the county superintendents that the grain submitted was grown in accordance with the rules. I have no doubt but that this will be entirely satisfactory.

Hoping that you may be able to secure a photograph of the winner for us, and the composition requested, I am, Yours very truly,

D. D. MAYNE,

A London Banquet of 1582.

A Spanish visitor to London in 1582 describes a banquet of that day. "I will tell you no lye," he begins cautiously. "I saw such kindes of meate eaten as are wont to be sene and not eaten—as a horse rosted, a cat in gely, little lizars with whot broth, frogges fried and divers other sortes of meates, which I sawe theme eate, but I never knew what they were till they were eaten." The "quaking custard" of that period was a huge dish in the middle of the table, into which, "at a private signal, the city fool suddenly leaped over the heads of the astonished feasters, who were instantly bespattered with this rich and savory mud." Undeterred, however, by this nasty behavior, the citizens not only ate plentifully of the custard, but even took some home to their wives. Nor were the women of those days backward in demanding expensive dainties for themselves, it seems, for an essayist of 1601 sarcastically asks: "Who will not admire our nice dames of London, who must have cherries at 20 shillings a pound and peascods at 5 shillings a peck? Young rabbettes of a spanne and chickens of an inch?"

Slaves In Scotland.

Were there once slaves in Scotland? A volume on Scottish industrial and social history in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries has some passages on the subject:

"It shocks us very much to learn that the men, and even the women, who worked in the coal mines at that time—i. e., the eighteenth century—in Scotland still continued to be, as of old, little better than slaves. By a law passed by the Scottish parliament in 1606 every man who once went to work in a coal mine was bound to labor in it all his life as a 'necessary servant.' If he tried to run away he was tried and punished as a thief. If the land was sold on which the coal pit stood in which he worked he was sold with it like any of the machinery of the pit. In 1775 an act of parliament was passed which set free most of the pit workers, but it was not till the end of the century that this form of slavery was quite abolished."

The deep snow this winter is bringing out the timber wolves in large numbers according to farmers who live in the sparses settled regions of the valley and especially out on the east line along the outskirts of the timber country; and the wolves are becoming very bold in their search for food.—Thief River News.

While other communities have been suffering from lack of train facilities and shortage of food and fuel the people of Red Lake county have been having an easy time of it. The train service has been good as the passenger has not been over an hour late this winter and freight trains run fairly regular, so there has been no shortage of the food supply. We have a plentiful supply of fuel at home and although we are experiencing the worst winter in years, there is no suffering in Red Lake county.

Branum Funeral.

The funeral of Jorgen J. Branum was held at the United Norwegian Lutheran church last Monday afternoon and was attended by a large number of friends. The services were conducted by Rev. T. A. Haugen and the interment was made in the cemetery north of town.

A New Village.

Congressman Steenerson has introduced a bill providing for the platting as a townsite of the 200 acres of land on which the White Earth Indian agency and village of White Earth are located. Lots are to be appraised by a commission of which the agent is to be one member, another to be selected by the secretary of the Interior, and the third by the Indians. The present occupants are to be given preference in the right to purchase lots, and the lots are to be sold only to Indians on that reservation entitled to allotments. The patents for the lots are to contain a provision forbidding the sale or storage of liquor on them.

Council Proceedings.

Special meeting of the village council of St. Hilaire held in the Clerk's office in said village, Jan. 16th, 1907, at 1:30 p.m.

On motion A. S. Wilson was elected president pro tem.

The president stated that the object of the meeting was to examine the blue-print of the Duluth Engineering Co. as to the location and size of the street lights. Said blue-print was approved and returned to the company.

A. S. Wilson,
President pro tem.
K. O. Gigstad,
Clerk.

New Telephone.

G. Smith, of Euclid, was here last Saturday in the interest of the Euclid Farmers Telephone company. This company was organized last year by the farmers living near Euclid and now has over thirty miles of line. The company is thinking of extending their line east through Polk Centre and Black River to this village. Mr. Smith interviewed a number of our citizens and seemed favorably impressed with the scheme and the company may ask the village council for a franchise. L. L. Simons now has a telephone franchise but it expires next March and it is not probable that he will do anything with it. A telephone line covering the farming district west of here would be a decided improvement and the scheme should be encouraged.

Automobile Omnibus Lines in Paris.

The first of the automobile omnibus lines commenced running in Paris not long ago, says the Scientific American. Experiments had been made for a long time past, and the public became accustomed to see the omnibuses pass along the streets, but the system was not put into actual operation until the first week in June, when the line known as the Montmartre St. Germain des Pres was started. When you are tired and overworked, remember that golden grain belt beer will calm your nerves and strengthen the entire body. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex. Thompson, Crookston.

Notice.

Those owing accounts at the Farmers' Store are hereby notified to call and settle at once, as I am going out of business.

Dated St. Hilaire, Minn., January 18, 1907. Henry Goergen.

Test Association.

Inspector Joel Winkjer, deputy inspector of creameries, has been directing his attention of late to the organization in this part of the country of what is known as the test association, the purpose of which is to keep an accurate record of what a cow produces in a year. This will necessitate the stock raiser to weigh and test the quality of the milk secured each day.

If a record is kept of what each cow produces the farmer will soon discover which cows are productive and which are otherwise. In this connection an instance is cited of a farmer who had two cows. When he applied the test experiment he found out that one cow was netting him $10 per annum while the other cow was causing a loss of $10 a year, thus the profit that was made by one cow was neutralized by the loss occasioned by the other cow. If the test is used the non-paying cows are liable to be weeded out.

After the productive cows are culled out from a herd the next step to be taken is to ascertain what kinds of food bring the most satisfactory results. With this knowledge the farmer can increase the capacity of his cows so that they will net him large amounts of money each year.

C. O. Carlson, of Erskine, who won the Hill prize last fall, kept a record of what each of his cows produced and as a result he has made a big success of stockraising. Last year one of his cows netted him a profit of $[illegible]0, a record that has been seldom surpassed in any part of the country.

A test association composed of patrons of the creamery, but independent of the creamery, was organized here several weeks ago. It is the intention of the farmers in the association to keep a thorough record of every cows in their herds and will as soon as possible dispose of their cows that do not come up to standard. In the future to sell a milch cow, a complete record will have to be shown, which can be easily done by farmers in the test association.

Old Ditch Matter Up.

Thief River News: The board of commissioners at their meeting last week, took up the old matter of Rocksbury-North Ditch No. 1, and a lively discussion ensued over this much-talked-of waterway. Several Rocksbury farmers appeared before the board in the matter, and demanded that something be done, and after a lengthy discussion the auditor was authorized to advertise for bids and re let the contract for the completion of the waterway.

Rocksbury-North Ditch No. 1 was established over four years ago and the contract was let to Wm. Eickhoff, of St. Hilaire, with Geo. Ralph, of Crookston, as the engineer. The work proceeded very well at first but for some reason not apparent the waterway was never fully completed. The county paid out nearly all of the cost of the ditch, on the recommendation of the engineer, it apparently being thought at that time that the work was to be finished. When the engineer put in his final estimate the board refused to accept the ditch, and some $200 remaining due was never paid.

The matter was passed over from time to time until last May when the board realizing that some steps should necessarily be taken to complete the waterway, instructed the county attorney to take such steps as he deemed necessary to enforce the completion of the work. Attorney Germo took the matter up with the bondsmen and had assurances that the desire of the board would be complied with. It seems that men were sent up to make a bluff at doing the work, but it resulted in no good to the people who are daily being damaged by the ditch.

The matter was again laid before the board, last week, with the result as above stated. The contract for completion will be let as soon as possible, and steps taken to give the farmers some benefit for the money they have been paying for this ditch.

No announcement is made as to what action will be taken, if any, against the engineer and bondsmen but it is probable that some effort will be made to save the county from further expense in the matter.

Our January Bargain.

If you want a decided bargain look up our clubbing offer this week. A daily paper, a farm weekly and a monthly, together with the Spectator for the local news, all for $2.00 for the year. You will not get a better offer from us or anyone else. We want to do business while times are dull so this will last during January only.

COUNTY SEAT FIGHT

Word was received last evening that the supreme court has made a decision, but that it was not yet published, in favor of Red Lake Falls in the county seat controversy. The decision, we learn, does not affect the validity of the petition but declares that all proceedings since the filing of the petition are illegal. Under the decision, the county board must now meet to consider the petition. It is a victory, and a decided one, for Red Lake Falls and prolongs the fight indefinitely.

About Homesteads.

Of late there have been so many different orders issued from the secretary of the interior, relative to homestead proofs, that the settlers have become greatly confused as to what the department requires as to actual residence upon the land, says the Brookston Herald.

On February 27, 1906 the secretary of Interior rendered a decision as to commutation homestead proofs, and the residence required. This decision is still used as a precedent, and is as follows:

"It is true, and the department has held, that where residence has in good faith been established within six months from the date of entry, the six months' constructive residence may be added to the eight months' actual residence, and thus the full period of 14 months' residence required by the law in the commutation of homestead entries may be made out. In such cases the law not only requires that it shall clearly and satisfactorily appear from the proof that bona fide residence was established within the six months from the date of entry, but also that the actual residence upon the land has been continuous from the time it was established until the date for making proof."

Where, therefore, residence was established within six months from date of entry, the entryman will be allowed credit for constructive residence from the date of entry to the time when actual residence commenced, (but the actual residence must be continuous from the time it was established up to the time proof is submitted.)

In case residence is not established within six months from date of entry, the entryman will be required to show actual residence upon and cultivation of the land for 14 months from date of settlement up to time of commutation.

$35 of Alfalfa Per Acre.

Hendrum Review: James McCradie harvested three crops from his seven-acre field of alfalfa in 1806, yielding him between six and seven tons per acre, or a total of about 45 tons. The feeding value of this is $10 per ton, this amount being considered a low estimate by the state and government agricultural experts. Its selling value, as hay, would be at least equal with timothy. At this rate it will be seen that Mr. McCradie's seven acres yielded $450, with only the expense of cutting the crop three times during the season ank taking care of it. The field was seeded to alfalfa on June 18, 1905, and yielded six or seven loads the first season.

The plants will strengthen every year, as the roots penetrate deeper into the ground, and is a permanent crop, unless you should wish to break the land up and seed it to grain, in which case the alfalfa roots would leave an abundant supply of humus. But it would not pay to plow up a successful alfalfa field to raise grain.

To make a success in growing alfalfa it is desirable to plant it on good land, in fair condition, manured and not weedy. A field which has been in red clover for a couple years is the ideal spot.

Mr. McCradie expects to seed 30 or 40 acres of alfalfa next spring, as he considers it beyond the experimental stage.

As far as we know there are two alfalfa fields in this neighborhood; the one mentioned and the one of T. N. Roe's farm, both of which have proven successful. Though we hardly consider it an absolutely safe crop, it is a good one to experiment with, and the results so far would justify every farmer in trying five or six acres of it.

Of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the Great Woman's Remedy for Woman's Ills.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

No other medicine for Woman's ills in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

No other medicine has such a record of cures of female illnesses or such hosts of grateful friends as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing all forms of Female Complaints, Inflammation and Ulceration, and consequent Spinal Weakness.

It has cured more cases of Backache and Local Weaknesses than any other one remedy. It dissolves and expels tumors in an early stage of development.

Irregularities and periodical pains, Weakness of the Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility quickly yield to it; also deranged organs, causing pain, dragging sensations and backache. Under all circumstances it acts in harmony with the female system.

It removes that wearing feeling, extreme lassitude, "don't care" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feeling, excitability, irritability, nervousness, dizziness, faintness, sleeplessness, flatulency, melancholy or the "blues". These are indications of Female Weakness, or some derangement of the organs, which this medicine cures as well as Chronic Kidney Complaints and Backache, of either sex.

Those women who refuse to accept anything else are rewarded a hundred thousand times, for they get what they want—a cure. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Refuse all substitutes.

Kitty and the Russian Coatee

By Paul Creswick

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"Tell me about the sales," I requested, when we were at last sitting alone. "Sales, servants, and scandals are the main lines on which conversation usually runs at afternoon teas."

Kitty gave her skirt that peculiar fillip downward over her little feet which is so marked a habit of the sex. She considered her reply. "I think I may agree with you, Reggie—so far as your firstly and secondly," she decided at last. "But as regards your thirdly you must admit that no scandal would be complete without a man. It is man who always enjoys scandal; and, consequently, when he is present at an afternoon tea—"

"At which the tea is itself absent," I interrupted amiably. "Don't ring for Loftus, I beg—I'm not thirsty. Please refresh me instead with stories of the wonderful bargains you have acquired."

"Sales," commenced Kitty, "are a popular illusion. One hears them announced—"

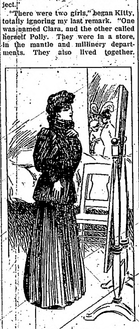
"One rushes off to a steamy shop—to jostle and fight with quantities of really extremely ill-behaved women—in order to buy an article that probably will never be of the slightest service."

"Did I ever tell you about the girl who put five pounds into the pocket of a coat that another girl sold?" inquired Kitty, earnestly.

"We have never talked about money in our lives," I said. "That will inevitably become our main topic—after we are married. Married folk never have time to discuss any other subject."

"There were two girls," began Kitty, totally ignoring my last remark. "One was named Clara, and the other called herself Polly. They were in a store, in the mantle and millinery departments. They also lived together. Apart from the way they had of hailing each other by nicknames, they were very pleasant, orderly young things. They had a bad-manners club."



It Was Perfect.

"Explain," I demanded.

"It's a money-box on the chimney-piece," said Kitty. "Every time Polly was disagreeable or snappy, Clara made her contribute sixpence to the box. Similarly when Clara was quarrelsome or lazy—"

"I understand. Tell me more about the five pounds."

"Don't be impatient! It happened that, after a year or so, this money-box became exceedingly heavy. They decided, after much discussion and consideration, that the club should be wound up—since both had been remarkably good-tempered and sweet for quite a long period. It seemed almost an aspersion on them, their keeping on with the club. Clara wondered what they ought to do with the money. Polly suggested, promptly, that they could divide it and buy themselves something pretty and permanent."

"They imagined that there would be fully three pounds in the club," Kitty went on. "But—alas! they had not been so very naughty, after all. The money-box yielded, on investigation, the sum of 29 shillings and sixpence. Clara said that such an amount couldn't be divided—it would be too difficult. Polly acquiesced; and they eventually sat down to a great game of cribbage, one night—the winner to take the entire proceeds of the club."

"If this is to be a gambling story, I shall have to rise to order," said I.

"It's much worse," announced Kitty, placidly. "Listen. The game commenced at 8:30 precisely, one windy March evening, and it lasted until 11. As the clock was striking 11, Clara, with a small grimace, pushed over to the fair and flushed Polly 59 sixpences. 'They're yours,' said she, briefly. 'What are you going to do with them?' Polly, with a nervous, hasty chuckle of triumph, answered: 'Buy a new jacket, of course.'"

"I like Polly," I remarked. "A very sensible creature."

"Something in Clara's expression caused Polly to become nervous. She crossed to her friend, and, resting her hand on Clara's shoulder, Polly whispered a trifle shamefacedly: 'If you want the money, dear—take it. I haven't sold my old coat yet; and I'll wear it right out. Take the money; it will give me much more pleasure.'"

"And Clara?"

"Shook her head. She wanted the money for a purpose which she feared Polly would laugh at. Clara at last owned up. She would have given the money to the landlady—as rent in advance. 'But why?' requested Polly, amazedly. 'They don't pay us in advance for working. Nobody ever dreams of doing such a thing. If you pay your way as you go, you're doing more than most folk, be sure.' She offered to share the club, however, if Clara wouldn't be so absurd."

"But Clara persisted?"

"She said that she thought—she didn't actually know—but she thought that the landlady was rather poor. That times had been hard of late; that, perhaps, it would be a real help to the woman. 'Oh, it's far too little to be of any use,' cried Polly, decisively. 'You're a tender-hearted old duffer, Clara. Drink up your cocoa, and let us get to bed. I feel quite dissipated.'"

"I'm beginning to like Clara best, after all."

Kitty feared that Clara was too sentimental. "She may have imagined things, you know," her ladyship continued. "Still—Polly took the money, and sold all her old clothes for another thirty-odd shillings, and then, with what she had saved she possessed five golden pounds. She had only to wait now for the end of the great sale, when goods left in stock would be offered, at an alarming reduction, to the employes. There was one little Russian coatee of electric seal which she especially coveted.

"It was the very last hour of the sale. Polly popped down from the millinery department to tell Clara of her choice—if it still remained. The coatee was still there, but not Clara. She had been called away to the counting-house over some error in an account. Polly—who is rather a fine-looking girl, I think—took the coatee off the model and swiftly tried it on. It was perfect. Polly's pretty reflection was beaming back from the glass when there came a sharp call for her from the millinery room. She slipped out of the coatee, screwed up her five golden pounds in a bill torn from her book, and thrust the precious little screw of paper into one of the pockets of the coatee. Flinging the latter on Clara's chair, Polly fled for her life."

"Clara came back as soon as Polly had gone—"

"She saw the coatee, and, tidily, put it back on the model. Ten minutes afterwards a small-hard-to-please women came fussing into the mantle department. She turned over everything, tried on a hundred and one jackets, grumbled at the prices unceasingly, and finally—"

"Bought Polly's coatee?"

"Bought it and took it away with her! Said her carriage was at the door, and she wouldn't trouble the store to send it home. You can guess what Polly felt, when at closing time, she came for the coat! Gone—and the five pounds as well! Her blue eyes flashed lightning and sudden death. There was a scene; and poor Clara cried. Polly cried, too; then stormed again. 'And you don't know the creature's address, nor anything? Oh, Clara—it is too cruel of you! Why are you so dreadfully tidy? Couldn't you see that the coat was there all ready to be packed? I believe you did it on purpose!'"

"I don't like people to be too neat," I put in. "I remember once—"

"This is my story," declared Kitty, imperiously. "Wait until you hear the conclusion. Clara was saying that the lady would be sure to bring the money back, when Polly dashed out of the room. She interviewed the hall porter. She spent the evening chasing electric seal coatees. Once she fancied that she had tracked it, and gaspingly addressed the wearer, who turned such furious eyes upon poor Polly that she stammered, went red, and gave way to ignominious flight."

"And the moral?"

"There isn't any. Days passed. Clara bought Polly a little fur collar, and made her wear it. They were nice girls, with kind hearts, although rather slangy ways. One morning—behold the fussy lady! She had, at length, found the five pounds. Now arose a difficulty with the store. Polly had to make them understand—she hadn't dared speak about it before. But directly the fussy lady perceived Polly, she exclaimed, roundly: 'You're the girl who spoke to me just as I was leaving my carriage on the night I had the coat! I recognize your voice and manner, my dear. I'm dreadfully sorry I was so rude—but hadn't the faintest notion then as to what you meant. You must let me make good your loss in any case.'"

"That convinced the store people?"

"After awhile. And the fussy lady and the two girls became great friends. They took such an interest in a little scheme of weekly charity dinners which the fussy lady had in hand; and thus they met other friends who were helping—"

"Were those the girls? And was that the coatee? I suppose you gave it to her—you dear, fussy thing? I must admit that I liked the coatee—and Polly—and Clara."

"You like all girls, Reggie—that's the worst of you!" Kitty laughingly rose to ring for Loftus. "You must go now—my dressmaker is coming. But you can call at eight, if you like. We have a committee meeting to-night. Nora is coming—besides Polly and Clara and the others."

"All women?" I inquired, doubtfully.

"Come and see," replied Kitty.

THE FIRST TWINGE

Mr. Frank Little, a well known citizen of Portland, Ionia Co., Mich., was cured of a severe case of rheumatism by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In speaking about it recently, he said: "My body was run down and in no condition to withstand disease and about five years ago I began to feel rheumatic pains in my arms and across my back. My arms and legs grew numb and the rheumatism seemed to settle in every joint so that I could hardly move, while my arms were useless at times. I was unable to sleep or rest well and my heart pained me so terribly I could hardly stand it. My stomach became sour and bloated after eating and this grew so bad that I had inflammation of the stomach. I was extremely nervous and could not bear the least noise or excitement. One whole side of my body became paralyzed.

"As I said before, I had been suffering about five years and seemed to be able to get no relief from my doctors, when a friend here in Portland told me how Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had cured him of neuralgia in the face even after the pain had drawn it to one side. I decided to try the pills and began to see some improvement soon after using them. This encouraged me to keep on until I was entirely cured. I have never had a return of the rheumatism or of the paralysis."

The pills are for sale by all druggists or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

"Always to Be Depended Upon.

When a person gets up in the morning with a dull headache and a tired, stretchy feeling, it's an almost certain indication that the liver, or bowels, or both, are decidedly out of order.

At such times Nature, the wisest and best of doctors, takes this means to give warning that she needs the help and gentle assistance which can best be obtained from that old family remedy, Brandreth's Pills, which has been in use for over a century.

They are the same fine laxative tonic pill your grandparents used when doctors were few and far between, and when people had to have a remedy that could absolutely be depended upon.

Brandreth's Pills can be depended upon, and are sold in every drug and medicine store, plain or sugar-coated.

Hard on Biggs.

"There were two men got into a scrimmage in front of the bank today," said Mr. Biggs at the family supper table, "and it looked pretty bad for one of them. The biggest one grabbed a stick, and I thought that he was going to knock the other's brains out, so, of course, I jumped in between them."

The family had listened with rapt attention, and as Mr. Biggs paused in his narrative the young heir, whose respect for his father's bravery is immeasurable, proudly remarked:

"He couldn't knock any brains out of you, could he, father."

The head of the family gazed long and earnestly at the heir, as if to detect evidences of a budding humorist, but, as the youth continued to munch his tart with great innocence, he gulped and resumed his supper.

KINGSTON SLOWLY SINKING INTO SEA

THOUSANDS OF LIVES LOST

URGENT NEED OF SUPPLIES—ENGLAND AND AMERICA PLAN TO SEND AID.

Kingston, the beautiful capital of the Island of Jamaica, was devastated by an earthquake Monday afternoon, Jan. 14. Fire quickly followed the shock and practically completed the work of destruction.

In its disastrous effects, both to life and property, the disaster is as great as the calamity of San Francisco and Valparaiso.

The destruction of all cable communication made it impossible to get accurate details of the disaster for several days, but as reports come in they add to the awful horror of the calamity.

Estimates of the loss of life place the number of dead at over a thousand, among whom are many persons of prominence in the community.

The property loss is variously estimated at from $10,000,000 to $25,000,000.

One description of the earthquake said that the city "rocked like a ship in a choppy sea," and that "when the fire started the scene was hellish."

City Will Be Swallowed Up.

A new horror is added to the situation by reports that the city seems to be slowly sinking into the sea. The contour of the bottom of the harbor has materially changed and two lighthouses at the harbor entrance are said to have disappeared.

Thousands Stricken Down.

The earthquake came as a sudden oscillation, not from any particular direction, but up and down.

Thousands of persons were on the streets of Kingston at the time, and great numbers of them were crushed. Many Americans in Kingston were killed and have been buried.

Part of the town of Port Royal has been sunk and two men were drowned The batteries sunk eight feet, killing a sapper. In several places the water is spouting through the debris.

Inundated by Tidal Wave.

The shock was severe at Richmond, and this town also was detroyed by fire.

Spanish town also was damaged. One man was killed and ten men were injured there.

"KING'S HOUSE," THE GOVERNOR'S RESIDENCE.

KING'S HOUSE, KINGSTON.

The shipping in the harbor is safe. There have been a number of other shocks since the first disastrous one, and the repetitions keep the people in a state of panic.

Death List May Reach 1,200.

The number of dead is placed variously at from 500 to 1,200, and the number of injured runs into the thousands. Ten thousand people are said to be homeless. The danger of famine has increased and with it stalks the spectre of pestilence. There is urgent need for supplies of all kinds and energetic efforts are being made in this country and England to send aid.

The business section of the city has been wiped out, and the estimates of the damage range from $10,000,000 to $25,000,000.

The situation at Kingston seems to be improving. Order has been re-established and the work of burying the dead and caring for the injured is progressing on an organized basis.

The work of sending in relief to the stricken city is proceeding with energy. Kingston is receiving supplies as far as possible from the island of Jamaica itself. The American warships in the harbor have put on shore all the foodstuffs and medical supplies they could spare, and the Jamaican authorities have taken charge of the distribution of all provisions in the city.

Relief on Big Scale.

In addition, relief is being hurried from outside quarters. The senate yesterday passed a bill authorizing relief for the stricken island; the people of the British Island of Trinidad have sent a first installment of relief; H. M. S. Indefatigable has left Port of Spain, Trinidad, with provisions, clothing and other supplie for the stricken people; the French government has started a cruiser from the island of Martinique with supplies for Kingston; the Mansion House fund in London is growing rapidly and the British authorities are perfecting the details of relief on a large scale, and in addition various other steamers are either on their way or about to start for Kingston with food, clothing and medicines aboard.

Rumor of Tidal Wave.

The report that a tidal wave had devastated the southern shore of Jamaica had not been confirmed up to a very late hour. Cable communication with the island has been partially retored, but, even so, messages from Jamaica are coming through very slowly.

Great relief was afforded last night to all those who have American friends in Jamaica by a statement received from the office of the cable company at Kingston that up to 7 o'clock Thursday evening no Americans had been reported killed or severely wounded by the earthquake.

List of Victims Growing.

The list of known victims is growing and the names of no less than forty persons of more or less prominence in the Jamaican capital already have been given out as dead. About twenty well known people are either injured or missing.

The reports received yesterday make no mention of further earthquakes and the fires all have been put out.

KICK AMERICANS OUT OF JAMAICA

ADMIRAL DAVIS' MISSION OF MERCY COMES TO PAINFUL CONCLUSION.

PRESIDENT IGNORES ACTION

WILL TAKE NO NOTICE OF INCIDENT—JAMAICANS ARE INDIGNANT.

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 22. — Rear Admiral Davis' mission of mercy to stricken Kingston came to an abrupt and painful conclusion in consequence of Gov. Swettenham's objection to the presence of the American sailors engaged in the work of clearing the streets, guarding property and succoring the wounded and sick, culminating in a letter to the admiral peremptorily requesting him to re-embark all parties which had been landed.

Ships Leave at Once.

Admiral Davis was greatly shocked and pained, and paid a formal visit to Gov. Swettenham Saturday, informing him that the United States battleships Missouri and Indiana, and the gunboat Yankton would sail Saturday afternoon.

To the Associated Press Admiral Davis said that immediate compliance with Gov. Swettenham's request was the only course consistent with the dignity of the United States.

Friction Over Salute.

The friction between the governor and the admiral began with the arrival of the American warships, when the governor objected to the firing of a salute in his honor on the ground that the citizens might mistake the firing for a new earthquake. He also declared there was no necessity for American aid—that his government was fully able to preserve order, tend the wounded and succor the homeless.

Rear Admiral Davis, however, landed parties of bluejackets, who patrolled the streets, cleared the debris, razed ruins, attended many of the wounded and won the highest praise from citizens and military officers for excellent work.

Britons Disavow Action.

Washington, Jan. 23. — Dispatches exchanged yesterday between the British secretary of state for war and the state department, made public here last night, wholly ignoring the letters which passed between Admiral Davis and Gov. Swettenham at Kingston, have had the effect of relieving the tensity of feeling which had existed since it became known that Admiral Davis returned Sunday to Guantanamo from Kingston with his ships which had gone to aid the stricken people of Jamaica. The message from London is interpreted here that the British government and people disavow the action of the governor of Jamaica in requesting Admiral Davis to embark his men. The text of the dispatches referred to follows:

Expresses Gratitude.

"Hon. Elihu Root, Secretary of State, Washington: I read in newspapers this morning what purports to be a letter from the governor of Jamaica. Can only say that on materials before me I entertain, as responsible for troops in island, a feeling of deep gratitude to the American admiral for generous assistance tendered at a most critical time.

"—Haldane,

"Secretary of State for War."

President's Reply.

To this the following reply was sent:

"The president greatly appreciates your cordial telegram and is glad if the proximity of this country has made it possible to be of the slightest assistance to the stricken people of Jamaica in this crisis. If, because of this proximity, and pending the arrival of your own warships and transports, we can render any further aid whatever, the president earnestly hopes you will call on him without hesitation. We know how cheerfully you would render such aid to us were the circumstances reversed."

Foreign Office to Investigate.

Mr. Esme Howard, charge d'affaires at the British embassy, last night called on Acting Secretary of State Bacon and presented a letter from Sir Edward Grey, secretary of state for Great Britain, regarding the Davis-Swettenham incident. In this message Earl Grey says that he is causing an official inquiry to be made to determine the authenticity of the letter purporting to have been written by Gov. Swettenham to Rear Admiral Davis.

Regret in England.

London, Jan. 22.—There is a feeling of deepest regret here over the unfortunate incident that led to the hurried departure of the American warships from Kingston.

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 23.—The indignation of the residents of Jamaica, both officials and private citizens, at the action of Gov. Swettenham is spreading and intensifying. The governor's response to Admiral Davis' letter is bitterly denounced and it is generally declared that the only possible reparation is for the government to apologize and recall Gov. Swettenham.

The conditions in Kingston are improving slowly. Many bodies are still being recovered and cremated. It is believed the fatalities will reach a total of seven hundred.

PRESIDENT CLOSES INCIDENT

BRITISH CHARGE NOTIFIED GOVERNMENT WILL PAY NO HEED TO MATTER.

London, Jan 24.—The colonial office is now in possession of official advices from Sir Alexander Swettenham, the governor of Jamaica, concerning the exchange of letters between himself and Rear Admiral Davis, but the extent of these advices, and whether they contain an explanation, an apology or extenuating circumstances, has not been disclosed.

Sends Copy of Letter.

This has been furnished, and it shows that the letter as sent out by the Associated Press was, to all intents and purposes, correct.

The fact that Gov. Swettenham wrote the letter to Rear Admiral Davis having been established, there remains only to determine the official formalities, and the indications are that the matter will be handled through the usual diplomatic channels and that the correspondence will be made public in a blue book.

Dismisses the Incident.

Washington, Jan 24.—The president has finally dismissed the Jamaican incident. In a letter to Charge Howard, Assistant Secretary of State Bacon says that this government will pay no heed whatever to the matter, and expresses appreciation of the frank and ready courtesy of Sir Edward Grey and of the cordial spirit shown by the British government. The letter concludes: "It is especially gratifying to the president to feel that it has been possible for this country to show in any practical way, however small, its friendship to a community of your people in time of such suffering and need."

The latest report on the condition in Jamaica places the estimated loss of life at over 2,000.

More Shocks.

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan 24. — Two earthquake shocks, the heaviest since the destructive one of Jan. 14, were felt here Tuesday afternoon. Several buildings were thrown down and there was great alarm among the people. No one was injured.

EUROPE IN GRIP OF FROST KING.

Many Deaths and Much Suffering Reported.

London, Jan. 24. — Arctic weather conditions continue to prevail over the whole of Europe.

Many deaths are reported.

Slight earthquakes are reported from Batum. The blizzard continues at Constantinople, where the snow is said to be several feet deep. Navigation on the Bosphorus and the Black sea has been practically suspended.

BATTLESHIP INJURED.

Connecticut Reported to Have Run on a Reef.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Jan. 24.—It is reported that the battleship Connecticut ran on a reef Jan. 13 while entering the harbor at Culebra island and that she sustained serious damage. The naval authorities here, however, disclaim any knowledge of the accident.

PUSHING HUNT FOR RAISULI.

Tangier, Jan. 24. — War Minister Gabbas is concentrating men, munitions and friendly tribes at Zinat, announcing that he intends to make a supreme effort to capture Raisuli before the departure of the French and Spanish squadrons from Moroccan waters.

TWENTY MINERS KILLED.

Explosion in a Coal Mine in Colorado Has Dire Results.

Trinidad, Colo., Jan. 24. — Twenty miners, according to the most authoritative information available, lost their lives in an explosion in the Colorado Fuel and Iron company's coal mine near Primero.

302 More Suffer.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—The epidemic of contagious diseases in Chicago jumped almost 100 new cases yesterday over the record established Tuesday. An even 302 cases of contagion were reported to the health department.

To Dam the Mississippi.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Representative Buckman yesterday introduced a bill authorizing the construction of a dam across the Mississippi river between the counties of Stearns and Sherburne, in Minnesota.

Zumbrotan Goes to Minot.

Minot, N. D., Jan. 18.—Maj. E. S. Person, formerly cashier of the First State Bank of Zumbrota, Minn., was selected as cashier of the Union National bank of Minot, to succeed Emery Olmstead, who was forced to resign because of poor health.

Rice Lake Gets School.

Barron, Wis., Jan. 18.—After an all-day session, the county board deadlock was broken and Rice Lake was chosen as the location for the Barron county training school for teachers.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE

Transactions in the Senate and House of Representatives.

St. Paul, Jan. 18.—Two bills to prohibit donations for political campaign purposes by corporations were introduced in the senate yesterday. One of the bills confers certain powers on the public examiner for the purpose of discovering whether such contributions have been made. The other, after prohibiting the donations, requires all corporations to certify annually to the public examiner that no such domnations have been made.

A bill requiring the annual apportionment among the policyholders by all the mutual companies doing business in this state was introduced in the senate. The bill covers all companies on a mutual plan in which the policyholders are entitled to share in the profits and surplus.

A bill providing for local option in counties containing over 10,000 inhabitants was presented in the senate. The only other bill of general interest was one authorizing the public examiner to examine books of domestic and foreign corporations.

In the House.

All citizens of Minnesota participating in the suppression of the Indian wars of 1862 will be entitled to a pension of $12 a month if a bill introduced in the house yesterday becomes a law. It lets all participants in.

A resolution calling on the governor for his views on county option, to be formulated in a special message to the house, was passed.

Important bills introduced were:

Requiring the publication of railroad time tables in newspapers.

Registry tax on mortgages.

St. Paul, Jan. 19.—An initiative and referendum bill was introduced in the house yesterday. It provides that the people can prepare by petition laws and amendments to the constitution and to enact or reject the same at the polls independent of the legislature.

The conversion of convict labor into county road betterment is sought in a bill introduced in the senate yesterday. The bill provides that crushed stone shall be furnished f. o. b. the prison or reformatory for all counties desiring it, and aims to provide a cheap and effective method for building stone roads throughout the state, and at the same time lessen the number of convicts employed in competition with outside labor.

Twelve other bills were introduced in the senate, but none of them were important or of general interest.

In the House.

The session of the house was very tame yesterday. Nine bills were introduced, the most important of which was one giving the railroad and warehouse commission authority to compel railroads to install safety devices wherever, in the judgment of the commission, such arrangements may be necessary. Another bill provides for the construction of drain ditches by town supervisors.

A joint memorial to congress, asking for an appropriation for the construction of a canal in Aitkin county was introduced.

A resolution of condolence on the death of O. B. Gould, a member of the state board of control, was adopted by the house.

St. Paul, Jan. 20.—Bills poured into the house hopper yesterday, not a few of which were important.

Counties may change the name of any town within their confines on a petition signed by 55 per cent of the legal voters of such town, if a bill introduced yesterday becomes a law.

Slightly contributory negligence will not be a bar to recovery in personal injury suits if Mr. Thayer's bill is passed.

A bill calling for a constitutional amendment so as to permit special legislation for cities was introduced.

All railroads of the state will be required to pay their taxes semi-annually according to a bill introduced yesterday.

Among the other important bills were:

Fixing 3 cents as the fare to be charged by street cars.

Providing for a state board of accounting.

A joint resolution combining all the committees called for in the numerous investigations resolutions was introduced, but went over under notice of debate.

In the Senate.

The senate was in session but a short time yesterday. Only nine bills were introduced, the most important of which was one fixing a gross earnings tax of 4 per cent on telephone companies.

Other bills of general interest were:

To establish an additional sub-experiment farm.

Providing for the care and management of Itasca State Park.

A resolution was introduced to bunch the various investigations called for in one committee.

Both houses adjourned until 10:30 Tuesday.

St. Paul, Jan. 24.—The two houses of the Minnesota legislature voted separately for United States senator, and as a result Knute Nelson is assured of another term of six years.

Senator Nelson received 143 votes, 98 in the house and 45 in the senate. Four Republicans were absent in the house and two in the senate, but in the senate four Democrats joined the Nelson column. Each explained his vote and expressed a personal preference for Senator Shaller, the Democratic candidate, but voted for Nelson in obedience to the wishes of their constituents.

Senator Schaller himself voted for Frank A. Day. Ole E. Sageng, the lone Populist, voted for Gov. Johnson. The Prohibitionists voted for W. J. Dean.

The following is the vote:

	House.	Senate.	Total.
Knute Nelson	98	45	143
Albert Schaller	13	14	27
W. J. Dean	3	..	3
John A. Johnson	..	1	1
Frank A. Day	..	1	1
Absent	5	2	7

To-day the two houses will meet in joint session and ratify the vote.

New Bills in the House.

Fifteen prospective laws made their appearance in the house, and in the number were several important measures.

A new ore royalty bill was introduced. The rate is the same which J. J. Hill obtained from his mineral land leases and is from 100 to 200 per cent in excess of what the state now obtains from mineral leases. It provides a sliding scale from 36 3-4 cents to $1.45.

Another bill of importance is one requiring railroad companies to pay special taxes for permanent improvements.

Telegraph and telephone companies are declared common carriers and placed under the jurisdiction of the railroad and warehouse commission in another new bill.

In the Senate.

Senator Stephens introduced a bill following out the recommendations of the Minnesota Educational association for industrial agricultural schools. It provides for an agricultural high school in each of nine designated districts. It also provides for an experiment farm in connection with each school.

A bill was also introduced providing for a constitutional amendment on the subject of taxation.

In all seventeen bill were introduced in the senate, most of them of minor importance.

BUSINESS NEARLY DOUBLED.

During the last ten years the land business of the state of Minnesota has more than trebled, and the total volume of financial transactions of the state have nearly doubled.

This is demonstrated by surprising statistics prepared by the state auditor, relative to the business of his office. For the two years ending July 31, 1896, the end of the fiscarl year, the total accumulation from state lands and credited to the different trust funds was $737,894.65; for the two years ending July 31, 1906, it was $2,239,305.82.

For the two years ending July 31, 1896, the total cash received was $10,909,812.23, and the total amount disbursed during the period was $10,539,751. For the two years ending July 31, 1906, the total amount received was $19,651,114.07; the total amount disbursed was $19,507,532.62.

Since the formation of its state government Minnesota has never gone through a year without having a balance to the state's credit at the end of the year. In 1860 this record came near being broken, as the balance at the end of the year was only $675.78. The year 1899 was the one when the state came out with the largest balance ever shown by the auditor's ledger. Exclusive of money carried over from the previous year, it then totaled $2,607,115.97.

The first year of the formation of the state its receipts were $286,902.36, and disbursements $282,838.80. Ten years later, in 1868, receipts had increased to $836,550.02 and disbursements to $762,316.70; in another decade, 1878, receipts were $1,610,909.17 and disbursements $1,562,409.97; in 1888 receipts were $3,746,470.97, disbursements $2,404,108.24; in 1898 receipts were $8,053,396.05, disbusements $8,116,683.62; in 1906 receipts were $10,162,396.05, disbursements $9,533,563.99.

OVERCOME IN BLIZZARD.

Man Is Found in Snow Bank Fatally Frozen.

Calumet, Mich., Jan. 24. — Erick Bronsi, a farmer living near Hurontown, has been brought to the hospital here so badly frozen that he cannot recover. Bronsi had been to town and started out in the face of the blizzard to walk home. It is supposed that he was overcome and finally lay down in a snow bank, where he was found and taken to the hospital.

WRIGHT WILL LEAVE JAPAN.

Ambassador Plans to Return to Law Practice.

Washington, Jan. 24.—According to a private cablegram received in Washington yesterday from a prominent government official in Manila, Gen. Luke E. Wright, American ambassador to Japan, has made known to his friends that he will retire from the diplomatic service next August and will return to his home in Memphis Tenn., to resume the practice of law.

Saturday, Jan. 26, 1907.

Senator Knute Nelson now has his job securely nailed down for six years more.

How would you like to be a Red Lake county lawyer with a job on the county seat fight?

St. Hilaire is the only town in the northern part of the state that is not making a bid for the new Normal school.

The Great Northern is having trouble about increasing its capital stock sixty millions. Times are queer when a man can't water his stock.

The appointment of Hon. P. M. Ringdal, of Crookston, to be a member of the board of control reflects credit upon the administration of Governor Johnson. Mr. Ringdal has always been found capable and honest.

We have always had a filial respect for our paternal ancestor, the editor of the Cass Lake Times, and respect his opinion in al things—except weather predictions. He recently predicted a "January Thaw," and for this January.

Norman County Herald: Senator A. L. Hanson, of this place, is one of the few legislators who refused to accept railroad passes this year. The senator is right and his independent action in this one instance is characteristic of what his constituents may expect of him.

The county seat fight is considerable of a muddle at present. It is probable that Thief River Falls will soon move and bring the matter before the county board some time in February or March. In the meantime the Red Lake Falls people are already at work with canvassers seeking withdrawals from the petition. The chances for a big fight and a long-drawn-out one were never better than at this time. THE SPECTATOR, it will be remembered, has long contended that the lawyers would keep it in the courts and away from the people as long as possible.

Hunt For a Hangman.

The British army was once in difficulties through the lack of a hangman. Murder was committed by a soldier in the Crimea, but nobody could be found to carry out the sentence of the court martial. It was announced that £20 and a free discharge would be granted to the man undertaking the task. At last a man did volunteer. He was a newcomer to the army. On the night prior to the date fixed for the execution they locked up the hangman in a stable to keep him safe. In the morning the party at the gallows waited, but there was no hangman. He had gone mad during the night or else he was now simulating madness. The officer in command turned to one of his captains with, "Captain, you will have the goodness to hang the prisoner!" The captain changed countenance, but he pulled himself together and appealed to the sergeants with, "Which of you will hang this man?" And to spare his captain one of the men volunteered. He afterward had the satisfaction of flogging the man who had volunteered and failed.

The Way to Work.

If work has to be done the only way to escape will paralysis is to launch oneself upon the task, realizing that if it is difficult it is not likely to grow easier and that some sort of a beginning must be made. "Keep the faculty of effort alive in you by a little gratuitous exercise every day," writes a canny psychologist in his chapter on "Habit." This gratuitous exercise it is that trains the will to rule life and destiny; it is the one great secret of success. Postponing of disagreeable duties means laxness invading the will, a certain slackening of all the mental nature, an invasion of a paralytic tendency. If the will failed to obey at a given moment yesterday it is vastly less likely to obey today, whereas a daily habit of forceful inhibiting or commanding makes for that most desirable of all endowments, "a completely fashioned will."—Harper's Weekly.

Receiver Asked.

On Saturday, January 5, Thomas Nimlos, of Minneapolis, filed a bill in the district court of Hennepin county asking for the appointment of a receiver for the T. M. Roberts Co-operative Supply company, of Minneapolis.

The plaintiff makes charges of mismanagement, claims non-payment of dividends on his stock holdings, and also delinquent interest on $10,000 which he claims was originally advanced by him to the company October 7, 1905.

Mr. Nimlos is well known by the merchants of Minneapolis as an organizer of co-operative mercantile companies and it was he who planned the reorganization of the T. M. Roberts company.

[illegible] Occurrence in the Hunting Field

On the afternoon of Feb. 8, 1794, the hounds of his grace the Duke of Beaufort were in full cry. The run had been a long one, and they knew that the fox was almost spent. Suddenly the scent turned abruptly from the open, leading straight into the garden of a cottage in the little village of Castle Coombe. Those who were following wondered what had happened and were more astonished still to see the entire pack, without checking for an instant, dash through the open door into the little room. A shrill scream was heard, and when the whipper in threw himself from his horse and gained the threshold he saw a sight which probably no fox hunter has ever met before or since. A white faced woman stood clasping a child in her arms, and right there in the cradle, from which the infant had just been snatched, eighteen couple of fierce hounds were struggling to devour their fox.

Animal Voices.

A cow will moo about an octave; a dog will bark a fourth or fifth of an octave; a horse's neigh is a descent on the chromatic scale, while the donkey will bray in octaves. No donkey has ever yet given evidence of proficiency in the study of voice production.

Success.

The Youth—Yes, I'm in business for myself, but I don't seem to be able to meet with any success. The Sage—Nobody ever meets with success, young man. He must overtake it.

The north bound freight while switching in the yard here last Thursday evening accidentally ran into an open switch about seven o'clock and the engine, tender and the front end of a box car ran off the track. The south bound freight was at Red Lake Falls and was sent for and they succeeded in putting them on the track again after several hours' hard work and the freight left for Greenbush about 11 p.m.

They are telling the following good story on Mike McAndress. We will not swear it is true but simply let you be the judge: "One morning long years ago when Mike was younger than he is now and less experienced in farming, his father told him to salt a calf out in the pasture. Mike took a quart of salt with him and thoroughly rubbed it all over the calf, working it into the hair. A gang of colts in the pasture scented the salt and got after the calf. They licked all the hair off the calf and nearly took the hide too"—but why tell any more. We are all liable to make mistakes.

Good Showing.

The State Dairy association has been in session at Owatonna the past week and in the butter contest held George L. Austin, who was one of the contestants, made another good record. In the hand separator class his butter graded 92½ and there were only five who received a better score.

Cold Out West.

North Yakima, Washington, the mecca of so many people of this section is having all kinds of trouble this winter. It was twelve below there recently and a large amount of damage was done. It is also feared that it will do an immense damage to the fruit trees.

Winter Weather.

It is to be hoped that this week will prove the record bad week of this disagreeable winter. We have had all kinds of the bad kind of weather. It started last Saturday with a blizzard, one of the old fashioned kind that piled up the snow in great shape. A cold snap followed culminating on Tuesday morning when the local thermometers registered 42 degrees below. On Wednesday it moderated long enough to snow again, then another small blizzard and now another cold snap.

Farmers' Meeting.

Buttermaker Geo. L. Austin informs us that there will be a farmers' meeting under the auspices of the State Farmers' Club in this village on Friday February 22nd. Preparations are now under way to make this the largest and most successful farmers meeting ever held in Red Lake county. Three or four of the best speakers on farm topics in the state will be present and these addresses will all be of the practical kind, not theoretical, and by men who thoroughly know what they are talking about.

The well known Crookston Quartette will also be here and furnish the music. One of the objects of the meeting will be the starting of a farmers' club here. Every person who is interested in the discussion of live farm topics should be present. To all who attend a free dinner will be given. Further notices and the program will be published later.

Displaces Celluloid.

United States Consul McFarland, who is stationed at Reichenberg, Bohemia, reports that a substitute for celluloid has been discovered by a Gablontz experimenter. The new material is durable and cheap, costing but little more than glass. The most rigid test will prove to you the superiority of golden grain belt beer. Its daily use will aid your digestion, steady your nerves and build you up physically. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thympson, Crookston.

A Prize for the Best Cow.

The cow is boss, and that is the reason why we want the boss of bossies to ornament the badges for the next convention of the Red River Valley Dairymen's Association in Crookston on Nov. 6 and 7, 1907. In order to find out which one of the bossies is the best they will be given a chance to show it between Feb. 15 and Sept. 15, 1907. To the owner of the cow giving the greatest amount of butter fat in that time will be given $25 in cash besides the honor of having the photograph of the cow with the owners name on the badges.

RULES FOR THE CONTEST.

Those wishing to compete must notify the secretary of the association before February 15, 1907, stating that he or she desires to enter the contest.

Records must be based on weights taken at least every tenth day during the contest. Each cow must have her milk tested at least every month, according to directions given by the buttermaker of which he is a patron. The buttermaker or creamery inspector shall do the testing and shall testify to the correctness of the record. The record must be in the hands of the secretary before Sept. 20, 1907, and must give name of cow; breed; age; number of calves; number of pounds of milk; and number of pounds of butter fat given between Feb. 15 and Sept. 15, 1907, and these records must be sworn to before an officer qualified to take oath.

Contestant must be a resident of the 9th congressional district. No entry fee required.

Will Open St. Paul Office.

To the Readers of the St. Hilaire SPECTATOR:—

Through the columns of the St. Hilaire Spectator, I wish to notify the public generally that on or about March 15th next I intend to move to St. Paul and open up a real estate office from which I will handle lands in both Minnesota and North Dakota, as the facilities are much better to handle a large business of that kind from that point. I will continue to advertise Red Lake county and on an even larger scale than I have ever done before and figure on doing a big business in Red Lake county lands this year. My extensive advertising makes it necessary for me to have an office at a central point but I want it understood that I propose to continue running my Plummer office just the same.

My new price list will be out about March 1st and all that wish to sell their land in Red Lake county had better call at my office and list their lands as soon as possible in order that it may appear in this new price list. I may say that I shall continue to give Red Lake county lands especial attention and will use every effort to dispose of all lands listed with me.

Very truly yours,
JULIUS PLETH.

Crushed to Death.

Thief River News: Martin Helgeson, a young man about 22 years of age and owner of the confectionery store formerly conducted by George Curran, was killed Tuesday afternoon on the road about two miles southeast of town. In company with his cousin, Henry Helgeson, he was bringing a load of green poplar poles to the city. Martin was walking along beside the load and Henry was walking behind the sled. A bad piece in the road was reached and the load tipped over falling with full force upon Martin. The result was that martin's lungs were crushed so badly that he died almost instantly.

The deceased is a young man very well and favorably known by the residents of this city and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Helgeson. The funeral services will be held either to-morrow or Saturday afternoon.

Sensation at Bemidji.

Bemidji, Jan. 21.—A sensation has been caused here by the arrest of Paul Fournier and George Cyr, of Quiring on a charge of murdering N. O. Dahl and his daughter, Augot, near Quiring in April, 1904.

The murder of the Dahls was a very mysterious and cold-blooded affair, and although several men were arrested, no tangible evidence was secured directly connecting any one with the crime. The murder caused a tremendous sensation all over the northern part of the state.

Fournier and Cyr were brought to Bemidji today and lodged in jail. County Attorney Funkley is positive that he has the men who committed the murder and that at least one of them will never be released from the shacklet which he is wearing.

INTERESTING POINTS IN COUNTY SEAT CASE

There are some very interesting points of law brought out in the decision of the state supreme court in the county seat case which was announced in THE SPECTATOR last Saturday.

Justice Brown in an order reversing an order of the lower court holds that it had no right to order the county commissioners to hear a petition for removal without giving notice to the voters. The syllabus follows:

L. A. Kaufer, appellant, vs. James E. Ford, as county auditor of Red Lake county, respondent.

A petition for the removal of the county seat of Red Lake county was dismissed by the board of county commissioners, when presented to it for action, without a consideration of its merits on the ground that because of certain defects in the proceedings leading up to its presentation the board had no jurisdiction to entertain the same. Immediately thereafter proceedings in mandamus were commenced against the board by a taxpayer and legal voter on behalf of himself and all other legal voters of the county to compel the members thereof to reconvene and hear and determine the petition upon its merits. Issue was joined and all questions affecting the jurisdiction of the board to proceed in the matter were raised by the pleadings. Judgment was finally rendered therein to the effect that the board had full and complete jurisdiction to hear the petition upon its merits, and its members were commanded to convene on the 11th day of June, 1906, then and there to consider and determine whether it had the requisite number of signers to justify calling an election to vote upon the proposition, and if so, to certify to the county auditor accordingly. Pursuant to the commands of the judgment the board convened at the time stated, considered the petition upon its merits, found it in sufficient compliance with the statutes and directed the auditor of the county to give notice of an election to vote upon the proposition, as required in such cases by the statutes. Thereafter this action was brought to restrain and enjoin the auditor from complying with the directions of the board on the ground that the board had no jurisdiction to act in the matter, the grounds assigned being those which prompted the board originally to dismiss the petition and, further, that the judgment in the mandamus proceedings, to direct the commissioners to meet at a specified time without further providing for the notice requiring to be given in such cases by section 396, Revised Laws 1905.

It is held:

1. That the judgment in the mandamus proceedings was final and conclusive upon all questions affecting the jurisdiction of the board, to hear and determine the petition upon its merits, and those questions cannot be further litigated in this or any other action.

2. That proceeding was brought by a legal voter of the county on behalf of himself and all other legal voters, and the judgment therein is conclusive as to all legal voters of the county upon all issues which were, or might have been, litigated therein, it not appearing that it was obtained by fraud or collusion.

3. That the trial court exceeded its authority in commanding the board to convene on a date named, then and there to determine the merits of the petition, without further requiring notice to the voters of the county, as required by section 398, revised laws 1905, and to this extent the judgment is invalid on its face.

4. That no valid certificate by the board of county commissioners to the effect that a proper petition has been filed can be issued by the board until after a hearing duly had, pursuant to the notice required by the statute referred to.

Order reversed. Brown, J.

WOMEN SUFFER

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have immediate assistance.

The cause may be easily traced to some feminine derangement which manifests itself in depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere or do anything, backache, dragging sensations, flatulency, nervousness, and sleeplessness.

These symptoms are but warnings that there is danger ahead, and unless heeded, a life of suffering or a serious operation is the inevitable result. The best remedy for all these symptoms is made from native roots and herbs. No other medicine in the country has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female ills.

Miss J. F. Walsh, of 328 W. 36th St., New York City, writes:—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been of inestimable value in restoring my health. I suffered from female illness which caused dreadful headaches, dizziness, and dull pains in my back, but your medicine soon brought about a change in my general condition, built me up and made me perfectly well."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cures Female Complaints, such as Backache, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation and Ulceration, and organic diseases. It is invaluable in preparing for child-birth and during the Change of Life. It cures Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility, and invigorates the whole system.

AWFUL EFFECT OF ECZEMA.

"Our little girl, one year and a half old, was taken with eczema or that was what the doctor called it. We called in the family doctor, and he gave some tablets and said she would be all right in a few days. The eczema grew worse and we called in doctor No. 2. He said she was teething, as soon as the teeth were through she would be all right. But she still grew worse. Doctor No. 3 said it was eczema. By this time she was nothing but a yellow, greenish sore. Well, he said he could help her, so we let him try it about a week. One morning we discovered a little yellow pimple on one of her eyes. Of course we 'phoned for doctor No. 3. He came over and looked her over, and said that he could not do anything more for her, that we had better take her to some eye specialist, since it was an ulcer. So we went to Oswego to doctor No. 4, and he said the eyesight was gone, but that he could help it. We thought we would try doctor No. 5. Well, that proved the same, only he charged $10 more than doctor No. 4. We were nearly discouraged. I saw one of the Cuticura advertisements in the paper and thought we would try the Cuticura Treatment, so I went and purchased a set of Cuticura Remedies, which cost me $1, and in three days our daughter, who had been sick about eight months, showed great improvement, and in one week all sores had disappeared. Of course it could not restore the eyesight, but if we had used Cuticura in time I am confident that it would have saved the eye. We think there is no remedy so good for any skin trouble or impurity of the blood as Cuticura. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Abbett, R. F. D. No. 9, Fulton, Oswego Co., N. Y., August 17, 1906."

BRING GOOD HEALTH

Dr. William' Pink Pills, Used After the Grip, Arrest Fatal Decline and Rebuild the System.

Any bodily weakness caused by a deficiency in the blood can be cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills because these pills actually make new blood. After attacks of the grip the blood is generally run down and the patient continues to decline.

"About three years ago," says Mrs. Jennie Cowan, of 718 N. Henry Street, West Bay City, Mich., "I caught a severe cold, which ran into the grip. I was confined to my bed for two weeks. At the end of that time I was able to be about, but was completely run down. I was so weak I could hardly stand, my cheeks had no color and I felt faint. My heart would flutter and it was difficult for me to breathe at times. Neuralgia settled in the back of my head and stomach and I suffered from rheumatism in my shoulders.

"I had the care of the best doctor in town but became no better until a friend told me one day how she had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided to try them. I soon felt better and continued using them until I was entirely cured. They built me up again to perfect health and I use them now whenever I feel at all sick and they always help me."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are invaluable in such cases, as well as in other blood diseases, because they not only drive off the germs of the disease but build up the system. The pills have cured anaemia, rheumatism, after-effects of fevers, neuralgia and many other severe disorders.

GOT OUT AN "EXTRA"

CIRCULATION OF THE NEWS A CENTURY AGO.

Old "Broadside" Recently Found in Boston Compares Oddly with the Practical Journalism of the Present Day.

An interesting example of the method of putting important news before the public a century ago was found in an old news-sheet, or "broadside" recently turned up in a second-hand book dealer's shop in Boston.

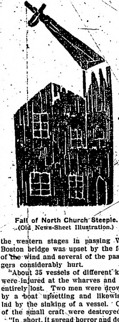
Any printer, whether he issued a newspaper or not, got out broadsides in those days, whenever he thought an extraordinary piece of news justified him in anticipating a profit. The broadside was a sort of handbill, printed on one side only, and generally about 8 inches wide by 15 long. This was sold in the streets.

The subject of the broadside mentioned above was a hurricane which swept the Massachusetts coast a few days prior to Oct. 15, 1804, the date on which the broadside was issued. The heading is "Violent Storm," under a black cut of the North church with its steeple toppling, above which is a row of coffins. The rules are turned, giving a mourning effect. The account of the storm begins as follows:

"On Tuesday last a violent storm commenced here, and raged until Wednesday morning with unprecedented fury and destruction.

"The damage which has been sustained by this tremendous hurricane is very great and extensive. The following particulars are subjoined, viz: The steeple of the North church was blown down and several other churches damaged. The brick wall of a house in West Boston blew over and killed a young woman by the name of Lydia Bennet and badly wounded two or three more.

"Many houses were unroofed and several new buildings were so much bent and twisted that they must be taken down—chimneys, trees, etc., without number blew down. One of the western stages in passing West Boston bridge was upset by the force of the wind and several of the passengers considerably hurt.



Fall of North Church Steeple.
(Old News-Sheet Illustration.)

"About 35 vessels of different kinds were injured at the wharves and four entirely lost. Two men were drowned by a boat upsetting and likewise a lad by the sinking of a vessel. Chief of the small craft were destroyed.

"In, short, it spread horror and devastation throughout the whole town."

At Marblehead "33 vessels were driven ashore and some lost, and a number blown out of their harbor, their fate unknown.

"At cape Ann dreadful destruction and waste—five vessels in one of which was a lady passenger, lost and four or five others driven to sea and it is supposed are lost with all their crews."

It is to be noted that exact information is sadly lacking in these maritime reports. This may be due in part to the fact that one-third the space of the broadside was needed for "A Poem on the Late Hurricane," in 14 verses One was as follows:

On Tuesday last a storm did rise,
And thunder roaring in the skies.
The gale increased from noon till night,
And many people in affright.

Another described the loss of shipping thus:

It fatal proved to ships, that day,
That chanc'd to be within our bay.
In vain they strived to reach the shore;
Alas! they sink to rise no more.

A Monster Wildcat.

M. H. Ruiz, yesterday brought to town the skin of the biggest wildcat ever seen in this part of the country says the Arizona Republican. He killed it day before yesterday along the Arizona canal. There were four of the cats, one of them, says Ruiz bigger than the one he killed, but it was not so belligerent.

This cat, instead of running away advanced upon him, growling and spitting. The animal was about to spring when Ruiz shot, the ball taking effect in the head, killing it instantly. The skin was more than four feet from tip to tip. The length of a wildcat is mostly in its body, for the tail does not greatly affect the linear measurement. This cat was bigger than some mountain lions and it was probably more destructive.

G. M. J. Thomas, proprietor of a cafe in Decatur, Ala., has several young puppies which have been adopted by a tabble. The old cat seems to think as much of the puppies as though they were her own young She sleeps in a box with them and plays with them as if they were her own.

LEGISLATIVE CORRESPONDENCE.

A Calm View of the Present Situation.

To the Editor: I am devoting such portion of my time as I can command this winter to correspondence from the legislature, and it seems to me that the situation is one which makes it the duty of thoughtful men who feel that they can fairly and impartially consider the relation which the railroads occupy towards the people to speak for the public interests. For nearly half a century I have watched with much interest and concern the development of the great Northwest. I have never in my life owned a share of railroad stock or been in the employ of a railroad or other corporation to advance their interests, either in accord or against the popular sentiment, and still modestly claiming to some extent that I occupy the position of a publicist, I feel as a sense of duty the importance to the public to urge a thoughtful consideration of the present situation. I make no claim to speak for the railroads, but I do feel that as one who for nearly fifty years has sincerely and honestly written and spoken to advance and care for the public welfare that I have some right to express my views without my motives being impugned. The railroads are very far from perfection. They are not conducted with an eye single to the public welfare, but they have rights and there are two sides to the question as between them and the public, and you cannot cripple or damage them without crippling or damaging yourselves.

Mr. J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern, addressed the Northwestern Lumbermen's association at Minneapolis a few days ago, and certainly gave some thoughts for serious consideration. To demonstrate my statement that there really are two sides, I ask permission to briefly quote some of the views he expressed. —H. P. Hall.

Among other things Mr. Hill said:

"But I want to ask your most earnest attention, and I want to urge upon you simply a condition and not a theory. And that condition is that there will be no relief for the movement of lumber without delay from the Pacific coast, for the long distance described, until there can be more tracks on which to move the cars. There are cars enough to-day. If, instead of twenty-four they could move fifty miles a day—which would be four hours out of the twenty-four, one-sixth of the time—there are cars enough to-day to move a great deal more lumber than you want to buy. But without the track, and without the terminal facilities it cannot be moved, and it will not be moved and the car famine will continue until these facilities and appliances are furnished, and your business, and the consumers' business, and everybody else's business will have to suffer and will have to pay.

"For that reason you can all do good; you can all help, and the help that you can render is by taking a careful and intelligent view of the situation. To so understand the situation that you can say to your neighbor, 'There are two sides to this question.' Let us be fair. Let us establish confidence.

"The people who build the railroads are the people who have small investments. Now, take the Great Northern railway. Out of 3,200 shareholders, my holdings are comparatively small—less than 1 per cent. And there are 1,100 women on our list of shareholders. And when the people's property is held up as something to be adopted by the state, taken away from them—something that is branded with the brand of unpopularity, at least—is that going to induce these people to invest? Take it to yourself—for many of them are as little able to put money into investments of that kind as you are—is that the sort of investment you prefer? Or will you look somewhere else?

Money Must Be Raised.

"We undertook to make an expenditure of over $50,000,000 next year in additional tracks, and this new line I spoke of—improvements, equipment and so on—amounting in the neighborhood of $50,000,000, and tried to raise $60,000,000 from our shareholders. We asked them to put their own money in their own business, and take the chances that they would receive a dividend if the company earned it. But we are defending a lawsuit today, the contention being that they shall not put their money into their own business, to furnish the facilities that they are honestly bound from every standpoint to furnish.

"Before these questions will be settled in this country there must be a clearer and better understanding and better appreciation on the part of everybody as to what is best to be done. The shareholders, what do they get? They get their dividend if the company earns it. Speaking for our own company, our shareholders get the same dividend they have received for years; that is, the same rate. But if we cannot handle our business, and if we cannot raise the money to create facilities to enable us to handle our business, not only the railroads must suffer but you must suffer with them.

Mr. Hill pleaded for a spirit of conciliation and fair play, saying:

"I want to ask you, as rational and reasonable men, to consider your own interests, and see where they point. See how the situation may be remedied. Ask yourselves. Is any man able, who can drive a horse to drink, to make him drink after he gets him to the well? Now, we have both got to come together; our minds have got to come together; and we have got to depend on each other; we have got to depend on you, and you have to depend on us. Then we can get along very, very much better. What we have to do, and the difficult thing we have to meet, is to find money to make these improvements. I want to say to you that there has not been a time since 1893 when it has been so difficult to raise money for railway purposes as it is at present."

The speaker said the money necessary to furnish relief must be forthcoming within five years, a colossal and an enormous task. The money markets of the old world had been fished until there were no more fish there. It had become the fashion for politicians of a certain class, men whose own characters would not bear the flashlight of inquiry, to abuse the railroads. The railroads were always willing to discuss affairs of transportation in a fair spirit.

"An Eastern railway, whose securities were sold by a large banking house for years, has issued notes, three-year notes, borrowing the money on the credit of what collateral they could raise, and their promise to pay. I asked one of the men why they didn't sell some bonds. He said they had exhausted the entire list of names in the directory for security, and the only thing they had left was to raise money on their promissory notes.

"The people are not encouraged to put their money into railways unless there is a reasonable chance that it is secure. You can answer that just as well as I can, and your opinion will be just as good as mine."

Freight Rates.

On the question of freight rates Mr. Hill said:

"When we compare them with the rates in Europe they are less than half as much, as a rule. The average rate in Great Britain is $2.34 for hauling a ton of freight a hundred miles; in Russia it is about $1.75, and in the United States it is 75 cents. These figures are official. Those are the average rates. It is true that our average is a little more than one-third less than 40 per cent of the average of Europe, and we pay a higher scale of wages. They pay locomotive engineers from 60 cents to $1.25 and $1.50 a day. We pay $4.50 and probably will be paying in the neighborhood of $5 within a week. (Laughter.)

"And so all down the list. You know the difficulty of getting good labor at any price. If the railroad systems of the United States can furnish transportation at an average cost of less than half that charged all over the continent of Europe, where, as you know, practically all the railroads are owned by the state, with the scale of wages infinitely lower than we are paying here, our system cannot be a failure and accomplish that result.

"It is not a failure. It is the wonder of the railroad people of these other countries. I have had people come from India, from Germany, from France, from Austria, from Russia and from Japan to know how it is done. They come to find out, if they can, how we can furnish such service at a rate so much lower than they are compelled to pay. Now, until the situation changes very materially, until the facilities for handling the business are very materially increased, your interests are going to suffer, do what you can and all we can.

"Now, you gentlemen from Iowa: A few years ago—time goes rapidly, and it might be eight or ten years ago—I was called to the office of the railway commission of Minnesota. They wanted us to reduce the rate on grain. I said, 'Would you be satisfied to have us put the rate on grain as low as it is from Western Iowa to Chicago?' 'Why, yes, they would. It would be all right if we would give them the Iowa tariff.' We looked it up, and found that our rate was about 25 to 30 per cent lower than it was from Western Iowa to Chicago. I think that holds good to-day.

"Let me ask you again to consider the question as it affects you, and as it affects the railroads; and see if it is not worth while to give both parties fair treatment."

Love makes the parlor dark and the heart light.

BALM OF SCRIPTURE

HEALING PROPERTIES OF PINE KNOWN TO ANCIENTS.

Oil of the White Pine Tree Used Successfully by Physicians in Treating Consumptive Patients.

The Oil of the Pine Tree is supposed to be the balm of Scripture. It contains great medicinal properties and was regarded with the utmost esteem by the ancients, and to the present day is peculiarly prized by the people of the East.

A noted authority on diseases of the throat and lungs, who established a camp for consumptives in the Pine Woods of Maine, says that his entire treatment consisted of fresh air, nourishing food and the Pure Virgin Oil of the White Pine Trees, mixed with Whisky and Glycerine in the following proportions:

Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) .... ½ oz.
Glycerine .... 2 "
Good Whisky .... 8 "

Used in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

It is claimed the above mixture will heal and strengthen the lungs, break up a cold in twenty-four hours, and cure any cough that is curable.

The ingredients can be secured from any good prescription druggist at small cost, and can be easily mixed in your own home.

Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) is put up only in half-ounce vials for dispensing. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case with engraved wrapper with the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, O.—plainly printed thereon. There are many rank imitations of Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), which are put out under various names, such as Concentrated Oil of Pine, Pine Balsam, etc. Never accept these as a substitute for the Pure Virgin Oil of Pine, as they will invariably produce nausea and never effect the desired result.

The Nature of an Oath.

The late Judge M. Russell Thayer of Philadelphia used to tell a good story about a brother jurist who was an enthusiastic golfer.

The golfing judge, according to the story, had occasion to interrogate in a criminal suit a boy witness from Bala.

"Now, my lad," he said, "I want to know if you are acquainted with the nature and significance of an oath?"

The boy, raising his brows in surprise, answered:

"Of course I am, sir. Don't I caddy for you at the Country club?"

Too Shrewd for Him.

Wedderly—I'd hate to have any business dealings with Slyker. He's too smart.

Singleton—Do you mean to say that you consider him smarter than yourself.

Wedderly—I certainly do. Why, he had a chance to marry my wife—but he didn't.

Up Against It.

Viskey, of the Russian secret police, clapped his hand on the tourist's shoulder.

"You must not stay in this country," he hissed.

"Then I'll leave," the tourist mildly answered.

"But have you a permit to leave?"

"No."

"Then come with me," said Viskey harshly, leading the man toward the Kremlin. "I'll lock you up till you decide what to do."

Thoroughly Reliable.

If ever there was a reliable and safe remedy it is that old and famous porous plaster—Allcock's. It has been in use for sixty years, and is as popular to-day as ever, and we doubt if there is a civilized community on the face of the globe where this wonderful pain reliever cannot be found. In the selection of the ingredients and in their manufacture the greatest care is taken to keep each plaster up to the highest standard of excellence, and so pure and simple are the ingredients that even a child can use them.

Allcock's are the original and genuine porous plasters and are sold by Druggists all over the world.

INVENTS A HUMANE BULLET.

A French officer has invented a new projectile for firearms which is said to wound and kill as the usual bullets but does not present the ravaging action of the present projectiles of repeating rifles. This new missile is not of metal but of paper surrounded by a thin shell of aluminum.

According to the inventor, the paper bullet, fired at the same distance, under the same circumstances and with the same precision as the ordinary bullet, produces a thoroughly smooth wound. The number of disabled soldiers will be no less if the projectile of the future were to be the paper bullet, but the number of dead and fatally wounded would be considerably decreased, as the shot fired with a steel projectile tends to produce blood poisoning, while the paper bullet is said to only bring on a curable injury.

The inventor has sent his bullets for approval to all the governments belonging to the convention of Geneva and the Austrian war office has ordered trials to be made of the invention.

FOUR SCORE DEAD IN MINE DISASTER

WEST VIRGINIA MINERS ARE ENTOMBED AS RESULT OF EXPLOSION.

RESCUERS ARE HARD AT WORK

LITTLE HOPE THAT ANY OF IMPRISONED MEN WILL BE FOUND ALIVE.

Charleston, W. Va., an. 30.—There are at least fifty or sixty persons dead as a result of an explosion in the Stewart mine near Fayetteville, in Fayette county last night, according to the last reports received, and it is expected the number will reach twenty-five more.

The explosion was caused by dust in the mine. Every effort is being made to get the men who are entombed, but there is little hope that any of them are alive.

At the time of the explosion there were about 200 men in the shaft. Organized effort is being made to get to the men in the mine and volunteers are plentiful.

Pathetic Scenes Around Mine.

The scene about the mine is a pathetic one, men, women and children crying and imploring those on the ground to go to the rescue of the entombed men.

The Stewart mine is a shaft 568 feet deep. The development is in the Sewall mine, which ranges in thickness from four to five feet. The mine is located on the White Oak Fuel company's private line, connecting with the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad at Carlisle. It is located about four miles from Fayetteville. The mine has been in operation for about three years or more, but has not been fully developed.

FIGHTING IN VENEZUELA.

GOV. SWETTENHAM APOLOGIZES

WITHDRAWS LETTER TO ADMIRAL DAVIS AND INCIDENT NOW IS CLOSED.

London, Jan. 31.—The international phase of the Kingston incident has been finally closed by Gov. Swettenham's formally withdrawing his letter to Rear Admiral Davis and expressing his regret for having written it.

Swettenham's withdrawal of his letter and his apology followed voluminous telegraphic communications to him from the colonial office. The dispatch which has now closed the incident wa sent by the governor to the colonial office, and it reached the state department at Washington through the foreign office and Charge d'Affaires Howard, in the usual course.

Washington, Jan. 30.—State department officials decline to discuss the report from London that Gov. Swettenham of Jamaica has withdrawn his insulting letter to Rear Admiral Davis.

FIRE CAUSES $1,000,000 LOSS.

Section of the Big Baldwin Locomotive Works Destroyed by Fire.

Philadelphia, Jan. 31.—Fire which started with an explosion in the paint shop, destroyed one entire section of the big Baldwin Locomotive works last night, entailing a loss of $1,000,000.

About 1,000 men were employed in the burned building, which was five stories high.

The fire was discovered in the east end of the building a few minutes before 6 o'clock when the workmen were preparing to leave and though the flames spread quickly all got out safely. Shortly after the fire started the upper portion of the wall fell into the street, and one fireman and three workmen were caught by the falling brick, but fortunately only received slight injuries.

TWO THAW JURORS EXCUSED.

Loss Is Offset By Swearing In of Two New Men.

New York, Jan. 31.—The first big surprise of the trial of Harry K. Thaw came yesterday when Justice Fitzgerald, on the motion of District Attorney Jerome and with the consent of the attorneys for the man accused of the murder of Stanford White, announced that two of the jurors selected in the early days of the proceedings would be excused from further service.

"By agreement," said District Attorney Jerome, "the reasons for this action will not be made public, but they are of a business nature."

One new juror had been added to the trial panel when the excuse of Faire and Campbell was announced and a second one was subsequently secured, thus offsetting the loss of the two previously sworn jurors. When court adjourned there was nine men in the jury box and three vacant chairs.

TEN QUACKS CONVICTED.

Medical Examiners Pleased, but They Want Clearer Laws.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 31.—The annual report of the state board of medical examiners just filled with Gov. Davidson, suggests the need of legislation clearly to define the practice of medicine and to regulate the practice of midwifery. The board expresses gratification over the successful efforts to enforce the state laws regarding quackery and improper practice of medicine, stating that in Milwaukee alone during the last three months ten prosecutions were begun by the board, all of which resulted in convictions.

BANKER CHOKES HIMSELF.

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan. 30. — Charles W. Schulte, aged sixty-three, a capitalist and banker of Memphis, Tenn., committed suicide here at the Battle Creek sanitarium, where he was being treated for a nervous trouble. His wife discovered his body in a bathroom, a shawl-strap around his neck, showing that he had choked himself to death.

FALLS; GRASPS WIRE; DIES.

Bozeman, Mont., Jan. 31. — Amos Howerton, a carpenter, was instantly killed by falling against a live wire at a sub-station of the Madison River Power company. Howerton was trying to place some planking on a tres tle when he lost his balance. He grasped a feed wire, receiving the full force of the electric current. He was dead when his body reached the ground.

CHINESE KILLED IN RUSH FOR FOOD

WOMEN'S LIVES STAMPED OUT IN MAD STAMPEDE OF STARVING MOB.

REVOLTING STORIES ARE TOLD

HUNGER-MAD FAMILY COMMITS SUICIDE—FOUR MILLION ARE ARE STARVING.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The appalling conditions in China, as the result of the famine is told in Chinese newspapers and other mail advices reaching the state department.

The government is selling grain and salt where it can. In some instances the public selling places had to be closed because of the great rush of the natives to buy. In Hsuchow-fu, three or four women were crushed to death in the mad rush for food. The price of vegetables has doubled and coal and coke costs more than ever before.

Millions Are Starving.

In the great concentration camps which have been formed by refugees who have fled from the stricken districts to the south by the tens of thousands, the people live, some of them only partially clothed, others entirely naked, in mud huts, held together by matting. Four million persons are actually starving.

Some of the incidents of the famine related in the Chinese papers are revolting. A story is told of one family—the mother and father and two children. The mother left home on a search for food. While she was away the father, despairing of aid, threw both children into the river. The mother returned and learning what had happened threw herself into the river and drowned. The grief-stricken father followed, and thus the whole family perished.

DEAD NUMBERS SIXTY.

Little Hope That Any of Entombed Miners Are Alive.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 31.—Late advices received from the scene of the disaster at the Stuart company mines at Stuart is that the number of victims will be about sixty. The rescuing party hopes to be able to reach that part of the mine where the men were supposed to be some time before midnight. There is very little hope expressed that any of the entombed miners will be found alive. Officers of the company have made no statement of their theory as to the cause of the disaster. An investigation will be made.

BOOM PLAN FOR STATE JUBILEE.

Exposition Project Is Enthusiastically Received.

St. Paul, Jan. 31.—If the enthusiasm manifested last night at the meeting held at the Commercial club to discuss plans for Minnesota's big semi-centennial celebration can be maintained, and there seems little doubt that it will be, Minnesota's fiftieth anniversary will be an event long to be remembered, both in the state and the Northwest. Nearly one hundred representative citizens from almost every county of the state were present, and all agreed unanimously that the celebration must be held and that it shall be a celebration worthy of the name.

GIVE INDIANS THEIR MONEY.

Six Million of Tribal Funds Restored by Senate Committee.

Washington, Jan. 31. —The Indian appropriation bill was reported to the senate yesterday. It carried $14,509,201, a net increase of $6,306,132 over the bill as passed by the house. The large increase by the senate committee is due to appropriations under which the United States treasurer will pay to a number of Indian tribes the money now held in trust as Indian tribal funds.

Levee Will Hold.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 31.—Reassuring reports were received last night as to levee conditions along the Mississippi river in this district, and unless the predicted maximum stage of forty feet is exceeded levee officials are confident that no serious break will occur.

Charged With Firing Mine.

Trinidad, Colo., Jan. 31.—John Rodriguez, an Italian, is charged with having fired Willow Mine No. 5 at Van Houton, N. M., Monday morning. The alleged crime is said to have been committed to avenge a fancied wrong. The three miners entombed are believed to be dead.

Amery, Wis., Jan. 31. — William Kirby of this place was caught in the gearing of a gasoline wood sawing rig. Kirby was terribly bruised about the body and his left leg was badly crushed below the knee.

Illinois Town Shaken.

Vandalia, Ill., Jan. 31.—Every building in Vandalia was shaken by an earthquake at 11:30 last night. Many persons were aroused from deep sleep. The shock was accompanied by a loud rumbling.

SWETTENHAM HAS RESIGNED

BRITISH GOVERNMENT PROMPTLY ACCEPTS HIS OFFER TO QUIT JOB.

London, Jan. 31.—Gov. Swettenham of Jamaica has tendered his resignation and it was promptly accepted by the government, according to the Globe. The Globe adds that the resignation was caused by certain facts coming to light, with which the government should have been acquainted, but which it was found it knew nothing about.

The officials of the foreign office refuse all information on the subject. This official reticence is attributed to a desire to complete arrangements for a succession to the post before announcing Swettenham's retirement.

OLIVER MAY NOT GET JOB.

Belief That He Had Conditionally Been Awarded Contract Erroneous.

Washington, Jan. 31. — Secretary Loeb issued a statement last night to the effect that the belief that the canal contract had been conditionally awarded to Mr. Oliver was serroneout. Mr. Oliver's contract was defective, and he was given time to complete it in shape that will enable it to receive consideration. After careful consideration of Mr. Oliver's bid and the bid of the Gillespie-MacArthur corporation, the one which seems most advantageous to the government may be accepted, or all bids may be rejected and the canal constructed under the direct supervision of the government.

Duration of Typewriting.

The tests of the German government have shown great variations in the durability of typewritten documents, but with the best ribbons the work seems as lasting as that written by hand with the best writing ink. While some German ribbons proved good, those of American manufacture showed a higher general average in quality.

WITH THE LAWMAKERS.

Work Accomplished by the State Legislators.

St. Paul, Jan. 25.—Gov. Johnson yesterday replied to the resolution of the house asking for his views on local option. The governor points out that in his message he recommended the adoption of the advisory initiative and referendum, so that the legislature could keep in touch from time to time with public sentiment and would not be required to consult the governor each day, week or month. He says: "County option in the regulation of the liquor traffic is not as yet a political question in this state. As it is a moral question, the members can, I am sure, be intrusted to, and will truly represent their several constituencies on this very important question, and will meet any responsibility."

The governor points out that while the senate has a bill pending it would be exceedingly improper for him to express his personal views on the subject.

A bill was introduced to prohibit the further issuance of state mineral leases.

The initiative and referendum is proposed under a constitutional amendment in a bill presented in the house.

Other bills of importance were: Prohibiting the sale and use of giant firecrackers; requiring evidence of right to vote; providing sleeping car tax; pensions for soldiers in the Indian massacre of 1862.

In the Senate.

Life insurance matters came up in the senate yesterday, bills being introduced relating to various phases of the business, including regulation of the rights and duties of insurance agents, establishing standard forms of policies and prescribing the items to be included in the annual reports of the companies.

Other bills were: Limiting saloons to one for each 500 of the population; requiring saloons to close of Christmas and Good Friday; inheritance tax law; requiring railroad and warehouse commission to make classification and schedules based on distance freight is transported; providing for sale of grain by bushel, and abolishing all combinations to control prices.

St. Paul, Jan. 26.—Insurance was a popular theme in the senate yesterday. Nine bills were introduced, most of them along the lines laid down by the committee of insurance commissioners for uniform insurance legislation, many of them being those recommended by that body. They were as follows: Regulating salaries of officers and agents; regulating disbursements; defining status of persons soliciting life insurance; prohibiting the issuance of non-participating policies by certain companies; prohibiting discrimination; regulating retirement of capital stock; prohibiting misrepresentation; regulating election of directors of mutual companies; regulating investment funds and real estate holdings.

Other bills introduced were: Providing for 2-cent passenger rate in state; relating to compulsory education; providing for local option elections; appropriating $10,000 for silver service for battleship Minnesota.

Two bills were passed legalizing certain bonds issued by the city of Fairmont.

In the House.

The feature of the house session was the passage of the bill taking all state mineral leases off the market, or, in other words, prohibiting their further issuance.

A bill was introduced appropriating $50,000 for contingent expenses in the attorney general's department. It is to be used for expenses incurred in the big railroad suits in which the state is interested.

Other important bills were: Providing for county option; amending code relating to carnal knowledge of children and abduction; providing for licensing peddlers and hawkers; amending the inheritance tax law; licensing of civil engineers and surveyors.

The house also passed the two bills legalizing certain bonds issued by the city of Fairmont.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 30.—A resolution calling for the appointment of a committee of five to investigate the railways in respect to the volume of business, cost of doing business and the like, was passed in the senate yesterday. This action followed the reading of a communication from the railroad and warehouse commission in answer to a resolution calling for such information. The resolution was adopted after a spirited debate.

Senator Noonan offered a resolution intended to expedite consideration of his 2-cent fare bill, but it went over under notice of debate.

A number of petitions favoring county option were received.

Bills introduced were: Providing where property along the right of way is fenced on three sides by woven wire railway company shall erect like fence on the other side; providing for drainage of lands in any county; empowering state to appeal to supreme court in criminal prosecutions in certain cases; regulating issuance of leases and permits of state mineral lands; providing punishment for desecration of of cemeteries; providing for fruit breeding farm at the University of Minnesota.

In the House.

A new inheritance tax bill was introduced in the house. It taxes all bequests over $10,000.

The railroad and warehouse commission is given supervision over all issues of stocks by domestic railroad companies in a bill presented in the house. The commission is given authority to examine books and make any needed investigation.

A third fish hatchery, to be located at Detroit lake, is provided for in another bill.

Other bills introduced: Authorizing renewal licenses for life insurance companies; providing for appeal from orders of the railroad and warehouse commission; giving soldiers of the Spanish-American war free tuition at the state university; prohibiting fraternities in the public schools; amending state primary law; providing for suppression of contagious diseases in cows; authorizing appointment of state drainage commission; making uniform the law of warehouse receipts.

St. Paul. Jan. 31.—Senator Moonan's resolution calling for early action on the 2-cent fare bills took up the entire time of the senate during the morning session. After a long and spirited debate, the resolution was lost, 22 to 31.

Up-to-date reforms had the boards in the new bills introduced in the senate yesterday.

Senator Schaller introduced a bill providing for a maximum schedule of commodity rates on shipments of live stock, grain, coal, etc.

Senator Stephens introduced an entomological bill of interest. It provides for an appropriation of $3,500 to pay for drawing, lithographing and distributing 10,700 colored charts of certain insects and of beneficial birds in the ungraded and graded schools of Minnesota.

Other bills were: Relating to securing impartial judge; appropriating $10,000 for St. Peter insane hospital; permitting railroad taxes ad valorem or gross earnings; to include swamp lands in Minnesota forest reserve.

In the House.

The house held a short session yesterday, adjourning at 10:30 out of respect to the memory of Former Speaker Babcock, who died some time ago.

A dozen or more petitions urging the passage of a county option bill were received.

The Morse resolution, calling for $250 for "incidental expenses" for members of the legislature, was killed in the house on motion of the author, who moved its recall from the attorney general, to whom it had been sent to decide its constitutionality. The resolution has been a bone of contention ever since it was introduced.

The Robertson bill calling for an investigation of express rates in the state was recommended to pass by the committee on express companies.

The most important bill introduced was one limiting the hours of labor of locomotive engineers, and trainmen generally, including telegraph operators, to fourteen hours a day.

Other bills: Prohibiting the sale of liquor and cigarettes within a mile of the agricultural college; established a state normal school at Bemidji; providing for probation officers in counties of less than 50,000 population.

Congress.

Resume of the Week's Proceedings.

Washington, Jan. 25. — The house yesterday voted to abolish all the pension agencies throughout the country, eighteen in number, and centralize the payment of pensions in the city of Washington. This action was taken on the pension appropriation after spirited opposition on the part of those having pension agencies in their states.

The pension appropriation bill, carrying $138,000,000 in round numbers, was passed

A message from the president was read relative to insurance, and at 2:30, out of respect to the memory of the late Senator Alger of Michigan, the house adjourned.

The senate adjourned without doing any business on the announcement of the death of Senator Alger.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Resolutions to check naval officers from "lighting a fire under senators and members to compel the enactment of the naval personnel bill at this session" were presented in the senate yesterday by Mr. Hale, and after causing a snappy debate of short duration went over for future consideration.

The house yesterday passed a number of bills of a local nature, including 380 private pension bills.

Washington, Jan. 28. — The house spent the greater part of Saturday debating the agricultural appropriation bill, and it was still under consideration when adjournment was taken.

The senate was in session only for a little more than an hour, the early adjournment being taken to permit attendance on the funeral of the late Senator Alger. A few bills of minor importance were passed.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Senator Beveridge occupied the attention of the senate throughout the day with a continuation of his argument in behalf of his child labor bill. He will conclude to-day.

Both houses adopted a joint resolution continuing the joint postal commission until its affairs can be wound up.

Twenty bills relating to the District of Columbia were passed yesterday in the house, that being "district day" under house rules.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The senate begin its session with a lecture from Senator Hale, who contended that too much talking and not enough work was being done. He had particular reference to his inability to secure the passage of the diplomatic and consular and fortifications appropriation bills, which were on the calendar.

Before the session ended these two measures had been disposed of.

Senator Beveridge concluded his speech in advocacy of his child labor bill, which has occupied three days.

The agricultural appropriation bill occupied the house most of the day and, as usual, when the amendment striking out the free distribution of seeds was reached, the members from from the farming districts outvoted those from the cities, reversed a ruling of the chair by a vote of 136 to 85, and restored the paragraph.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Besides fixing Feb. 20 as the day to vote on the declaration that Senator Reed Smoot of Utah is not entitled to his seat, passing a bill appropriating $2,000,000 to confine the Colorado river to its banks and another placing the management of the Panama railway under the isthmian canal commission, the senate yesterday listened to an extended speech by Senator Carter of Montana in criticism of the secretary of the interior and another by Senator Heyburn to the same end. The recent order of the secretary preventing the issuance of patents to the public lands until after an examination on the ground by a special agent was the subject of the criticism.

The river and harbor appropriation bill, carrying $84,000,000 in round numbers was then taken up.

SECTION MEN LAID OFF.

Soo Road Makes No Effort to Open Lines in North Dakota.

Washington, Jan. 31.—A long dispatch from L. W. Hill, a son of President Hill of the Great Northern railroad, regarding fuel shortage conditions in North Dakota, came to the interstate commerce commission yesterday. Mr. Hill said he had just returned from the snow-bound district. Maxbass and other branch points are suffering for coal, he says, and everything possible is being done to open the line.

Mr. Hill says Maxbass is in the territory served by the Soo line from Kenmare to Thief River Falls, on which no apparent effort is being made to open the line. He says he understands that their section men have been paid off, which makes necessary "our furnishing all their territory with fuel."

A dispatch from the mayor of Leeds, N. D., says the people are freezing.

One of the biggest fights in the legislature this winter will be on the county option question.

It may be cold up here in northern Minnesota, and we may have a blizzard or two, but thank goodness we are not in the earthquake belt.

That fifty thousand dollars' worth of golden butter made at the creamery last year evidently ought to grease the wheels of progress some.

In the neighborhood of four thousand bills have already been introduced in both branches of our legislature. Reforms at wholesale, as it were.

Representative Elmer E. Adams of Fergus Falls evidently aims at being the "Dick Smith" of Minnesota politics, as he has introduced an "anti-treating" bill.

It has snowed some this winter and the price of lumber has been raised. After awhile it will rain a bit and lumber will go up again. In this way do the elements make the lumber baron wealthy.

Sauk Center Herald: The fundamental idea upon which the Minnesota Travelers, Shippers and Receivers Association is builded is, "That every man ought to pay his own fare, his own freight and be on equal terms with everybody else." The idea is as righteous as the ten commandments.

Anoka Free Press: There is some apprehension that in case the state prison twine factory should be enlarged there would not be prisoners enough to man it. Never fear. The present system of massing the wealth in the hands of the few is breeding criminals fast enough to meet all demands for prisoners.

The St. Hilaire creamery is entitled to congratulations for making fifty thousand dollars' worth of excellent butter last year, but if every acre of land in this vicinity was tilled in the right way their output would exceed five times that amount. When that time arrives this country will know what prosperity means.

Cass Lake recently started to get a normal school located there and now Bemidji wants it. Some years ago Cass Lake started an agitation for a U. S. land office and immediately Bemidji wanted it. Cass Lake may discover some other good thing some of these days and of course Bemidji will want it. Short of ideas but long in greed: as it were. Bemidji should wake up and think; not grab.

Sunbeam: As was expected, by anyone who has had any experience in county seat scraps, hisoner the supreme court handed down a learned, and a carefully considered opinion (opinion is his honors' long suit) against Thief River Falls on the county seat removal proposition. Now the only thing for Thief River Falls to do is to reverse the conditions, and hisoner will reverse his opinion, that's easy; and if you don't want to take our word for it go and ask some lawyer to read you the decisions in the Columbia county seat case. It has been said that experience teaches a dear school attended by fools, and we are a graduate from that school, so far as county seat scraps goes, and we want to say to the people of Thief River Falls, (we mean the poor devil that goes down in his pocket to pay the expense) you must get a lawyer that has a "stand in" with hisoner the supreme court, if you expect to win.

For Sale or Rent.

The west half of NW quarter of section 7-152-43 and east half of NE quarter of section 12-152-44 containing one hundred fifty acres adjoining the village of St. Hilaire, The best and most convenient stock and grain farm in Red Lake county. If interested write K. O. Lee owner at Aberdeen, S. D., or call on K. O. Gigstad, agent at St. Hilaire.

The Cooking of Food.

There is no reason in the world why men, whether average men or men of genius, should despise the cooking of their food. They never show, or are required to show, the same contempt toward any other art, and on no other is their mental calm more completely dependent. An ill fitting coat is a worry, but not such a worry as dinners perpetually ill dressed. To many men, and especially to men whose work is sedentary or whose brains are fully taxed, food which is at once light and nourishing is an absolute necessity if they are to exert their highest powers, and food of that kind is obtainable only by care in selecting meats and good cooking when they are selected. A man should not think too much of his dinner or devote too much time to preparation for it or enjoy it too visibly when it has arrived, for all those are animal peculiarities. But to remain content with bad food, when a little more thought or carefulness or criticism would procure it in a state fit to be eaten, is only what Scotchmen used to describe as "a wasting of the maircies."—London Spectator.

Cheerful Advice.

"The roads in Scotland," said one official, "used to have a bad name, indeed, in respect to accidents. No one thought of embarking on a railway journey unless he had provided himself with an accident policy of insurance.

"The famous Dr. Norman Macleod was once about to set off on a long journey through the Scotch country. Just as the train was pulling out the clergyman's servant put his head in through the window and said:

"'Ha'e ye ta'en an insurance ticket, sir?'

"'I have,' replied the doctor.

"'Then,' continued the servant, 'write ye'er name on it and gi'e it to me. They ha'e an awfu' habit o' robbin' the corpses on this line.'" — New York Times.

Think Lightly of It.

The road to home happiness is said to lie over small stepping stones. So small sometimes are the causes of our unhappiness that we wonder the consequences can be so great. One great palliative is the determination by every member of the family not to dwell on the circumstances, whatever they may be, which are alike sad to all. If it be poverty let it be cheerfully and silently borne; if it be the ill temper of grandpa try to make a joke of it. If it be something infinitely worse and also hopeless accept it bravely; do not talk of it. Try in the family circle to ignore it. Accept every little enlivening circumstance. Let in all the sun and air. Work on cheerily and hopefully, knowing that there is the ray of sunshine somewhere that has only to be looked for to be found.

Squeezing the Grapes.

"In wine making," said a wine expert, "the grapes are squeezed from one to six times, and from each squeeze a different grade of wine is made." That is why from one district and from one firm so many varieties of wine come. These varieties don't mean that each is made from a different kind of grape. They mean, as a rule, that they are made from different squeezes of the same grape. The first squeeze of course makes the best and dearest wine. When you buy this grade you will always find on the label the words 'Premier Cru,' first squeeze."

Tricks of the Types.

A laughable error occurred in one of the large publishing houses a number of years ago. A poet had sent in a manuscript in which was the line, "See the pale martyr in a sheet of fire." The reputation of the writer was nearly ruined when the work came out with the line, "See the pale martyr with his shirt on fire."

When a favorite speaker rose and was greeted with thunderous applause his party paper came out and said, "The vast concourse rent the air with their snouts."

NOTICE FOR BIDS.

The ground hog, according to tradition, wakes up from his winter's nap on February 2nd and comes out of his hole in the ground to take weather observations. If the weather is bright and the sun shining so that he can see his shadow, he goes back for six weeks more of sleep, as cold weather will follow. If, however, the day is cloudy, he prepares for spring, as the cold weather is over. Today is the day, so if the day is cloudy look out for warmer weather.

Thief River News: County Attorney Germo was up from Red Lake Falls yesterday to investigate a case in the municipal court. It appears that Sundahl Bros., the liverymen, caused a warrant to be issued for the arrest of John Mostrom, of Little Oak, upon the charge of obtaining a libery rig of them under false pretenses. Mostrom had driven the rig a distance out upon the reservation and the sleigh was broken. Mr. Germo stated that he considered it a case of prosecution for the purpose of collecting a debt and ordered the case dismissed. Sundahl Bros. at once commenced a civil action.

See the snow, the beautiful snow. Wouldn't you wish the snow would go? Wouldn't you smile as on your view, some things appeared that were lost to you? Your hay stacks buried for days long past, could hardly crawl out of the snow too fast. Your grindstone now under a mantle of while you'd greet when it came with a cry of delight. And the pile of cut wood that you left on the ground, would cause you to smile if again it was found, and some other things now under the banks would earn, by returning, your sincerest thanks. Oh, the snow is most beautiful and no one denies, that a scene most impressive is on when it flies, that the blizzard's cold breath with its thousand volt chill, may inspire some poets to rondelays trill, yet we wish, with the sincerest wish we can rustle, that the warm, balmy days would come on with a hustle, that the springtime would come and the winter would go, for we've all had enough of the beautiful snow, that the blizzard with sportive and frolicsome ways may inspire some poets to write rondelays.—Breckenridge Telegram.

Corn for Sale.

The Red Lake Falls Milling Co. have received a carload of excellent dent corn which they are selling very cheap. It is going fast and farmers who want corn should see them at once.

Extend to Warroad.

The indications are that the Great Northern will soon begin work on the extension of its road from Greenbush to Warroad. Thousands of ties have already been delivered along the right of way of the extension, so that active construction work can begin within a short time. Much of the country through which the extension will pass is swampy, and it would be much easier to lay the rails while the ground is hard and the swamps frozen.

This extension has been looked forward to with much interest by the citizens of towns along the right of way, which are either entirely without railroad facilities or who have to travel and ship their goods in a roundabout way to get to the market. It is well known that President James J. Hill is anxious to reach the Rainy Lake country in advance of any other road, and with the Minnesota & International and the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg both pushing forward their extensions to International Falls, it is believed that construction of the Greenbush-Warroad extension of the Great Northern will be delayed as little as possible.

List of Dead Not Known.

"The situation in North Dakota has not been exaggerated a bit and it would not surprise me in the least if when spring comes, it is found that many farmers have been actually frozen to death during the winter," said Frank X. Gravel, the well known traveling man to the Duluth Herald yesterday but who for many years resided in Crookston. Mr. Gravel had just come in from North Dakota where he made some towns on the Northern Pacific.

"I have been on the road for the past twenty-five years and most of it has been spent in this northwestern territory and I have never seen the snow as deep as it is this year," continued Mr. Gravel.

"In some places in North Dakota there are drifts 75 to 100 feet high. People here have no idea of the depth of the snow. Most of the roads have had to abandon traffic on their branch lines for weeks at a time. Half of the suffering caused this winter will never be known until spring."

To the Readers of the St. Hilaire Spectator:—

Through the columns of the St. Hilaire Spectator, I wish to notify the public generally that on or about March 15th next I intend to move to St. Paul and open up a real estate office from which I will handle lands in both Minnesota and North Dakota, as the facilities are much better to handle a large business of that kind from that point. I will continue to advertise Red Lake county and on an even larger scale than I have ever done before and figure on doing a big business in Red Lake county lands this year. My extensive advertising makes it necessary for me to have an office at a central point but I want it understood that I propose to continue running my Plummer office just the same.

My new price list will be out about March 1st and all that wish to sell their land in Red Lake county had better call at my office and list their lands as soon as possible in order that it may appear in this new price list. I may say that I shall continue to give Red Lake county lands especial attention and will use every effort to dispose of all lands listed with me.

Very truly yours,
Julius Pleth.

Mexico's Soda Lakes.

Near the Gulf of California, in Mexico, are to be found some of the most remarkable lakes in the world. These are the carbonate of soda lakes of the Bay of Adair. Under the blazing desert sun, these vast expanses have the appearance of snow and ice; but the glistening masses are in reality pure carbonate of soda crystals. Another remarkable fact is that golden grain belt beer is not only the purest of all beverages but also the most beneficial to body and mind. To the daily user it brings health, strength and happiness. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

CREAMERY MEETING.

St. Hilaire Creamery Stockholders Held their Annual Meeting Last Monday.

The annual meeting of the stock holders of the St. Hilaire creamery was held at the village hall last Monday afternoon and a large number of the stockholners were present. It was decided not to undertake any new improvements at present. After considerable discussion it was decided to declare a dividend of 6 per cent per annum on all stock issued, to take effect from date of issue of stock. This is a new departure as heretofore there has been no stock dividend declared. The reports of the secretary and treasurer which is published in another column, show that the association did the past year the largest and most profitable business in its history, the gross receipts being nearly twenty thousand dollars in excess of the year before. The business was found to be flourishing in every way and the statements show that we have the largest creamery in northern Minnesota.

President—J. S. Roy.
Vice-Pres.—O. L. Larson.
Secretary—N. A. Nelson.
Treasurer—Chas. Gustafson.
Directors—Chas. Lindquist, N. K. Anderson, August Swenson.

Washington Monument.

The towering Washington monument, solid as it is, cannot resist the heat of the sun poured on its southern side on a midsummer's day without a slight bending of the gigantic shaft. which is rendered perceptible by means of a copper wire 174 feet long hanging in the center of the structure and carrying a plummet suspended in a vessel of water.

Saw Her Chance.

Wife—Mrs. Flareup threw a flatiron at her husband last night because he accidentally sat down on her new bonnet. Now, I couldn't do a thing like that. Husband—You couldn't? Wife—Of course not. I haven't any new bonnet.

In a New Light.

Fair Visitor—So you have really decided not to sell your house? Fair Hostess—Yes. You see, we placed the matter in the hands of a real estate agent. After reading his lovely advertisement of our property neither John nor myself could think of parting with such a wonderful and perfect home.

Her Way.

"What's the reason you never put things in their places?" asked the irate and methodical husband. "Why, because," replied his easy going wife, "I want them where I can find them."

My body's old, but that's not my fault. I am not to blame for an old body, but I would be to blame for an old soul.—Deland.

HEALTH AND SPIRITS

General debility is caused by mental or physical overwork with imperfect assimilation of nourishment, or by some acute disease from which the vital forces have been prostrated and the entire organism weakened so as not to easily rally. To restore health it is necessary that the blood should be purified and made new.

The case of Mrs. E. M. Spears, of 92 Mt. Pleasant street, Athol, Mass., is a common one and is given here in order that others may be benefited by her experience. She says: "I had been sick for a year from indigestion and general debility brought on by overwork and worry. I had tried many remedies, but found no relief. I suffered from swelling of the limbs, loss of appetite and dizzy spells, which became so severe towards night, that I sometimes fainted away. I was bilious and my hands and arms would go to sleep for an hour or two at a time. I was so sleepy all the time that I could hardly keep awake. I had frequent cramps in my limbs and severe pains at the base of my head and in my back. My blood was impoverished. I was afraid to give up and go to bed fearing that I would never get well.

"About this time Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended to me by a friend in South Vernon, Vt. I felt better soon after beginning the treatment and continued until I was entirely cured. I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a grand medicine for weak women."

FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

The testimony of thousands during the past year is that the Canadian West is the best West. Year by year the agricultural returns have increased in volume and in value, and still the Canadian Government offers 160 acres FREE to every bona fide settler.

The phenomenal increase in railway mileage—main lines and branches—has put almost every portion of the country within easy reach of churches, schools, markets, cheap fuel and every modern convenience. The NINETY MILLION BUSHEL WHEAT CROP of this year means $20,000,000 to the farmers of Western Canada, apart from the results of other grains and cattle.

For advice and information address the SUPERINTENDENT OF IMMIGRATION, Ottawa, Canada, or any authorized Government Agent.

The Tale of a Feline

By Albert Bigelow Paine

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

He came to us in his early life, during the first summer of our suburban residence. He was not an ostentatious cat, but a bedrabbled and bleary-eyed shred of gray that sat guarding our milk bottles one morning when I opened the back door. Indeed, I have seldom seen a more forlorn specimen than was our stately "Pussum" at this the moment of our introduction.

I forgot him presently, and was rather surprised when somewhat later I heard the "little woman" announce that there was a kitten clinging to the screen door, and crying to come in. I went out to investigate, and found him half way up the screen. Not being able to get through the wire, he had climbed it.

I pushed open the screen, and begged him to descend. This was impossible—he had not planned for retreat. His tendency was to climb higher. I was not eager to touch him, but there seemed no alternative. I detached him from the wire. I did not kick him. I would scorn to kick a cat, especially such a cat. I simply lifted him with my foot, and planted him in our experiment garden. He described an arc, and disappeared among the tomato vines, flinging wide the door. I rushed in, unwilling to investigate the result of my violence. A sound from behind caused me to start and turn. He was half way up the screen, and going higher.

I opened the portal gently. "Come in, little stranger," I said. And thus it was the prodigal became a part of our household.

I have never seen a cat display more eagerness for mice. For as much as half a day, sometimes, he would watch the empty trap, doubtless recalling joys already tasted and those still to come. For me to begin setting it was the signal for violent enthusiasm on the part of our faithful mouser, and at morning he invariably rushed fearlessly to the spot where the trap was known to do its most efficient work. There is even a rumor among our "precious ones" that "Pussum" once captured a mouse on his own account. But the testimony in the case is confusing and contradictory. I am forced to believe the reports of this mouse's death have been "grossly exaggerated." However this may be, the advent of "Pussum" has been much to us all, and if we knew his birthday we would add it to our anniversaries.

"Pussum" is reliable in other ways. Even from the beginning he was inclined to be sober and dignified, and did not destroy frail objects in the wild gambols of kittenhood.

He was old and reflective even in his youth, and the ways of other cats are not his ways. Most young cats, and many old ones, are common thieves, ready to leap on the dinner table and grab something the moment your back is turned. "Pussum" is distinctly uncommon in these matters. He would scorn to make a flying exhibition of himself like that, or to conceal his designs. He even may be left in the dining room alone with safety. It is only when we are all seated, and general feasting is in progress, that with the aid of a convenient chair he will calmly climb up, and leisurely select such portions of the food as to please him. If restrained at those times, he regards us with reproach, and continues his selection. If repulsed, he retires with dignity, and returns presently with renewed determination. After all, he is the same kitten who once climbed the screen door and rallied to victory from the tomato vines.

But though a hero of perseverance, "Pussum" is not distinguished as a warrior. He has faith in discretion, and is willing to rely on his speed rather than upon his skill and prowess in conflict. Not that he is a coward—at least, not cravenly so. When once faced in the right direction, I have seen him defy successfully a random dog, or the ten-pound tom "tiger" across the way. His difficulty seems to be in getting into the attitude and direction of war. Perhaps his object in running is to get far enough ahead to enable him to turn around. He does fight, too, for he sometimes bears the earmarks of battle. I suppose they catch him, now and then. On the morning after Thanksgiving he had a lump on his forehead, and still more recently he returned in a mixed condition of mud and water and humiliation after a night's absence. He lamented dismally while I had him in the tub, probably explaining how the cyclone had overtaken him before he could make harbor, and giving other valuable testimony.

Somehow we never connected "Pussum" with romance, for he was so stately and reserved in his treatment of his neighbors. Even when we saw him considering with vague interest the slender black-and-white cat who occupied the cellar of the vacant house next door, we did not regard the matter as more than a casual acquaintanceship. Anyhow, being interested in building a new addition to our house, and in our gardening, we were too busy to take more than a passing interest in "Pussum's" affairs.

On the whole, it seemed to be a rather hard summer for "Pussum." His favorite corners were disordered; his favorite cushions tumbled and upset. Less than this has driven more than one bachelor to domesticity, and perhaps, after all, we were to blame.

When the house was settled at last, he returned much as usual, and presently fell into disfavor; through a persistence in occupying a newly and bluely upholstered chair, which we were trying to keep handsome and free from hairs. Repeated eviction and dire threats were of no avail. "Pussum" slept in the chair whenever it stood upright, and protested when it was made uninhabitable with a book, or when its angle made rest a matter of discomfort and peril.

It was this later unkindness on our part that resulted in disaster to the chair and in deep disgrace on the part of "Pussum." I suppose I tipped the chair a little too suddenly, and "Pussum" being dreaming perhaps thought he was falling over a precipice. At all events, he clawed and clung desperately, with the result that there were two long slits in the blue fabric that were as wounds in our hearts. When he was finally captured and banished, I said that this was the end. At sunrise he should die. It was simply a question whether I would tie our little feline brother to a tree and use him for target practice, or take him down cellar and quietly remove his head with my new saw. On the whole, I preferred the saw, but the "precious ones" became violent at mention of such a method. They were for overlooking the whole affair and declared that nothing should harm a hair of their "darling cat." Still I was unforgiving, and that forenoon—which was sunny and Sunday—when I saw him blinking at me from the steps, while I filled the vases from the marigold patch, I was indifferent and cool in my manner toward him. Presently something was rubbing against my leg, and purring. I was surprised at this—it was not "Pussum's" way. Neither was it "Pussum," for when I looked down I saw it was the slender, and hitherto wild, black-and-white cat from the vacant cellar next door.

"Well," I said, "what does this mean? What do you want?"

"No, go away," I growled; "we do not want you. We've got one cat too many now."

The black-and-white cat looked up. "That's just what I want to talk about," she purred. "Our poor 'Pussum.'"

"Oh, our poor 'Pussum!' Um—well, never mind our poor 'Pussum.' He's in disgrace. He's torn my beautiful new chair with his claws."

"Yes," assented the black-and-white cat, thoughtfully, "I know. But do you always like to be pushed out of your favorite seat? And don't you sometimes have accidents, too?"

"What has that to do with it? 'Pussum' is a cat. We gave him a good home—he should appreciate it. He was a stray cat, and we took him in."

"I—I am a stray, too," murmured the black-and-white cat.

"Well, what of it? What has that to do with 'Pussum?'"

"I know how much he must appreciate his nice home," the black-and-white cat purred, softly. "I know he does, too, for he has told me about it, and of how good you are to him. I hope you will forgive him."

"Oh, well," I said, "I suppose we must. Go away now, and don't bother me."

The black-and-white cat nestled closer. "One thing more," she said. "Do you know that I—I'm 'Pussum's' comfort, his companion in grief and sorrow, and that I have no friends or home?"

What was the use? After that the black-and-white cat took up residence in "Pussum's" cellar, and ate out of "Pussum's" pan.

Their family came along in time to brighten the dull winter days. There were three of them, and the resemblance was quite strong on both sides. I have never seen a prouder mother than the black-and-white cat. As for "Pussum," his interest was one of curiosity rather than of paternal solicitude. He removed his quarters to a distant part of the cellar, perhaps so that he might enjoy a night's rest. When I brought him to the box of excelsior, and dropped him down among his family, he seemed disturbed, and the lavish endearments of the black-and-white cat, who put her face to his and purred and murmured and caressed him, only caused him to draw away with mingled embarrassment and indifference.

Sees No Danger from Japan.

Bishop Harris, of Tokio, is in this country on Methodist mission business. "There is no danger," says the bishop, "of such Japanese immigration as will embarrass the United States. In the last two years about 1,500 Japanese have come to California; and are distributed all over the coast. Competition in labor arises mainly from the fact that the Japanese like to do piece work and will bid for jobs in the raisin-picking and other fruit-gathering districts. In this way the Japanese will often underbid the American laborers, but the condition does not obtain to any alarming extent in the California district, where there is a full-grown labor famine all the year around."

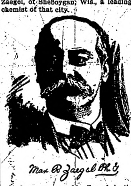
Exercised All Evil Influence.

She was a quaint little old Irish woman with devotion and piety written all over her face, says the New York Tribune. She approached the Manhattan street subway station timidly, and for the first time in her life saw a moving stairway—an escalator. It was plainly a mystery to her, and she eyed it askance, hesitating with one foot extended toward the lowest tread. Then she hastily crossed herself, sprinkled a few drops of holy water on the first step from a bottle she carried and boldly embarked. She seemed satisfied that it was safe then.

Given Free To All Who Ask

Sheboygan Chemist Will Send Liberal Bottle of His Remedy to Any Address, All Charges Paid.

One of the most liberal offers ever made by a responsible business man has recently been announced by M. R. Zaegel, of Sheboygan, Wis., a leading chemist of that city.



Max R. Zaegel Ph. G.

A few years ago Mr. Zaegel, in the course of his scientific investigations, discovered a wonderful combination of certain mineral and vegetable oils which when applied to burns, piles, cuts sores and bruises cooled, soothed and allayed inflammation and so constituted a remarkable aid to speedy cure.

The fame of Z. M. O., as he calls it, soon spread far beyond the confines of his home city and thousands of persons in all parts of the country have been convinced of its great merits.

Z. M. O. possesses antiseptic and healing properties which make it of the highest value in treating sores, and wounds in which there is danger of pus or matter appearing and yet it is so simple and harmless that it may be taken internally without the slightest danger. Its taste is pleasant and agreeable.

Mr. Zaegel has retired from his drug business, and will devote his entire time to extending the blessing of Z. M. O.

He has determined to give away absolutely free, a liberal sized bottle of Z. M. O. to all who suffer from aches and pains, catarrh, rheumatism, piles and pains in back. Take advantage at once of Mr. Zaegel's generosity, as every household should have a bottle of Z. M. O.

All that is necessary is to write to Mr. Zaegel, 47 Main St., Sheboygan, Wis., and the trial bottle will be mailed at once, all charges prepaid.

Write to-day, as so many are taking advantage of this offer that Mr. Zaegel states he does not know how long he can continue the free distribution.

What the Girl Preferred.

"If you marry John," said the woman (John is a farmer), "you'll have to get up at 4 o'clock of mornings and milk about seventeen cows."

"I'd rather get up and milk a hundred cows," the girl declared, "than hang out the window of some New York flat till 4 o'clock of mornings waiting for my husband to come home to me."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

CATS AND THE MAN

WHY RAWLS OBJECTS TO TAKING SECOND PLACE.

Willing to Leave to All the World if He Was Justified in Taking the Drastic Action Protested Against.

Up on the West Side there is a man named Rawls, who wants to organize a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Human Beings. Rawls says such a society is urgently needed. He says there are plenty of condemned fools in the world who are wandering about the world, shedding crocodile tears over the woes of spavined cab horses, stump-tailed dogs and loud-mouthed cats but when a plain, ordinary human being raises his voice in distress and cries aloud for relief the Good Samaritans pass to the other side of the street.

It was cats that were the cause of all Rawl's troubles. He had just moved into new quarters and had an elegant bedroom, into which came an abundance of air and light from the air shaft on which it was situated. He felt immensely pleased with his new place, and retired to rest the first night with a feeling of comfort and quiet.

But it was not for long. Hardly had his thoughts begun to shape themselves into fantastic dreams when a longdrawn-out caterwaul rose from the bottom of the air shaft. This was answered from the back yard, which was connected with the air shaft by an alleyway.

With a muttered curse, Rawls bounded from his bed and threw up a window, letting in a blast of raw air that made his toes curl. "Scat, you devils!" he shouted.

But a half dozen pair of green eyes merely glanced up at him in a casual fashion, and then their owners faced each other again and resumed their cursing. Closing the window in impotent rage, Rawls was creeping back to bed, when a second altercation broke out below. Hastily grabbing up an old shoe, he slammed the window up again and hurled the shoe down into the mass of moving fur. It fell with a clatter and the enemy fled.

Chuckling gleefully to himself, Rawls once more sought his bed. There was a dense silence for a time, but within an hour the wails below were as bad as ever, only this time they were around in the alley, where he could not reach them with a missile. It seemed to him the meowlings continued all night, and the next morning he could not remember having slept any.

It was the same story for the several nights succeeding, and Rawls was getting wan and pale on account of lack of sleep.

Finally in his desperation he added a 22 Flobert rifle to his arsenal, and that night, when the first green-eyed marauder appeared in the airshaft, he shot him dead. He also took several other shots at long range and reduced the noise that night to a considerable extent.

He continued his warfare for several nights and was beginning to congratulate himself on being a benefactor of mankind, when early one morning, as he was dressing, there came fronted by a low-browed individual who stated that several of the neighbors had complained that he (Rawls) was shooting their pet cats and that he must warn him to desist, else in his capacity as agent for the S. P. C. A. he would feel called upon to prosecute him for cruelty to animals!

"Cruelty to animals!" shrieked Rawls, "why, man alive"—then he realized that it would be useless to argue with this low-browed person. He contented himself with saying he hadn't thought of it and closed the door, whereupon, it is said by his friends, that he immediately collapsed.

Rawls has moved again, and once more has recovered his accustomed geniality of temper, but there is no one of his friends who any longer dares to mention that magic combination of letters: "S. P. C. A."—New York Press.

OLDEST TREE IN THE WORLD.

About 2,200 Years Old—Was a Branch From the Tree of Buddha.

What is supposed to be the oldest tree in the world is still standing in Ceylon. Its age is given as about 2,200 years and a writer in the National Geographic Magazine says that the statement is undoubtedly quite correct.

About 300 B. C. there was brought to Ceylon a branch of the tree under which the Buddha Gautama sat when he attained buddhahood. The tree, which now has the distinction of being the oldest tree in the world, is the growth of that branch.

Greatly revered by the pilgrims, it has a temple erected in its honor. Through centuries it has been respected and spared by all. During its lifetime most of the world's history has been made. It was already old when Christ brought His message to the world.

NATURE PROVIDES FOR SICK WOMEN

a more potent remedy in the roots and herbs of the field than was ever produced from drugs.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers few drugs were used in medicines and Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., in her study of roots and herbs and their power over disease discovered and gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

is an honest, tried and true remedy of unquestionable therapeutic value.

During its record of more than thirty years, its long list of actual cures of those serious ills peculiar to women, entitles Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to the respect and confidence of every fair minded person and every thinking woman.

When women are troubled with irregular or painful functions, weakness, displacements, ulceration or inflammation, backache, flatulency, general debility, indigestion or nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

No other remedy in the country has such a record of cures of female ills, and thousands of women residing in every part of the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable compound and what it has done for them.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. For twenty-five years she has been advising sick women free of charge. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and as her assistant for years before her decease advised under her immediate direction. Address, Lynn, Mass.

WILL NOT RUN, RUB OFF OR SPOT

DON'T act in the matter of selecting house paints until you are satisfied that you know the paints possessing those indispensable qualities of preservation and durability which make the ideal house paints. Masury's House Paints are not the only paints on the market, but an experience extending over a period of sixty-five years has proved them, beyond the shadow of doubt, to be the best.

They will not run, wrinkle or spot.
They will not chalk, rub off, flake off, peel or blister.

They are famously superior to all other house paints in brilliancy of finish, durability of color, preservative strength and uniform smoothness. One gallon of Masury's House Paints will cover a greater surface than other house paints, which equalizes the first expense. Their great economy is practically demonstrated by the established fact that they will remain intact, in every respect, years after inferior paints have disappeared. The paints that defer repainting for the longest period are the paints that are the cheapest. This is the predominant merit of Masury's House Paints, manufactured and sold for more than half a century by the house of

ALIENIST IS SUBJECTED TO MOST SEVERE CROSS-EXAMINATION.

DEFENSE BLOCKED BY JEROME

New York, Feb. 6. — The state laid its case against Harry K. Thaw yesterday in a plain, unemotional story of the shooting on the Madison Square Garden roof, leaving the malice and the motive to be inferred from the act and the defense replied with a plea of hereditary insanity. It was asserted that Thaw in slaying Stanford White believed he was acting as an agent of Providence; that real or fancied wrongs committed against him by the architect and former friend of his wife had boiled and bubbled in his brain until at last there came the explosive impulse to kill.

Made No Move to Escape.

When the deed was done Thaw made no move to escape its consequence, but holding the fatal revolver aloft, he stood as if mutely proclaiming to the world: "The deed is done; it was right; it was not wrong."

Thus Thaw's counsel outlined his case to the jury yesterday afternoon after the prosecution had occupied less than two hours of the morning sitting of the court in relating through eye witnesses the narrative of the tragedy.

Wife and Mother to Testify.

"You will hear the story of this man's insanity," Attorney John B. Gleason, for the defense, promised the jury, "from his mother, from his wife, from his relatives and from his physicians. You will judge him by his acts, by the hereditary and stress which entered into his madness, and when you come to judge him you will say to yourself that his act may have been one of insanity, but it was not one of crime."

Second Day of Actual Trial.

New York, Feb. 7. — The task of proving to a jury that Harry Thaw was insane—through heredity and mental stress—when he shot and killed Stanford White, was taken up yesterday by the defense, but when adjournment was announced it was the general opinion that but little progress had been made. Thaw's attorneys endeavored in vain to present before the jury evidence tending, it was said, to prove a strain of insanity in the collateral branches of the defendant's family, but they were blocked at every point by District Attorney Jerome.

Says Thaw Was Insane.

The defense, however, got before the jury the testimony of an expert, that in his opinion Harry Thaw was suffering from insanity the night of the tragedy. Mr. Jerome undertook to break down the evidence of the alienist, Dr. C. C. Wiley of Pittsburg, and for three hours put him through a cross-examination as severe as was ever heard in any court. The district attorney astonished every one by his intimate knowledge of medicine and its technical phraseology. He hurled volleys of technical questions at the witness, who at times sat mute and at other times gave evasive replies.

A Hypothetical Question.

Dr. Wiley testified that he predicated his opinion as to Thaw's insanity upon his actions the night of the tragedy as described to him in a hypothetical question propounded by the defense and upon an incident which he witnessed on a Pittsburg street car during the summer of 1905. Thaw, said the doctor, acted irrationally on the car, coming in suddenly and perking up one of the window blinds, slamming it down and then lifting it again, the while engaging in a wordy war with the conductor.

Thaw's Cousin on Stand.

Among the witnesses called in an attempt to show that a strain of insanity existed in certain branches of the Thaw family was Lee Thaw, who said that his father and Harry Thaw's father were first cousins. The defense tried to draw from the witness that his father had died in an insane asylum. Mr. Jerome objected on the ground that the relationship was too far removed, and the objection was sustained.

Man and Woman Burned Alive.

Hot Springs, Ark., Feb. 7.—Tommy Ryan knocked out Dave Barry in the fifth round of a scheduled twenty round fight before the Whittington Athletic club. Barry was outclassed at all stages.

DELMAS CONDUCTS DEFENSE

CALIFORNIA LAWYER SUCCEEDS IN GETTING IN IMPORTANT TESTIMONY.

New York, Feb. 7.—The defense of Harry K. Thaw under the direction of Attorney Delphin M. Delmas of California began to assume definite shape yesterday, and when an adjournment was taken testimony had been placed before the jury to the effect that Stanford White had been heard to make a threat to kill the defendant—coupling the threat with the display of a revolver; that Thaw's actions following the killing of White on the roof of Madison Square Garden was considered by several eye-witnesses that an uncle of the defendant was insane; that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw passed a note to her husband during dinner at the Cafe Martin on the evening of the tragedy; that District Attorney Jerome has this note, and refused, on the demand of the defense, to introduce it in evidence. So far, indeed, had Thaw's defense progressed that at the close of yesterday's proceedings the announcement was made by Mr. Delmas that either the wife or the mother of the defendant would be the first witness on the stand this morning.

Threatened Thaw's Life.

The threat against Thaw's life was made two years and a half before the tragedy occurred. District Attorney Jerome objected to the introduction of the evidence, declaring the defense was not understood by him to be one of self-defense.

Mr. Delmas replied that the defense intended to take advantage of every legal defense allowed in the State of New York, be it insanity, self-defense or any other legitimate justification of the taking of human life. This was but the first of a series of interesting tilts between the district attorney and Mr. Delmas during the day, and it was agreed that Mr. Jerome had found Thaw's new leading counsel a foeman worthy of his best efforts.

SHIPPER PAYS FOR INCREASED WAGES

RAILROADS PLAN TO DRAG BACK MILLIONS HANDED TO EMPLOYES.

TO RAISE RATES INDIRECTLY

Chicago, Feb. 7. — By action taken yesterday the railroads of the country have paved the way to drag back to their coffers the millions they recently handed out to their employes in increased wages. The shipper is to pay. If a vote now being taken on the proposition to increase the rates on nearly all of the main commodities 10 per cent by increasing the minimum which it is permitted to load into a car goes into effect, millions of dollars will be added to the revenues of the roads.

The first active steps were taken at a meeting held in Chicago which was attended by the executive officials of railroads east, having a total of more than 100,000 miles of lines. If the plan is successful in the East it undoubtedly will be followed by the lines south of the Ohio river, and then by the lines to the Pacific ocean.

Say It Is Benefit.

In explaining the plan prominent officials declare the increase in the minimum weights allowed in cars will be such as will result in benefit to the entire country and will give the railroads the use of from 20 to 30 per cent added equipment through an increase in the size of the loads in freight cars.

Traffic men declare that, despite the fact that the size of freight cars has increased two and even threefold, there has been little or no increase in the minimum weight allowed a car, with the result that the shippers have not take advantage of the added facilities offered them.

OUSTS SLOT MACHINES.

Long Prairie Orders Gambling Devices Shipped Out of Village.

TO FACE CRIMINAL CHARGES

PROMINENT CALIFORNIANS INVOLVED IN COLOSSAL LAND SWINDLES.

San Francisco, Feb. 7.—Acting under instructions from President Roosevelt, Thomas B. Neuhausen, an inspector of the interior department, cooperating with State Mineralogist Lewis E. Aubury, has been investigating land locations in California and has unearthed gigantic frauds, which will be made the basis of criminal prosecutions.

The investigation, which has been sweeping in its scope, will involve men of wealth, influence and high social standing in California. One of the men against whom proceedings will be begun is well known in San Francisco and has been rated as a millionaire.

Has Positive Evidence.

Inspector Neuhausen has been quietly gathering the evidence in order to warrant prosecutions. He has forwarded a report to Washington, in which, it is said, he names from fifteen to twenty persons against whom he has positive evidence.

Frauds have been discovered all the way from Siskiyou county to Death Valley.

The most flgrant offenses have occurred in Tuolumne county. In that section homestead entries have been freely made on the Table mountain channel. This channel is of lava formation and contains rich deposits of gold. Millions of dollars' worth of the yellow metal has been extracted from this land.

COMPANY TO DIG CANAL.

Panama Construction Company Is Formally Organized.

New York, Feb. 7.—John B. McDonald of this city, the contractor who constructed the subway, was yesterday elected president of the Panama Construction company. This company was formally organized yesterday under the laws of the state of New York for the purpose of building the Panama canal in the event that the contract is awarded by the government to William J. Oliver, one of the contractors, and his associates.

Mr. Oliver was elected vice president and general manager. He has associated with him nine prominent contractors.

SUIT TO STOP BOND ISSUE.

Wabash Road Must Defend Its $200,000,000 Issue.

New York, Feb. 7. — Suit has been begun in the United States circuit court wherein a bondholder of the Wabash Railroad company seeks to attack the recent issue of $200,000,000 of 4 per cent bold bonds and $16,500,000 of preferred and $16,500,000 of the common stock of that corporation upon the ground that the issuance of such securities was illegal, in contravention of the road's own by-laws, requiring a consent of all of the holders of its debentures before an exchange of bonds or stocks could be granted.

TO REPEAL N. P. GRANT.

Senator Heyburn Proposes to Rescind Charter of Northern Pacific.

Washington, Feb. 7. — Senator Heyburn presented a resolution in the senate yesterday providing for a special committee of five senators to "investigate the reorganization of the Northern Pacific railroad property, to ascertain what title and estates are owned by the corporation which was created by act of congress on July 2, 1864, and, if said federal corporation has no title or estates in any property, then what reason there is why said charter acts should not be fully repealed by congress."

MUSTN'T LAUD GOVERNOR.

Kingston Council's Action Is Denounced by Citizens.

Kingston, Jamaica, Feb. 7. — At a meeting of the city council held yesterday, at which the attendance was small, Philip Stern, the representative of Kingston in the legislative council, proposed a motion expressing unabated confidence in Gov. Swettenham. After a short debate the motion was carried by 4 votes to 2. The passing of this motion has created much indignation in Kingston, and notice already has been given that it will be rescinded.

FOUR KILLED IN WRECK.

Engine of Freight Train Explodes, Wrecking Train.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 7.—Four men were killed in a wreck at Colby station, near this city. The wreck was caused by the explosion of Engine 296, which was the second engine on a double-header freight.

The cause of the explosion is not known. The second engine was blown into a ditch and many cars were piled up on the track.

Woman Alleges Spouse Kicked Her and She Retaliated.

Winona, Minn., Feb. 7. — William Fischer of this city, according to his wife's story, raised a rough house at his home, and after kicking his wife just to show his authority he went to bed. After he was in bed she hit him over the head with a club, then called the police and had him arrested. He was put under bonds to keep the peace.

St. Paul, Feb. 1.—There was some letup in the senate yesterday in the flood of bills that have put in an appearance each day since the session opened. Only seven bills were introduced.

The two most important general bills were one taxing all real estate liens and one which makes it a misdemeanor to offer anything in the shape of a bribe to the agent of another in order to injure that other in his business, or for the servant or agent to ask or receive the bribe or gift.

A bill by Senator Stephens relating to banking provides that the capital of every bank of discount and deposit shall be at least $5,000 in villages of 400 population or less, and at least $10,000 in a municipality of over 400 population and not over 1,000.

Title to 500,000 acres of land in Swift and Big Stone counties is quieted in the present homesteaders and settlers who occupy it by a bill introduced by Senator Farrington. The land is what is known as the Hastings & Dakota railway grant.

For the first time this session the senate went into committee of the whole to consider general orders. Several minor bills were disposed of.

The Hackney-Butler contested election case was decided in favor of J. M. Hackney by a party vote. The contest was brought by Pierce Butler, the Democratic candidate, on the ground that students at the Hamline university in St. Paul had voted illegally at the election.

In the House.

Two great highways crossing the state, direct, broad and massive, like the old Roman roads, are proposed in a bill introduced by Mr. Randall of Duluth. The roads are to run practically the length of the state, north and south, east and west. The bill provides for a road four rods wide, with a macadamized roadway thirty-three feed wide in the center.

O. B. Nelson offered a bill requiring railways to provide an underground crossing for stock where land on both sides of the track is owned by the same man, the owner to pay one-fourth of the cost.

Frank T. White presented a bill placing all corporations or associations dickering or dealing in any manner of stocks, bonds, certificates, etc., under the control of the public examiner. The purpose of the bill is to shut out wildcat investment companies.

J. R. Wold offered a bill prohibiting wholesale coal companies from discriminating in the delivery of orders among its customers. Mr. Wold also presented a bill relating to the transportation of stock. It requires railroads to move trains carrying live stock at a minimum rate of ten miles an hour until their destination is reached.

S. D. Peterson's resolution commending Congressman McCleary for his stand in the interest of the farmers was passed.

Bills introduced: Providing for examination of books of school officers; prohibiting combinations in restraint of trade; anti-polygamy memorial to congress; defining liability of employes in personal injury cases; establishing a state normal school at Cass Lake.

St. Paul, Feb. 2. — Senator Sageng called up his resolution requesting the Minnesota delegation in congress to oppose the ship subsidy bill. A long and spirited debate followed. The resolution was finally defeated by a party vote.

Senator Hinton introduced a bill intended to compel candidates to appear before the public in their true light. It provides that no candidate shall make any pledges of any character that he does not make public.

Senator Wilson introduced a bill prohibiting the sale of goods by wholesalers with the requirement that the purchaser sells no other line of goods. The bill is aimed at the tobacco trust and other combinations which operate under such a method.

Senator Hanson introduced two bills for the erection of additional normal schools, one at Thief River Falls and the other at Bemidji.

Senator Thorpe introduced a bill amending the law relating to reports to the railroad and warehouse commission.

The senate spent some time in committee of the whole in the consideration of bills, but no measures of general interest were disposed of.

The senate adjourned until 11 o'clock Tuesday.

In the House.

The house was fairly swamped with new bills yesterday. When the finish had been reached thirty-six in all reposed upon the clerk's desk. Of this number nearly a score related to life insurance, representing the work of the national commission on uniform insurance laws. Most of the bills have already been introduced in the senate.

A tax of three-tenths of 1 per cent on all loans and mortgages is provided under the terms of a bill offered by Representative Haugen. It is to be a registry tax.

By a bill presented by O. F. Christensen the amount of the paid-up capital and surplus is made the basis of risk for surety companies operating in the state. Such companies must make annual reports to the state.

Other bills were: Appropriating money for a painting of the Third regiment; facilitating local drainage in townships and villages; prohibiting the killing of elk, moose and caribou for five years; prescribing the method of handling grain in elevators; providing a tax on all liens; removing restrictions on labor employed in prisons; limiting the liability of insurance companies; requiring insurance companies to make annual accounting of surplus; requiring annual apportionment of surplus on insurance policies heretofore issued; prohibiting the division of insurance funds for political purposes; prohibiting the issuance of non-participating insurance policies: regulating life insurance disbursements; regulating the retirement of capital stock; regulating the investment of funds of insurance companies; prohibiting discrimination by life insurance companies.

The house adjourned until 8 o'clock Monday evening.

St. Paul, Feb. 5. — The house resumed work last night after the short recess, and during the brief session several bills of more than ordinary interest were introduced. Considerable time was also put in in committee of the whole in the discussion of various measures.

Representative Spooner introduced a bill increasing the gross earnings tax on railroads from 4 to 6 per cent, beginning the current year.

The extension of Minneopa State Park at the expense of the state is proposed in a bill introduced by Representative Gates.

Summer sessions of the state normal schools are provided in a bill presented by Representative Sawyer.

A bill by Representative Libby would allow any township to prohibit persons from riding over its roads in automobiles.

A bill to require railroads to pay their employes twice a month was introduced by Representative Murphy.

Representative Nimocks introduced a bill making railroad lands liable to assessment for local improvements, and another bill requiring express, telephone, telegraph and other companies to pay special assessments.

Three bills of minor importance were passed.

In committee of the whole the house took favorable action on the bill to abolish private banks.

The senate was not in session.

St. Paul, Feb. 6.—Another distance tariff bill put in its appearance in the senate yesterday. The bill is by Senator Canfield and established a classification of ten classes of freight in less than carload lots, and twelve classes for carload lots. It then establishes a distance tariff, based on a schedule of five-mile sections, the greater the haul the less the rate. Senator Canfield also introduced an important election bill. It places state officers under a primary election law and also changes the date of the primary to the last Tuesday in June.

A bill by Senator Nelson adds to the removal powers of the governor of the state "or mayor of any city or village" for malfeasance or nonfeasance of official duties.

A bill requiring express companies and telegraph companies doing business in the state to reduce their rates was offered by Senator Clague.

Other important bills introduced: Limiting issues of stocks, bonds and certain certificates of indebtedness of corporations engaged as common carriers in the state, and to prohibit consolidation of such companies; providing that all contracts in writing expressing a consideration shall import a consideration; to establish a new judicial district to be known as the Twentieth judicial district; to provide for summer sessions of normal schools.

Eleven petitions in favor of county option were presented in the senate.

The senate passed ten bills, all comparatively unimportant.

In the House.

A petition signed by 370 school principals was received, asking for the erection of a college of education at the university. This number, it was claimed, represented 14,000 teachers in the state.

Representative Hollister introduced a bill requiring that hotels in the state must be kept in a sanitary condition. There must be individual towels, sheets and blankets must be of sufficient length and width to cover the bed and must be clean.

Wild animals and birds living on state forest preserves and parks must not be molested, under the terms of a bill introduced by Representative Knox.

Representative Randall introduced a bill requiring that all dogs in the state be muzzled from May to October of each year.

Under a bill introduced by Representative Sawyer a tax of one-half of 1 per cent is provided for all mortgages listed in the state.

The recovery of unlimited damages for death by a wrongful act is permitted under a bill introduced by Representative Nelson.

Resolutions eulogistic of the late M. D. Flower of St. Paul, who was a member of the house in 1905, were adopted, and as a further mark of respect the house adjourned until 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

St. Paul, Feb. 7.—Senator Wilson introduced a resolution calling for the appointment of a joint committee to prepare a plan for redistricting the judicial districts of the state. It was passed.

The bill providing for an increase in the salaries of the judges of the state was passed by a vote of 38 to 21. The bill provides that supreme court justices shall receive $7,000, district court judges in Ramsey, Hennepin and St. Louis counties $6,000, and other district court judges $5,000.

The eight-hour law is amended in a bill offered by Senator Fosseen by inserting in the provision for eight hours the words: "or employed in manual labor in any capacity in any of the public or private institutions of the state."

Senator Nelson introduced a bill for the establishment and election of county school boards and prescribing their duties and powers.

Other bills introduced: To authorize cities to acquire, construct, own, operate and lease public utilities, and to provide the means therefor; to prohibit discrimination by wholesale dealers in coal, providing for registry of orders and prescribing penalties for the violation of the act.

The senate spent some time in committee of the whole on general orders, and at 1:10 o'clock adjourned until 10:30 Thursday.

In the House.

The nomination of United States senators by a direct primary is provided for in a bill introduced by Representative Saugstad. Under the bill the legislature would still have the power and duty of electing the senators, but the result would be practically the same as if they were elected by the people direct. The bill also provides for the nomination of all state, congressional and county officers by direct vote of the people.

Representative Higgins introduced a memorial to congress asking for an amendment to the federal constitution to permit the election of senators by direct vote of the people.

A bill by Representative Spencer provides for the appointment of a weighmaster in each county, whose duty it shall be to inspect scales and measures used in weighing commodities offered for sale.

A bill by Representative W. I. Nolan authorizes cities to acquire, construct, own, operate and lease public utilities.

The house passed the bill authorizing the university regents to deed land at the farm school to the federal government for a weather bureau building. The bill has already passed the senate.

Philadelphia, Feb. 7.—The Congressional Limited train on the Pennsylvania railroad ran through this city last night at terrific speed, with the engineer, Joseph Toms, dead at the throttle. Shortly after the train left West Philadelphia Harry Michner noticed the speed of the train was unusual. Michner called to Toms, but received no answer, and when the train rushed through Fairmount Park and neared North Philadelphia the fireman climbed over the big boiler into the engineer's cab to find Toms dead with his hand on the throttle. His head was hanging out of the cab window and had been crushed by striking some object along the road. Michner brought the train to a stop at North Philadelphia, where a new engineer was secured.

The legislature is still busy introducing bills, but as yet few have been passed.

The new pure food law is making some hard hits but none so hard as on the patent medicine business.

There are liable to be several large cracks in the northwestern Canada land boom after the cold weather is over.

A bill has been introduced in the legislature limiting the granting of a saloon license to every five hundred inhabitants.

The Farmers meeting scheduled for February 22nd promises to be a rare treat for those farmers who are seeking information.

Jack Frost and his friend, The Blizzard, have been extremely impartial the past week and all parts of the country have suffered.

The extreme cold weather should be about all over for this winter as we seldom have long periods of extremely cold weather after the middle of February.

The newest scare is the prospect of a war between this country and Japan. Some white country will have to give them a good thumping soon, and it may be this country.

DAIRYING IN THE RED RIVER VALLEY

IN ITS INFANCY.—This business is in its infancy in this part of the state; even the best established districts have just waked up to the importance of dairying and discovered that this section of the country has passed the time of successful wheat raising when carried on exclusively. It is not only that the dairy business has to be taken up, but conditions are particularly favorable for this kind of work. Wild grasses grow abundantly and clover and corn of superior quality are raised. There was a time here, the same as in other parts of the state, when it was thought that clover and corn could not be raised in the Red River Valley; but the many big crops of fine red clover have started the raising of this valuable fodder for dairy stock and silos have been put up and filled with ease from a small acreage of corn, proving that fodder corn can be raised in great abundance and is a vast improvement over other ways of providing food for stock.

GROWING RAPIDLY.—While the creamery business in the Red River valley is in its infancy, yet it is a big infant, for during the past year nearly $2,000,000 worth of butter was produced in this district. While this is not strictly from the Red River valley, it comprises by far the greatest portion. It is also growing very rapidly, for the output the past year was fully 30 per cent greater than the year previous, and there are many things that indicate that the increase will be even greater the year 1907. Outside of this increase in the older creameries about thirty new creameries have been established during the last two years and about a half dozen are in the process of organizing at the present time.

Much the same causes have brought about dairying here as in other places. The various educational forces employed by the state in bringing about a better knowledge of farming and showing how important dairying is to well manage a farm, have had strong and far-reaching influence in bringing dairying to the front the most general being the failure of the one crop system to return enough for the labor expended; and the nice income that the progressive dairymen are getting from their cows is leading others to adopt the same method of farming.

The plan of building and operating a creamery does not vary much from that in older dairy sections but the buildings lately put up are of modern plans and equipment as far as is within the means of the community. In things peculiar to our own conditions we have had to work our own way out and we have enough problems left yet to keep us busy for some time to come.

THE HAND SEPARATOR.—We have had to adopt the hand separator system with its evils, practically all over the Red River valley, and our problem is to make the best use of it and work up to the highest standard of good butter production. Some progress has been made in getting better cream, but it is still the problem that looms up before us. In the light of the discussion on the hand separator question at the recent convention at Minneapolis it is exceedingly reckless of me to say anything in favor of the hand separator without first providing a bodyguard, but I can assure you that it would be just as risky for anyone to come to the Red River valley and say what was said at the Minneapolis convention. The fact is we have the hand separator with us and we know that the dairy business in the Red River valley would not have been carried on much more than half as extensively had it not been for the hand separator. It generally takes a territory extending eight or ten miles in every direction to operate a creamery in a new territory and often it extends twelve or fifteen miles. Attempts to build up the business on the whole milk plan have failed when tried, and we have come to look on the hand separator as a blessing to our section of the state. Whether the development of the dairy business is going to lay the hand separator on the scrap pile is a matter on which I dare not venture a prophecy.

TEST ASSOCIATIONS.—There is one thing, however, which we can prophecy regarding the Red River valley and I don't know but that it applies equally well to other places, and that is, if we want any improvement we have to work for it. Many are working for improved conditions, and especially are the buttermakers using every opportunity that presents itself to increase the income from the cow. Much has been said and done towards getting the farmers interested in keeping a record of their cows' work, and this is a foundation for the work commenced in organizing test associations. There are many progressive dairymen in the Red River valley, and it is hoped the test associations will be a success, as they will not only improve the stock, but greater interest will be created in the dairy work so that better care and better feed will be given the dairy animals and the organized condition will allow more observation of the neighbors' work and dissemination of other information along up-to-date dairy lines.

The change from practically no dairying only a few years ago to the condition today when butter is being looked upon as the main income from the farm is a great change, but the opportunity which Red River valley conditions afford for improvement gives hope for even greater changes in the future.

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is hereby given, that on the eleventh day of March, 1907, at two o'clock p. m. at the office of the county auditor in the city of Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county, Minnesota, I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the Ditch No. 28 of Red Lake county, established by the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, state of Minnesota, by their order bearing date the ninth day of January, 1907, viz:

For the work as one job, and also for one or more sections of 100 feet each, and also for one or more of the construction jobs, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes as shown by the report of the engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet, and from thence, successively, up stream to the one including the source, said sections being numbered from No. 0 to No. 112, inclusive, to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, and that bids are invited for said work, said work to be completed within the time required, and in the manner specified in said Engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent over and above the estimate cost of the construction, in any case, as stated in the said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond to be approved by the auditor of said county, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract, and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file, and may be seen at my office.

The approximate amount of work to be done in the construction of such ditch is as follows: The excavation and removal of 22,411 cubic yards of earth the same to be placed along the west side of said ditch from station "60" to station "98" and at all other points the material shall be placed along the side of the ditch and within the right of way thereof in such form as may be required by the engineer.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the auditor of said county, for not less than ten per cent of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

Dated January 15, 1907.

JOHN B. O'BRIEN,
County Auditor,
(Seal.) Red Lake county,
State of Minnesota.

Notice of Hearing on Petition for Formation of New District.

Whereas, a petition has been filed with the county board of the county of Red Lake, signed and acknowledged by a majority of the freeholders who reside in the proposed new district herein described, and who are entitled to vote at school meetings in their respective districts, and duly verified by the affidavit of one of the residents of said proposed new district, praying for the organization of a new school district out of the territory hereinafter described, to-wit:

All of sections 1 and 12, and the east half of section 2 in township 152, range 40, also section 36 in township 153, range 40, and the said board of county commissioners have appointed a time and place for a hearing upon said petition as by law required;

Now therefore,

NOTICE

is hereby given, that a hearing upon said petition will be had, at a meeting of the said board, commencing upon the 26th day of February, A. D. 1907, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at the office of the county auditor in the city of Red Lake Falls in said county, at which time and place the said county board will hear arguments of all persons interested, for or against the proposed organization of said new school district.

By order of the county board of Red Lake county, Minn.

(County Auditor's Seal.) By JOHN B. O'BRIEN,
County Auditor and Ex-officio Clerk of Board.

Putting the feet in hot water will invariably cure a headache, from whatever cause it arises. The head aches when, from any cause the little blood vessels in the brain are too full. Putting the feet in hot water draws the blood from the head. Sleeplessness, by the way, results from the same cause—that is, the blood vessels in the brain being overcharged—and this may be prevented by a hot foot-bath the last thing at night.—Ex.

The Great Northern passenger failed to arrive last Saturday for the first time this winter and we were without a train from Friday until Monday. Ten years ago we had a winter similar to this one and we were lucky to see a train once a week. During the latter part of January and the first of February, 1897, the train failed to arrive for seventeen days. In fact this branch of the Great Northern ten years ago was run a good deal like they run the Soo at present.

Crookston Times: A. Sand who is the Swedish Lutheran minister of St. Hilaire passed through this city this morning enroute home from Kennedy where he has been attending the meeting of the Red River district of Swedish Lutheran churches. He reports a very interesting and encouraging meeting. There are 31 churches in the district and most of them were represented. The reports from the different churches of the district showed that they are all in a flourishing condition.

About the biggest thing in the blizzard line we have had this season started doing business last Friday evening and continued all night and all day Saturday. We have too many poplar groves and brush in this part of the country for a storm to do real good work, but this one really did make a creditable showing. The storm was followed by a cold snap which was also trying to make a season's record. Although the weather has been about the worst, we have heard of no privations or suffering.

A Pioneer Gone.

The funeral of Mrs. Halvor O. Skottem took place last Monday afternoon from the United Norwegian Lutheran church, Rev. L. W. Nordhus Walnum officiating.

Mrs. Halvor. O. Skotom came to the township of Rocksbury with her husband in 1880 and took a homestead on the banks of the Red Lake river where she has resided continuously for the past 27 years. She was taken sick on January 20th and died on January 30th. Besides her husband and seven children she leaves a large number of warm friends to mourn her loss.

Many Took Exams.

Gazette: The semi-annual teachers' examinations held in the three principal cities of the county Thursday, Friday and Saturday were fairly well attended, and County Superintendent McAnulty is busy getting his reports out for the state superintendent.

Thirty-four took the examinations here; twenty at St. Hilaire and forty-three at Thief River Falls, a total of ninety seven, which is a few less than took the February examinations last year.

Superintennent McAnulty reports that all but about twenty schools in the county have engaged teachers for the spring term and that prospects for a successful school year were never better.

FEBRUARY 22nd

Under auspices of the Farmers Club.

The speakers are practical men and the matter under consideration will be along practical lines.

The meeting will open at 10 a.m. and free dinner tickets will be given out at the opening of the meeting.

Great deal of interest is manifested in the meeting already and it will be the largest and most successful Farmers meeting ever held in Red Lake county.

Celebrating the 5th anniversary of the organization of the St. Hilaire creamery.

Men Are Scarce.

Kelliher Journal: At no time during the past year have men for work in the lumbering camps been as scarce as at the present time. The demand for men for all kinds of labor simply can not be supplied, and this condition hold true not only in the vicinity of Kelliher but throughout northern Minnesota. Employment agencies in the Twin Cities, Duluth and elsewhere are receiving more orders than they can fill, and the "man catchers" sent out by local logging contractors, return empty-handed or with but a small portion that are needed to complete the logging.

Besides the scarcity of labor, the great depth of snow is proving disastrous and makes effective work in the woods impossible. It is likely that the winter's cut will fall far short of the intended supply. In many parts of the state camps are being closed for the winter, it being found impossible to accomplish the work.

A Canadian Winter.

The following press dispatch would indicate that all was not lovely in the far northwest. Farmers who are contemplating moving to the Canadian northwest will do well to read and ponder over the following:

SASKATOON, Sask., Feb. 4.—A report was received here tonight from Dundurn, northern Saskatchewan to the effect that three American settlers had been found frozen to death north of that town and several others are in terrible condition. So far no facts are known, but two constables of the Royal Northwest mounted police were immediately sent out to investigate the case and take supplies to other settlers in the vicinity who are unable to get around on account of the deep snow and excessive cold. This is the district where the thermometer fell to 64 below zero last week.

A Good Start.

"The output of the St. Hilaire creamery so far this year is nearly double that of a year ago," says Buttermaker George L. Austin, and the prospects are bright for a continued increase during the year. When asked what he estimated the total increase would amount to for the year Mr. Austin put it at $15,000, or a $65,000 total for 1907 and he is of the opinion that this is a conservative estimate. $75,000 would sound good; why not make a try for it?

If In Doubt.

If at any time you feel troubled, feel in fact as if there was something you should do that you have left undone, or if at any time you have a feeling of unrest and uneasiness that you cannot properly account for, it might be well for you to try the following simple remedy: Just drop into the SPECTATOR office and pay up your subscription and see if you don't feel relieved. We know we will. Try it.

More Exciting.

Tout—Has Jones quit the race track because of reform, or what? Jockey—Reform nothing! He wanted something more uncertain to bet his money on. Tout—But what could be find more uncertain than a horse race? Jockey—He's taken to betting whether or not the weather man will correctly predict the day's condition.—Florida Times-Union.

Not Cheap.

Aged Husband—You are going to ruin me with your extravagance. You don't need that cape any more than a cat needs two tails. How often have I told you never to buy anything because it is cheap? LETTER FROM THE WEST

CLEARBROOK, Wash., Jan. 31, '07,

Dear Sir and Readers:—I will again renew my yearly custom by writing a few lines for your valuable paper which comes to hand very regular.

It is with pleasure to note the advancement your community is making in several lines of farming, especially in dairying, and the prices you are obtaining for you dairy product.

It appears from your last several issues that you have been having an unusually hard winter, but so have we. With the beginning of the new year the snow began to come and part of it is here yet. The thermometer has often been down to 20 and 15 above zero and twice down to zero which is a very uncommon thing for this evergreen state, especially so here on the coast within a few miles of salt water.

In your issue of January 19 I noted that a certain party by the name of G. Smith, of Euclid, had interviewed you in regard to a Farmers Telephone company, which certainly is a project you should help along.

We have a Farmers' Mutual Telephone company in operation here, of which I am a member and have an instrument in my home, and the whole family is delighted with it.

By having a telephone in the house it seems you are no longer living out in the country, where you see or hear nobody, but you have brought all the neighbors and the nearby towns right up to your very door or within speaking distance.

For the benefit of your readers who are studying on this matter I will tell you what our system cost us. This line was built about a year ago and we now have over 1,000 members, with 700 instruments installed so far. To start with, each member in order to be a shareholder pays $5 cash and sets down 10 cedar poles on the telephone line 24 feet long, 6 inches across at the top and 160 feet apart. The company then strings the wire free. We buy our own instrument which costs $12.50, and then we are ready to talk to anyone. We pay 50c per month to the company to keep up the expenses of keeping the line in repair and for central girls, etc.

To have a telephone in a farming community must not be considered a luxury; it is in fact economical and labor saving many times the cost of the outlay.

If you should want a carload or two of red cedar poles such as described above I can deliver them to you f. o. b. car here for 3 cents per running foot. A car would hold about 125 poles, more or less.

The cutting down of our great timber belts seems to be the top ambition of our capitalists and it will be but a short while until we have no timber to cut. Lumber and cedar shingles are advancing right along by the manufacturers, then add commission and transportation rates and by the time the product reaches the far off farmer, the back bone of the country, he will have reason to believe that he is no longer the back bone but a swallowed up pill in a rich man's throat.

Give all your readers and my friends my best regards.

Yours very truly,
Swan Anderson.

Will Open St. Paul Office:

To the Readers of the St. Hilaire SPECTATOR:—

Through the columns of the St. Hilaire Spectator, I wish to notify the public generally that on or about March 15th next I intend to move to St. Paul and open up a real estate office from which I will handle lands in both Minnesota and North Dakota, as the facilities are much better to handle a large business of that kind from that point. I will continue to advertise Red Lake county and on an even larger scale than I have ever done before and figure on doing a big business in Red Lake county lands this year. My extensive advertising makes it necessary for me to have an office at a central point but I want it understood that I propose to continue running my Plummer office just the same.

My new price list will be out about March 1st and all that wish to sell their land in Red Lake county had better call at my office and list their lands as soon as possible in order that it may appear in this new price list. I may say that I shall continue to give Red Lake county lands especial attention and will use every effort to dispose of all lands listed with me.

Very truly yours,
Julius Pleth.

Notice of Hearing on Petition for Formation of New District.

Whereas, a petition has been filed with the county board of the county of Red Lake, signed and acknowledged by a majority of the freeholders who reside in the proposed new district herein described, and who are entitled to vote at school meetings in their respective districts, and duly verified by the affidavit of one of the residents of said proposed new district, praying for the organization of a new school district out of the territory hereinafter described, to-wit:

The south half of sections 22, 23 and 24, and the whole of sections 25, 26, 27, 34, 35 and 36, township 154, range 42, and the said board of county commissioners have appointed a time and place for a hearing upon said petition as by law required;

Now therefore,

NOTICE

Is hereby given, that a hearing upon said petition will be had at a meeting of the said board, commencing upon the 26th day of February, A. D. 1907, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at the office of the county auditor in the city of Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, in said county at which time and place the said county board will hear arguments of all persons interested, for or against the proposed organization of said new school district.

{ County Auditor's Seal. } By John B. O'Brien, County Auditor and Ex-officio Clerk of Board.

FEARFUL BURNING SORES.

Boy in Misery 12 Years—Eczema in Rough Scales, Itching and Inflamed—Cured by Cuticura.

"I wish to inform you that your wonderful Cuticura has put a stop to twelve years of misery I passed with my son. As an infant I noticed on his body a red spot and treated same with different remedies for about five years, but when the spot began to get larger I put him under the care of doctors. Under their treatment the disease spread to four different parts of his body. The longer the doctors treated him the worse it became. During the day it would get rough and form like scales. At night it would be cracked, inflamed, and badly swollen, with terrible burning and itching. When I think of his suffering, it nearly breaks my heart. His screams could be heard downstairs. The suffering of my son made me full of misery. I had no ambition to work, to eat, nor could I sleep. One doctor told me that my son's eczema was incurable, and gave it up for a bad job. One evening I saw an article in the paper about the wonderful Cuticura and decided to give it a trial. I tell you that Cuticura Ointment is worth its weight in gold, and when I had used the first box of Ointment there was a great improvement, and by the time I had used the second set of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent, my child was cured. He is now twelve years old, and his skin is as fine and smooth as silk. Michael Steinman, 7 Sumner Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., April 16, 1905."

Proof Positive.

Daughter—But what have you against James? Won't he make me a good husband?

Father—He's a fool, and—anyway, he's only after your money.

Daughter—Oh, father: I know he would marry me without the money.

Father—There, you see. He's a bigger fool even than I thought.

Agreed With Him.

"I have many beautiful thoughts," said the long-haired person, who imagines he is a born poet, "that I propose to give to the public."

"That's a good idea, young man," growled the cynical old man. "It's certain you could never induce the public to buy them."

THE WHITE PLAGUE

SYSTEMATIC WARFARE WAGED TO WIPE OUT CONSUMPTION.

Organized effort is now being made throughout the United Stated to fight consumption. A warning is given against intemperate habits, which increase the liability to consumption, while spitting is public places is deprecated, as the disease is frequently contracted from dried sputum.

Colds should not be neglected, as they leave the lungs in a peculiarly receptive condition for the tubercular germ. The following simple formula will break up a cold in twenty-four hours. A leading authority on lung trouble says that when prepared from pure ingredients, it will cure any cough that is curable.

Take half ounce Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure); two ounces glycerine and half pint good whisky. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

The ingredients can be secured from any good prescription druggist at small cost, and to avoid subsitution should be purchased separately and mixed in your own home.

Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) is put up in half-ounce vials for dispensing. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper, with the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, O.—plainly printed thereon. There are many rank imitations of Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), which are put out under various names, such as Concentrated Oil of Pine, Pine Balsam, etc. Never accept these as a substitute for the Pure Virgin Oil of Pine, as they will invariably produce nausea and never effect the desired result.

An Old Saying.

"But you have put down my expenses for the time I wasn't here," he said.

"Yes, sir," said the cook, "but you see, one person more or less doesn't really make any difference."

Caution.

Imitations have been placed upon the market so closely resembling Allcock's Plasters in general appearance as to be well calculated to deceive. It is, however, in general appearance only that they compare with Allcock's, for they are not only lacking in the best elements which have made Allcock's so efficient, but are often harmful in their effects. Remember that Allcock's are the original and only genuine porous plasters—the best external remedy known—and when purchasing plasters the only safe way is to always insist upon having Allcock's.

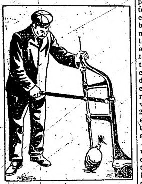
THE ENGLISH SYSTEM OF ROOT SELECTION

It Has Helped to Increase the Sugar Content of Beets to a Surprising Extent.

Some years ago there was inaugurated in connection with root crops in England, by a London seed firm, what is known as the "Carter" method of root selection, which is based to some extent upon the methods in use in Europe, supplemented and improved by the accumulated experience of the firm throughout the greater portion of last century. The new method of root selection as propounded by the originators, and which will prove of special benefit to American farmers, embraces as its main and cardinal features the following distinct tests: the specific gravity or density of the entire root, the density of the expressed juice, the sugar content and the amount of dry matter. It is preeminently a reasonable assumption, and one that cannot be gainsaid, that the higher the specific gravity the better the quality. The principle underlying the term "specific" gravity, or relative density, and the method adopted in determining it, may be explained simply in the following way: Any body floating in water displaces exactly its own weight of water, and when quite immersed displaces its own volume; therefore, when we know the weight and volume of a body, the density is readily determined by dividing its weight by its "water" bulk. In the illustration referring to the density of roots, in the left-hand figure, it will be observed that the root is floating in water, the measure glass showing a heavy line at the figure 8, which is the weight indication of the root. The stop-cock of the vessel is closed, the root pressed gently under the surface, and when perfectly at rest the stop-cock is opened and the rise of the liquid overflows into the smaller vessel at the side until it reaches the figure 10, which in this case, is the volume indication, therefore, 8-10 equals .8 specific gravity. The center diagram of the same illustration shows, at the bottom of the vessel, a root that is heavier than water, and its volume registers eight on the measure glass; it is thence transferred to a liquid of which the density has been increased; in this the root floats as seen, and the relative density is then calculated. In these experiments it has been considered that, in the density of the root, as a whole, the quantity of water and number of air cells are determining factors, for it is their presence that consititutes the disturbing element which may imperil the longevity of the root and give rise to decay.



"Coring" a Root.

In keeping roots over the winter, many may show signs of decomposition, though not very apparent externally, and it is the denser and heavier roots that have invariably proved to be the best keepers. During recent years many determinations of the density of the juice of both turnips and beets have been made, and it is claimed that the results are such as to be indicative of the keeping qualities of the root as well as of its feeding value; also by this means the stock is improved by scrupulously rejecting for seed purposes all those roots of low specific gravity. In the early stages of investigation the amount of sugar present in turnips and beets was deterined in the following way: The first step was to prepare for analysis roots which might be considered fairly representative of a large bulk. Two lots, each containing 40 or 50 roots of an average size, were taken and halved from crown to base, the halves divided again into quarters and then into eighths. One one-eighth section from each root was put into a pulping machine and thoroughly well-mixed. The pulp thus made provided material for the examinations required, the sugar content being determined both chemically and by means of the polariscope. When the separate lots were carefully sampled the average of the two was accepted as a fair test. The value of a test of this kind was very great, but at the same time it was obvious that for seed-growing purposes it was too drastic, for the whole root, as may be seen, was destroyed. In view of this wholesale destruction the apparatus pictured was brought into use, which enables a "core" to be extracted for analytical purposes out of the individual or "mother" root, leaving the same perfectly available for seed purposes, for if the extracted "core" prove to have attained a certain standard of excellence in the tests to which it has been subjected, the root is planted not one whit the worse for the operation of "coring." As the method of examination comprises four distinct tests representing four values, a system has been adopted whereby the combined qualities are registered under a common denominator. The combined qualities of the poorest beet reached only 10.15 per cent. of value, while those of the best amounted to 25.45 per cent. of value. These are two extremes, and they show at a glance the necessity of discarding the one and fostering the other.

The determination of the amount of water in roots is a somewhat tedious operation, and is as follows: A portion of the core is cut quickly into very thin slices, weighed and spread out on filter papers to dry, or strung up on a thread and put into a special oven heated to 55 degrees or 60 degrees Centigrade, careful attention being paid that not the slightest atom is lost. When dried and brittle, this is ground to powder, and the operation is finished when the powdered dry core ceases to lose weight. The various records of the great weight of roots grown per acre give one an extremely erroneous impression as to the actual amount of food produced. The same is true of all sorts which perhaps at best only contain about 12 per cent. of solid matter, many containing, maybe, only half that quantity. The quantity of water contained in different roots is somewhat as follows: Beets contain of water 85 per cent. to 94 per cent. In the former case the dry matter would equal 15 per cent., and in the latter six per cent. Turnips contain 86 per cent. to 92 per cent. of water, yellow turnips 90 per cent. to 92 per cent., white turnips 92 per cent. to 95 per cent. These figures indicate the difference in feeding value between a close, firm, hard, texture on the one hand, and a soft, spongy root on the other. There cannot be the least doubt that the best roots for seed production are those selected by the combined tests of density of root and juice, and the quantity of sugar and dry matter.

The Blue Cow.—Pessimism in a cow is as bad as in a man. It results from bad quarters, bad feed, and slipshod management.

Four Hints Worth Trying.—If you have some faded cotton goods that you wish to bleach white, wash in boiling cream of tartar water. Add a teaspoon of vinegar to the water that the fish is washed in and a new and delightful flavor will be given it. Put a small bottle of kerosene (uncorked) in the bottom of your clock and you will not have a bill for cleaning and the clock will run like new. If anyone is troubled with nausea after taking ether, try this simple and effective remedy: Saturate a cloth or sponge with vinegar and allow the ether patient to inhale it.

A Cheap Brooder.—A cheap brooder for young ducks can be made out of a small box placed on its bottom. Put a quart flat bottle filled with hot water in the center of the box. Cover it with brown paper, and then put sawdust, chaff, or straw over it. This will provide warmth for the ducklings, but is only to be used when small numbers are reared or in cases where proper brooders cannot be procured.

For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. MRS. JAMES CHESTER

MOTHERHOOD
The first requisite of a good mother is good health, and the experience of maternity should not be approached without careful physical preparation, as a woman who is in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution.
Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from native roots and herbs, more successfully than by any other medicine because it gives tone and strength to the entire feminine organism, curing displacements, ulceration and inflammation, and the result is less suffering and more children healthy at birth. For more than thirty years has been the standby of American mothers in preparing for childbirth.
Note what Mrs James Chester, of 427 W. 35th St., New York says in this letter:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"I wish every expectant mother knew about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A neighbor who had learned of its great value at this trying period of a woman's life urged me to try it and I did so, and I cannot say enough in regard to the good it did me. I recovered quickly and am in the best of health now."
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly a successful remedy for the peculiar weaknesses and ailments of women.
It has cured almost every form of Female Complaints, Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation, Ulcerations and Organic Diseases of Women and is invaluable in preparing for Childbirth and during the Change of Life.
Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women
Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free.

The Well Informed of the World.
A Knowledge of Forms, Knowledge of Functions and Knowledge of Products are all of the utmost value and in questions of life and health when a true and wholesome remedy is desired it should be remembered that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., is an ethical product which has met with the approval of the most eminent physicians and gives universal satisfaction, because it is a remedy of Known Quality, Known Excellence and Known Component Parts and has won the valuable patronage of millions of the Well Informed of the world, who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual use that it is the first and best of family laxatives, for which no extravagant or unreasonable claims are made.
This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent family laxative. As its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well Informed of the world to be the best we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of—Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects, always note, when purchasing the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package, whether you call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

MRS. EVELYN THAW TELLS HER STORY

TO SAVE HER HUSBAND SHE LAYS BARE INNERMOST SECRETS OF HER SOUL.

BLACK TREACHERY OF WHITE

New York, Feb. 8.—The defense of Harry K. Thaw under the direction of Attorney Delphin M. Delmas of California began to assume definite shape yesterday, and when an adjournment was taken testimony had been placed before the jury to the effect that Stanford White had been heard to make a threat to kill the defendant—coupling the threat with the display of a revolver; that Thaw's actions following the killing of White on the roof of Madison Square Garden was considered by several eye-witnesses that an uncle of the defendant was insane; that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw passed a note to her husband during dinner at the Cafe Martin on the evening of the tragedy; that District Attorney Jerome has this note, and refused, on the demand of the defense, to introduce it in evidence.

Threatened Thaw's Life.

The threat against Thaw's life was made two years and a half before the tragedy occurred. District Attorney Jerome objected to the introduction of the evidence, declaring the defense was not understood by him to be one of self-defense.

Mr. Delmas replied that the defense intended to take advantage of every legal defense allowed in the State of New York, be it insanity, self-defense or any other legitimate justification of the taking of human life.

Thursday's Proceedings.

New York, Feb. 9. — Evelyn Nesbit Thaw told her story yesterday. To save the life of her husband, charged with murder, she bared to the world the innermost secrets of her soul. It was the same story she told Harry Thaw in Paris in 1903, when he had asked her to become his wife—the confession of one who fell. There was an insurmountable barrier to her ever becoming the bride of the man she loved.

In the big witness chair she appeared but a slip of a girl, and she told the pitiful story of her eventful young life in a frank, girlish way.

Sad Story of Her Life.

As the young wife unfolded the narrative of her girlhood and told the early struggles of herself and her mother to keep body and soul together; of how she finally was able to earn a livelihood by posing for photographers and artists, she won the murmured sympathy of the throng which filled every available space in the big court room.

Then came the relation of the wreck of that girlhood at sixteen years of age.

Ruined by White.

It was the story of her meeting with Stanford White, the story of the sumptuous studio apartment, to which she had been enticed by the carefully planned strategem of her betrayer—the story of a glass of champagne, of black, whirling sensations and of mirrored bedroom walls. In short, she told all the story of how her ruin was accomplished.

"And this was Stanford White?"

The question came from Delphin M. Delmas, now conducting the defense of Harry Thaw.

"Yes, sir."

Harry Thaw Weeps.

The stillness of the great crowd was its tribute to the effect of the girl's story. Into the narrative there entered nothing of the woman of the world. Thaw, with his head buried in his hands, a handkerchief covering the eyes, bent over the table as he sobbed.

Mrs. Thaw was still on the stand, her direct examination uncompleted when the day was done.

Letters Introduced.

Once during the afternoon she was excused for an hour while Lawyer Frederick Longfellow was sworn to fix the date of certain letters written to him by Harry Thaw subsequent to the revelations Miss Nesbit had made to him in Paris.

The letters which eventually were offered in evidence after much objecting by Mr. Jerome are regarded as corroborative of Mrs. Thaw's testimony.

They also were offered as tending to show the state of mind of the defendant just after he had heard from her own lips the story of the girl he loved and her relations with the man it is claimed he killed as a result of insanity inherited in part and induced by a stress of circumstances.

Friday's Proceedings.

Picking up the threads of her life's story where she had dropped them the evening before, she brought the narrative down to her wedding in Pittsburg on April 4, 1905, and their return to New York following a honeymoon trip in the West. She declared she had heard White call to her on the street once after this, and that on another occasion he had followed her in a cab.

White Tried to Kiss Her.

Mrs. Thaw declared yesterday that Stanford White, during the year which followed her experience in the room of the mirrored walls, repeatedly sought to have her visit him alone, and on one occasion had attempted to kiss her.

"I told Harry," she said, "that Mr. White had begged me, had pleaded and cried and scolded and done everything he could to make me come to see him alone. I refused and told Mr. White I did not care to trust him."

After her return from Europe and during the months she would not see Harry Thaw, "because of the dreadful things Mr. White and his friends told about him," she declared Thaw accused her of improper relations with the architect.

"I told him it was a lie and that I had not," she testified.

The defense had Mrs. Thaw tell of another incident which has been cited in her life—her acquaintance with "Jack" Barrymore, the actor.

Barrymore Proposed Twice.

"I thought him very nice," she said; "and one day at Mr. White's studio he said, 'Evelyn, will you marry me?' I said, 'I don't know.' He asked me a second time, and again I said, 'I don't know.' Mr. White told me I would be very foolish to marry Mr. Barrymore, and my mother said so, too, and we all quarreled and the upshot of the whole thing was that Mr. White said I ought to be sent away to school, and I was sent to New Jersey."

EXPERT SAYS HE WAS INSANE WHEN HE KILLED STANFORD WHITE.

New York, Feb. 13. — Answering a hypothetical question covering every detail of the testimony up to this time in the Thaw trial, including Mrs. Nesbit Thaw's narration of her life history to the defendant, Dr. Charles G. Wagner, superintendent of the state hospital for the insane at Binghamton, N. Y., declared on the witness stand late yesterday that in his opinion Harry K. Thaw did not know that the act was wrong when he shot and killed Stanford White. Dr. Wagner stepped aside for later cross-examination by District Attorney Jerome, and as the court adjourned for the day it was announced that the defense would proceed with the testimony of other alienists this morning.

Note Is Introduced.

When young Mrs. Thaw was called to the stand Mr. Delmas renewed his demand of Wednesday last, that the note which was passed by Mrs. Thaw to her husband at the Cafe Martin the night of the tragedy should be produced. Mr. Jerome upon the occasion of the first demand had remained silent. Yesterday he was on his feet at once, saying he would send for the slip of paper. It was brought from his office, was identified by Mrs. Thaw and then read by Mr. Delmas, as follows:

"The b—— was here a minute ago, but went out again."

"B" Stands for Blackguard.

Mrs. Thaw testified that "the b——" meant "the blackguard," as Thaw always referred to Stanford White, whom she had seen on the balcony of the cafe.

The other essential point Mrs. Thaw was allowed to bring out in her testimony was the statement that the defendant never carried a pistol except in New York city. She was asked many other questions, embodying various stories she had discussed with Thaw, including the alleged fate of a girl known to them as "The Pie Girl," at the hands of Stanford White, but Mr. Jerome blocked every question with a maintained objection.

Clash Between Lawyers.

New York, Feb. 14.—District Attorney Jerome and Delphin Delmas came together late yesterday in the first serious clash between counsel in the Thaw trial, and the California attorney, who is directing the defense, took exceptions to certain statements of the prosecuting officer and had inserted in the record of the case a protest against "the misconduct of the learned district attorney."

Mr. Jerome hotly accused the defendant's counsel of trying to instill into the minds of the jury the implied suggestion that the operation performed upon Evelyn Nesbit in 1903, before Thaw took her to Europe, was "of a criminal nature," when, "as a matter of fact," he said, "it was for appendicitis."

Delmas Takes Exceptions.

Mr. Delmas called the attention of Justice Fitzgerald to this, saying that the district attorney was stating facts not in evidence, and that "a very serious exception must be taken to his remarks."

Dr. Britton D. Evans, superintendent of the state hospital for the insane at Morris Plains, N. J., was the witness, and he testified earlier in the day that he was of the opinion that Harry Thaw was insane at the time of the tragedy. He had been called upon to answer a long hypothetical question, in which reference had been made to "a serious if not capital operation" upon Miss Nesbit when the storm between counsel broke.

Thaw's Mind Was Unsound.

Justice Fitzgerald did not rule out any of the district attorney's remarks before the jury, and Mr. Delmas took care to have every exception he made "seriously noted." Mr. Jerome won his point, and the words "serious if not capital," as defining the operation, were withdrawn by Mr. Delmas.

Dr. Evans was by far the most satisfactory expert witness to the defense so far produced. He detailed to the jury his observations and examinations of Harry Thaw during eight visits to the prisoner in the Tombs and declared it to be his opinion that Thaw was suffering from "a brain storm or an explosive or fulminating condition of mental unsoundness" at the time he shot and killed Stanford White. Dr. Evans gave many and elaborate reasons for his opinion.

Telegraphers May Strike.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—The union telegraphers employed by the Western Union in Chicago will take a vote next Sunday on the question of going on a strike to enforce certain demands that have been made on the company.

Four Lost in Flood.

Columbus, Neb., Feb. 14. — The breaking of an ice gorge in the Loup river caused the water to rise over five feet in an hour. A family of four were drowned while attempting to escape to higher ground.

FEAR MISTRIAL IN THAW CASE

New York, Feb. 14.—The Thaw trial yesterday was limited to an afternoon session of less than two hours, the morning sitting of court having been abandoned because of the illness of the wife of one of the jurors—Joseph B. Bolton. Mr. Bolton was allowed to visit his home in company with two other jurors and court officers. He found his wife suffering from double pneumonia. If Mrs. Bolton's condition should continue so critical that her husband cannot be expected to give proper consideration to his duties there may be an indefinite postponement—all the other jurors meanwhile being locked up—or possibly a mistrial.

Dr. Britton D. Evans, superintendent of the state hospital for the insane at Morris Plains, N. J., was the only witness of the afternoon. He concluded his direct examination, and District Attorney Jerome reserved the right to cross-examine him at a later stage.

LONSDALE BANK QUITS.

Depositors Paid in Full—Not Enough Business to Warrant Continuing.

Faribault, Minn., Feb. 14.—The bank at Lonsdale, a new village in the northwestern part of Rice county, closed its doors yesterday and is winding up its affairs and going out of business for lack of support. All depositors were paid in full.

HELPLESS WOMEN BRUSHED ASIDE

PANIC-STRICKEN MEN ON WRECKED STEAMER CARE ONLY FOR OWN SAFETY.

CHARGE OF COWARDICE MADE

TERRIBLE TALES OF SUFFERING TOLD BY SURVIVORS OF THE DISASTER.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 14.—Terrible tales of suffering were brought here last night by some of the nineteen survivors of the steamer Larchmont, which went to the bottom in Block Island sound Monday night. One of the passengers asserted that in that awful hour of peril helpless women were thrust aside by men who cared only for their own safety.

Cowardice Is Charged.

The charge of cowardice was made by Fred Hiergessell, an eighteen-year-old lad of Brooklyn, N. Y. He said that not only were women left to their fate, but that Capt. McVey left the sinking ship in the first lifeboat; that some of the ship's employes filled the boats, to the exclusion of the passengers, and that at least one boat was without oars when it was put over the side.

Says Crew Did Duty.

Hiergessell's statement was not confirmed by any other survivor, but notwithstanding the fact that there was no one to corroborate him, he held to his story. President Dunbaugh issued a statement last night in which he said:

"The schooner was responsible for the collision. The officers and crew of the Larchmont are not to blame in any way. In view of the horrible condition which prevailed immediately after the accident I am satisfied that the men did all in their power to meet the situation as conscientious and honorable men."

More Bodies Found.

Block Island, N. J., Feb. 14.—Block Island had a brief respite yesterday from the scenes of death and suffering which followed the collision between the Joy line steamer Larchmont and the coal-laden schooner Harry Knowlton. The survivors of the wreck had been carried to the steamer Kentucky, which was to convey them to Providence for medical treatment. Fifty bodies also had been placed on board, and as the vessel steamed out of the harbor the residents returned to their homes to recover from the fatigue caused by their long vigil on the beach.

Twenty-two ice-covered bodies were recovered yesterday by fishermen. This makes a total of seventy-two bodies that have been recovered.

STOVE POLISH BLOWS UP.

Woman Is Probably Fatally Burned by Gasoline Flames.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, Feb. 14. — Mrs. Laura A. Endberg is at the point of death as the result of injuries received while polishing nickel on a hot stove. The polish, which contained gasoline, exploded, and the flames caught the sleeve of her dress. Her screams brought her son to her assistance, and his hands were badly burned in tearing the burning garments from his mother.

REWARD FOR ROBBER.

Gas Company Offers $300 for Arrest of Bogus Inspector.

Milwaukee, Feb. 14. — Because the man who assaulted and robbed Mrs. John W. Orr at her residence last Friday afternoon gained admission to the house by pretending to be an inspector of the company, the Milwaukee Gas company has offered a reward of $300 for his arrest. Mrs. Orr is still in a serious condition.

CHARGES AGAINST RAILROADS

DISCRIMINATION IN ALLOTMENT OF CARS—OTHER EVILS COMPLAINED OF.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 14.—Charges of discrimination in the allotment of freight cars to favored shippers, of long delays in the handling of freight, of grain elevators shut down or losing heavily because of inability to get cars, and that railroad companies were persistently trying to secure control of the grain and fuel business along their lines were made before the house committee on railroads yesterday by country grain dealers. The committee had up for consideration the reciprocal demurrage bill. A score or more representatives of the Farmers Grain Dealers' association appeared before the committee to urge legislation that they believe would relieve what they termed "intolrable conditions."

"The roads in Minnesota discriminate against shippers who advocate reform legislation along the lines of this bill," said Mr. Loftus, "and have forced many of them out of business."

DESERTS HER HUSBAND.

Granddaughter of Lincoln Has Had Enough of Baseball Husband.

Mount Pleasant, Iowa, Feb. 14. — Warren Beckwith yesterday received a decree of divorce from his wife, Jessie Lincoln Beckwith, granddaughter of Abraham Lincoln, on charge of desertion. Mrs. Beckwith is given the custody of their two children. There is to be no alimony. Jessie Lincoln, who is a daughter of Robert Lincoln, son of the martyred president, Abraham Lincoln, eloped with young Beckwith, a baseball player, some three years ago.

FINDS GREAT SUN SPOT.

Scientist Predicts Electrical Disturbances as Result.

Pittsburg, Feb. 14. — Prof. John A. Brashear of the Allegheny observatory announced yesterday the discovery of a great sun spot. He says, as a result, electrical disturbances will be experienced throughout the country about to-night. These disturbances, he further declares, may take the form of a display of aurora borealis, and telegraph and telephone communication may be seriously affected.

HAS CLEMENCEAU QUIT?

Rumor Says French Premier Has Offered Resignation.

Paris, Feb. 14.—There was a rumor on the bourse yesterday that Premier Clemenceau had resigned. The report could not be confirmed, but in well informed circles the premier's retirement under the present circumstances without awaiting an adverse vote in the chamber of deputies would not cause any surprise. He has been suffering for over a week from an attack of influenza.

LEAP FOR CAR IS FATAL.

Man Misses Ladder and Falls Beneath Wheels.

Aitkin, Minn., Feb. 14.—An unidentified man was killed here yesterday. He was trying to catch the ladder of a box car while the train was going at a good rate of speed. He missed the ladder and was drawn under the car and dragged some distance. When picked up he was dead and horribly mangled.

Bovey, Minn., Feb. 14.—George Zarich was crushed to death by a cave-in in the Canisto open pit mine.

TO FORCE YOUNG TO DISMISS SUIT

RAILROADS SEEK ORDER TO COMPEL ATTORNEY GENERAL TO DROP RATE SUIT.

THREE CASES NOW PENDING

ACTION TAKEN IN THE FEDERAL COURT TO STOP SUIT IN STATE COURT.

St. Paul, Feb. 14.—Judge William Lochren, in the United States circuit court yesterday granted an order directing General E. T. Young to show cause why he should not dismiss the mandamus suit which he instituted in the Ramsey county district court to compel the railroads in Minnesota to put in effect the commodity rates promulgated by the state railroad and warehouse commission. The Northern Pacific and the Chicago Great Western filed petitions in the action, but the other roads concerned also are going to file similar petitions.

Hearing Postponed.

The action against Mr. Young in regard to the mandamus proceedings was taken yesterday morning after a continuance had been secured of the injunction case of the railroads against the railroad and warehouse commission, to restrain the commission from enforcing the commodity rates. When the injunction suit was called Mr. Young and his assistants entered pleas that the state was not prepared to take up the matter at that time. After the question had been argued for about an hour it was agreed among the counsel and approved by the court that the case be continued until 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

Applies to Young.

It is urged by the counsel for the railroads that the restraining order applied to Mr. Young as well as to the commission, since it covers its employes or agents, but while the injunction suit was pending in the federal court Mr. Young instituted, on Feb. 11, the mandamus proceedings in the Ramsey county district court against the railroads.

There are now three cases pending in connection with the commodity rate schedule promulgated by the state railroad and warehouse commission.

ROADS MUST PAY 4 PER CENT.

Judge Hallam Holds That Two Roads Are Liable.

St. Paul, Feb. 14.—The Duluth & Northern Minnesota and the Minnesota & Northern Wisconsin railroads will have to pay the State of Minnesota a 4 per cent tax on their gross earnings for 1905, if the decision filed yesterday in the district court by Judge Hallam is affirmed by the supreme court.

In an action brought by Attorney General E. T. Young to enforce the payment of the tax it was contended by the railroads that the statute providing for the payment of a 4 per cent gross earnings tax did not apply to them for 1905, and that if it did so apply it was unconstitutional. The case came before the court at special term, Jan. 12.

BURNING THEIR HOMES.

Farmers Bunch Their Families and Burn Houses to Keep Warm.

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 14.—A delayed dispatch from Craik, Sask., says: "The fuel situation is acute. C. Cole, a farmer, cried when he found no coal here. J. C. Phillips, a farmer, has been burning manure; E. Shipman has burned wheat for months; T. B. Bruntin has torn down his barns and sheds for fuel. Three farmers at Long Lake have bunched together and are burning the other two's houses. Some have been in bed three days.

"Instances of the same character are heard on all sides. Horrible tales are reported every day."

FACES MURDER CHARGE.

Mrs. West, Head of Des Moines Baby Farm, Is Bound Over.

Des Moines, Feb. 14. — Mrs. Fred West, proprietor of the West lying-in hospital here, was bound over to the grand jury in $10,000 bonds on a charge of murder in the first degree. It is alleged that Mrs. West instructed a nurse to give Baby Jim—its parents are unknown—ten drops of laudanum to put it out of its misery.

Error Brings Suicide.

Milwaukee, Feb. 14. — Despondent because of a slight inaccuracy which had crept into an important piece of bridge work of which he had charge, Walter J. Fels, twenty-one years of age, a civil engineer, committed suicide.

Ten-year-old Hero.

White Marble Apartment Houses, One for Senators and One for Congressmen, Will Soon be Ready for Occupation.

Uncle Sam is building two apartment houses in Washington. They will be the most magnificent structures of their kind in this country, and will cost $2,500,000 apiece. Exclusively for use by congressmen, they will be to all intents and purposes detached wings of the capitol, though separated from the latter by several hundred feet. One of them will be occupied by senators and the other by representatives.

These official "congressional flats," as they might be called, will be devoted wholly to the personal convenience and comfort of the legislative occupants, who will be surrounded by every imaginable luxury. In effect, they will be huge hotels, each of them occupying more ground than the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, though not so high; and the dining rooms will be on a great scale and very handsome—though "guests" will be at liberty to have their meals served in their rooms by messengers on the government pay roll and in uniform, if they so desire. Also, there will be magnificent barber shops; and, indeed, the only regular hotel feature lacking will be bedrooms, all of the apartments being intended for daytime use merely—a fact, which, nevertheless, will not bar occupants from utilizing their quarters for sleeping purposes if they wish.

The two buildings, which are to be of white marble, will be exactly alike in respect to their exterior, and will not differ much so far as their interior is concerned. Flanking the capitol at either end, they will form with the latter a harmonious architectural whole, the great dome dominating the group as the central feature. It would suffice, then, to give a description of one, in order to convey a satisfactory idea of both—save for one or two differences, relating particularly to the number of rooms. In the southern flats, allotted to the lower house, there will be 410 rooms—one for each representative. On the other hand, in the northern flats the amount of space (comprising the whole of three floors) will be occupied by 99 apartments.

Now, at the present time there are in the house 391 members and delegates; so that 19 rooms will be left over for a future margin. In the senate there are 90, so that quarters for eight aditional senators from possible future states will be available. But, it will be observed, the smaller number of senators makes it practicable to supply them with much more commodious qaurters and, while each representative will have only one room, there will be for each senator an apartment in the proper sense of the word, comprising a room for himself, a slightly smaller room for his secretary, and a bathroom.

These senatorial apartments will be very handsomely decorated and furnished. A small army of uniformed messengers will be at hand to furnish the requisite service, and, with private staircases and private elevators for the exclusive use of the wearers of the toga, the whole outfit will be of the most comfortable, not to say luxurious description. Furnished private apartments in a white marble palace, with rent and all sorts of incidentals paid for by the government, are not by any means to be sneezed at, so to speak.

In earlier days, when more simple manners prevailed, congressmen were content to rub along with fewer comforts and conveniences. Though the capitol was a much smaller building than it is to-day, the space it afforded was made to serve for committee rooms and all other legislative purposes. But congress, of course, has grown numerically, and, though the capitol has been likewise greatly expanded, the wants of members of both houses have multiplied. For a good many years past every senator has insisted upon having his private suite, and, the committee rooms in the senate wing being too few, the Maltby building across the street, has been occupied for the purpose.

Meanwhile it has seemed to many representatives that they were not getting their share of the pie, as it were, and so they have insistently pushed a movement for the erection of a building outside, which would contain suitable quarters for themselves. Thus it was that eventually $5,000,000 was appropriated to put up the two great apartment houses here described—the senate naturally insisting that the upper house should not be left out.

"We are a most wasteful and extravagant nation," said the Barnard college girl as she sprinkled damp tea leaves over a rug, preparing to sweep it. "This is what we do with our tea leaves. Then we throw them away. In England many of the well-to-do families dry the tea leaves and sell them to the grocers, who sell them to the poor people in the neighborhood."

Senator Hale Objected.

Senator Eugene Hale, of Maine, is a stickler for tradition and custom in the senate and objects to anything new creeping in. He has succeeded to the place occupied by the late Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, as the lecturer of those who start innovations. Senator McCumber had given notice that on a certain day he would call up a bill. Instantly Hale was on his feet.

"I should like to ask right here," Senator Hale said, "why, because a senator gives notice, he can bring up a bill. There is nothing in the history of the senate, there is nothing in the precedents, to sustain. The clerks have fallen into a fashion, if a senator gives notice of his intention of making a speech on a certain day, either to get all his friends here or keep them away—I know not which—of journalizing it. It should not be.

"Let the senator say he will try to get up his bill and I will help him," Senator Hale said, as he sat down, pleased with a duty done.

Little Acts of Kindness.

"There are people," said an old divine, "who lead us heavenward, but they stick pins in us all the way."

THE VALUE OF DRAINAGE IS BEING DEMONSTRATED

More Than Eighty-eight Miles of Main Ditch Constructed at Cost to State of $80,000.

In an article on drainage in Minnesota, published in the Pioneer Press, Prof. William R. Hoag, engineer to the state drainage commission, shows how land that was condemned as useless swamp has been rendered possible of utilization for agricultural purposes, through the removal of excess of water contained in the soil. Prof. Hoag says in part:

"At a convention held in Crookston in 1886 funds were raised with which to make a topographical survey and plan a complete system of drainage for the whole valley.

"Mr. J. T. Fanning of Minneapolis was given general charge of the work and his report showed that about 275 miles of main ditches would be needed. He estimated their cost at $750,000. Unsuccessful attempts were made with the legislatures of 1887, 1889 and 1891 for state aid to carry out this great public work. Mr. Hill showed his faith in the project by contributing at the start $25,000 with which to make a beginning.

EMMONS DITCH, FREEBORN COUNTY, MINN.,
F. H. Fisk, Engineer.

"In 1893 legislative approval was gained, a commission was created and given $100,000 with which to begin the work. Later appropriations enabled the commission, under the wise and efficient administration of the late Ezra G. Valentine of Breckenridge, its president, and O. H. Hoffman of Minneapolis, its engineer, to construct 125 miles of main ditch. These ditches, varying in length from three to thirteen miles, were located where the greatest damage from overflow was occurring, from Kittson county on the north to Traverse county on the south. The Sand Hill River ditch, in Polk county, was the largest of the system, costing more than $22,000 and requiring the moving of over 200,000 cubic yards of earth. The material taken from this one ditch would make a road grade two feet high and sixteen feet wide over thirty-three miles in length. This ditch when running full carries 320,000 gallons per minute. At this rate the water falling upon one square mile in an ordinary rain lasting twenty-four hours would be carried away in less than one hour.

NELSON DITCH, FARIBAULT COUNTY,
F. H. Fisk, Engineer.

"The last of these Red river state ditches was dug in 1898, being the Middle River ditch in Marshall county.

"In 1897 the legislature created a commission called the state drainage commission to care for the repair of the whole system. The writer was appointed engineer of the board and has made annual inspections of the system to date.

"The report of the inspections from year to year showed that most of the ditches were maintaining their original capacity; some were increasing while a few were gradually filling up, a process not unusual nor unexpected where the slope was small and where the water from a sandy loam soil, carrying more or less fine sand, was discharged into the ditch.

Counties Make Urgent Repairs.

"The most needed repairs, as recommended by the inspecting commission, have been made by the counties receiving the benefits. Six of the ditches after the first few years of their working, became much reduced in their carrying capacity by the gradual accumulation of sand in the bottom, especially along the lower course, and the coulee into which they emptied. The commission reported the condition of these ditches and estimated that $20,000 would be required to fully restore them and to make a two-mile extension to one large ditch, Felton ditch, in Clay county, and a half-mile extension to the Vega ditch, in Marshall county; these two being the most in need of an enlarged outlet and requiring more than half of the $20,000 estimated for the whole improvement.

"Only $7,000 having been made available for this work, an effort was made to have the several interested counties join with the state and share the expense of making the needed repairs and extensions. This plan, however failed, and the commission apportioned the $7,000 among six ditches, making extensions to each varying from a quarter to a half-mile in length. These extensions now have been in service two seasons, and an inspection marked change in the efficiency of these ditches. The Rabbit river ditch in Traverse county, the Whisky creek in Clay county and the Borup ditch in Norman county, show the greatest improvement.

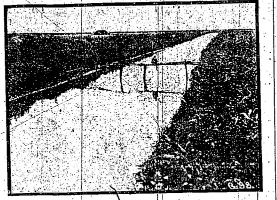
"The benefits attending all this earlier work on the part of the state have been two-fold. The first and that for which they were dug was an immediate physical benefit. On this point good testimony appears in the 'Report of the Board of Drainage Commissioners' for the year ending Dec. 31, 1901. On page 23 the inspection engineer says:

"'The immediate results of drainage has forced itself upon the attention of your engineer by the remarkable change coming to the farms situated within the influence of the ditches. Your engineer has traveled by team over dry land along many of the ditches during the present inspection, where three years before he was obliged to travel on foot, and that, too, with high-topped rubber boots. During the same period he has noted swamps transformed into splendid grass land; grass land, too wet to warrant cutting, becoming the best of meadow land, and wet meadow land joining the area for the production of the justly celebrated "No. 1 hard." Indeed, the valley furnishes not a few examples of land along the ditches where this whole range, from peat bog and swamp to highly cultivated fields, has taken place under the eye of your engineer during the time of his five annual inspection tours.'

"The second result of these pioneer ditches, and perhaps the most potent and far-reaching, was of an educational nature. Each ditch became at once a great object lesson; a great physical demonstration. One of the larger state ditches could bring no physical benefit to a farm outside of its drainage area, but it soon began to wield an influence as far as men traveled who had seen its work of reclamation.

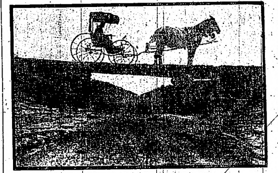
Legislature Is Convinced.

"With these proofs of the value and feasibility of drainage in Northern Minnesota the legislature could not refuse additional aid for the work. The legislature of 1900-01 created the drainage commission of the State of Minnesota and gave it $25,000 a year with which to continue the drainage work. The last legislature made the same appropriation. Mr. George A. Ralph of Crookston is the engineer of the commission, and his report, submitted in December, 1904, shows that more than eighty-eight miles (twenty-two ditches, scattered in fourteen counties) of main ditch had been constructed, involving nearly 600,000 cubic yards of earthwork, at a cost to the state of about $60,000. The estimated benefits coming to the state lands from this expenditure is over $129,000, and to private lands over $240,000.



SAND HILL RIVER DITCH, POLK COUNTY.
Thirteen miles long, it exerts a beneficial influence over at least 50,000 acres.

"Perhaps the best proof we have of the educational value of drainage work in Minnesota is a general statement so favorable to still more vigorous and liberal policy for state drainage that the friends of drainage in the last legislature had little difficulty in passing a bill carrying a $14,000 appropriation to enable a systematic survey of Northern Minnesota to be made, looking to a comprehensive system of drainage for the whole territory. This topographical survey has been in progress during the last two years, under the direction of Mr. John Abercrombie, and later Mr. George A. Ralph, with the assurance that the present legislature will have a report upon which to base a plan for still greater undertakings for drainage.



KENNEDY DITCH, KITTSON COUNTY.

"The state ditches are but a part of the main ditches needed in any county to furnish adequate outlet for its excess storm water, and the counties are rapidly supplying the additional ditches needed. Not a county in which the state gave a practicable demonstration of the benefits attending adequate drainage but has spent from two to ten times as much in helping itself to still greater benefits.

"If there is an exception to the above statement it is in some county in which the state has been more recently at work; where the benefits have not yet had time to fully develop or where the small amount of land under cultivation would not justify the organization of the drainage area into a district for the purpose of constructing a ditch. In all county ditch systems the benefited lands must meet the expense of constructing the ditch and building the necessary bridges. But all of these hundred of miles of state and county ditches are but the arteries of the general system. The people have taken up the work at this point and have added thousands of miles of private ditches and farm drains and splendid road ditches which gather the surplus water from their flat fields and meadows and deliver it to a state or county ditch through which it reaches the Red river on its journey to the North."

SHOW NEW COUNTY IS LEGAL

Judge McClannahan of the district court at Grand Rapids has issued an order to the commissioners of Koochiching county to appear before him at Brainerd and show by what authority they are holding their offices and maintaining a county government and "to abide by the results" of the hearing. The petition upon which this order was issued is made by F. E. Reuswig, director of School District No. 1. The members of the school board have doubts as to the legality of the proceedings creating Koochiching county, and as the district has much at stake, having thirty schools now in operation in the territory involved, and being constantly asked to open new schools, so that much confusion and uncertainty was occasioned, they reached the determination to test the legality of the status of the new county and the present proceedings are the first step in that direction.

EDITORS TO MEET.

State Association Will Meet in St. Paul Feb. 14 and 15.

The forty-first annual meeting of the Minnesota Editorial association will be held at the Ryan hotel on Thursday and Friday, Feb. 14 and 15. An important matter to be discussed will be the attitude of the postoffice department towards newspapers, the third assistant postmaster general having made proposals for raising second-class postage rates with restrictive qualifications. The postal commission appointed by the last congress has already reported in favor of raising second-class postage.

The following papers have been arranged for, beginning at 2 p. m. Thursday:

"Railroad Advertising on a Business Basis," Frank J. Meyst. To be followed with a discussion by members, in which passenger departments of railroads are invited to participate.

"Second-class Postage," H. S. Saylor, Buffalo Journal; B. B. Herbert, National Journalist; P. V. Collins, N. W. Agriculturist.

"Independent Journalism," George Thompson, St. Paul Dispatch.

"Drainage and Its Aid to State Development of Minnesota," A. G. Bernard, Washington, D. C.

"Reminiscenses—Fifty Years a Minnesota Editor," J. J. Green, New Ulm News.

"The Business End of a Country Newspaper," A. J. Halstead, Brainerd Tribune.

The committee will arrange for entertainment of members on Thursday evening. A feature of the entertainment will be attendance at the new Orpheum theater, where the best seats have been reserved.

The rate will be one and one-third of regular fare for the round trip on the certificate plan.

HIBBING IN CHURCH WORK.

Built Three Churches Last Year—Two More Are Proposed.

From the standpoint of church work Hibbing is one of the most active mining camps in the world. Three large church buildings were erected the past year and two more are proposed. The Presbyterians have completed and paid for a $5,000 church, the Italian Catholics have just occupied a $6,000 structure, the second Italian Catholic church in Minnesota, and the Methodists have made extensive alterations and additions to their church.

The Austrians are now attempting to organize a church society and put up a building. The large proportion of Austrians,Poles and Croatians living in Hibbing are miners and are but recently arrived from Europe. They are very clannish and do not readily learn English.

A meeting of Austrians, Polanders and Croatians has been called for Sunday, at which time it is hoped to organize a church. If a priest can be secured the work of raising funds for a building will be begun at once.

The Hebrews have organized societies among both men and women for the purpose of raising funds to build a synagogue.

SAYS BANK WILL PAY IN FULL.

Creditors of Defunct Fairmont Concern Urged to Attend Meeting.

Percy Wollaston, Jr., son of the owner of the defunct Merchants and Farmers' bank of Fairmont, has issued a circular letter to creditors, asking then to attend a meeting when a statement of the bank's affairs will be presented, together with the financial condition of his father, who is at Victoria, B. C It is his belief that creditors will be paid in full.

The total amount of funds in the bank belonging to the city, the county, the agricultural society, different lodges and other organizations, of which Cecil Sharp, the cashier of the bank, is treasurer, will probably not exceed $6,500, and all are amply secured by bonds.

Iron in Vegetables.

Spinach, yolk of egg, beef, apples, lentils, strawberries, white beans, peas, potatoes, wheat and milk all contain iron, lessening in quantity in the order named.

HOW GROVER CLEVELAND WON $1,500,000 PRESERVE

Crafty Old Angler Induces Andrew Curnegie to Give Princeton College a Lake.

Not literally, but almost.

No longer need the former president of the United States take long trips for the sake of indulging his love of Isaak Walton's gentle art.

The generosity of Andrew Carnegie that converted a three and a half-mile stretch of meadow into a lake is eventually to make Princeton a fine fishing ground.

When a few weeks ago the famous Scotchman deserted library-giving long enough to run to Nassau and hand over the new lake to Princeton, the students of that college applauded wildly at the realization of a dream thirty years old. They had long wanted a lake in which they could row and swim, and whose surface in the winter time would furinish an admirable place to skate.

Grover Cleveland, sitting inconspicuously in the midst of the crowd that greeted Carnegie, also rejoiced in seeing the lake an accomplished fact, but his motives were somewhat different.

When it comes down to sport there is only one of which Mr. Cleveland is really fond. As Thomas Jefferson once put it, give Grover a line and a place to sit and he'll stay till the sun goes down or the water dries up.

The new lake did not suggest rowing, or skating, or swimming to the only Democrat in half a century who reached the White House. In the midst of all the eloquent speeches, Mr. Cleveland had visions only of fish.

Hardly had the words of the presentation and acceptance died away before he had set in motion his plans for converting the lake into a fishing pond.

Soon the fish commission at Washington received a petition for stocking Carnegie lake with game fish. The paper bore many names, but high up in the list was one that was once all-powerful in the capital and still commands a most important measure of respect.

"Grover Cleveland," the most prominent disciple of the author of "The Complete Angler" in America to-day.

It didn't take long to get action for something Mr. Cleveland wanted, and soon the lake will be alive with bass, pike, salmon, perch and other game fish.

Then when the Sage of Princeton wants to battle with the "finny denizens" he will not need to plan for a long trip. A little glance over his bait, selection of the proper tackle and he can walk to the place where the fish are to be found; as his health has not been of the best of late, this will be a great boon.

It is only poetic justice that Mr. Cleveland should get this enjoyment out of the lake, for had it not been for him Princeton would still lack it.

As long ago as thirty years the ambition of Princeton to become a factor in college rowing suggested the plan of building an artificial body of water where the crews could train. The only place they had for this purpose was the canal, and this was quite a distance away and very unsatisfactory.

But to build the lake meant an outlay of money that seemed too great to be raised.

Nevertheless loyal sons of Nassau did not drop the cherished dream. They made purchases of land along the meadows in case a time might come when the money would be available.

Early in 1902 Andrew Carnegie, that wonderful magician in the making of money, who turned the steel industry into millions for himself and hundreds of his Pittsburg associates, went to Princeton. He wanted to see his old friend, Grover Cleveland.

Mr. Howard Russell Butler, a graduate of Princeton, undertook to take him to the home of the retired statesman.

As a branch train crossed the trestle at Stony creek, which is one of the tributaries that now supply the lake with water, Mr. Butler said:

"We one had an idea of flooding all those marshes to make a lake for Princeton college."

"Good idea," said Mr. Carnegie. "Why didn't you carry it out?"

"We didn't have the money," said Mr. Butler.

Mr. Carnegie made no reply at the time, but it set him thinking, and when he reached the home of Grover Cleveland, he asked the former president what he thought of the plan.

Mr. Cleveland only smiled and said inscrutably:

"You couldn't suggest anything which I would more heartily approve."

That settled it. The mere trifle of the money didn't stand in the way with Mr. Carnegie, providing the plan was worth while, so he at once ordered that a survey be prepared.

The survey was made, the report submitted, approved, and the money to build the lake was subscribed by Mr. Carnegie.

Work was immediately begun. It involved detailed surveys, and the purchase of necessary lands and water rights.

GROVER CLEVELAND FISHING.

To build the lake it was necessary to transform the low lying meadow and swamp lands, consisting of about 300 acres, a large part of which was covered by heavy timber, and a dense swamp growth, into a basin, free and clear, and to excavate a large area to a depth of from one to two feet, and to build at the north end, near Kingston, a dam to hold the waters of the Millstone river and Stony brook, which, with their tributaries, drain an area of 120 square miles.

The lake is from 500 to 1,000 feet wide, bounded on the east by the Delaware and Raritan canal, and on the north and west by picturesque woodland scenery.

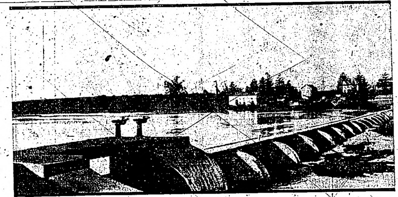
Thus it happens that Mr. Cleveland now has it his disposal for fishing purposes a million and a half dollar lake, the gift of the Laird of Skibo.

Of course the former president will not be the only one to profit. There are other fishermen at Princeton besides him; and even those natives who neithe fish, row, swim or skate, can have the aesthetic enjoyment of revelling in the beautiful panorama made by the lake, the handsome trees that border it, the picturesque bridges that cross it, and the islands that dot its smooth surface. It is a good exchange for the ugly meadows of the past.



VIEW OF PRINCETON LAKE AND DAM.

TIGRESS FULL OF TERROR.

A party of five of us were out together shooting in Central India during the month of May in a well known tiger center, says London Field, but although panthers and bears were plentiful enough the object of our expedition was conspicuous by its absence.

Eventually two of our party whose time was limited went off in disgust and the very next day an Indian came running into camp with a most remarkable story, which was afterward corroborated by a personal inspection of the place. The man was out on duty collecting honey and seeing a likely porcupine cave filled up to the mouth with brushwood, set it alight and sat waiting on a little slab just like one of those seats for wayfarers outside the hospital of St. Cross, near Winchester. The porcupine, I may remark, is regarded as a great delicacy among the aboriginal tribes. Nothing, however, turned up and so he went off disappointed of a good supper.

The next day, hoping against hope, he returned to the cave and found—not a porcupine, but a tigress. She had never had courage to face the brushwood and so had been suffocated to death. The cave overhangs a very deep pool of water which never dries up in the hottest weather, and had she charged out the impetus would have forced her to rush straight over the edge, a drop of some fifty feet. The usual approach is a very long and narrow ledge which we ourselves only managed with considerable difficulty.

I suppose the tigress discarded the idea of a plunge from such a height, although the pool is sixteen or eighteen feet deep.

MABELLE GILMAN THE KIND OF GIRL TO ENSLAVE COREY

Whose Head, Carnegie Wrongly Said, "Would Never Be Turned by a Woman."

The millionaire and the footlight favorite.

A new chapter has just been added to this never ending romance. William E. Corey, president of the United States Steel trust at a salary of $100,000 a year, has his destiny linked to that of Miss Mabelle Gilman. What will the outcome be?

There are lots of precedents for the Gilman-Corey affair. In fact, it seems to be a favorite trick of men with millions to put away the wives of their poorer days when wealth opens the way to acquaintanceship with footlight queens.

The "Tin Plate King," William B. Leeds of Richmond, Indiana, had a wife long before he became a millionaire. She was a sweet, home-loving woman, who aided him to become rich. Then he met Mrs. Nannie Stewart Worthington, a woman of good family, who was the wife of George E. Worthington. The couple had drifted apart, and Mrs. Worthington listened willingly when Leeds suggested she get a divorce. This accomplished, the "Tin Plate King" found an excuse to put aside his own wife and then married Mrs. Worthington. It is said that he paid the first Mrs. Leeds $1,000,000 to permit a separation.

The partner of Leeds in the tin plate business, was Daniel G. Reid. He, too, married Clarissa Agnew, a young woman of the comic opera stage.

Henry M. Klagler, "King of Florida," one of the richest men in the United States, forced a complaisant legislature to pass a law making insanity grounds for divorce. With this for an excuse, he put aside his wife and married a woman thirty-six years his junior.

The case of Harry Thaw is too recent to call for reference. Its tragic consequences have made it the most notable of the lot.

MISS MABELLE GILMAN.

This glance at a few straggling instances show the allurement that women of the stage have for men of lately acquired wealth. The romance of Mr. Corey, however, presents this somewhat unusual feature.

It was the belief of his associates in the steel trust that he was the last man who would yield to the attraction of a stage queen.

From the time he took a place at work on the catl tipple dumping cars in the employ of his uncle, J. B. Corey, a Braddock millionaire, until the directors of the steel trust gave him the task of straightening out the affairs of that company, Mr. Corey came only into public notice as an indefatigable worker. He gave fullest credit to his wife for a large portion of his success that came to him. His wife's knowledge of chemistry qualified him to take the position in the Edgar Thomson mills of the Carnegie Steel company, which advance later led him to the plate mills of the Homestead Steel works, and finally to the presidency of the steel trust.

When Mr. Corey assumed the latter position Mr. Carnegie, who prides himself on his keen judgment of human nature, said:

"There is a man whose head will never be turned by a woman."

Developments show that for once the shrewd Andy went wide of the mark.

It took an uncommon girl to win Mr. Corey, and Miss Gilman is that.

Those girls who knew Miss Gilman when she was a demure student at Mills college, near Oakland, Cal.—she is a daughter of the Golden State—always predicted for her the power to make any kind of a career she wished.

Miss Gilman had her own way to make in the world. Her mother was a widow, making sacrifices to give her daughter an education. Mabelle could sing and act, and for comic opera work lacked only ability to dance.

It was not through the medium of light opera, however, that Miss Gilman was first to essay the boards. She stormed no less a person than Augustin Daly, who, impressed with her possibilities, for she being a fine, striking girl in a heavy dark style, engaged her on the spot and placed her in a small part in support of Miss Ada Rehan.

Going East with Mr. Daly, she played small parts in his company, and then shifted to the Casino. Here she achieved quick success, and like every other popular American light opera prima donna, she went to London.

Nothing that popularity and notority seemed to come hand in hand, Miss Gilman made no particular secret of the advances of other admirers.

All her previous adventures sank into nothingness when news of the infatuation of William E. Corey became public. He had just come into public notice, conspicuously by his skilful reorganization of the steel trust, and his friends were astounded by reports that he planned to marry Miss Gilman as soon as the court's decision freed him from his wife.

WILLIAM E. COREY,
President of United States Steel Corporation.

The sensational divorce suit in which the sister of Corey took sides against him with the wife, and Miss Gilman's career of luxury in a Bonaparte chateau in France, are spectacular features of the episode.

What will be the outcome? Will the steel magnate be content to have escaped from the shackles that were distasteful and be loyal to the woman who has been his desire for years? Will Miss Gilman be content to settle down to a life of placid domesticity? Is the romance at an end as far as the world is concerned, or will there be future chapters?

SEWING MACHINE A TYRANT.

Less and Less Time for Enjoyment Since Its Use.

The trouble is that we have allowed the machine to master us. The possibility of quick, easy and cheap production has so intoxicated us that we have gone on producing in a sort of insane prolificness, and our imaginary needs have grown with it. Originally intended to make simpler and easier the doing of necessary things, the introduction of machinery with its train of attendant evils has so complicated and befuddled our standards of living that we have less and less time for enjoyment and growth, and nervous prostration is the characteristic disease of the age. The old simile of the sewing machine exactly expresses the state of affairs. Its introduction was to be a boon to overworked woman by relieving her of the tedious hours of stitchery and so giving her more leisure for other things or for rest, but to her the means of doing ten times as much work in an hour as she could by hand meant simply an opportunity to put ten tucks into a garment instead of one. Instead of adding something to her life, the machine took away more than it brought, for it encouraged the desire for senseless and needless elaboration and so made her work harder and more confining than before. When she ornamented a garment made by hand, the ornamentation was the expression of her own thought of beauty, but with the mechanical ornamentation made possible by the machine there grew up in her mind a false idea of mere elaboration for its own sake, and so the machine mastered instead of serving her.

HAD SEEN LAWYERS WEEP.

Physician Came Out of Cross-Examination With Flying Colors.

The plaintiff claimed that he had been severely injured by a car leaving the rails and that he had suffered as a result of this injury for over two years and was still suffering.

Dr. Walton testified that he had examined the plaintiff and that in his opinion the symptoms that the plaintiff complained of were within his own control and were not genuine.

Upon cross-examination Waldo Reed of Fall River took each symptom separately and made each into a question which ended with, "Do you believe that to be a genuine symptom, doctor?" and to each question Dr. Walton said "No."

The star question was reached and Reed's voice trembled with emotion as he asked, "Dr. Walton, when pressuer was applied to this man's back between his shoulder blades tears came to his eyes, do you believe this to be a genuine symptom?"

"No," said Walton.

MISS GILMAN RESTING AND READING.

CANADA'S GOOD TIMES.

The Immigration During 1906 Was 216,000.

While it is well to heed every word of caution from the leaders in commerce and finance and to avoid all speculative ventures that lack a solid business foundation, it is clearly evident that there is no conspicuous weak spot in Canada's present era of prosperity. The Toronto Globe says: "The Dominion has in a commercial sense plenty of money, and our leading financial institutions are in a position to lend freely in the United States. The chief productive enterprises of Canada are not buoyed up by an era of dangerous speculation, but are following substantial business methods and finding safe and continuous markets for their goods. We are not bolstering up any industries by extensive export bonuses that must impoverish the people as a whole, and ultimately lead to collapse through the failure of the artificial aid. There is no extreme protection in Canada such as would create great fortunes for a few at the expense of the general public and lead to disruption and catastrophe. The prosperity of Canada has no artificial foundation being based on a healthy and substantial expansion of trade and industry, with a proportionate extension of productive settlement to new areas.

It is true that we are borrowing extensively for railway construction, but every line will bring new territory within the limits of profitable occupation, and will create prosperous settlements to bear the burdens and repay the outlay. We are not exhausting mineral resources, for it is quite reasonable to assume that, although mineral wealth is never permanent, ours will during the measurable future develop a far greater productive capacity than at present. Our timber wealth can be made continuous by a judicious policy. And agriculture, the real foundation of our prosperity, is expanding with every new expenditure on railway construction. We are not in the flush of a railway mania that could bring its punishment through the useless duplication of lines. The gigantic railway enterprises that now stimulate every line of business in Canada will create a new Dominion, and thus render easy the heavy burdens of debt now freely assumed. Canada's era of prosperity has been unprecedented, but there is no sign of weakness and no cause for lack of confidence. While our growth is normal and healthy, we need have no alarm at its rapidity." This article might have gone on to relate the great growth that is taking place in Central Canada, where thousands of Americans have made their homes during the past few years. The past calendar year has given to Canada by importation an addition of 216,000 to its population. Of this the United States contributed 63,781. The agents of the Canadian government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere, say that this number will be largely increased during 1907.

Which Was Hit?

Patrick Murphy, while passing down Tremont street, was hit on the head by a brick which fell from a building in process of construction.

One of the first things he did after being taken home and put to bed was to send for a lawyer.

A few days later he received word to call, as his lawyer had settled the case.

He called and received five crisp new $100 bills.

"How much did you get?" he asked.

"Two thousand dollars," answered the lawyer.

"Two thousand, and you give me $500! Say, who got hit by that brick, you or me?"

A Good Thing.

"Your life preserver may be all right," said the buyer for the steamship company, "but it's so flimsy I don't see how it can support any one."

"Well," replied the manufacturer, "it has supported me and my family for the past year."

SURPRISES THE POET GRAY

Priced originally at 12 cents, a modest pamphlet of a few leaves was sold recently in London for the record price of $500. It was a copy of the first edition of the "Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard."

Whether Byron on that morning when he awoke and found himself famous was astonished is not on record, but that Thomas Gray was utterly bewildered by the success which attended the publication of his "Elegy" is as certainly true as that the fact is generally forgotten. Published in the shape of a slim pamphlet, it ran through four editions in two months and six other editions speedily followed. Ere the poem was ten years old it had been reprinted in several collections of verse in numerous magazines and twice translated into Latin.

All this amazed the author beyond measure, and when the Scotch poet Beattie sought his permission to prepare an edition for the Northern kingdom he in giving his consent warned his admirer of the risk the publisher would take, for a London bookseller had "glutted the town" with two editions of 1,500 and 750 copies. Beattie and the Scotch publisher went their way, however, and the edition sold so quickly that Gray was embarrassed by an offer of a present of books in recompense for his consent. "I can not figure to myself," he wrote, "how it can be worth his while to offer me such a present."

He never accepted any cash payment for his poems. He held it was beneath his dignity as a gentleman to barter his writings for money, and of course the publishers were glad to oblige him by respecting such a convenient scruple. To one of those publishers, Dodsley, this meant a comfortable profit of $5,000 from the "Elegy" alone.

Gray's modest opinion of the "Elegy" was not affection; it was the constant result of his sensitive, reclusive nature. As a matter of fact he was not even responsible for the publication of a poem. Eight years elapsed between its inception and its completion and yet even the protracted interval did not create a just conception of its merits on the author's part. When the last verse was written he sent a copy to Horace Walpole with the remark that he had "put an end" to "a thing" of which his correspondent had long ago seen the beginning, adding: "You will, I hope, look upon it in the light of a thing with an end to it, a merit that most of my writings have wanted and are like to want."

The Lady—I can identify myself, sir.

Bank Cashier—How, pray?

Professional Distinctions.

"Wasn't he something of a grafter?"

"No," answered the cold, hard schemer. "He never got away with enough to be worth mentioning. He was a 'piker,' not a 'grafter.'"

Looking for Lost Sheep.

Laird—Weel, Macalister, and have you found any of those strayed sheep yet?

Macalister—Yess. But I was finding them all again, sir, whatever. And I did find two by itself and one together and three among one of MacPherson's.

If you brag that you are contented people say you might as well be a cow, and if you are discontented, people say you have a grouch, and there you are.

Saturday, Feb. 16, 1907.

We are perfectly willing to take our weather a little milder now that the lenten season is on.

Nothing of consequence, except the spending of the people's money, has been accomplished so far by the legislature.

It might be well to remember that the railroads are not the only robbers that need looking after. Besides, there's the tariff.

Nearly all of our sister states already have a two-cent railroad fare law, but we have nothing but promises so far.

It costs more for a dull merchant to brush the dust off his goods than it would to advertise and sell them. —Richmond Standard.

The present congress will stop doing business on March 4th, so it is very evident that there is no intention to do anything with the tariff.

The Minnesota editors are in session at St. Paul this week. There were several reasons why we did not attend; the principal one being too much snow for walking.

Those Canadian land boom germs that were making people uneasy last year were all frozen stiff during the last cold snap. We don't think they will bother around here for a long time.

Rockefeller recently gave thirty-two million for educational purposes and immediately raised the price of oil. This makes us feel like a philanthropist every time we come down town with the oil can.

There is a rumor that a prominent Minnesota official recently sold short on Great Northern stock just before the courts prohibited that company from issuing more stock and that the sale netted the official about one hundred thousand dollars. Who can it be?

St. Paul wants the state to guarantee the interest, and probably afterwards pay the principal, on several millions to improve the appearance of that city. It also unites with Minneapolis in asking the legislature for a million to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of Minnesota's admittance to the union. Aren't we country rubes an easy bunch?

The towns and villages cannot get along without the farmer—nor can the farmer get along without the town. Do you realize, Mr. Farmer, that $73 and $100 an acre farm is worth that wholly because of the town and market for your products? Do you realize, Mr. Merchant, that your business is prosperous and valuable because of the farmer? It is the truth. Each is dependent on the other. Then why not stand together? Live and let live. That is fairness. That is justness.—Wykoff Messenger.

The advertising merchant is the one who does the business in these days of push and enterprise. There are more newspaper readers today than ever before in the history of the world. The newspaper places your business under the eyes of the buyer. He sees what he wants, and knowing where to find it, looks up the wide-awake merchant who asked him to come and see him. Success in these days of sharp competition calls for eternal vigilance. You can't keep a hustler down.—Farmington Tribune.

Anoka Union: Say, you residents of Minnesota, get right down on your knees and thank the Creator of the Universe, that you live in this state. Study the situation in North Dakota, in Washington, yea, in California, where snow, storm and cold have struck them, without fuel sufficient to keep warm, and then count up your blessings in Minnesota. No matter if twenty to thirty degrees below zero weather here you are comfortable and have plenty to eat, wear and burn. There may be better sections of the country than Minnesota, but I haven't learned their location as yet.

Fox Terrier's Points.

The fox terrier is the most intelligent of all the smaller breeds, and there is hardly a trick that he cannot learn in a very few lessons. He is usually healthy, makes the best kind of a watch dog, and his ability to catch and kill rats and other vermin is another story. In symmetry, size and character, the dog must present a generally gay, lively and active appearance. The terrier, like the foxhound, must on no account be "leggy," nor must he be too short in the leg. He should stand like a cleverly made hunter, covering a lot of ground, yet with a short back, as before stated. He will then attain the highest degree of propelling power, together with the greatest length of stride that is compatible with the length of his body. Weight is not a certain criterion of a terrier's fitness for his work—general shape, size and contour are the main points, and if a dog can gallop and stay and follow his fox up a drain it matters little what his weight is to a pound or so, though, roughly speaking, it may be said that he should not scale over twenty pounds. —Eugene R. Cole in Home Magazine.

A Patient Snake.

One does not often attribute the virtue of patience to a snake. "Letters From a Surgeon," however, contain an anecdote in which its existence is evident. Dr. Perry, surgeon of the Twentieth Massachusetts, wakened in camp one morning to find himself tightly held in the clutch of Dr. Hayward, his senior officer.

"Don't move, John, till I say three!" ordered the senior sharply. "Then seize my hands and spring to your feet. One, two, three!"

At the word Dr. Perry jumped, and he never made a cleaner leap. He was just in time to see a moccasin dive under the coat which he had been using for a pillow. Armed with sticks, they dragged the coat away, but saw only the hole into which the snake had glided. The surgeon had accidentally blocked the entrance to the reptile's abode, and it had lain all coiled under the back of his neck, waiting patiently for him to move so it could enter.

The Wrong Man.

"Now, my dear sir," said the life assurance agent persuasively, "I wonder if I might put before you one or two powerful reasons why you should insure your life?"

"Certainly, my dear sir," replied the victim; "fire away. I shall be delighted to listen to you."

Accordingly the life assurance man delivered a lecture of nearly half an hour's duration on the advantages of life assurance, setting forth all the reasons why his listener should insure his life immediately for a large amount. When he was done the other man said:

"Well, that's not bad, but nothing new."

"Oh, well," said the other, "you see, I'm a life assurance agent myself, and I wanted to see if you had any new ideas to give me."

Appreciating Wagner.

"The Ring of the Niebelungen" was first produced in London under the special patronage of King Edward VII, when he was Prince of Wales. He loyally remained in his box from beginning to end, although he confessed afterward that it was the hardest work he ever did. When Wotan came on the darkened stage to an accompaniment of discords the prince took a doze and an hour later was awakened by a double forte crash of the large orchestra. He fell asleep again, but in fifteen minutes was startled by another tremendous crash and found Wotan still singing against time. After the performance the prince told the manager in great confidence that if there was a Wotan in other Wagner operas he would withdraw his patronage.

Even the Sultan.

On one occasion when the famous Nasr-ed-din was pressed for money he went to the sultan for permission to levy a tax of a penny on every man in Turkey who was afraid of his wife. The sultan gave him leave, and at the end of a few months Nasr-ed-din returned with a hundred mules laden with gold. "But what am I to get out of all this?" inquired the sultan. "I have brought you a beautiful Georgian slave," replied the sage. "Hush!" said the sultan, glancing over his shoulder. "Don't let my wife hear!" And the wily Nasr-ed-din Hedja added another penny to his store.

The One Exception.

The topic of debate at the Poets' club meeting was, "Which of the Sexes Contributes Most to Life's Happiness?"

"I think," said a woman called upon to speak on the feminine side, "that there is no doubt that man contributes most to the life happiness of woman—that is" (upon second thought) "unless he happens to be her husband."

Not Innocent.

"Tommy, I'm going to punish you severely."

"What for, pa?"

"Now, don't try that innocence game. I know all the bad things you've done today."

"No, you don't, pa. You don't know where I hid the strap you whack me with."

Cure For Profanity.

The cure for profanity—reformers and educators please make a note—is merely wit enough to handle your words so that swearing will seem like baby talk in comparison.—Patriot.

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is hereby given, that on the eleventh day of March, 1907, at two o'clock p. m., at the office of the county auditor, in the city of Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county, Minnesota, I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the Ditch No. 28 of Red Lake county, established by the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, state of Minnesota, by their order bearing date the ninth day of January, 1907, viz:

For the work as one job, and also for one or more sections of 100 feet each, and also for one or more of the construction jobs, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes as shown by the report of the engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet, and from thence, successively, up stream to the one including the source, said sections being numbered from No. 0 to No. 112 inclusive, to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, and that bids are invited for said work, said work to be completed within the time required, and in the manner specified in said Engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent over and above the estimate cost of the construction, in any case, as stated in the said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond to be approved by the auditor of said county, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract, and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file, and may be seen at my office.

The approximate amount of work to be done in the construction of such ditch is as follows: The excavation and removal of 22,411 cubic yards of earth the same to be placed along the west side of said ditch from station "60" to station "98" and at all other points the material shall be placed along the side of the ditch and within the right of way thereof in such form as may be required by the engineer.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the auditor of said county, for not less than ten per cent of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

Dated January 15, 1907.

JOHN B. O'BRIEN,
(Seal.) County Auditor,
Red Lake county,
[9-23] State of Minnesota.

Notice of Hearing on Petition for Formation of New District.

Whereas, a petition has been filed with the county board of the county of Red Lake, signed and acknowledged by a majority of the freeholders who reside in the proposed new district herein described, and who are entitled to vote at school meetings in their respective districts, and duly verified by the affidavit of one of the residents of said proposed new district, praying for the organization of a new school district out of the territory hereinafter described, to-wit:

All of sections 1 and 12, and the east half of section 2 in township 152, range 40, also section 36 in township 153, range 40, and the said board of county commissioners have appointed a time and place for a hearing upon said petition as by law required;

Now therefore,

NOTICE

is hereby given, that a hearing upon said petition will be had at a meeting of the said board, commencing upon the 26th day of February, A. D. 1907, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at the office of the county auditor in the city of Red Lake Falls in said county, at which time and place the said county board will hear arguments of all persons interested, for or against the proposed organization of said new school district.

By order of the county board of Red Lake county, Minn.

Thief River News: President C. L. Hansen of the Merchants State Bank of St. Hilaire, and Daniel Patterson the pioneer liveryman, drove up from St. Hilaire Monday. Mr. Patterson says that he believes there is much more snow upon the ground now than in the spring of 1897.

The committee in charge of the program preparations for the meeting of the Red Lake County Teachers association to be held at Thief River Falls Friday and Saturday of next week, February 22 and 23, are making a great effort to show the teachers and others that attend the best time in the association's history.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: Freund's orchestra furnished music for the big masquerade ball given by the St. Hilaire Fire department last Friday evening. The dance was one of the biggest ever held in the country, and St. Hilaire's popular fire laddies sustained their reputation as immense entertainers. Those who attended from here were: Clement Brunelle, Harry Healy, Leland Healy, F. F. Freund, the Misses Amelia Berget, Mollie Allard, Lillian Buse and Etta Garceau.

Thief River News: There is not a sufficient amount of water in the Red Lake river to furnish power to run the electric light plant during the day at present and this is causing a great deal of inconvenience to the patrons of the plant. From all appearances there is as much water in the river as usual and where it is going to is one of the questions that is being discussed quite frequently. One thing is certain and that is that when the snow melts off there will be plenty of water.

Thief River Press: P. O. Sorum of the town of Silverton was in the city Tuesday. Mr. Sorum has been appointed agent in Silverton for the Bray Mutual Fire Insurance company, the prosperous company having headquarters at Wylie. Agents of the company are placed under bonds of $500, and there is one in each township in which the company operates, Silverton having just been added to the territory. The membership fee is $2. The town of Smiley has also been included in the company's territory.

Big Receipts.

4,500 pound of cream was received yesterday at the St. Hilaire creamery. This is the largest amount of cream ever received here in one day in the winter season and shows conclusively that there will be a decided increase in the output the coming year. This will make over 1,500 pounds of butter which will sell for nearly five hundred dollars. Pretty good for one day is it not?

Died.

Floyk Emmitt Remington, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Remington, was born May 9, 1906, and died of pneumonia Feb. 12, 1907. The grief stricken parents have the heartfelt sympathy of the town and community.

Though their little one was taken and their sorrow is hard to heal, may read with comfort and consolation the following lines:

"Two little feet went pattering by,
Years ago,
They wandered off to the sunny sky
Years ago,
They came never back to the heart they left,
They climbed never back to the arms bereft,
Years ago."

"Again I shall hear the two little feet
Pattering by,
Their music a thousand times more sweet
In the sky.
And I love to think that a father's care
Will keep them safely till we get there
By-and-bye.

Care for Your Horses.

We always like to see a farmer or horseman drive up to the hitching post these wintry days, says an exchange, jump out of his rig, unfold a big warm blanket and carefully cover his faithful horse. There is a big heart in that man. He'll do to tie to. He is thinking of something else besides himself and he takes as much pleasure in caring for the comfort of his horse as for himself. On the other hand it makes us sad to see a great big man, warmly clad from head to foot, drive a sweating horse up to the rack, hastily tie him fast, leave him shivering and make for the nearest hot stove. There is something wrong about this fellow. He may be a nice man, belong to the church, may not smoke, swear nor have any bad habits, but we wouldn't want to be his horse. No, sir!

Has Rumor Any Foundation?

Crookston Journal: There is a persistent rumor going around to the effect that the G. N. intends to start work on the grade from Roseau to Warroad while the snow is still on. The stringing of ties along the grade is going on daily, and there seems to be a stirring up sufficient to give us hopes that with spring the laying of steel will commence. There are a few places between Roseau and Warroad where it appears to be necessary to do certain work while the ground is hard, and at these places work is being done. At the G. N. offices in St. Paul it is understood the extension from Greenbush to Roseau and Warroad is mapped out for the first work the coming spring. Things again look rosy, but until the steel is actually being laid it is dangerous to indulge in any more prophecies.

The Mystic Toilers

It may be of interest to quite a few to get some details of the magnificent growth of the Mystic Toilers Society. Beginning with but a few members it has grown steadily until now it numbers 55 regular members. Last Saturday evening we had a great meeting. During our lengthy program 13 new members were initiated. We have added from 3 to 6 new members at practically every meeting of the society, with a number more who are ready to join the Mystic Toilers of St. Hilaire at our next regular meeting. All our members are more than pleased with our society and are endeavoring their utmost to assist and help in the work of the Mystic Toilers.

A Mystic Toiler.

Births and Deaths.

Courier: The report of births and deaths for the past year show an increase for Red Lake county of 160 births over the deaths; the total figures being 263 births and 103 deaths.

Thief River Falls leads in the number of births, as well as deaths, having 105 births and 24 deaths. Red Lake Falls comes next with 36 births and 4 deaths. Plummer has 1 death and 1 birth, while Terrebonne has 21 births and 7 deaths, and Equality 9 births and 3 deaths. St. Hilaire had 34 births and 12 deaths.

Roof Skating Rink.

To enjoy the healthy sport of skating some 300 feet above the street level is probably a thing very few people have heard of. For about a year and a half, however, such a skating rink has existed on the roof of Philadelphia's most fashionable hotel. Another way to keep healthy is by the daily use of golden grain belt beer. Its daily use will aid your digestion, steady your nerves and build you up physically. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Jeff is Traveling.

Gazette: Word from Frank Jeffers to friends here announces that he has accepted a position as traveling salesman for the Miller-Davis Printing company of Minneapolis, and will cover territory in northern Wisconsin and Michigan for his house. He does not announce whether or not he will move his family from here. Frank is a hustler and if he don't make good at the work it won't be his fault.

FARMERS' MEETING.

In another column we publish this week the program for the farmers' meeting to be held at Imperial hall on Friday, February 22nd. The arrangements are now completed and this meeting promises to be by far the best and largest farmers' meeting ever held in Red Lake county. It being held on the birthday of the "Father of His Country" which is a public holiday, will enable many to attend. It is also well to remember that in a way it is a celebration of the starting of the St. Hilaire creamery which has already done more to make farming in this section a success than any other one thing. Come in and enjoy the hospitality of the village on that day and see if you do not learn something that will more than pay you for your time.

FIREMAN'S MASK BALL.

The masked ball given by the St. Hilaire Fire department last Friday evening at Imperial hall was in every way a complete success. The crowd in attendance was fully as large as the hall could accommodate and the receipts were over $78. Red Lake Falls, Thief River Falls and Wylie sent good-sized delegations.

Mrs. Thomas Deach was awarded the prize for the finest ladies costume, and Chas. Fellman for the finest gentleman's costume, while Albert Hall carried off the prize for the most comical costume.

Freund's orchestra, of Red Lake Falls, furnished excellent music the crowd in attendance seemed to enjoy every number. "Home, Sweet Home" came very late. All united in saying that it was the best of the season.

GETS CHECK FOR $200.

The following letter was received by Olaf Nelson and will be of interest to the readers of The Spectator:

St. Anthony Park, Minn.,
January 31, 1807.

Mr. Olaf Nelson,
St. Hilaire, Minn.

My Dear Friend:

I take great pleasure in inclosing herewith my check for $200, as the prize you won at the state contest in the growing of grains, held at Minneapolis, January 9th, 1907.

I congratulate you most heartily on your winning this prize. I sincerely hope that it may be a great encouragement to you to strive for excellence in all that you undertake.

The fund for the prizes, of which I am sending you a part, was given by some of the gentlemen in the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce. They make this donation in the hope that the elements of agriculture may be studied in the rural schools, and so that a deeper interest may be awakened in producing better grain in Minnesota.

Will you please sign the receipt herewith enclosed, and return it to me as soon as possible.

Very truly yours,
D. D. Mayne,
Principal.

The Auto Habit.

Some delver has found in the Bible what he believes to be a hint of automobiles. It is contained in the story of the vision of Nahum, the Elkoshite, concerning the burden of Nineveh. In the account given by this seer of the military array of the Medes and Babylonians against Nineveh occurs this verse: "The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against the other in the broad way, they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightning." If that doesn't describe a street full of motor cars what does? Then, again, a variant of the word "jostle," which the original Hebrew will, it is said, bear even better, is "pass swiftly, without particular purpose, to and fro." Isn't that the automobile habit?

Smoking a Pipe.

The Canadian Cigar and Tobacco Journal gives some hints to those who smoke pipes. Everybody thinks he knows how to smoke a pipe, but to do it perfectly is not easy. "Time is a keynote of successful pipe smoking," says the Journal, "and another is gentleness. Take it easy. Don't crowd the pipe to the top of the bowl. Never get a pipe hot. Keep cool, and keep your pipe cool. You can relight a pipe, and if you are an old smoker you will be all the better for it. When you have finished do not refill a heated pipe."

SEVEN REASONS
Why One Should Carry an Account With a Bank.

I. BECAUSE, your money is safer in a bank than anywhere else.

II. BECAUSE, a bank account teaches, helps and encourages one to save.

III. BECAUSE, paying bills by check is the simplest and most convenient method, as well as the safest, as your check becomes a receipt for the debt it pays.

IV. BECAUSE, a check book is more convenient to carry than a wallet, and if lost, the bank will furnish you another free of charge.

V. BECAUSE, it gives you a better standing in the community, especially among the business men, to pay by check rather than in cash. To be known as having money in the bank strengthens one's credit.

VI. BECAUSE, your returned, cancelled checks with properly kept stubs and the pass book furnished by the bank, make a complete and clear record of business transacted, and is kept with less work than any other record could be.

VII. BECAUSE, by having a bank account and issuing checks and making deposits, you are, unaware to yourself, gradually building up the most valuable asset a man can have, namely, a good credit, and this credit will extend away from home.

Look at the subject from as many sides and as long as you will, the opening of a bank account is desirable and advantageous, and we tender you our services and facilities.

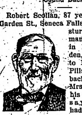
WORKS IN THE GARDEN.

Eighty-Seven Years Old, But Has a Sound Back.



Robert Scollan, 87 years old, of 55 Garden St., Seneca Falls, N. Y., a fine, sturdy old gentleman, who works in his own garden, gives thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills for his sound back and kidneys. Mrs. Goetchious, his daughter, says: "Father had a severe attack of kidney trouble and lumbago, which caused him much suffering. He began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and was soon cured. We always keep them on hand. My husband was cured of bad pains in the back by taking only part of a box."

MIX THIS AT HOME.

Valuable Prescription Which Anyone Can Easily Prepare.

The following simple home-made mixture is said to readily relieve and overcome any form of Rheumatism by forcing the Kidneys to filter from the blood and system all the uric acid and poisonous waste matter, relieving at once such symptoms as backache, weak kidneys and bladder and blood diseases.

Try it, as it doesn't cost much to make, and is said to be absolutely harmless to the stomach.

Get the following harmless ingredients from any good pharmacy: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and again at bedtime.

This simple mixture is said to give prompt relief, and there are very few cases of Rheumatism and Kidney troubles it will fail to cure permanently.

These are all harmless, every-day drugs, and your druggist should keep them in the prescription department; if not, have him order them from the wholesale drug houses for you, rather than fail to use this, if you are afflicted.

Explained.

"I saw a burglar get into the house next door last evening."

"Mercy! Did you give the alarm?"

"No."

"You didn't."

"No, he has lived there for some time and I didn't know he was a burglar until he was arrested this morning."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Oldest Bank Notes.

The oldest bank notes in the world are the "flying money" or convenient money, first issued in China in 2697 B. C. One writer tells that the ancient Chinese bank notes were in many respects similar to those of the present day, bearing the name of the note; the signature of the official who issued it and its value, in both figures and words. On the top of these curious notes was the following injunction: "Produce all you can; spend with economy."

A Long Distance Proposal

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

Author of "The Lightning Conductor," "The Princess Passes," Etc.

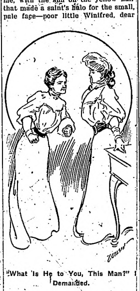
(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"If there's ever anything we can, any of us, do for you, miss, you may make sure we'll be glad to do it," said the coastguard, in his pleasant Kentish accents—for we were looking out on the Cornish sea; and it is the men of Kent who guard the Cornish coast.

I thanked him and went my way along the narrow sheep track of a path that belted the cliff above the sea. Had his loyal gratitude to me, for the little I had done for his family quickened his instincts, and made him aware how much I needed his help?

I needed it—yet no one could give it me. I looked out over the endless tumult of the grey water, and tears rose to my eyes. Somewhere—far away, no doubt—on that same sea, was the man who loved me, whom I loved, and to whom I was trying to make up my mind to be false.

I turned my eyes from the sea to the gates of the "Cliff House," as it was called, where my step-mother, my little sister, and I had come to live. There she stood, waiting for me, with the sun on the yellow hair that made a saint's halo for the small, pale face—poor little Winifred, dear little Winifred, my one treasure since I had lost Jack Tryon, and—the enemy's trump card.



"What Is He to You, This Man?" I Demanded.

"Darling!" exclaimed Winnie, her big, wistful eyes lighting at sight of me. "I did so want to go out and meet you—it's such a short way to the coastguard station. But stepmother wouldn't let me. She never does let me do anything I want to. Oh, dear, I wish we could run away, don't you?"

"I'm afraid we couldn't pet," I said. "You see, dear old dad didn't know how horrid everything would be. He loved Mademoiselle Grandin, and she made him think she was sweet and good. She was so nice to you, before he died, and pretended to be so fond of you, that in his will she was appointed your guardian until I should marry. Even if I could get you away from under her eyes—which would be very, very difficult—I should not be able to hide you, I'm afraid; and the law could take you from me, and give you back to her, for though she makes you so unhappy, she has never openly done anything cruel enough to justify my stealing you. So things would be worse than before."

"But if you married, you could take me with you. Oh, I wish you would. I wish you'd marry that nice, handsome sailor, Jack Tryon, who always brought me sweets, when he used to come and see us in London, before dad died."

"He never asked me, baby," I answered; and did my best to laugh.

"Meanwhile, there's Mr. Barrere begging you to marry him. I heard what he was saying to you yesterday in the summerhouse. He's very handsome, too, but not like Jack Tryon. His eyes are too much like mother's; don't you think so?"

Winnie's talk set me thinking of the bold step I had taken when Lady Ronald had first announced her intention of carrying my little sister off to Cornwall: I had written to Jack, giving him our new address.

Next morning, after breakfast, Lady Ronald invited me to her room, and began to talk more openly than she had ever done before about my marriage, naming 'Paul' Barrere as a suitable husband.

"What is he to you, this man," I demanded, "that you urge him on me as a husband? What is the secret tie between you?"

She darted at me like a snake. Her eyes sparkled; her white, ring-laden fingers twitched as if she would have scored my face with her nails. Then she broke out, volleying her words at me like bullets. In the midst of her ravings I left her, and ran into the garden.

As I sat miserably in the summerhouse that overlooked the great cliff, at whose feet boiled the sea 200 feet below, I could discern a long, low hull, with four dumpy funnels. The venomous-looking thing came rushing in shore at the speed of an express train, a great foaming wave under her stern; and somehow my heart began to thump as I watched it. It was a torpedo destroyer.

Straining my eyes, I distinguished two dark figures on her deck, and the sun cast back a glint that might have been the reflection from the brass work of a telescope. I plucked my handkerchief from my belt and waved it wildly.

Suddenly flags flew from the boat, and the pennant uppermost signified that spelling signals would begin. How well I remembered that heavenly week three years ago when Jack Tryon taught me the system of flag signalling, encouraging my strenuous efforts as a scholar by saying that I learned more quickly and remembered more readily than anyone he had ever seen!

The flags were at work. "E-d-n-a!" Letter by letter the words were spelled by the fluttering pennants and flags, out there at sea. "Can-you-see-me; I-am-Jack-Tryon."

I was still staring at the signal when a face popped up into my line of sight and a man's face looking at me from the brink of the cliff. The shock of surprise sent me flying back a step or two, before I recognized the honest eyes and sunburned face of Dan Hoster, my chief friend among the coastguard.

"Excuse me, miss," he said, "but there's a torpedo boat a-making signals we can't quite understand up at the look-out. She says—"

"Edna!" I interrupted, excitedly. "That's my name you know."

I hastily scribbled on the tablet of my chatelaine, "H.B." (Want immediate assistance), and "N.F." (Do not abandon me), then mischievously I added "L." (Want a pilot. Can I have one?) and passed the book down to Hoster, telling him to go and make these signals at once.

"Certainly, miss," he answered, with alacrity. There was a long pause; then the pennant uppermost flying on the torpedo boat signified that spelling signals would begin again.

Breathlessly I watched the fluttering flags. "Will—you?" There was a tantalizing pause. Would I what? Why did he not hurry on to the end of the sentence? There, the flags were at work again.

"M-a-r-r-y m-e?" was the question that came fluttering across the water.

I caught my breath. A proposal of marriage flagged from a torpedo boat to a coastguard station! It was like receiving an offer through a speaking-trumpet for all the world to hear.

The grating of a nailed boot on rock brought me back from a world of thought to reality, and there was Hoster on the ledge, looking up with a self-conscious grin.

"Yes, yes, Hoster!" I exclaimed, hastily, seeing him about to speak. "I quite understand the message. Please answer 'C.'" I was conscious that I blushed to the temples.

"That I will, miss," he said, "and my respectful congratulations. I'm glad you are marrying into the navy, miss," and he was gone again on his mission as love's go-between.

Presently there came the waving of a handkerchief, and I knew Jack had seen my signal. I was engaged to be married!

That night Winnie slept in my bed, pillowing her dear golden head in the hollow of my arm. At six I kissed her and she woke instantly. We dressed with noiseless speed, and went downstairs, and out into the garden, meeting no one. In a bundle I carried our jewelry and such treasures as were easily portable. Once out of the house, and not knowing who might be watching, we stole up a path that led away from the sea, and, when secure from observation, doubled and ran to the summerhouse.

A low whistle at the edge of the cliff brought Hoster from his hiding place round the curtain of rock. We gave Winnie no time to be afraid, but handing her down into the coastguard's strong arms, he moved cautiously away with her along the steep track, so familiar to him, so fearful to me.

Beyond the curtain of rock, the dizzy ledge widened. From this point the descent, though difficult, was not dangerous, and in a few moments we were safely seated in a boat, which, with two stalwart fishermen for crew, was ready for us.

We were rounding the curtain of rock, and looking apprehensively up, I saw the tall, rigid figure of Paul Berrere silhouetted against the sky. He stared down at us, made a quick, vehement gesture with his arms, and disappeared.

What if Barrere should try to head us off? Our men pulled their hardest, but in the rough and broken sea we made only slow progress. Winnie and I sat pale, with clasped hands. Next moment a sailing boat came flying round the point at the river mouth.

Barrere, I knew, could sail a boat, and as I looked I could almost hear the hiss of the boat's cut-water as it dashed through the waves.

My eyes grew wide, for on board the destroyer was a clergyman, in his surplice.

Winnie was my bridesmaid, the engineer and the midshipman, the witnesses.

Just as the solemn words were spoken, and Jack and I had been pronounced man and wife, the sailboat caught us up—for we had been stationary during the ceremony.

"I demand the custody of the child!" Paul Barrere vindictively shouted. "I have authority from her step-mother and legal guardian."

"Her sister is now her legal guardian," retorted my husband. "Let me introduce you to Mrs. Jack Tryon."

Aristocrats in Salvation Army.

The Salvation Army bids fair to become an aristocratic body. Major Mary Murphy, who supervises the military and naval league of the Salvationists, is a daughter of the late Sir John Murphy, K. C. B., and Lieutenant Colonel Minnie Reid, who recently married Commissioner Booth Tucker, is a daughter of a former acting governor of Bombay. The commissioner himself resigned a judgship in India, with all the wealth and social position attached to it, to devote himself to Salvation Army work. Lady Sarah Sladen is a Salvationist, and the countess dowager of Seafield is a member of the auxiliary of the army. Intimately connected with the work in Australia is Mrs. Bird, wife of the former prime minister of Tasmania. The daughter of the late Lady Galt, wife of the lieutenant governor of Ontario, is working in Canada, as is also, among the daughters of millionaires, Miss Macdonald of Toronto.

STILL MORE PROOF

That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Have Cured Even the Most Stubborn Cases of Rheumatism.

"When I was a boy of sixteen," says Mr. Otto H. Rose, a retired grocer, of 1226 Lexington Avenue, Indianapolis, Ind., "I met with a serious accident which injured the bone of my head over the right eye. I recovered from the accident to all appearances, but not many years after I began to have intense pains in the injured bone, which came on every year and would last from a few days to several weeks.

"I consulted the doctors who told me that I was suffering from neuralgia. The sight of my right eye was affected, so that at times I could scarcely see out of it, while both eyes watered constantly. During these attacks I was often dizzy from the terrible pains. The pains came on every morning and passed away in the afternoon. I never suffered from the pain at night.

"I tried without success to get relief until a friend told me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When I had taken a few boxes I felt the pain growing less intense and in a much shorter time than I had hoped for I was entirely cured. I have recommended the pills to several persons, who have used them with good results.

"My wife uses Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for nervous headaches and finds them the best medicine she has ever used as they give relief where all others fail."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or sent, postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

An instructive booklet, entitled "Nervous Disorders," will be sent free on request to anyone interested.

NO RELIEF FROM ECZEMA

For Over Two Years—Patent Medicines, Quack Cures, and Doctors Fail—Cuticura Succeeds.

"I was very badly afflicted with eczema for more than two years. The parts affected were my limbs below the knees. I tried all the physicians in the town and some in the surrounding towns, and I also tried all the patent remedies that I heard of, besides all the cures advised by old women and quacks, and found no relief whatever until I commenced using the Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent. In the Cuticura Remedies I found immediate relief, and was soon sound and well. C. V. Beltz, Tippecanoe, Ind., Nov. 15, '05."

LABOR OF HINDUS IS CHEAP.

They Might Be Employed to Dig the Panama Canal.

"Why not dig the Panama canal with Hindu labor?" an expert upon labor in various lands recently asked. "A number of Punjab Mohammedans, big, sturdy-looking men, have recently arrived in British Columbia in the search for work at wages which to them are high, but which, as we regard them here, are small. They are not wanted by the Canadians, however.

"The Hindu laborer is, as a rule, intelligent and capable and would be well adapted to the climate of Panama. There is a great deal of discontent in India at the present time, owing to the small wages paid to laborers, and they would welcome any opportunity for foreign employment. The average wage there is $3 to $4 a month. In the tea gardens of Assam they can earn but $1.63 to $1.98 a month, the last figures being the amount paid after four years' service.

"It is not surprising, therefore, that large numbers of coolies should leave the country. Indeed, they are leaving in such numbers that the matter is receiving the serious consideration of the Indian government. Many have gone to Natal, where they earn from $30 to $35 a month. From all accounts they are most satisfactory workmen. And another point in their favor is that nowhere, it seems, does the same prejudice exist against them as against Chinese coolies."

GUIDES CHILDREN.

Experience and a Mother's Love Make Advice Valuable.

An Ills. mother writes about feeding children:

"If mothers would use Grape-Nuts more for their little ones, there would be less need for medicines and fewer doctor bills.

"If those suffering from indigestion and stomach troubles would live on Grape-Nuts, toast and good milk for a short period they would experience more than they otherwise would believe.

"Our children have all learned to know the benefit of Grape-Nuts as an appetizing, strengthening food. It is every evening, with few variations, like this: 'Mamma, let's have toast and Grape-Nuts for breakfast; or, let's have eggs and Grape-Nuts'—never forgetting the latter.

"One of our boys in school and 15 years of age repeatedly tells me his mind is so much brighter after having Grape-Nuts as a part if not all his breakfast." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

KATHARINE THOMAS

American Women as Newspaper Writers.

By Katherine Thomas

Newspapers Cannot Get On Without Women—Mentally and Physically an Exhausting Occupation—The Society Reporter Must Be a "Listening Machine"—Excels as an Interviewer.

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

(Katherine E. Thomas is one of the best known women writers for newspapers at Washington. Her book on "Official Etiquette at the Nation's Capital" is regarded as a standard. She has also written a novel on Washington society entitled "Not All the King's Horses.")

Woman's place on the newspapers to-day is due to the law of demand and supply. She has not crowded man out. It is distinctively a position into which she has neither forced her way nor sought in ever so limited a degree to oust man from that domain in which since the invention of the art of printing he had held exclusive right.

With the evolution of successive stages of progress the necessity of woman's work on the press became so apparent that the cry went forth throughout the land. And it was because of that cry that this great field of woman's cleverness and industry was opened up.

With trembling feet the pioneer woman writers crossed the threshold of the newspaper offices. It is with assured tread she makes her way to-day. In the comparatively short space of time in which woman has been an acknowledged factor on the staff of the daily press she has accomplished much. Before her there yet stretches vast worlds to conquer. But that she will conquer, that in the future she will achieve success in this occupation is long since a foregone conclusion.

Not the least powerful factor woman brings to her work as a newspaper writer is that birthright, intuition. When added to this her keenly observant powers become trained along the necessary lines and her natural tenacity of purpose has the strong stimulus of competition with men, it will be realized that success is and must continue to be her portion.

As in all else of the country's work there is a great deal of human nature in the newspaper world, and when a woman enters into such active shoulder-to-shoulder rivalry with men, as has now of necessity developed in all the active press matters of the day, she must understand from the start that she can expect no quarter. To be upon the staff of an up-to-date daily means an amount of work more exhausting mentally and physically than in any other wage-earning occupation can fall to the lot of a human being. To be upon the staff of a powerful newspaper means to live at concert pitch day after day, month after month.

It is only by the strictest observance of the hygienic laws relating more particularly to the regular eating of simple, easily digested, nourishing food that any one, man or woman, can expect to stand the strain. Newspaper work at all times wears upon the nerves, and yet, strange to say, it is women who bear it best. Seldom, indeed, do they go under from the effects of this work, while the number of physical wrecks among the men is wholly out of proportion. This, be it understood, where the work and hours are identical.

It sounds at first paradoxical to say that the life of a newspaper writer is one of incessant repression and continued development. The tremendous rush of competition, the being in active touch with the great and small events of daily life, the knowledge that each so engaged is in an infinitesimal way writing history, serves to rouse even dormant ambition.

Active daily newspaper work is a hotbed for the development of the best intellectual qualities. It is a life of untiring perseverance, of unfailing patience, of abasement of self at times to an abnormal degree, yet upon the whole decidedly beneficial. Frequently it comes to pass that the woman writer, while maintaining her dignity of brains, must entirely obliterate her individuality, unless she means to fall by the wayside and be laid in the potter's field of failures. For some people she must ever become a mere listening machine. Absolutely this and nothing more if she means to achieve success, for she must listen to all manners of woes and tribulations, and have positively none of her own to relate in exchange. The role of Punchinello is not always the easiest to enact, but to leave it out of the curriculum at times very materially interferes with achieving the desired end.

Of all arts of which she must become mistress that of learning to draw people out that their best points may be brought into play, is the most important. The acquisition of this accomplishment has in turn its reflex good effect upon her work, as nine times out of ten it will enable her to turn an opening negative into a closing affirmative.

The branch of newspaper work in which women excel in Washington, in which in fact they have the almost exclusive field, is that of social reporting. To a greater or less degree during the last half dozen years the society reporter has come to have a place upon the staff of nearly every large journal in the United States and Europe. But it is in Washington that she rises to her greatest heights of usefulness, and, therefore, because of the broader opportunities among the official and political element, of greater importance.

In this particular phase of work, woman's great success lies in the cultivation of the power to keep her own counsel regarding much that must necessarily be seen and heard in the discharge of her work. And in this respect, scoff as unbelievers may, she has achieved a success. From the experience of years I can truthfully assert that the woman writers of the daily press do not gossip even among themselves of the vast number of secrets that come to their knowledge concerning prominent people of the world of society in which their lives are spent.

At the start of society reporting woman's presence on the regular staffs of newspapers was regarded in the light of a necessary evil. She not infrequently in masculine estimation sunk far below this level, rarely in the eye of the general public did she rise above it. Just why this should have been is enigmatical, as the "copy" of the average woman correspondent requires less revising than that of her brother of the pen. Further, she represents a commercial value that the man does not and in the nature of things cannot. Her value is incalculable as an advertising medium. This is something she comes in time to understand and appreciate.

The best society column on a local paper is quick to be noted by fashionable women. The reliability of this column once recognized means a tremendous valuation to the proprietor. The advertisers, especially those having women's apparel and belongings for sale, soon grow to know and patronize the paper in accordance with its social rating.

There is literally at the present time no department of newspaper work in which women have not practically exemplified the fact that they stand equal with men as reporters. As war correspondents, for nerve and accuracy they made enviable records in the Spanish-American and South African wars. But it is as an interviewer that the woman newspaper writer is beginning to excel. In this lies her unquestioned success. It is here that a natural patience stands her friend in the hour of need. It is here also that her intuition serves her well.

The average woman does not understand politics. Possibly the reason for this may lie in the fact that up to the present time she has taken little active part in the workings of the great machine which turns some presidents in and others out of the White House. But this does not militate against her availability and strength as an interviewer, because a woman more naturally than a man carries out instructions. When detailed to some important work of this nature, she is quick to add to her current knowledge such specific information as is essential in the case. She rarely returns empty-handed from an assignment, and the newspaper woman of standing is recognized for accuracy of detail.

SHERIDAN VERY MUCH ALIVE.

The First Gentleman in Europe dictated to Sheridan a letter making fun of the grotesque appearance of a crony of the Prince's, Maj. Hanger, at a ball given in celebration of the Queen's birthday. The Major, on receipt of a letter, hastened to show it to the Prince, who insisted that only a duel à outrance could wipe out the insult. On examining the handwriting the Prince said he had no doubt at all it was Sheridan's, and the author of "The School for Scandal" was accordingly challenged. The duel was of such vindictive deadliness that it was not till three shots on either side had been interchanged, and till Sheridan fell, that the honor of the Major was satisfied. "Killed, by G—!" exclaimed Capt. Morris, in a voice of horror, and he and his principal, the Major, fled the field. Unspeakable was the relief of the remorseful Major when Sheridan turned up that night at the Prince's dinner table. "How—how—how is this?" he stammered. "I thought I had killed you!" "No, my good fellow," replied Sheridan. "I wasn't good enough to go to the world above; nor as yet quite bad enough to go to that below; therefore, I deferred my departure. But, I say, Hanger, didn't I die well?" It was then explained to the mystified Major how he had been hoaxed by the Prince, who had arranged that the pistols should be charged only with powder.

Bill Knew Grease.

One day Bill had company to dine with him, and his wife, wishing William to appear well, quietly admonished him to be careful what he said. All went well till Bill got his potatoes well mashed, when he said:

"Dolly, pass the grease."

"Why, William," said his wife, "you should call it gravy."

"Wa-al, says Bill, "I guess if it got on your tablecloth it would be grease."

MASURY'S HOUSE PAINTS
WILL WITHSTAND THE RAVAGES OF TIME

THE perfection attained by Masury's House Paints during the sixty-five years they have been in use is due to the great care with which the ingredients are selected and proportioned.

The pigments employed are ground in Pure Linseed Oil by specially constructed machinery which assures uniformity in consistency and color.

They are superior in covering capacity, preservative qualities and durability of finish. These established points of excellence make them at once the safest and most economical paints to buy.

In determining this matter of suitable paints you must remember that it costs as much to cover your house with poor paint as it does to cover it with the best, and that inasmuch as Masury's House Paints defer repainting for the longest possible period, they are the proper paints to buy. Because by their great endurance the original cost is of slight moment. Manufactured by

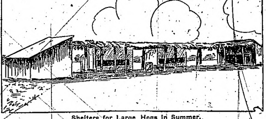
System Which Has Been Successfully Worked Out by a Farmer in Illinois.

W. J. Spillman, agriculturist in charge of farm management investigations for the department of agriculture, has just described what he considers a model farm of its kind, where good management has been applied to a small body of land with the best possible results. This is the farm of Mr. W. H. Rowe, Morgan county, Ill., on dark, prairie loam. It is devoted to hog-raising and the production of fine seed corn. For roughage the hogs are provided with clover pasture in summer and soy bean or clover hay in the winter. They are fed grain every day in the year.



Shelters for Large Hogs in Summer.

Nearly all highly successful farms, according to Mr. Spillman, are unique in their management. In the absence of an established science of farming they represent systems wrought out by men of unusual energy and intelligence, who have gone resolutely about discovering and making use of the full possibilities of their land. These men are to be found scattered all over the country and in their work nearly every type of highly profitable farming is represented.

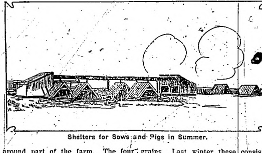
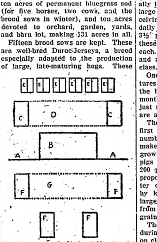
The 80 acres are divided into four equal fields, all fenced hog tight. The fences consist of five foot woven wire, with a barbed wire above it around part of the farm. The four fields meet at the center of the farm, where there is a well, a small feed yard for use in winter, and a shed for storing feeding troughs, etc., in summer. The feed yard is partially floored so that the hogs may eat without standing in mud during unfavorable weather in winter.



Shelters for Sows and Pigs in Summer.

In addition to the 80 acres in the rotation, there are 31 acres of timber, ten acres of permanent bluegrass sod (for five horses, two cows, and the brood sows in winter), and ten acres devoted to orchard, garden, yards, and barn lot, making 131 acres in all.

Fifteen brood sows are kept. These are well-bred Duroc-Jerseys, a breed especially adapted to the production of large, late-maturing hogs. These sows farrow once a year, early in April, or after danger of severe winter weather is past. They raise eight pigs to the litter on the average. In spring the 20-acre clover field is divided into two parts by means of a temporary wire fence 30 inches high. One part contains 12 acres and the other eight.



Arrangement of Shelter Houses in the Field.

[A A is the partition fence that separates the yearling hogs from the sows and pigs. P is the special pen in which the small pigs get their grain. C C are two shelter houses, 6x14 feet; they stand facing each other, about 70 feet apart. D is a temporary shed, covered with straw, which furnishes ample shade in hot weather. E, E, E, E, E, E, are small A-shaped houses, each large enough for sleeping quarters for a sow and her litter. Most of the sows sleep in the shelters C, C, or under the open shed D. F, F, are shelter houses, 6x14 feet, like C, C, for the yearling hogs. G is a shed similar to D.]

One hundred and twenty yearling hogs, weighing about 200 pounds each, are placed in the 12-acre inclosure in early spring and remain until they are sent to market about August 1 to 10. The 15 sows and 120 pigs are turned into the eight acre division, where they remain till the large hogs on the 12-acre division are marketed, when they are allowed the run of the whole, 20 acres.

At first each sow and her litter receives three pounds of corn a day. Sometimes a few oats are substituted for part of the corn. The amount of gain is gradually increased until by fall each sow and litter receives about 17 pounds a day. The sows are allowed to wean the pigs of their own accord. At one side of the field a pen is constructed in such manner as to admit the pigs, but not the sows, and the pigs may thus be fed separately so as to insure their getting a proper share of the feed. By the end of summer the pigs weigh about 100 to 125 pounds each, most of this gain being due to clover.

On the approach of winter the sows are removed to the bluegrass pasture previously mentioned, where they are confined on two acres of land, with suitable shelters provided. The pigs are then penned on about four acres of clover sod next the central well. The shelters which stood in the field during the summer are moved to this pen.

The brood sows are fed in winter about four pounds a day of mixed of ground rye, shorts, oil meal, and corn. In the absence of rye, bran is used. They are also fed clover hay, a small crop of which is cut from the clover pastures. This amount of feed keeps them in thrifty condition, but does not fatten them.

The pigs in winter are fed soy bean hay and an average of about five pounds of grain per head per day. During a portion of the time this grain consists of a mixture of about 3½ pounds of corn, ¾ pound of shorts, and ¾ pound of oil meal per head per day. The amount fed is less in early winter and gradually increases as the pigs weigh 200 to 225 pounds each. Last winter these consisted grains.

When clover pasture becomes available in spring these yearling hogs are turned into the 12-acre inclosure, while the sows and their new litters are given the remaining eight acres. While the clover is at its best each of the 120 large hogs receives about 2½ pounds daily. This amount is gradually increased by August 1, when the large hogs are marketed, each is receiving about four pounds a day. The daily average for this period is about 3½ pounds. When sent to market these hogs weigh 325 to 350 pounds each. They are a fine, uniform lot, and always bring top prices in their class.

One of the most interesting features of this system is the fact that the hogs are kept until they are 18 months old and reach the large size just mentioned. The reasons for this are as follows:

The clover furnishes most feed the first half of summer, and the double number of hogs on hand at this time makes it possible to utilize this growth to best advantage. Again, pigs handled as these are, if sold at 200 pounds, will have made a large proportion of their growth during winter on expensive grain feed, while by keeping them till midsummer a larger proportion of the gain is made from clover, which is cheaper than grain.

During the summer the grain is fed mostly in the vicinity of the shelters. If the feeding ground becomes muddy, the grain is distributed in a new place. In winter a good deal of mill stuff is fed, as previously stated (6 1-3 tons last winter).

Raise Much Alfalfa.—Nebraska is a great alfalfa state. In 1902 the acreage was 200,000 and the production 645,000 tons. In 1906 there were 365,000 acres, producing 1,340,000 tons. The value of the 1906 crop is estimated at nearly $11,000,000. Western farmers realize pretty fully the value of this one of the greatest of forage plants. It does well in Nebraska, and as the above statement shows, is of immense value. It is fed freely on the home farms and some of it is shipped out. It will be many a long year before the alfalfa industry is overdone.

Raw Bone.—Raw bone coarsely ground, say half as large as grains of corn, is greedily eaten by fowls especially if they are not allowed to run at large; and well conducted experiments have proved that it is not only beneficial to the health of the fowls but it also stimulates and promotes laying to a considerable extent.

Head of Seventy-five Banks.

Twenty-five years ago W. S. Wetham left the town of La Grange, Ga., with the munificent sum of $1 in his pocket and landed in New York with nothing to his credit but his clothes and his character. The quality of the former does not matter the quality of the latter has shown itself. He is today president of seventy-five banks, all but four of which are situated in his native state. In return for Georgia's small advance of 100 cents he has pretty well cornered her banking interests and has in keeping a goodly amount of her funds. The four banks of which he is president outside of the state of Georgia are situated in Florida.

Of Interest to Women.

Every woman naturally should be healthy and strong, but a great many women, unfortunately, are not, owing to the unnatural condition of the lives we lead. Headache, backache and a general tired condition are prevalent amongst the women of to-day, and to relieve these conditions women rush to the druggists for a bottle of some preparation supposed to be particularly for them, and containing—nobody knows what. If they would just get a box of Brandreth's Pills, and take them regularly every night for a time, all their trouble would disappear, as these pills regulate the organs of the feminine system. The same dose always has the same effect, no matter how long they are used.

Brandreth's pills have been in use for over a century, and are for sale everywhere, plain or sugar-coated.

An Angry Dowager Empress.

A correspondent writing from Peking says that the empress dowager, learning that her imperial edict issued several years ago calling upon Chinese fathers and mothers to stop the custom of binding their daughters' feet was not being obeyed as universally as a special imperial edict ought to be, evinced considerable ire at the news, with the result that several grand councillors who were present at the time underwent a disagreeable quarter of an hour at her majesty's hands.

THREE EPOCHS IN A WOMAN'S LIFE

MRS. ELVA BARBER EDWARDS — MRS. GEORGE WALTERS

There are three critical stages in a woman's life which leave their mark in her career. The first of these stages is womanhood, or the change from a care free girl to budding womanhood. The second is motherhood, and the third is Change of Life.

Perils surround each of these stages, and most of the misery that comes to women through ill health dates from one or another of these important crises.

Women should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs has carried thousands of young girls over the critical period of puberty, has prepared mothers for childbirth, and in later years carried them safely through the change of life more successfully than any other remedy in the world. Thousands of testimonials from grateful persons, two of which are here published, substantiate this fact beyond contradiction.

Mrs. George Walters of Woodlawn, Ill. writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I feel it my duty to tell you of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me in preparing for childbirth. After suffering and losing my children a friend advised me to try your valuable medicine, and the result was that I had very little inconvenience, a quick recovery and as healthy a child as can be found anywhere. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a blessing to all expectant mothers."

Mrs. Elva Barber Edwards of Cathlamet, Wash., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I want to tell you how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carried me through the critical period of the Change of Life without any trouble whatever, also cured me of a very severe female weakness. I cannot say enough in praise of what your medicine has done for me."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Walters and Mrs. Edwards it will do for other women in their condition. Every suffering woman in the United States is asked to accept the following invitation. It is free, will bring you health and may save your life.

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of her vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and helpful.

During its long record of more than thirty years its long list of actual cures, entitles Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to the respect and confidence of every fair minded person.

William M. Evarts' Mot.

"Gentlemen, I offer you champagne or milk; they cost me just the same." As this old-time jest is now revived and is going the rounds attributed wrongly to a number of distinguished amateur farmers, it is well to state that William M. Evarts said it.

The State Day by Day

NEWS OF INTEREST.

SPECULATION IN DULUTH.

Everybody Is Dabbling in the Coppers Floated by Cole and Associates.

Duluth has gone crazy over copper stocks.

The old boom days in real estate, when lots were staked out all over the southern part of St. Louis county and sold for fabulous prices, are recalled by the present stock craze.

The floating of the Bonanza Circle stocks in Bisbee by T. F. Cole and his associates gave the craze its first start. Friends of Mr. Cole and their friends made fortunes in a few months from the wonderful record of Calumet & Arizona and the other mines adjoining it. This was followed by the North Butte flotation, which made another crop of millionaires, and the climax came with the Cananea-Greene merger.

Within the last few months a dozen brokers' offices have sprung up in the city, dealing entirely in unlisted stocks, and they are crowded from morning until night with buyers.

Some idea of the extent of the boom may be gained from an incident of the past week. A certain mining stock was put on the market for the first time. The stock sold for $1 a share, or rather this was the par value. By noon the entire issue had been sold out, and before night the stock was selling at $2 a share. Scores of investors who got in "on the ground floor" sold out before night and doubled their money.

Clerks, bookkeepers, bellboys and even newsboys bought the stock. Apparently everybody had decided to "take a flyer" in the new stock.

One broker has made $75,000 in commissions since the first of the year. On the streets and in the hotels nothing can be heard but copper stocks.

FIGHT ON TONNAGE TAX.

Iron Range Citizens Appoint Committees to Carry on Battle.

During the past week mass meetings have been held in the different towns on the range in opposition to the proposed tonnage tax law. Committees have been appointed in Virginia, Hibbing, Eveleth and Chisholm to meet the legislative committee when they visit the ranges this week and voice their opposition to the proposed law.

If the tonnage tax bill is reported favorably by the committee a delegation of range citizens will visit St. Paul to lay their side of the tax question before both branches of the legislature.

It is the unanimous opinion of range people that the proposed tonnage tax law would greatly harm this country. As it is, the mining companies pay about 85 per cent of the school tax, all of which, according to the proposed law, would have to be paid by the school districts and towns themselves, thereby raising the school tax to ten times its former size.

Mayor Eaton of Virginia has said that if the proposed law went into effect the range schools would have to be closed, as the burden of supporting them would be too great for the different municipalities to bear alone.

The towns are very united in their opposition to the measure, and it is hoped that the pressure that will be brought to bear on the legislators will have the effect of defeating the bill.

IS ST. PAUL BEHIND "ALPHABET?"

Shorter Line to Chicago Could Be Gained by Mankato Connection.

The Milwaukee road may build from Granite Falls to Mankato and connect at Mankato with what is known as the "Alphabet road, and thus secure an outlet to Chicago shorter by a good many miles than by the way of the Twin Cities.

The "Alphabet" project is being pushed by the Milwaukee, and a line down the Minnesota river to connect with it is not wholly visionary. The "Alphabet" runs from Albert Lea in a northwesterly direction toward Mankato, and, as originally planned, was to have passed on to St. Cloud. The grading is done and steel laid from Albert Lea to a point in Waseca county. Capt. A. H. Reed of Glencoe was the projector of the road, but sold out some months ago to one Tobie, who has been pushing the construction.

If the Milwaukee is really behind the scheme and it should build from Granite Falls to Mankato, in all probability this extension would be likely to pass through Redwood Falls. If this extension should be built, Redwood Falls and vicinity would have another line to Chicago, as well as another to the Twin Cities. This ought to help transportation materially in this section of the state.

ENDS A LONG FIGHT.

Mesaba Traction Company Awarded Street Railway Franchise.

At its regular weekly meeting the Virginia city council granted a street railway franchise to the Mesaba Traction company, of which F. B. Myers of Biwabik is president. The franchise provides that the company shall make a cash deposit of $10,000 with the city to guarantee that the road will be in full operation between Virginia, Mount Iron and Eveleth within three years.

This action by the council ends a spirited contest that has been waged between the Mesaba and Northern Traction companies, both of which have been competing for the franchise for the past year.

R. F. Berdie of Hibbing, president of the unsuccessful company, has said that his company will build around Virginia instead of entering the town, but it is not thought that he will be able to get backers for this proposition.

It is understood that the Mesaba company is being financed by Twin City capitalists.

BUGS OF THE YEAR.

State Entomologist Makes His Annual Report.

The eleventh annual report of Prof. F. L. Washburn, state entomologist, to Gov. Johnson has just been issued. It contains about ninety pages, with illustrations, including one colored plate showing the cabbage maggot fly and its various enemies and its relations to the cabbage plant. A detailed summary of last season's work with the cabbage maggot occupies about sixteen pages. There is a discussion of club root cabbage. Two different onion maggots are shown working on onions last summer.

Inspection of nurseries occupies a portion of the report, with the nursery laws in various states. There is also a chapter on spraying in nursery and orchard, with illustrations of spraying outfits. Remedies are given for the Buffalo moth, clothes moth, fleas, cockroaches and other household insects.

The army worm is reported as very abundant; the maple scale as being quite injurious; white grubs in lawns. There is an illustrated description of the new insectary; a calendar telling farmers what to do each month, with illustrations of the pests to be combatted at such dates; a list of insects identified during the year; a report of the Hessian fly slowly increasing; soft scale of the plum alarmingly on the increase, etc.

The entomologist has written about 1,800 letters during the year regarding injurious insects and has mailed over 2,000 circulars containing information regarding certain destructive insects. Some law to bring up the standard of paris green in Minnesota is recommended.

PAY CLAIMS IN FULL.

Fairmont Bank Will Hold Back Nothing.

The meeting of the creditors of the Merchants and Farmers' bank of Fairmont, that recently closed its doors, was a harmonious affair and resulted in the selection of three trustees, A. L. Ward, F. W. Betz and Frank G. Sasse, who will close up the affairs of the institution. As a result of the meeting and the feeling of confidence which it inspired it is believed that the claims will be paid in full and that there will be something left for the owner, Percy Wallaston of Victoria, B. C.

Percy Wollaston, Jr., who appeared for his father, stated that every dollar's worth of the latter's property, including his home in Victoria and his $5,000 of life insurance, would be turned over to the trustees to aid them in liquidating the claims. According to his figures, based on the appraisement made by A. L. Ward and other Fairmont business men, the assets exceed the liabilities by $10,000. No attempt will be made to reopen the bank.

Young Mr. Wollaston has a preferred claim of $5,000 against the bank, but he waived all rights and will take his chances with the rest. There were between $800 and $900 deposited in the bank, the savings of children and young people, that he agreed to pay out of his own pocket at once and take his chances of getting the money back. In addition, he said that he was going to assume the support and care of his father, now rendered penniless.

DRILL REVEALS ORE.

Sixty Feet of Iron Deposits Are Encountered in New Field.

When drilling commenced last summer for iron a short distance south of Kellilher it was generally believed that ore would sooner or later be discovered. But the hopes of the most enthusiastic probably never realized the extent of the rich deposits or the richness of the ore.

The drill which has been operated almost continuously since last August has pierced the ground to a depth of over 500 feet. Although small deposits of iron were discovered at frequent intervals after the drill had been lowered 100 feet, it was not until recently that the main ledge, the "pay dirt," was encountered. Since that time the diamond drill has been used continuously, and approximately sixty feet of iron has been passed through.

From time to time samples of the iron ore have been sent away to be assayed, and while the results of the tests have not yet been divulged, it is known that the ore ranks among the richest in the state.

This week another drill will be commenced to determine the direction the ledge runs and the extent of the mine and the mineral deposit. Drilling will be commenced at different points and the exact position of the ledge determined.

DRAINAGE SURVEY UNDER WAY.

Ralph and a Surveying Crew at Work in Long Prairie River Basin.

Engineer Ralph of the state drainage department and a crew of surveyors are surveying the Long Prairie river basin with a view to preventing the overflow of abutting lowlands and establishing a system of drainage. It has been proposed to establish a system of reservoirs by the installing of dams in the lakes of Douglas county, which constitute the sources of the river.

Work Accomplished by the State Legislators.

St. Paul, Feb. 8.—Senator Cushman introduced a bill which establishes the Iowa rate basis on all classes of commodities and prevents the railroads from making lower rates between competing points than between local points. In cases where the Minnesota roads carry lower rates, as they do for the short distances, these lower rates will govern. The bill gives the railroad and warehouse commission jurisdiction over bridge corporations over whose bridges railroads pass. The railroad commission has power to change rates, but may not make them higher.

Senator Sundberg presented a bill to regulate the sale and manufacture of cigarette papers and substitutes.

A bill by Senator Dunn gives additional authority to the railroad and warehouse commission. It regulates the requirement of safety devices on railroads.

Amendments are offered to the law on the taxation of telegraph companies in a bill by Senator Gunn.

Senator Thorpe offered a bill amending the liquor law of the code in a minor particular.

The senate spent some time in committee of the whole, but no definite action was taken on any of the bills under discussion.

In the House.

The house killed the Stokes resolution appropriating $150 to each member to cover expenses for postage, traveling expenses, etc. But thirty votes were cast in favor of the resolution.

Under a bill by Representative Case one-half of all inheritance taxes to be hereafter collected are to be credited to the county in which the deceased resided. There can be no final settlement of the estate until the tax is paid.

Making false statements for the purpose of securing or having extended credit becomes a felony under the terms of a bill offered by Representative Allen.

Representative Brown presented a bill providing for the establishment of a recreation room at the soldiers' home, where liquor may be sold to the inmates.

Other bills: To establish the Twentieth judicial district; to regulate the practice and profession of architecture; relating to salaries and clerk hire of judges of probate; requiring licensing of persons engaged in the sale or manufacture of cigarettes; requiring foreign corporations to make annual reports to the secretary of state and to pay annual fees; to regulate the employment of legislative lobby counsel and agents, and to provide for the return of legislative expenses; to provide punishment for use of language tending to provoke assault; relating to payment of bounties for killing wolves.

In committee of the whole the bill authorizing the payment of traveling expenses of county school superintendents was recommended to pass.

St. Paul, Feb. 9.—By the introduction of a $1,000,000 appropriation bill in both houses of the legislature, active preparations for promoting a grand celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the admission of Minnesota into the Union were begun at the state capitol. The bill provides for the expansion of the state fair of 1908 into an exposition. It describes in detail how the money is to be spent and the general character of the exposition.

Both houses passed the bill granting a special contingent fund of $50,000 for the attorney general's department, to be used in fighting railroad cases.

In the senate the resolution requesting the Minnesota delegation in congress to vote for the so-called La Follette bill limiting the hours of employment of railway trainmen was passed.

The house resolution calling for the appointment of a committee to investigate the alleged exorbitant rates charged by express companies was passed.

Senator Schaller introduced a bill to regulate the practice of veterinary medicine.

The house bill prohibiting any further mineral leases on state lands was passed.

Senator Nelson presented a bill to regulate the use of automobiles. It provides for the registration of owners with the secretary of state.

Other bills introduced: Relating to taxes on property owned, occupied or used by any fraternal organization and not with a view of profit; relating to the use of seines in fishing; to regulate the killing of tuberculous cattle and glandered horses, and to provide for compensation to the owner by the state.

In the House.

The Elmer Adams bill wiping out private banks in the state was passed.

Representative Case introduced a bill requiring telephone companies of the state to pay a gross earnings tax of 4 per cent, the same to be in lieu of all other taxes. They now pay 3 per cent.

The forestry committee sent in a bill which provides a plan for increasing the forestry reserve by setting aside tax title lands which may be suitable for the purpose.

Other bills introduced were: Appropriating money to pay for the publication of constitutional amendments in 1906; restoring citizenship to persons convicted of a felony; to regulate actions against common carriers; authorizing board of control to cause surgical operations to be performed upon inmates of the state hospitals; to appropriate money for the salaries and expenses of the state food and dairy commission.

Three minor bills were passed.

St. Paul, Feb. 11.—The pupils of the public schools of the state will be thoroughly familiar with the effects of alcoholic drinks and other narcotics if a bill introduced by Senator Schaller becomes a law. Under this bill this subject must be taught to all pupils above the three lowest primary grades.

Senator Sangeng presented a bill appropriating $15,000 to be available at once to aid school districts in the purchase of school libraries.

The various counties in this state are to be given full power and authority to arrange for suitable exhibits at the proposed semi-centennial exposition, to be held in connection with the state fair in 1908 through the provisions of a bill introduced by Senator Hackney.

Other bills introduced: Relating to the use of evidence in subsequent trials; establishing a state normal school north of a line from Duluth to East Grand Forks; relating to the formation of school districts.

Five unimportant bills were passed.

In the House.

A bill that would leave to the state normal school board to say where the next normal school is to be located was introduced in the house by Representative Opsahl.

Representative Bicknell introduced a bill imposing interest of 12 per cent on state taxes that are not paid when due.

Detention hospitals, where the sanity of persons committed to state hospitals for the insane may be tested before they are sent to the state hospitals, are provided in a bill introduced in the house by the committee on hospitals for the insane.

Other bills introduced: To validate certain bonds purchased by the state investment board with state funds; prohibiting the improper stamping of gold and silverware; amending the laws relating to highway taxes; requiring names and addresses of persons receiving passes to be made public.

The house in committee of the whole recommended for passage the bill for the payment of the necessary expenses of county superintendents.

The senate and the house adjourned until Wednesday morning on account of Lincoln's birthday.

St. Paul, Feb. 14.—The senate yesterday concurred in the house resolution relating to the exposition to be held in Seattle in 1909. The resolution, after setting forth the benefits, requests congress to make the necessary appropriations.

A concurrent resolution from the North Dakota legislature was received, asking the State of Minnesota to take charge of the grain inspection at Superior, with a view to creating a market at that point and modifying the state law so that such Minnesota inspection may become possible.

Senator Wilson introduced the "uniform divorce bill," so-called, adopted by the national congress on uniform divorce law.

Senator Foessen presented a bill appropriating $150,000 for the construction and equipment of a college of education at the state university.

A bill was introduced limiting somewhat the rule of eligibility to the state sanitarium for consumptives. Only persons who have resided in the state throughout the year preceding application, and who are afflicted with incipient tuberculosis shall be received.

When the calendar was taken up several bills of importance were disposed of.

In committee of the whole the bill to prevent the spread of rabies by dogs was recommended to pass.

By a vote of 65 to 46 the house agreed to submit the question of woman suffrage to the people in the shape of a constitutional amendment. This action is not final and many may change their votes when the bill comes up for final passage.

A bill by Representative Cummings provi[illegible] against unfair discrimination in prohibiting a less rate for an article in one section than is charged in another. It is directed against the Standard Oil and similar combinations.

Representative Tighe offered a bill enacting the New York stamp tax law. On all board of trade or stock exchange sale agreements a tax of 1 cent on every $100 is imposed, and this is paid by the cancellation of a stamp covering the amount.

Representative Timberlake would require mothers, if physically able, to nurse their children. It is made a misdemeanor for any person to induce a mother not to nurse her child.

A maximum rate of 6 mills a ton a mile for the transportation of iron ore is provided in a bill by Representative Thayer.

The manufacture of barb wire and wire nails at the Stillwater prison is provided for in a bill by Representative Morse.

Representative Brady presented a bill providing a salary of $7,500 for the governor, $6,000 for the attorney general and $5,000 each for the state auditor, secretary of state and treasurer.

The Ramsey county delegation offered a bill authorizing bids for the state capitol approaches.

W. A. Nolan's reciprocal demurrage bill had the right of way in the afternoon, coming up as a special order.

After some discussion the bill was referred to a special committee and made a special order for Tuesday.

A Talking Dog.

Little Boy—Wanna near my doggie talk?

Little Girl—Dogs can't talk.

Little Boy—Mine can. Now listen. Rover, which part of this steamer do you like best?

The Doggie—Bow!

Dog-Gon It.

Smith: "That cough will get you into trouble if you don't get rid of it."

Jones: "How so?"

Smith: "You bark so much the police will arrest you for not having a dog license."

Part That Hurt.

"He said I was a doddering old scamp!" exclaimed Senator Sniggins, angrily.

"That's a shame."

"Isn't it? Why, I'm as hale as the average man of half my age."

Congress.

Resume of the Week's Proceedings.

Washington, Feb. 8.—The Indian appropriation bill received rough handling at the hands of the senate yesterday. The amendments of the committee, and especially those suggested by the special committee which went to the Indian Territory last summer to investigate conditions there, were nearly all rejected on points of order. The provision which allowed full-blood Indians of the Indian Territory to sell their surplus land was defeated. The coal lands amendment, allowing the surface of the coal lands in the Indian Territory to be sold was ruled out of the bill on a point of order.

The house completed and passed the river and harbor appropriation bill, carrying more than $83,000,000.

A bill amending the denatured alcohol bill was passed.

The naval appropriation bill was taken up and made the continuing order.

Washington, Feb. 9. — The senate yesterday passed the Indian appropriation bill, which has been the subject of consideration throughout the week. Senator Frazier made an address on the subject of states' rights, after which the army appropriation bill, carrying a total of $81,500,000, was taken up. Senator Nelson said he would move Saturday for the consideration of the bill granting the government the right of appeal in criminal cases.

A new high record in the way of the passage of private pension bills was made by the house yesterday, when 725 bills were passed in an hour and a half.

Washington, Feb. 11. — The house having been informed of the death of Representative John F. Rixey of Virginia, it adjourned Saturday shortly after convening, out of respect to the memory of the deceased.

The army appropriation bill and memorial exercises for the late Representative Marsh of Illinois occupied the entire day in the senate. Discussion of the army appropriation bill was unusually interesting for the reason that it branched off on American occupation of Cuba, the plans for the equipment of state militia with regulation arms and the proposed authorization to the war department to accept reduced fare or free transportation of troops and supplies.

Washington, Feb. 12. — The senate yesterday passed the army appropriation bill carrying $81,000,000. The amendment which permitted the government to accept reduced rates on army supplies and permitted officers and enlisted men to accept reduced transportation was defeated by a point of order interposed by Senator McCumber after the day had been spent in its discussion. An amendment offered by Senator Dick increasing by 20 per cent the pay of officers and enlisted men was defeated by a point of order by Senator Hale.

Bills relating to the government of the District of Columbia were considered in the house yesterday.

Washington, Feb. 13. — The senate occupied the day in argument on the bill granting the government the right to take an appeal on points of law in criminal cases. No action was taken on the measure. Senator Nelson gave notice that he would move its consideration to-day.

After the passage of a number of bills under unanimous consent the house yesterday resolved itself into committee of the whole to consider the naval appropriation bill.

Washington, Feb. 14. — The senate yesterday passed the bill giving the government the right of appeal to the supreme court for a construction of the constitutionality of any law involved in a criminal suit. This measure has been under consideration for several days, and was passed only after many amendments had been adopted.

A message from President Roosevelt urging legislation affecting the public lands was received and read in both houses.

The house yesterday made headway with the naval appropriation bill and more than half the bill is perfected.

PRESIDENT CHANGES ORDER.

Northwestern Members Will Win Out in Fight for Homesteaders.

Washington, Feb. 14.—As a result of a conference held at the White House yesterday, participated in by President Roosevelt and the interior department officials, and also Representatives Steenerson of Minnesota and Gronna of North Dakota, the executive order recently issued holding up final patents for public lands pending investigations of alleged frauds will be modified in the interests of settlers on agricultural lands.

These changes in the executive order have been brought about through the active efforts of Northwestern senators and representatives.

Saved by Living Chain.

Kaukauna, Wis., Feb. 13. — While crossing the river where he had been cutting ice Henry Schneider of Dundas broke through the ice and was precipitated into the icy water. A dozen men formed a living chain and rescued him.

Ten Firemen Overcome.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Ten firemen were partly overcome by smoke and a loss of $85,000 was incurred yesterday in a fire which threatened to destroy the six-story building at 185 and 187 Fifth avenue.

The Modern Young Man.

One day a colleague asked Uncle Joe Cannon, what, in his opinion, was the main difference between the days of his youth and the present time. "Well," answered Uncle Joe, reflectively, "when I was a youngster, a young man was satisfied to paddle his own canoe, but nowadays every one thinks he has a call to steer the ship of state."

RAILROAD MEN ATTACK BILL

HOUSE RAILROAD COMMITTEE HEARS ARGUMENTS ON THE ROCKNE BILL.

St. Paul, Feb. 14. — Discrimination against companies organized in the State of Minnesota, and in favor of companies from the outside, that will result in stopping the Minnesota lines from making further extensions or improvements and that may result in making other points than the Twin Cities and Duluth the terminal markets for the products of the West and Northwest, was the charge made against the Rockne bill by A. B. Stickney, president of the Chicago Great Western; James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern; W. R. Begg, general solicitor of the same road, and A. H. Bright, general counsel of the Soo line, in their statements before the house railroad committee in the hearing yesterday afternoon. The meeting had been called for the purpose of giving a public hearing on the bill introduced by A. J. Rockne of Zumbrota, which provides that no railroad shall issue new or additional stock or bonds without the consent of the railroad commission, after a public hearing.

The hearing was held in the house chamber.

TO ASSIST YOUNG.

T. D. O'Brien and A. E. Clarke Are Appointed Special Counsel.

St. Paul, Feb. 14.—Attorney General Young has announced the selection of special counsel to assist in fighting the commodity rate cases. T. D. O'Brien of St. Paul, state insurance commissioner, and Albert E. Clarke of Minneapolis, a veteran railroad attorney, are the men selected. The choice is non-partisan and was made after a consultation with the governor and the railway commission. Mr. O'Brien was attorney for the shippers in the famous New Ulm coal rate case. The case was won for the shippers. Mr. O'Brien will resign as insurance commissioner.

Mr. Clarke was for years general counsel for the Minneapolis & St. Louis.

PROBE SECRET ORDERS.

Archbishop Ireland and Other Prelates Will Report Findings.

Dubuque, Iowa, Feb. 14. — It is reported semi-officially that the occasion of the meeting here of Archbishops Keane, Gleason of St. Louis, Ireland of St. Paul and Messmer of Milwaukee, which was held here last week, was for the purpose of making an investigation of secret fraternal societies outside the church. The prelates named, it is stated, form a special committee of the hierarchy of the United States and will formulate a report to be presented to the national meeting in Washington at Easter. It is known that the rituals of a number of secret societies have been secured for examination.

LOSES ALL HIS FINGERS.

Farmer Living Near Elysian Gets Hands Badly Frozen.

St. Peter, Minn., Feb. 14. — Francis Kelly, a young farmer living near Elysian, was so badly frozen that he will be maimed for life. Kelly had gone to Elysian with a load of wheat, and on his return his sleigh was overturned in a snowdrift and his horses ran away. The young man attempted to follow them on foot, lost his way in the darkness and wandered about the greater part of the night. When he finally reached a farmhouse he was suffering greatly from exposure and his hands were terribly frozen. All his fingers had to be amputated.

UNIQUE HONOR FOR BRYAN.

Given Big Ovation by the Iowa Legislature.

Des Moines, Feb. 14.—W. J. Bryan was given the unique honor yesterday of an ovation by a state legislature that is overwhelmingly Republican. He appeared on invitation before the two houses of the Iowa general assembly and made an address in which he covered the entire range of political issues and which was accepted by the Democrats of the legislature as a tentative platform for the next presidential campaign.

FAINTS; HAS TUMBLE.

Woman Falls Down Cellar Stairs and Breaks Skull.

Western, Minn., Feb. 14. — While about to descend into the cellar at her home, Mrs. T. B. Roberts, suddenly was seized with a fainting fit and plunged down the steep stairs. She struck upon her head, and it is feared her skull is fractured.

Cave-in Kills Miner.

Butte, Mont., Feb. 14.—Timothy Harrington was killed by a fall of ground in the High Ore mine. He was covered by more than a ton of earth and rock, and it was several hours before his companions dug him out.

Guilty of Murder.

Minneapolis, Feb. 14. — Murder in the second degree was the verdict returned yesterday by the jury in the case of Clyde King, who killed his brother-in-law, Elias Jobes, on Dec. 24 at Jobes' farm, near Osseo.

Pass 2-Cent Fare Bill.

Des Moines, Feb. 14.—Iowa's 2-cent fare measure passed the house yesterday by a vote of 18 to 0. The publication clause was stricken out, so that if it passes the senate in a similar manner the measure will become a law July 4.

Still Bitter.

"Well," said he, anxious to patch up their quarrel of yesterday, "aren't you curious to know what's in this package?"

"Not very," replied the still belligerent wife, indifferently.

"Ah, I suppose it's those suspenders you said you needed."

There is no reason to think that the judgment will accept a correct philosophy in lieu of a right practice.

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

VOLUME XXVI. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1907. NUMBER 32.

MRS. EVELYN THAW ENTERS ON ORDEAL

DISTRICT ATTORNEY BEGINS THE CROSS-EXAMINATION OF THE YOUNG WIFE.

THAW'S WILL IN EVIDENCE

INTRODUCED TO SHOW THAT THAW WAS INSANE WHEN HE KILLED WHITE.

New York, Feb. 20.—"I never wanted to shoot the creature. I never wanted to kill him. I knew he was a foul creature, destroying the mothers and daughters of America, but I wanted through legal means to bring him to trial. I wanted to get him into court—to bring him to justice. But Providence took charge of it; it was an act of Providence."

This is Harry K. Thaw's own story of the killing of Stanford White. It was told by him to Dr. Britton D. Evans, the alienist, last August in the Tombs. Yesterday Dr. Evans repeated the prisoner's words to the jury which is trying Thaw for his life.

Will in Evidence.

In further bulwarking their contention that Thaw was insane when he killed Stanford White, the defendant's counsel succeeded yesterday in placing before the jury the will executed by Thaw the night of his marriage, in April, 1905, and a codicil to the will executed at the same time.

The will and the codicil, as read to the jurors yesterday, were offered in evidence as cumulative testimony of Thaw's mental unsoundness prior to the killing of White. In his will Thaw provided that his executors should set apart the sum of $50,000 for the investigation of his death in case of a violent or suspicious end.

To Secure Redress From White.

In the codicil Thaw left to a lawyer in Pittsburg the sum of $7,500 to be used in securing legal redress from Stanford White and one other person whose name was not allowed to be read; for the benefit of four young women who, Thaw declared, had been the victims of "degrading assaults" in a house "furnished and used for orgies by Stanford White and other inhuman scoundrels." Thaw also bequeathed sums of $2,500 each to the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, Anthony Comstock and a lawyer named in his codicil, to be used in discovering further alleged misdeeds by Stanford White and securing redress for the women.

Tuesday's Proceedings.

New York, Feb. [illegible] — Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw yesterday entered upon the ordeal of her cross-examination and before District Attorney Jerome had had the witness in charge for half an hour he had secured from the court a ruling which apparently opens the way for bringing into the trial of Harry K. Thaw all manner of evidence which may tend to discredit the defendant's wife. Heretofore it had been held that the rules of evidence protected young Mrs. Thaw and that, regardless of whether her story was true or false, the fact that she had told it to her husband was the one essential point.

Opens Doors Wide.

Mrs. Thaw had been allowed to repeat the story so that the jury might judge as to its effect in unbalancing the mind of the man on trial for the murder of Stanford White.

Mr. Jerome, by a simple question, opened the way for the introduction of testimony tending to show the truth or falsity of Mrs. Thaw's story. He asked the witness:

"Was the story you told Mr. Thaw true?"

"It was," she replied firmly.

Mr. Delmas, Thaw's leading counsel, objected strongly to the question, but Justice Fitzgerald held it to be competent as tending to show the credibility of the witness.

Jumps From Point to Point.

Mr. Jerome jumped from point to point in her story, and under the plea of testing her credibility was allowed to ask many pertinent questions.

Mr. Jerome brought out that Mrs. Thaw had written to Stanford White from Boulogne after Thaw had proposed to her in Paris. "Did you also cable Mr. White?" he asked. The witness could not remember. The cross-examination had barely gotten into full swing when adjournment for the day was ordered.

Tells Fate of Other Women.

In completing her direct testimony Mrs. Thaw had told of the conversations she and her husband had had regarding the fate of other young women at the hands of Stanford White. One of these girls was known as "The Pie Girl." She was fifteen years of age, and wore only a gauze dress when she sprang from a big pie at a stag dinner.

The witness declared that May Mackenzie had told her that Stanford White, when told she and Harry were very happy together, had remarked: "Pooh! it won't last. I will get her back."

Describes Three Dens.

Harry Thaw's letter to Anthony Comstock describing three houses or studios where he declared Stanford White and "other scoundrels" lured young girls was read.

Mrs. Caine, who was the only other witness of the day, testified to overhearing Harry Thaw ask Mrs. Nesbit for her daughter's hand in 1903.

LIVED ON BOUNTY OF WHITE

ASKED POINTEDLY ABOUT HER MEN ACQUAINTANCES OF THE PAST.

New York, Feb. 21.—In continuing his cross-examination of Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw yesterday at the trial of her husband District Attorney Jerome brought out the fact that in 1902 Stanford White deposited $1,350 with a New York trust company with instructions that it should be paid to the Nesbit girl at the rate of $25 a week. Mrs. Thaw frankly admitted receiving checks from the trust company, but she would not admit that there was a provision that she should receive the money only when out of employment. The prosecutor spent nearly the entire afternoon in trying to make Mrs. Thaw admit that this was true, but as often and in as many ways as he put the question to her, she gave the one answer: "I don't remember."

Her Feelings Not Spared.

Mr. Jerome indicated early that he had no disposition to spare Mrs. Thaw's feelings. He interrogated her pointedly as to her men acquaintances of the past. He laid especial stress upon her acquaintanceship with James A. Garland, who figured for the first time in the case. Mrs. Thaw said she knew Garland before she met White.

"Weren't you named as co-respondent in the Garland divorce case?" asked Mr. Jerome.

Mrs. Thaw was shaking her head when Mr. Delmas sprang to his feet with an objection. Justice Fitzgerald overruled the objection, but Mr. Jerome withdrew the question.

Never Posed in Nude.

Mr. Jerome questioned the witness about her manner of posing for artists and brought from her a denial that she ever posed in the nude. Many photographs of Mrs. Thaw were introduced in evidence. Mr. Jerome plied the young woman with questions as to what disposition she had made of the letters written to her by Stanford White. Some, she said, had been destroyed and some she had given to her husband. Mr. Jerome was assisted materially in his cross-examination by typewritten statements made by Mrs. Thaw's mother and by Howard Nesbit, her brother. He consulted the statements from time to time, and Mr. Delmas let this fact become known to the jury by remarking upon it.

Mr Jerome's cross-examination may require several days yet.

TO REBUILD KINGSTON.

Citizens of Unfortunate City Making Preparations for Big Task.

Kingston, Jamaica, Feb. 21.—A mass meeting of citizens, held Monday night, condemned Gov. Swettenham for preventing monetary assistance coming here. The meeting adopted a petition to parliament for a grant of $750,000 and a loan of $5,000,000 to assist in the rebuilding of the city.

Plans are now on foot for rebuilding a vastly improved Kingston.

KILL JUDGE AND JEROME.

Letter From St. Louis Warns Against Thaw's Conviction.

New York, Feb. 21.—Justice Fitzgerald, who is presiding at the Thaw trial, received a threatening letter yesterday. It was sent from St. Louis and accused the judge of siding with Jerome against Thaw. The writer threatened to kill Justice Fitzgerald and District Attorney Jerome if Thaw is convicted.

TO HAVE ANOTHER FAIR.

Winona's Success Last Fall Brings Demand for Repetition.

Winona, Minn., Feb. 21. — Winona will have another big free fair next fall. This was decided at a meeting of the directors held last evening, when reports showed that five-sixths of the people of the city demanded another because of the big success attained last fall.

$50,000 for Y. M. C. A.

Davenport, Iowa, Feb. 17. — E. S. Crossett, a wealthy lumberman of this city, has offered to give $50,000 for a Y. M. C. A. building in this city, provided an additional $50,000 is raised by the citizens.

FRENCH CRUISER SINKS STEAMER

COLLISION ON THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER NEAR THE CITY OF NEW ORLEANS.

SEVEN COAL PASSERS LOST

STEAMER'S CAPTAIN SAYS WARSHIP MISUNDERSTOOD HIS SIGNAL.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 21.—In hazy weather the French cruiser Kleber last night rammed and sank the American fruit steamer Hugoma in the Mississippi river just off the city. Capt. Lewis of the Hugoma said that seven coal passers and firemen had been drowned on his vessel. Most of them were Japanese. James O'Neal of New York suffered a broken leg. The cruiser was but slightly damaged. The Kleber, just arriving from Havana, was rounding a sharp turn and the Hugoma, drifting with the six-mile eddying current, turned directly into the man-of-war's patch. Capt. Lewis of the Hugoma says that his signal was mistaken by the warship.

Plunged to the Bottom.

The latter struck the fruit ship amidship on the port side, nearly cutting the vessel in twain, and in five minutes the Hugoma plunged to the bottom in more than 100 feet of water. Several of her crew scrambled upon the bows of the cruiser before the latter backed free while others lowered boats, and one or two jumped into the river. The launching of boats was extremely difficult; for when they struck the Hugoma rolled far starboard, remaining there until the cruiser backed, when the fruit ship immediately listed far to port and began to go down.

GETS 8,343 WILD FURS.

Lake Crystal, Minn., Feb. 21.—C. J. Peterson, a local trapper and fur buyer, has done a good stroke of business in the last fall and winter. His total catch and purchase is 8,202 muskrats, 32 minks, 3 raccoons, 20 weasels, 74 skunks, 5 civet cats and 7 other furs, making a total of 8,343 furs. The price received for rats was from 15 to 22 cents apiece, and for mink $3 to $7 each. The total cash received for the furs was $1,559.39.

HORSETHIEF HUNTERS ELECT.

Waseca County Detectives Choose New Officers.

Waseca, Minn., Feb. 21.—The forty-third annual meeting of the Waseca County Horsethief Detectives was held at the court house in Waseca for the election of officers and the transaction of business. John McWaide was elected president, R. P. Ward treasurer and Hiram Powell secretary.

SHOT IN EYE BY RIVAL.

Young Woman's Escort Is Blinded by Unidentified Assailant.

Calumet, Mich., Feb. 21.—While escorting a young woman last night, James Fisher was shot in the eye and blinded by an unidentified assailant. It is believed that the shooting was inspired by jealousy.

To Build Interurban.

Iowa City, Iowa, Feb. 21.—The survey for the Iowa City & Davenport Interurban Electric railroad is making good headway and construction work will be begun this season.

Pain Causes Suicide.

Commits Suicide on Girl's Grave.

Jackson Votes Bonds.

Jackson, Minn., Feb. 21. — Jackson county voted to issue bonds for $6,500 to complete the court house now under construction.

Gets Fortune; Ends Life.

Boys Shoot and Rob.

Dubuque, Iowa, Feb. 21. — The boy bandits who held up and shot H. Magdale, a junk dealer, were arrested. They were prompted to the robbery by dime novels which they had read.

PUSH WAR ACROSS BORDER

NICARAGUANS REPULSE HONDURA'S ARMY AND ADVANCE INTO INTERIOR.

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 21.—As a result of the hostilities which broke out Feb. 18 between Honduras and Nicaragua, resulting in the repulses of the Honduras army, the Nicaraguan troops are now advancing into the interior of Honduras.

Gen. Carcamo, who led the attacking force, was killed during the fighting.

The Nicaraguan army, under Gens. Vasquez and Fornos, has defeated the forces of Honduras at several points, capturing important positions.

President Bonilla of Honduras has issued a proclamation in which recent events are distorted and appealing for recognition of the boundary question, which Nicaragua has not taken into consideration since the king of Spain rendered his award on the matter.

Nicaragua has only demanded satisfaction for the violation of her territory, for the attack made on property and the burning of buildings in Nicaraguan territory by regular troops of Honduras, and for the killing of the Nicaraguan soldiers who composed the small frontier guard which was attacked by Honduras troops.

MINNEAPOLIS HAS FIGHT ON.

Street Car Company Seeks to Prevent Enforcement of Reduced Fare.

Minneapolis, Feb. 21. — The Twin City Rapid Transit company began its fight in Minneapolis yesterday against granting six fares for 25 cents. Such an ordinance has passed the council and has been signed by Mayor Haynes.

It would have become operative upon publication yesterday.

From Judge William Lochren, United States district court, the company secured a temporary restraining order preventing Mayor Haynes, the council or other Minneapolis officials from putting the ordinance into effect and against the official paper of Minneapolis, preventing the publication of the measure.

MARRIED IN DEEP SNOW.

Bashful Couple Called the Squire Outside to Tie the Knot.

Lake City, Iowa, Feb. 21.—Standing in the deep snow, with the mercury at 5 below zero, Squire Mathewson married John Wachtel and Grace Chubb. John is nineteen years old and Grace is eighteen. They drove to the squire's home, but found he had gone to a neighbor's. Too bashful to go in and get married before the folks, the youthful pair summoned the squire to the gate, so while the wind whirled the snow around them the two were made one.

SCANDAL AT BLUE EARTH.

Prominent Man Charged With Attempting to Poison Family.

Blue Earth, Minn., Feb. 21. — Blue Earth is in the throes of a first-class sensation, involving the arrest of one prominent business man, J. H. Rademacher, who is accused of having attempted to take the life of his wife and perhaps other members of the family by placing arsenic in the family coffee pot. Rademacher strongly declares his innocence.

FALLS FROM ELEVENTH FLOOR.

Chicago Barber Is Claimed to Have Throw Himself Over the Court.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—John C. Hart, a barber, was killed by falling through the court room from the eleventh to the second floor of the Postal Tele-Telegraph building. It is said by some who witnessed the death of Hart that he threw himself over the court with suicidal intent. Others said the fall was accidental.

IS INSANE OVER WRECK.

Young Dispatcher at Ashland Taken to Asylum.

Ashland, Wis., Feb. 21. — W. J. Daugherty, train dispatcher for the Ashland division of the Northwestern road, to whose error the wreck at Van Buskirk last week, resulting in two deaths, is charged, is insane in the hospital at Ironwood, Mich., and it is possible that he will be committed to some asylum.

Burned by Explosion.

Dakota, Minn., Feb. 21. — George Winter nearly lost his life while repairing an automobile. He lighted a match to find a missing valve and a terrific explosion followed. Winter's clothing was ignited and his hair burned off. He will recover though severely injured.

Fierce Gales in Northern Europe.

London, Feb. 21.—Tremendous gales, accompanied by snow, hail and thunder, swept over Northern Europe yesterday, and were especially severe in the British isles. There has been widespread damage to property, numerous fatalities and many shipping casualties.

Whirled in Belt; Dies.

Drayton, N. D., Feb. 21. — George Fenwick, an oiler, at the flour mills here, was caught in the main belt of the engine, was whirled swiftly around and then thrown heavily against the ceiling. He died fifteen minutes later.

Tracks Are Flooded.

La Crosse, Wis., Feb. 21.—Southern Minnesota railroad tracks in the vicinity of Crooked creek, west of here, are under thirty inches of wates. Thus far the floods have not inconvenienced the railways.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE

Transactions in the Senate and House of Representatives.

St. Paul, Feb. 15. — The session of the senate yesterday was short and productive of little of material interest.

Nine bills were introduced, none of more than passing interest.

The sum of $200,000 is appropriated in a bill by Senator Canfield, to be paid out of the revenue fund, for the repairing of bridges and highways in the state. The money shall be expended in such places as the legislature may by law designate, under the supervision of the state highway commission.

A bill to appropriate money for the state park at the Dalles of the St. Croix was presented by Senator Johnson.

Senator Alderman is the author of a bill which limits the rate of interest on bonds issued by a city.

Senator Nelson introduced a bill requiring telephone companies to connect with other lines and furnish service for patrons of such connecting line.

A bill to encourage education in agricultural and domestic science by providing for the establishment and maintenance of county schools of this kind was introduced.

In the House.

Representative Peterson introduced a resolution calling for an investigation into the Minnesota Shippers and Receivers' association. The preamble sets forth that the so-called shippers' association has assumed to criticise public officials and members of the legislature, and Mr. Peterson would like to know something about the association.

The house turned down the bill calling for the employment of an attorney to aid in the drafting of bills.

The Stokes bill, designed to take the control of the new capitol out of the hands of the governor, died an ignominious death. The house was considering general orders when the bill was reached. With the repeated statement from all parts of the floor that the Republican party was too broad to indulge in such a thing, the bill was reported for indefinite postponement. The only negative vote was cast by the author.

Bills introduced: Prohibiting boys under eighteen years of age from frequenting houses of ill fame; regulating collection of personal taxes; creating a state board of accounting; locating a Pasteur institute at the state university relating to pensioning of citizen soldiers; regulating hours of service of railroad employes.

St. Paul, Feb. 16.—The senate put in a busy day yesterday. Bills, reports, calendars and orders were attacked with a rush

Senator Bedford offered a bill to prevent the manufacture and sale of adul-

The Ramsey county delegation offered the bill for the improvement of the capitol grounds which was presented in the house Thursday.

The better protection of guests in hotels is sought in a bill introduced by Senator Fosseen. The bill also provides for the appointment of a hotel inspector.

Senator Pauly offered a bill which requires corporations and copartnerships to pay their employes at least twice a month.

A bill by Senator White amends the present law relative to licensing veterinarians. Those who have practiced in this state three years prior to April 18, 1893 shall be eligible to registration and receive a license.

Senator Peterson, a member of the railroad committee, as a result of the conferences of that committee, presented a 2-cent a mile railroad bill couched in the simplest language.

Senator Hackney offered a bill appropriating $43,000 for building and equipping a dairy barn and dairy stock pavilion at the agricultural experiment station at St. Anthony Park.

Senator Pauly introduced a bill for the establishment in the basement of the old capitol of a state printing plant and appropriating money for its equipment.

A bill by Senator Griggs introduces civil service into the state dairy and food department.

Seven bills of minor importance were passed.

The senate spent the afternoon discussing the special order of bills for a legislative reference library.

In the House.

The question of the reference of the bill for the manufacture of farm machinery at the state prison caused a spirited clash between the city and country members. The country members won out by securing the reference of the bill to the committee on appropriations.

The resolution calling for an investigation of the shippers' association was passed.

Representative White offered a bill prohibiting the publication of fraudulent or indelicate advertisements.

Bills introduced: To prevent corrupt practices at primary, general, village and city elections; to prevent fraud in the sale of ice cream; to establish an industrial school for girls at Royalton, and appropriating $100,000 therefor; to compel railroad companies to provide for the public safety at places where the public highway crosses their tracks; to provide for the election of inspectors of mines; to provide for the separate assessment and taxation of mineral, gas, coal, oil and other similar real estate interests; to establish an industrial school at New Ulm, and appropriating $100,000 therefor.

Bills passed: To regulate the sale and manufacture of firecrackers and other toy firearms; establishing municipal courts in cities having a population of more than 2,000 and less than 3,000; providing fees for serving notice of expiration of redemption from tax sales.

The house adjourned until 10 o'clock Monday morning.

St. Paul, Feb. 18.—The senate held a short session Saturday. Beyond the introduction of several bills nothing of importance occurred.

A bill providing for the establishment of a commission to survey the battlefield of Wood Lake, in Yellow Medicine county, and authorizing the commission to purchase all or part of the battlefield for the purpose of converting it into a state park, was introduced by Senator Seward.

Senator Naeseth introduced a bill providing for the establishment of the proposed girls' training school at Red Wing. It is similar to the bill introduced in the house a few days ago.

Senator Bedford presented a bill to prevent the hiding of children whose custody is sought to be transferred to a society for the care of orphans and neglected or abandoned children by an action in court while such action is pending.

The house was not in session.

St. Paul, Feb. 19. — Representative Miller introduced a bill yesterday providing for the punishment of husbands who do not support their families. It makes non-support a felony and fixes the penalty at three years in prison. The delinquent husband's only recourse will be the giving of a bond to support his family.

A bill introduced by Representative Gates provides that "pure food" must not only be free from preservatives and adulterations, but must be made of pure and fresh ingredients.

A gross earnings tax of 4 per cent on the entire receipts of express companies in Minnesota is provided in a bill presented by Representative Nelson.

Representative Glotfelter introduced a bill providing for more stringent regulations for the prevention of the importation of diseased stock into the state.

Other bills introduced: Providing for the punishment of persons contributing to the delinquency of children; authorizing counties to issue bonds for county roads; to prevent fraud and deception in the sale and manufacture of feeding stuffs; compelling corporations to pay employes semi-monthly; taxing sleeping car companies; establishing a school for girls at Hinckley.

A resolution was introduced by Representative Mork calling for an investigation of the finances of the state university.

The house in committee of the whole took favorable action on twelve bills, the most important of which were: Providing for the establishment of a Pasteur institute in this state; providing for the study of physiology, hygiene and narcotics in the public schools; to prohibit the desecration of Memorial day and provide punishment thereof.

In the Senate.

Senator Elwell introduced a bill giving the regents of the state university authority to acquire by purchase, gift or condemnation additional lands for the university and to issue certificates of indebtedness for this purpose.

The establishment of a standard of measures and tests for milk and cream is provided in a bill introduced by Senator Nelson.

Senator Hackney introduced a bill authorizing any resident of any district in the state to bring suit to close up a blind pig.

Senator Campbell presented a bill providing for a method for replenishing the depleted road and bridge fund in certain counties by a special tax.

The senate passed a number of bills, the most important of which were: Authorizing municipal corporations to prohibit the maintenance of bucket shops or agencies for the same; to provide for the registration of nurses; authorizing the state board of control to cause surgical operations to be performed upon inmates of the state hospitals for the insane, the school for feeble minded and the colony of epileptics.

St. Paul, Feb. 20.—The W. A. Nolan reciprocal demurrage bill, materially amended, was reported out yesterday by the special committee named to redraft it. The bill in its amended form is now said to be acceptable to a majority of the house members, and it is expected that the measure will now pass. The special committee claims to have strengthened the reciprocal features materially and to have given the small shippers the best of the argument wherever possible. Under the new drafts all credits are stricken out, the idea advanced being that it will prevent rebating. The amendments were adopted and the bill ordered printed. It will be given an early hearing.

After considerable debate the house ordered the railroad committee to report out a 2-cent passenger fare bill in five days.

Bills introduced: To appropriate money to aid high schools and common rural schools; to prohibit the manufacture and sale of cigarette papers or wrappers and providing a penalty; amendment to the constitution providing for tax exemption of bonds issued by any county, school district, town or village; relating to preventing of fraud in sale of spices; relating to the disposition of surplus state revenue.

In the Senate.

The bill to appropriate $10,000 to buy a silver service for the battleship Minnesota was the subject of a long debate in the senate. The subject of the reference of the bill offered an opportunity for a discussion as to the functions of the finance committee. The bill finally was referred to the finance committee by a vote of 33 to 22.

There were thirty-six bills on the general orders and much of the time of the senate was consumed in their consideration.

A separate asylum for the dangerous insane is provided for in a bill introduced by Senator Hall. The asylum is to be in connection with the state prison as one of the state hospitals for the insane.

Bills introduced: To provide for the establishment and maintenance of departments of agriculture, manual training and domestic economy in state high schools, graded and consolidated schools and appropriating $10,000; relating to the sale of milk and cream; regulating the quarantine of animals affected with contagious diseases; relating to the taxation of mortgages of real property.

St. Paul, Feb. 21. — The reciprocal demurrage bill was passed by the house yesterday after consideration as a special order. Only one vote was cast against the bill. As passed the bill becomes effective July 1, 1907.

The house refused to hurry on the state fair bill, allowing the State Agricultural society to use the credit of the state in raising $1,000,000 for the holding of an exposition in 1908, in commemoration of the semi-centennial of the state. The bill was sent to the committee on appropriations.

A reformatory for women between the ages of seventeen and thirty years is provided for in a bill introduced by Representative Putnam. It is designed to care for female criminals now lodged in the St. Cloud reformatory. The board of control is authorized to take charge of and locate the proposed institution.

Under the terms of a bill introduced by Representative Miller, the state auditor, attorney general and forestry commissioner are created a board to examine and inquire into the character of the lands owned by the state. The scheme is to find out which are fit for agricultural purposes and which are not.

Representative White introduced a bill providing salaries instead of fees for sheriffs of all counties of the 35,000 class.

Representative Putnam offered a bill allowing $10 a day and expenses for members of the state board of health while attending meetings of the board.

Other bills introduced: Regulating the consolidation and re-insurance of certain insurance companies organized under the laws of the state; to regulate the employment of children and provide penalties for violation; to tax sleeping car companies; to regulate railroads, to classify property transported as freight, to provide for proper rules governing transportation, to fix reasonable maximum rates to be charged for the transportation of freight in Minnesota by each of the railroads operating as common carrier, and to provide penalties for violation; relating to the taxation of incomes from mortgages of real estate; providing for the care and management of Itasca State Park.

In the Senate.

St. Paul, Feb. 21.—The 2-cent railroad fare bill and the anti-pass bill were reported with a favorable recommendation by the senate railroad committee yesterday. Senator Peterson moved that the bills be made special order for Thursday, but considerable objection was raised against such hurried action, and after a long debate the bills were made a special order for next Tuesday.

Senator Bedford introduced a bill which provides that all corporations subject to the gross earnings tax shall be liable to a penalty of 15 per cent on delinquent taxes.

A bill limiting the hours of labor of railroad employes to eight hours a day was proposed by Senator Noonan. Employes shall not be required after such service of eight hours to go on duty again without sixteen hours off duty. The penalties are fines of from $100 to $1,000.

A bill by Senator Bedford fixes the maximum sleeping car rates as follows: $1.50 for a lower berth, $1 for an upper berth, $7 for a sleeping car drawing room.

Other bills introduced: To provide for the appointment of mothers as the sole guardians of their children in certain cases; providing for nomination of state officers and United States senators by primary elections; to declare the ownership of the State of Minnesota in lands lying beneath the waters of meandered lakes or rivers in this state.

Saves Car From Plunge.

La Crosse Feb. 21.—A crowded electric car speeding down a hill toward the approach of the La Crosse river bridge left the rails within twenty feet of the bridge, and would have been dashed into the waters below had not a telephone pole stopped its passage.

Brakeman Falls Between Cars.

Abbotsford Wis., Feb. 21. — Harry Wright, a Wisconsin Central brakeman, fell between two cars at Dorchester. One car passed over him, crushing one hand so that amputation was necessary. Internal injuries are also feared.

Hermit Hangs Self.

Brookings, S. D., Feb. 21.—Charles Gustaffeson, a farmer living in the northwestern part of this county, committed suicide by hanging. Gustaffeson was a bachelor and lived alone. No motive for the deed is known.

Gets Dominion Office.

Duluth, Feb. 21.—Word has been received here that Jacques Bureau, formerly a well known attorney in this city, has been appointed by Premier Laurier to the important office of solicitor general of Canada.

VILLAGE ELECTION.

The annual village election occurs on March 12th this year and prospective candidates are already beginning to sit up and take notice. The voters should exercise the greatest care this year in the selection of the council as on them depends the success of the electric light and power plant which is now under way. The prospective candidates for the office of village president so far as mentioned are Daniel Patterson, E. M. Hoff and A. S. Wilson, and it is probable that one of these gentlemen will be selected. The affairs of the village would be safe in the hands of any one of the three. Only men who have an interest in the betterment of the village should be selected as much depends on them the coming year. The whole council should be composed of well known progressive business men who will take an interest in village affairs.

It really begins to look as if we were going to have two-cent railroad fare in Minnesota.

Sam Fullerton seems to be a political barnacle that even this democratic administration can't shake off.

What has become of our county seat fight? There doesn't seem to be anything doing and we are getting lonesome.

Reed Smoot, the U. S. senator who represents the Mormon church in the senate, is entitled to hold his seat, his expulsion being defeated by 42 to 28.

This cold winter has accomplished one good thing in stopping Canadian immigration. There is a general feeling that it is cold enough here for all practical purposes.

The Minneapolis Commercial club will help St. Paul in their attempt to have the state improve the city. Minneapolis probably wants something big for the University.

The Soo road has been awarded a contract to carry a part of the U. S. mail between St. Paul and Winnipeg. They will have to do better work than they have been doing lately to hold their contract.

Anoka Union: Plague upon the legislature if it passes that $2,000,000 St. Paul steal for more land for the state capitol. The building has cost four times what was claimed it would when first contemplated [illegible]

[illegible] things—the good Lord knows they need it—and trying to pass so many bills, both useful and useless, the legislature gives promise of being a great disappointment to some folks. The representatives of the interests are busy filing all kinds of bills with the hope of blocking the reform measures which the people demand. Members would do well to bear in mind that the public is not in a temper to be trifled with, and will not accept excuses for work performed when the session is over.—Cannon Falls Beacon.

Vermont's Two Seasons.

One winter when Thaddeus Stevens had come back to his Vermont home he was the victim of a severe cold and could not leave the house for many weeks. One of his callers was Lewis Clark, a man of short stature, who in earlier days had been a playmate of the "Old Commoner" and was a near neighbor of the Stevens family in their Peacham home. Vermonters had just begun to wear buffalo coats, and Mr. Clark arrived at the Stevens home almost lost in a coat which reached to the ground. His upturned collar completely covered his ears and face, while a fur cap completed the disguise.

"Is that you, Lewis?" asked Mr. Stevens in an incredulous tone.

"Yes, Thad," he replied.

"Well, skin yourself and sit down," exclaimed the other.

During the interesting conversation which followed Mr. Clark asked Stevens if he wouldn't come back to his Vermont home and live.

"No," replied Stevens. "You have but two seasons here—winter and late in the fall."—Harper's Weekly.

SUES GREAT NORTHERN.

Thief River News: Two important law suits have been started in the district court of Red Lake county and will be tried at the March term of court. John Haley and his wife, Eliza Haley, of Thief River Falls, have commenced actions for damages to the amount of $10,000 and $15,000 respectively for damages alleged to have been sustained in a wreck out near Minot, N. D., on the 28th day of December last. W. A. Tautges, of this city, is attorney for both Mr. and Mrs. Haley.

The complaint recites that on the 28th day of December the plaintiffs were enroute from DesLacs, N. D., to Minot and were traveling on a Great Northern train which was wrecked. Mrs. Haley was pregnant and suffered the loss of her child as well as other injuries, the effects of which she believes she will never fully recover from. Mr. Haley also sustained injuries, and in addition sues for the loss of services of his wife.

THEY WANT NEW TOWN

A petition signed by Joseph Johnson, et al., of Erie, has been filed with County Auditor O'Brien praying that the unorganized township 153-39 be organized as a town, and the matter will come before the county commissioners at their meeting Tuesday of next week. Mr. Johnson wants the new town named Zenith, but several other names have also been suggested, some wanting Erie, others Loiland and still others, Equity. 153-39 is the center town of the three unorganized towns on the reservation and when the organization of this town is complete it will leave but two unorganized towns in the county. The commissioners will take up the matter next week, and the petition will without doubt be favorably acted upon.

Better Cattle.

The managers of the South St. Paul Stock Yards are sounding a cry for better cattle. In spite of all that has been said, shippers continue to send in common, scrub cattle, which, in many instances, have to be sacrificed at any price to prevent total loss. The fault does not lie entirely with the shippers. The farmers are certainly blamable, for it is they who put this common stock on sale. It costs very little more to raise good cattle than to grow common ones, and the prices realized are sure to be much greater. Our farmers might just as well send in stock of quality as stock of poor quality. But this cannot be done without thought and care. Send in an inferior animal that weighs 1,200 pounds when finished, in the one instance, and a superior animal that weighs the same in another, and note the difference in the returns.

The first will probably sell at 3 cents a pound and the second at 5 cents a pound. The difference is $18.00. The difference on a carload of such animals would be $360.00.

Falling Into Hole in Air.

One of the strange experiences of a balloonist is that of falling into "a hole in the air," which Mr. Rolker reports as follows: "So you continue sailing, enjoying the present with little thought of the startling surprises that may be before you. Ahead of you, unseen, may be what the balloonist calls a 'hole in the air,' resembling the vortex of a maelstrom, and down this you may literally fall at a rate which is terrifying until by sacrificing two or three bagfuls of sand at once your pilot checks your downward flight. But these 'holes' are scarce, and as a rule the atmosphere is of uniform carrying power."—American Magazine.

When Dogs Were Cooks.

"There was a time," said the antiquarian, "when dogs did our roasting for us—at least they kept the meat turning so it would not burn. 'Spit dogs' they were called, and we call their descendants 'spitz' to this day. Spit dogs were trained to turn the spits on which roasted chickens, beef, ducks and turkeys. The little fellows did their work well. They were never known to let a fowl burn or to snatch a mouthful or two from it. As late as 1816 spit dogs were employed in the old Philadelphia inns on Second and Third streets."

The Servant Question.

The proud millionaire entered his garage haughtily. "Francois," he said, "you took out the new sixty horse power again last night without permission. I'm afraid I'll have to get another chauffeur."

"I wish you would, sir," Francois answered. "With those four big cars there's quite enough work for two of us."—New York Press.

"I have here a neat and pretty little letter opener," began the agent.

"So have I at home," said the business man sadly. "I'm married."

The Crocodile's Strong Jaw.

Sir Samuel Baker in his "Wild Beasts" says that the power of the jaws of the crocodile is terrific. Once he had the metal of a large hook, the thickness of ordinary telegraph wire, completely bent together, the barbed point being pressed tightly against the shank and rendered useless. This compression was caused by the snap of the jaws when seizing a live duck which he had used as a bait, the hook being fastened beneath one wing. On one occasion he found a fish weighing seventy pounds bitten clean through as if divided by a knife. This, again, was the work of a snap from the jaws of a crocodile. M. Paul Bert once made experiments on the strength of a crocodile's jaws by means of a dynamometer. He found that a crocodile weighing 120 pounds exerted a force of 308 pounds in closing his jaw. The lion has an enormous jaw power. On one occasion an African traveler pushed the butt end of his gun into a lion's mouth and the pressure of the jaws cracked it as though it had been struck by a steam hammer.

Hog and Boiled Turkey.

"The hog," said a Baltimore judge, "is the greatest animal in the world. Every part of him has a different flavor, and each flavor is better than that of any other animal in the world."

"Better than a terrapin?"

"I don't call a terrapin an animal. The terrapin is a creation. But, to return to the hog, all of him is good, from his tail to his front feet. Chine is a great dish, but it doesn't compare with jowl. Jowl and turnip tops in the spring can be beaten by only one thing, and that is a boiled hen turkey. Nobody but a Yankee or a heathen would roast a hen turkey in the spring. Hen turkeys are fat before they lay, and the flavor is delicious. Properly cooked and served, such a dish is fit for kings, and nations have gone to war for less cause."—Baltimore News.

An Anatomical Puzzle.

Behind the bridge of your nose is a little cavity in the skull, the origin of which appears to be unknown. It probably was a gland, consisting of two tiny lobes, joined together, and is named the Sella turcica. Physiologists believe that this is the remains of a sixth sense, which was of practical value to our antediluvian ancestors, but whether it enabled them to see in the dark in days before they possessed fire or helped them to find their way through trackless forests as wild beasts can today or what other purpose it may have served we do not know and probably never shall know.

The Prize Cow.

Take for yourself a well bred cow, get her on full feed, cram and feed and stuff and cram her for, say, a year. Go to the trouble of washing and currying and scrubbing and combing her twice a day, get down on your bunkers, my friend, sandpaper her hoofs, groom her legs, polish her horns and brush her tail, and by the time show season comes around you should have a very creditable looking show cow.—Sheridan (Mo.) Advance.

They Didn't Tally.

"That society newspaper published some very flattering remarks about me," began Miss Devane.

"Yes," replied her best friend; "but it was horrid of the editor to go and spoil it in the way he did."

"Spoil it, indeed! Why, he said I was a beautiful belle of the younger set and"—

"Yes, and then he put your photograph right under it."

A Different Paley.

Miss Backbay—You are familiar, in a general way, with paleontology, are you not? Mr. Carondelet—No, I don't remember that I ever happened across it. But I once read Paley on "Evidences of Christianity," or something like that, when I was a boy, and I found it awful heavy reading.—Chicago Tribune.

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is hereby given, that on the eleventh day of March, 1907, at two o'clock p. m., at the office of the county auditor in the city of Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county, Minnesota, I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the Ditch No. 28 of Red Lake county, established by the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, state of Minnesota, by their order bearing date the ninth day of January, 1907, viz:

For the work as one job, and also for one or more sections of 100 feet each, and also for one or more of the construction jobs, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes as shown by the report of the engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet, and from thence, successively, up stream to the one including the source, said sections being numbered from No. 0 to No. 112 inclusive, to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, and that bids are invited for said work, said work to be completed within the time required, and in the manner specified in said Engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent over and above the estimate cost of the construction, in any case, as stated in the said order; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond to be approved by the auditor of said county, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract, and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file, and may be seen at my office.

The approximate amount of work to be done in the construction of such ditch is as follows: The excavation and removal of 22,411 cubic yards of earth the same to be placed along the west side of said ditch from station "60" to station "98" and at all other points the material shall be placed along the side of the ditch and within the right of way thereof in such form as may be required by the engineer.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the auditor of said county, for not less than ten per cent of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

Dated January 15, 1907.

District Court.
Fourteenth Judicial District.

The State of Minnesota, to all persons, companies or corporations who have or claim any estate, right, title or interest in, claim to or lien upon, any of the several pieces or parcels of land described in the list hereto attached:

The list of taxes and penalties on real property for the county of Red Lake remaining Delinquent on the first Monday in January, 1907, has been filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the County of Red Lake, of which that hereto attached is a copy. Therefore you, and each of you, are hereby required to file in the office of said Clerk, on or before the twentieth day after the publication of this notice and list, your answer in writing, setting forth any objection or defence you may have to the taxes, or any part thereof, upon any piece or parcel of land described in said list in, to or on which you have or claim any estate, right, title interest, claim or lein, and in default thereof judgment will be entered against piece or parcel of land for the taxes on said list appearing against it, and for all penalties, interest and costs.

C. W. JOHNSON,
Clerk of the District Court
[Seal] of the County of Red Lake.

Julius Pleth writes us from Plummer that he will not be able to arrange his business affairs so that he can move to St. Paul on March 1st, as planned, and that he may be detained at Plummer two or three months longer.

Gazette: J. G. Mathews, and other veterans of the civil war in this neighborhood who are past the age of 60 years, have received notice of an increase in pension, and hereafter Mr. Mathews will receive $12 per month for honorable services rendered the government in the days of need. The increase is well placed, as there are none as deserving of consideration as the "boys of the old brigade."

Supt. Lowrey, of the Great Northern, wishes us to call the attention of St. Hilaire parents that there are a large number of boys here who are in the habit of jumping on moving trains. The Great Northern is determined to break up this practice and if the parents of the boys do not interfere it is the intention of the company to have the boys arrested and prosecuted. It is a very dangerous pastime and should be stopped at once or there will be trouble in store for some one.

A farmer's wife living only a short distance from Lengby and who does not wish her name published has kept a record of eggs and butter sold from her 35 hens and five cows during last year. Her egg sales amounted to $77 and her butter sales to $82, making a total of $159. It must be understood that this does not represent the total product, but only the surplus after deducting all eggs and butter which has been used by the family during the entire year. These people do not pretend to make this their business, but rather as a by-product besides the regular proceeds from the farm. It is a splendid example to copy by all the rest of the small farmers around here.—Fosston Thirteen Towns.

Knock and the world knocks with you, boost and you boost alone; when you roast good and loud, you will find that the crowd has a hammer as big as your own. Buy and the gang is with you, renig and the game is all off, for the lad with the thirst will see you first if you don't proceed to cough. Be rich and the push will praise you, be poor and they'll pass you the ice; you're a warm young guy, when you start to buy, you're a slob when you haven't the price. Be flush and your friends are many, go broke and they say "Ta ta;" while your bank account burns you will get great returns, when it's out you will get the "ha-ha." Be gay and the mob will cheer you, they'll shout while your wealth endures, show a tearful lamp, and you'll see them tramp, and it's back to the woods for yours. There's always a bunch to boost you while at your money they glance, but you'll find them all gone, on the cold gray dawn, when the fringe shows up on your pants.—Exchange.

Planer Shut Down.

At six o'clock last Thursday evening the planing mill whistle sounded a long blast and it is probably the last one in this village. The crew has been discharged and orders have been received to tear down the mill and ship the machinery. Work on dismantling the mill will commence at once.

A Sad Death.

Thief River News: Mrs. Knute Olson Kolstad, wife of the harness-maker employed at Locken's, died at the hospital last Friday night of typhoid fever. The funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the Norwegian Lutheran Synod church. The deceased was 21 years of age and besides her husband leaves two children, one six months and one three and a half years of age.

Commissioners Meet Tuesday.

The county board will meet at the office of Auditor O'Brien in Red Lake Falls next Tuesday. Several important matters will come up for consideration at this time. Auditor O'Brien has the annual financial statement ready for inspection and approval by the board, and it will be ordered published as soon as possible. A number of school petitions are pending, a petition for the organization of a new town has been presented, and it is likely that the board will find plenty of work to keep them busy for a couple of days or more.

FOR SALE OR RENT.

A farm of 230 acres in section 20, four miles southeast of St. Hilaire, with 80 acres fenced for pasture, 90 acres of farm land with 40 acres plowed, and the balance in timber.

A good eight-room house and good water and borders the river on the east.

Will rent for cash or on shares.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

FARMERS' MEETING

Large and Enthusiastic Meeting of Farmers Held Here Yesterday.

SPEECHES OF PRACTICAL KIND

Over Two Hundred Farmers Are Attentive To The Speakers.

The farmers' meeting yesterday was a decided success in every particular. The crowd in attendance was one of the largest, if not the largest, composed of actual farmers ever brought together in this village. The program as printed below was carried out in full.

The principal address by Prof. A. J. McGuire, superintendent of the state experimental farm at Grand Rapids, Minn., was attentively received by the meeting. Mr. McGuire is a forcible speaker and handled his subject in an able manner.

Another speaker who was well received was C. O. Carlson, of Erskine. Mr. Carlson is one of the most successful farmers in northern Minnesota.

The Crookston Male Quartette made a decided hit and were encored until they had to announce that they had sang all the songs they had prepared.

All of the speeches on the program were listened to attentively and it was evident that the farmers present were there for instruction.

To Geo. L. Austin is due much of the credit for making the meeting a success.

Creamery Growth.

Five years ago yesterday the farmers living in the vicinity of St. Hilaire organized the St. Hilaire Co-operative Creamery. It has been a success, as everyone knows, and the following statement of receipts by years will be of interest:

YEAR:	RECEIPTS:

It will be noticed that the receipts the past year are more than the receipts of the first three years.

Had the "Lid" Off.

Thief River News: Upon the complaint of Chief Erickson, Tom Butler was arrested Monday charged with keeping his saloon open upon Sunday in violation of the law. Before Judge Bishop on Monday, Butler acknowledged his guilt and was fined $50 and costs by the court.

There has been some complaint of late to the effect that some of the saloons have been keeping open on Sunday, and the authorities announce that this practice will have to stop and all saloons will be required to observe the law.

Any saloon keeper convicted of any violation of the law in the municipal court cannot again be granted a license by the city council.

Sent to Asylum.

Courier: Jim Nelson, a farmer living at Lake Pleasant was before Judge Tarrant for examination as to his sanity and was committed to the asylum at Fergus Falls. His condition was pitiable in the extreme. He displayed a great dislike for big men, and when they were around he would spit at them, as if trying to get a bad taste out of his mouth. Mr. Nelson is married and father of two children, which makes the case the most sorrowful that has ever occurred in Red Lake county. Financial troubles are supposed to have been the cause of his misfortune.

Wanted.

I want five farms in the vicinity of St. Hilaire; must be cheap, for cash. If you have land for sale write
CHAS. SPILLANE,
New Richland, Minn.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.

Got Thirty Days.

Gazette: Chas. Klose, a Thief Riverite, was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail by the municipal court of the up river town yesterday, and Deputy Sheriff Isaacson went up on the morning train to bring him down to Hotel de Nelson. Klose has been in limbo on several different occasions, and this time he gets soaked a little harder than usual. It appears that every time Charley gets in too close contact with the tanglefoot bottle (which happens quite often) he gets an idea in his head that his family needs extermination and he proceeds to try it to the best of his ability. It is thought that his thirty day sojourn behind the bars here will give him an opportunity to think matters over, and conclude to do better in the future.

Balance Rock

In a strip of woodland among the slopes of the Berkshire hills near the city of Pittsfield, Mass., can be seen a strange phenomenon. It is a massive boulder weighing about 170 tons perched upon a bed of rock of Berkshire limestone—of entirely different formation—in such a way as to appear to be delicately balanced on its small base. The boulder is, in fact, known as "Balance Rock." It is a well known fact that golden grain belt beer is the best tonic for your stomach, nerves. It gives them strength to digest and assimilate the food you eat. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

House Burned Down.

Erie Eleven Towns: On last Thursday while George Wagner, living three miles north of Erie, was in Thief River Falls as a witness for John Piller in making final proof, his house caught fire and burned to the ground with nearly all of its contents. He had ten pounds of dynamite in the house to be used in drilling wells, that blew up everything as soon as the fire reached it. It seems that Mr. Wagner had one of his neighbors keep up a fire while he was gone so as to keep his potatoes from freezing and that the fire caught in some way from the stove pipe. It is a big loss to Mr. Wagner, as he carried no insurance.

Equalized.

The larynx of man is twice the size on an average of the same organ in woman, although this disproportion is equalized by the fact that woman uses her larynx a little more than twice as much as man.

SEVEN REASONS
Why One Should Carry an Account With a Bank.

I. BECAUSE, your money is safer in a bank than anywhere else.
II. BECAUSE, a bank account teaches, helps and encourages one to save.
III. BECAUSE, paying bills by check is the simplest and most convenient method, as well as the safest, as your check becomes a receipt for the debt it pays.
IV. BECAUSE, a check book is more convenient to carry than a wallet, and if lost, the bank will furnish you another free of charge.
V. BECAUSE, it gives you a better standing in the community, especially among the business men, to pay by check rather than in cash. To be known as having money in the bank strengthens one's credit.
VI. BECAUSE, your returned, cancelled checks with properly kept stubs and the pass book furnished by the bank, make a complete and clear record of business transacted, and is kept with less work than any other record could be.
VII. BECAUSE, by having a bank account and issuing checks and making deposits, you are, unaware to yourself, gradually building up the most valuable asset a man can have, namely, a good credit, and this credit will extend away from home.

Look at the subject from as many sides and as long as you will, the opening of a bank account is desirable and advantageous, and we tender you our services and facilities.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a Specific For Anaemia and a Safe Family Medicine.

When the body becomes run down, either as a result of overwork, worry or a severe illness, an examination of the blood would show it to be weak and watery. This condition is called anaemic, which is the medical term for "bloodless." The common symptoms are paleness of the lips, gums and cheeks, shortness of breath and palpitation of the heart after the slightest exertion, dull eyes and loss of appetite.

Mr. Louis L. Clark, a painter, of 19 Lincoln Place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Last May I was obliged to undergo an operation for appendicitis and while the operation in itself was successful, I did not recover my strength and health. I was confined to my bed for over a month and was under the doctor's care. When I was able to get up my legs were so weak and unsteady that I could only walk with a cane with difficulty.

"I was getting no better and could not think of going back to work. I was discouraged, when a neighbor told me that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had cured her and advised me to try them. I began taking them about the middle of June and soon felt so much better that I kept on and was cured."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured rheumatism, chlorosis, after-effects of the grip and fevers, and, as the health of the nerves depends upon the purity of the blood, they are invaluable in neuralgia, nervous debility, sleeplessness, dizziness and even locomotor ataxia and paralysis.

LAW WOULD SHUT RANGE SCHOOLS

MINNESOTA IRON COUNTRY IS IN ARMS AGAINST THE PROPOSED TONNAGE TAX.

SCHOOLS DEPEND ON MINES

CITIZENS PROTEST AGAINST LAW WHICH WOULD DESTROY EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM.

Hibbing, Minn., Feb. 13.—Threatened by legislation which would be totally destructive of the public school system of the iron ranges of Minnesota, the people of the mining country in St. Louis and Itasca counties have combined to make an appeal to the legislature and the state at large. The excited state of public feeling here is not comprehensible to the people of the state generally, for in urban and rural communities questions affecting taxation have not the vital interest for people of every condition that the same topic has here. Confronted by the proposition now before the legislature that a tonnage tax be imposed on iron ore, the people of the ranges are aroused because by the operation of such a tax system practically the entire source of revenue for the maintenance of the public schools would be removed from the local assessment rolls.

There is no difference of opinion on the ranges regarding this tax proposition and its effect. The range towns have been wrought to the pitch of holding mass meetings—not perfunctory affairs attended by a few taxpayers, but gatherings in which hundreds of people take part and speeches and resolutions setting forth the sentiments of the participants are indulged. There is a good deal of bitterness shown in some of the speeches, but most of them deplore the ignorance of conditions here which is responsible for the proposed taxation. The protest that has taken form in these meetings comes altogether from the people. The mining companies have no material interest in the proposed law, for it makes no difference to them whether they pay their taxes to the county or to the state. They are but incidentally interested in the matter by reason of the fact that the maintenance of the public schools contributes to the betterment of living conditions and promotes the progress in intelligence of the mining population. It is everywhere observable that the resolutions passed do not complain about the evident desire of the members of the legislature to secure a larger state revenue from the iron mining industry, but they do object to a change in the manner of collecting the taxes. The contention is made that if a tonnage tax is imposed it will necessarily carry with it the exemption of the mines from the realty assessment, and thus take away from St. Louis county 95 per cent of the assessed valuation outside of the city of Duluth.

The towns on the ranges do not represent any very considerable assessed valuation, while some of the school districts have an enormous assessed value. Here at Hibbing is a case in point. In the school district here the mines are down on the assessment roll for nearly $27,000,000, while the total assessment, including the village of Hibbing, is but $700,000 more. The schools are centered at the town here and the school population is out of all proportion to the taxable value of the property, with the mines excepted.

Same Conditions Everywhere.

The situation at Hibbing fairly typifies that on the ranges generally. At Eveleth $58,000 is raised annually for school purposes. Taking the mines out of the assessment, the property left subject to taxation would yield $540 annually for school purposes. At Ely, on the Vermillion range, the oldest mining community in the iron district, and where property values outside of the mines might be expected to have attained a maximum of value, 88 per cent of the assessment is represented by the mines. At Virginia 86 per cent of the assessed valuation is in the mines; at Chisholm 96 per cent. One-third of the entire assessed valuation of Itasca county—which is not generally regarded as a great iron county—is in the mines, and there is one school district in that county where there is an $85,000 house, and only 6 per cent of the assessed valuation is outside of the mines.

With these conditions, it is not to be wondered at that the people on the ranges are protesting and making preparation to assail the legislature by means of delegations and appeal to the fair-mindedness of the people of the state to help them to avert the impending calamity. There is everywhere the feeling that the enactment of such a measure as the proposed tonnage tax would not be possible if the conditions were understood of the people at large. There is no attempt at tax dodging, no disposition to say that the state is not entitled to the revenue it wants from the mines; everybody is willing to subscribe to the proposition that the assessment on the mines might be increased and a larger revenue had for state purposes. The valuation of the mines in St. Louis county was raised to $75,000,000 last year, and the mining companies would interpose no serious objection to a further raise. The people would not lift a hand to prevent such an increase as the authorities might propose. But there is a profound feeling of indignation here over the possibility of the legislature passing a law that will be destructive of these communities—for the range communities must fall if the schools are closed, and the schools must close if the revenue from the mines is taken by the state. There is no wealth on the ranges except that in the mines; there is no hope of agricultural development, and there is a laboring population that is held in check and is fast being brought to the point of assimilation by the education of the children. To stop the work of education would throw this vast body of ignorant foreigners back to the state in which they lived in Austria, Hungary, Italy and other countries of central Europe. That would inevitably bring about a condition of anarchy.

The people interested in the schools, the district officials and superintendents, have undertaken the enlightenment of the people of the rest of the state as to conditions here. These men represent the best citizenship on the ranges. They have created a remarkably efficient and modern system of schools. They have builded largely and well, and the schools are of the best modern type. Now confronted by the probability that their schools may be destroyed they have gone actively to work to show the people of Minnesota that the proposed legislation would be as perniciously tyrannical as any ever framed for the destruction of a people. Their appeal will be to the people through the press, supplementing the efforts of the committees that have been appointed to labor with the legislature directly.

Charles E. Young who was widely known in southern and western Minnesota in educational work before coming to the range, is superintendent of the Hibbing schools. He has sent out an appeal and protest to the press of the state in which he says:

Hibbing's Protest.

"Apart from Duluth we have on the iron ranges of this county four high school towns, which employ 158 teachers and enroll over 5,000 pupils; also eight graded school towns employing 68 teachers and enrolling over 2,500 pupils; also 58 rural districts. In size and conditions this district of Hibbing is a fair sample of the high school districts. We contain a territory of 270 square miles, maintaining two brick and six frame schools with 41 instructors and enrolling this year 1,350 pupils. The school building erected during the past ten years cost $100,000 and of this $65,000 are still due to the State of Minnesota on building loans.

"The children in the schools represent over twenty nations, are in a great majority of foreign birth and the enrollment has been growing at the rate of 85 per cent per annum. Within the district practically all of the assessable property is in the mines, except in the village of Hibbing where there is some value in the form of frame buildings and personal property. The town has no other industry than mining; the timber has all been removed from the adjacent land and to-day more than 92 per cent of the taxes are paid on the mines. If all of the mining property should be exempt from the school taxes, as under the proposed law, the schools of the Hibbing district will have to be closed next year. Under the conditions that will follow the proposed law the district will be left burdened with a bonded debt to meet which will require all the available school revenue. If the board levies the maximum rate of school tax we will receive too little to pay the state claims for interest and payment on the principal of the debt due the state funds.

"It is the educational and not the political question that is alarming this region. To turn loose upon the streets of these mining towns the children of nearly 100,000 people, mostly foreigners, who have more than the average eagerness for an American education, is an act that is fraught with future disgrace and peril for the entire State of Minnesota."

At the first of a series of meetings to be held here to give expression to the feeling of the people and take such steps as may be necessary to preserve the schools, 200 people were present and committees to meet the junketing committee from the legislature, to draw resolutions, to solicit funds for carrying on the work to go to St. Paul were appointed. The delegation that will go to St. Paul from St. Louis county will include five prominent citizens of Hibbing. At the meeting $553 were collected in small sums and this has been increased to nearly $800.

Chisholm Is Wrought Up.

Chisholm, Minn., Feb. —A defense fund of $550 has been raised to pay the expenses of a committee to go to St. Paul and protest to the legislature against the passage of the proposed tonnage tax which would destroy the schools of Chisholm. The excitement that was caused by the discussion at the mass meeting on the tax question is somewhat abated by the belief that the legislature will not exercise its power to confiscate the revenues of this school district by imposing a tonnage tax when it is informed of what the local conditions are. School Superintendent Minch is preparing a statement of the conditions which will show how utterly this district is dependent on the mines for the maintenance of the schools. W. G. Shane, village recorder says:

"We have nothing to tax but the mines. The population is almost wholly foreign. If we lose the revenues from the mines bankruptcy is sure and anarchy will follow the closing of the schools. Life would be impossible here without the schools. We will send a strong delegation to St. Paul and will make such a showing to the legislature as must avert this impending evil."

The assessed valuation of Chisholm, including the mines in the village is $4,103,166. Without the mines there would be a valuation of about 3 per cent of this sum.

Means Death to Ely.

Ely, Minn., Feb. —Following the appointment of a committee to go to St. Paul to protest against a return to the tonnage tax system of securing revenue for the state from the mines, School Superintendent C. L. Newberry has sent out an appeal to the state. Mr. Newberry says:

"Any attempt to withdraw iron properties from taxation by ordinary methods, or any attempt to divert monies raised by taxation on iron properties for the support of schools and local government, cannot be regarded as other than sounding the death-knell of our public schools and public improvements in the great mining region of Northern Minnesota.

"In withdrawing the iron mines from local taxation, or the taxes on iron properties from local use, eight-ninths of Ely's taxable property is withdrawn. The assessed valuation in the city is now $3,252,129. The assessed value outside of the iron properties is $421,747. On this last named sum would fall the burden of a tax sufficient to educate 1,000 children. As the amount needed to run the Ely schools last year was $45,000, a school tax of 11 per cent would be imposed. As the property could not possibly stand this tax the schools must close if a tonnage tax is imposed, and we are deprived of the revenue from the mines under the method of direct taxation. It would be necessary to impose a tax of over 200 mills for all purposes if the mines were taken out of the assessment roll, and such a tax would be confiscatory. Never before in the history of Minnesota has a more alarming question arisen. The proposed law will devastate our mining towns. The measure will starve and dwarf our schools and public service; it will necessitate the immediate closing of the schools in all the range towns."

Eveleth Joins the Protest.

Eveleth, Minn., Feb. —The alarm expressed by the leading men of Eveleth at the mass meeting held to take steps to prevent the enactment of a tonnage tax law is subsiding in the knowledge that effective action is being taken to put the case of the range towns fairly before the people of Minnesota. The various committees appointed by the meeting have organized and practically every business man is a committee of one to send out letters to friends throughout the state asking that information as to effect of a tonnage tax be spread. The Eveleth Business Men's association is sending out literature showing the local conditions and the certain and pernicious effect of such a change in the method of collecting taxes as is proposed.

"It would be just as fair," says Mayor Jessmore, "to pass a law imposing a tax upon the production of the fields of Southern Minnesota and take the revenue for state purpose as to impose this tonnage tax and take from the communities here, in which the wealth is in the mines, the sources of their revenue. It is a matter of life or death with these mining communities."

The school board is getting actively into the work of spreading information as to the actual conditions here, inspired by the knowledge that its present revenue of $58,000 for school purposes would be reduced under a tonnage law to about $540. Mayor Jessmore will head the delegation to St. Paul.

Itasca County Would Be Hard Hit.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Feb. —Following the expression of feeling indulged in at the mass meeting held here Monday night to protest against the passage of the tonnage tax law Hattie F. Booth, county superintendent of schools, has sent out a statement of school conditions which shows that the proposed law would destroy the schools in this county in the districts where they are most needed. Says Mrs. Booth:

"The mining property stands for one-third of the assessed valuation of the county. In Districts No. 2 and No. 9 there is practically no revenue except from the mines. In District No. 2 there is an assessed valuation of $4,828,431, of which 94 per cent is in the mines. The state has loaned the district $100,000 to carry on the school work, and the removal of the mines from the assessment roll would close up the schools and bankrupt the district. In Districts 2 and 9 mining is the only occupation of the people, and if the bill becomes a law we will have to close the schools. The effect of this would be the raising of a class of children who would become criminals and the state would have to support them in institutions.

Itasca county is interested in the tonnage tax as a business proposition to a greater extent than St. Louis county. The mines here are just being developed at a high cost, much of the ore requiring special treatment. It is assumed that under a tonnage tax no new mines would be opened and the operating companies would not prosecute the development of low grade properties for many years, not until the ones which are less expensive in the mining had been removed from the other ranges.

Itasca county will send a big delegation to St. Paul to fight the passage of the tonnage tax law.

Virginia Is in Arms.

Virginia, Minn., Feb. —Superintendent of Schools Lafayette Bliss, who is in charge of the magnificent school system that has been built up here for the reclamation of the foreign population, is making an appeal to the state on behalf of the schools.

"There are twenty-three mines in this district," says Mr. Bliss, "and they represent 86 per cent of the assessed valuation of the district. If the revenue from these mines is taken from us the schools must close, for the remaining property could not possibly support them. We will leave no stone unturned to prevent the passage of this iniquitous measure. If the state wants more revenue from the mines let the assessment be raised. We are entitled to the revenue necessary for the education of the mass of children of foreigners working in the mines."

Mayor W. H. Eaton and Mr. Bliss will head a strong delegation to St. Paul and ask for a hearing before the legislature.

Pay of Spanish Authors.

The bitter cry of the underpaid Spanish literary man is being echoed in Paris with much sympathy. In Paris itself, the Gil Blas says, there are ten novelists who are making from $20,000 a year upward.

Yet in Madrid it is not uncommon for an author to have $12 offered him as full compensation for a work of fiction of ordinary length, say 300 pages or so. Two volume novels seldom realize for their authors more than $50.

The Gil Blas cites the case of a well known author, Carmen Burgos, who has a large circle of readers in Spain and who yet received only $30 for translating a long French romance into Spanish. A Madrid publisher who has been issuing a series of small volumes on the distinguished writers of the nineteenth century paid only $10 for the copy of each volume.

"My baby was about nine months old when she had rash on her face and feet. Her feet seemed to irritate her most, especially nights. They would cause her to be broken in her rest and sometimes she would cry until she was tired out. I had always used Cuticura Soap myself, and had heard of so many cures by the Cuticura Remedies that I thought I would give them a trial. The improvement was noticeable in a few hours, and before I had used one box of the Cuticura Ointment her feet were well and have never troubled her since. I also used it to remove what is known as "cradle cap" from her head, and it worked like a charm, as it cleansed and healed the scalp at the same time. TRUTH AND QUALITY appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing, therefore we wish to call the attention of all who would enjoy good health, with its blessings, to the fact that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and the use of medicines dispensed with generally to great advantage, but as in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time, the California Fig Syrup Co. feels that it is alike important to present truthfully the subject and to supply the one perfect laxative remedy which has won the appoval of physicians and the world-wide acceptance of the Well-Informed because of the excellence of the combination, known to all, and the original method of manufacture, which is known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent of family laxatives, and as its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well-Informed of the world to be the best of natural laxatives, we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects always note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package, whether you simply call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—is the one laxative remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. and the same heretofore known by the name—Syrup of Figs—which has given satisfaction to millions. The genuine is for sale by all leading druggists throughout the United States in original packages of one size only, the regular price of which is fifty cents per bottle.

Every bottle is sold under the general guarantee of the Company, filed with the Secretary of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., that the remedy is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906.

COMMISSION TO EXAMINE THAW

JEROME GIVES FURTHER EVIDENCE OF HIS PURPOSE TO APPLY FOR ONE.

HOWARD NESBIT TO TESTIFY

DR. EVANS, THE EXPERT, IS QUIZZED AS TO VARIOUS FORMS OF INSANITY.

New York, Feb. 23. — Under the stress of a cross-examination in which District Attorney Jerome gave no quarter, Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw broke down yesterday upon the witness stand. With blinding tears burning their way down cheeks which from ashen white had flushed to crimson, she admitted that after her first experience with Stanford White her relations with the architect continued for several months. But this was not all.

Damaging Confessions.

There were other confessions which, while damaging to her own character, accentuated all the more the terrible personal sacrifice she is making in the effort to save her husband from death in the electric chair.

After bringing out that her relations with White continued for some time, Mr. Jerome went deeper. Mrs. Thaw admitted that in 1903, after the return from Europe, she spent the night at Thaw's apartments in New York, and that for three weeks he and she occupied connecting apartments at the Grand hotel in this city.

Defendant in Bad Light.

Mrs. Thaw made what was considered her most damaging statement to the defendant when she said he had showed her copies of cablegrams that were being sent to Stanford White from Europe, asking him to use his influence with a certain man in London to prevent Mrs. Nesbit from "raising a fuss" and interfering with Evelyn continuing in the company of Thaw.

Mrs. Thaw also was forced to admit that when she and her mother went abroad with Thaw in 1903 they were still drawing upon the bounty of Stanford White.

Gay Life in Paris.

A letter written by Mrs. Thaw in 1904 and telling of her gay life in Paris with Harry Thaw and a "bunch from the Tenderloin" was read to the jury by Mr. Jerome. This brought out more testimony as to the "Dead Rat," a Parisian cafe.

Court adjourned until Monday.

Has Decidedly Easy Day.

New York, Feb. 27.—Except for one brief moment Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw had a decidedly easy day of it yesterday during the continuation of her cross-examination by District Attorney Jerome. When adjournment was taken the prosecution announced that he had practically concluded with the witness. Mrs. Thaw will be temporarily excused to-day to enable Mr. Jerome to introduce Abraham Hummel to identify a photographic copy of the affidavit Evelyn Nesbit is alleged to have signed and which charges Thaw with many cruelties during their 1903 trip to Europe.

Denies Signing Affidavit.

Mrs. Thaw denies having made the charges contained in the affidvit, and denied having signed such an affidavit, although she admitted having signed some papers for Stanford White, the nature of which she did not know.

Mr. Jerome played his strongest card of the day at the morning session. He confronted the witness with Dr. Carlton Flint and asked if she had not been to see him with Jack Barrymore. Mrs. Thaw declared she had never seen the man before.

Makes Two Good Gains.

Instead of further hurting the cause of her husband Mrs. Thaw managed to make two decided gains. When court adjourned last Thursday it appeared from her own statements that she had used a letter of credit from Stanford White while touring Europe and had turned the letter over to Thaw. Yesterday she explained that Thaw took the letter of credit from her, saying the money was "poisonous" and neither she nor her mother would touch it, and that he would provide them with funds. Whatever had been spent of the money, she declared, was for her mother.

Explains Cablegrams.

The second point Mrs. Thaw made was concerning the cablegram which Thaw is said to have sent to Stanford White from London. It appeared Thursday that these cablegrams were requests to White to use his influence in keeping Mrs. Nesbit from "raising a row" and interfering with Evelyn continuing in company with Thaw. Mr. Jerome took up the subject again yesterday, but his questions elicited the information that the letters did not concern Mrs. Thaw at all, but related to a man—a secretary of the American embassy—in London, whom Mrs. Thaw said had "sneaked up to mamma's bedroom and insulted her." She said the man had also insulted her and Thaw had gone in search of him, but could not find him.

Mrs. Thaw's Ordeal Ended.

New York, Feb. 28. — Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's long ordeal upon the witness stand at the trial of her husband for the killing of Stanford White came to an end yesterday. Mr. Jerome finished his cross-examination, which had lasted through nearly five court days, at the morning session. The redirect and re-cross-examinations yesterday afternoon were of the briefest character, and just prior to adjournment it was announced that the defendant's wife had finally been excused.

Blocked by Delmas.

The completion of Mrs. Thaw's examination followed the unsuccessful effort of the prosecution to draw from Abraham Hummel certain facts relating to the affidavit which Mrs. Thaw is said to have made in Hummel's law office.

Mr. Delmas, for the defense, blocked practically every question put to Hummel The district attorney is not allowed to controvert Mrs. Thaw's testimony in any way, but may test her credibility.

Clears Up Odds and Ends.

Mrs. Thaw yesterday was given the opportunity to clear up the odds and ends of her story. She denied again that she had ever used a penny of the letter of credit Stanford White gave to her before she went to Europe. She denied that she had even been mentioned in any way in connection with the James A. Garland divorce case. She said Stanford White paid all her brother's school expenses and identified receipts and checks signed by her mother and showing that the latter drew more than $3,000 from Stanford White's funds druing the year from May, 1902, to May, 1903.

New York, Feb. 28. — Interest in the Thaw trial yesterday centered in the maneuvers of District Attorney Jerome, who seemed to give further indication of his purpose to apply for a commission in lunacy to report upon the present mental condition of the defendant. The witness stand for the greater part of the day was occupied by Dr. Britton D. Evans, director of the New Jersey hospital for the insane at Morris Plains, N. J., who was up for cross-examination.

Dr. Evans Is Quizzed.

Mr. Jerome seemed to direct his efforts at getting at Dr. Evans' explanation of the various forms of insanity from which the expert declared Harry Thaw was suffering at the time of the "brain storming," which resulted in the killing of White. Dr. Evans had testified that in his will Thaw displayed evidences of melancholia. The district attorney dwelt for an hour or more upon the subject, and then the expert said that in acute melancholia there is a recurrence of the affliction in at least one-third of all cases.

Will Call Howard Nesbit.

By recalling Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw for a few questions which he had omitted on his long cross-examination, Mr. Jerome early yesterday indicated that he would call Howard Nesbit, her brother, to contradict her in a matter of credibility. He asked Mrs. Thaw if she had not told her brother that Thaw had treated her cruelly while abroad because she refused to tell lies about Stanford White and say he had drugged and mistreated her. He also wanted to know if the brother had not bought her a pistol with which she might defend herself against Thaw. The defendant's wife denied that there was any truth in these statements, and said she had never owned or carried a pistol.

Mr. Delmas announced yesterday that the defense would conclude this week.

Nab Alleged Swindlers.

Denver, Feb. 28. — C. L. Jackman, fiscal agent, and Arthur Levan, trustee of the Lost Bullion Spanish Mines company, with offices in this city, were arrested yesterday by deputy United States marshals on charges of having used the mails to defraud by advertising and selling worthless stock. The charges were made by the postoffice inspectors.

Gives Life to Save Two.

Piqua, Ohio, Feb. 28. — In attempting to save a woman with a baby from death Aaron Alexander was himself struck and killed by a train. The woman and child were uninjured.

Threw Self Under Engine.

Cloquet, Minn., Feb. 28. — John O'Brien committed suicide at Carlton by boarding a slowly moving engine and dropping under the wheels when the engine gathered speed.

Robbed by Negro Thugs.

Minneapolis, Feb. 28. — A. J. Goulding, who is an insurance solicitor, was beaten severely and robbed of $15.45 by two negroes who assaulted him as he was on his way home.

Lone Settler Suicides.

Roseau, Minn., Feb. 28. — Alfred Floesch, a homesteader living on a claim in the town of Huss, committed suicide by shooting. The man had lived alone.

Brakeman Crushed to Death.

Marquette, Mich., Feb. 28.—Joseph Berry of Marquette, employed as a brakeman, was crushed to death while coupling cars on the South Shore railroad.

Ammonia Fumes Kill Two.

New York, Feb. 28.—Two firemen were killed and eleven others rendered unconscious by fumes at a fire yesterday in a basement of a building in Eighth avenue. The condition of two others is serious.

Kills and Robs Woman.

Pawtuckett, R. I., Feb. 28. — Mrs. Alexander was murdered in her candy store yesterday by a robber who after emptying the money drawer and stealing a quantity of cigars made his escape.

ARMY OFFICERS TO BUILD CANAL

PRESIDENT PLANS ENTIRE REORGANIZATION OF CANAL COMMISSION.

CONTRACT SCHEME ABANDONED

CHIEF ENGINEER STEVENS RESIGNS—SENATOR BLACKBURN GETS A PLACE.

Washington, Feb. 28.—By an order addressed to the isthmian canal commission yesterday President Roosevelt, as lay in his power under the existing law, transferred to the engineer branch of the army the responsibility for the further construction of the Panama canal. He also, in the same order, formally recorded the abandonment, for the present at least, of the project of having the canal work done by contract on the percentage system. Another feature of the order was the announcement of the resignation of John F. Stevens as engineer in charge of the canal construction.

Entire New Deal.

The intention of the president is that there shall be an entire reorganization of the commission, with three army officers of the engineers' corps its leading members, who are to have charge of the engineering features of the canal work. The chairman and engineer in chief of the commission will be Maj. G. W. Goethals; and his associates will be Maj. D. DuB. Gaillard and Maj. William L. Sibert, to rank in the order named. The reorganization is to become effective immediately upon the confirmation and retirement of the old commission.

Job for Blackburn.

Senator Blackburn of Kentucky, who retires from the senate on the 4th of March, is to be made a member of the reorganized commission.

The president is determined that the work on the canal shall proceed continuously and thoroughly, and the temporary "dislocation" which may come as a result of the resignations of higher officials will not be allowed to interfere with progress.

Stevens Gets Better Job.

The president is unaware of the specific reasons which have been influential in prompting Mr. Stevens' resignation. It has been known, however, that Mr. Stevens has been stung very much by criticism aimed at him in connection with canal work. It is understood that Mr. Stevens is leaving the government's service to accept a position in connection with a great engineering enterprise in this country at an annual salary more than double that he now receives from the government.

MISUSED COMPANY'S FUNDS.

Harriman's Reason for Deposing Fish From Illinois Central.

New York, Feb. 28. — An assertion that Stuyvesant Fish was deposted from the presidency of the Illinois Central because of misconduct as to the funds of the company.

Explanations of the transfer of 300,000 shares of Southern Pacific stock to William G. Rockefeller during the attempt of James R. Keen to secure control of the road and of the delayed announcement of the dividend in Union and Southern Pacific.

Charges Unfair Rates.

Attempts by the government to show that the Union Pacific charges unfair rates, stifles competition in the west territory traversed by its lines and that its dividend of 10 per cent and its expenditure of $240,000,000 on betterments came from an unfair toll on its patrons.

An academic discussion of railway regulations by high authorities on either side that ran from a plea for legalized combinations of railroads under government supervision to a suggestion that the government control railway stock issues.

Created Popular Anger.

A charge and an admission that the misconduct of the railroads created the popular anger that moves determinedly for their regulation.

A charge that no other country in the world is so hostile to large transportation interests.

An assertion that the purchase of the Southern Pacific by the Union Pacific had given the Southwest ten years' advantage in development; that the failure of the Union Pacific to secure the Northern Pacific left the Northwest ten years behind where it would have been if control had been obtained.

All ending with a remarkable scene where the government and the man stood confronted.

Memorable Session.

These were events that made yesterday's session of the interstate commerce commission with E. H. Harriman as sole witness a memorable one. They gave a vivid and intimate realization of the problem of swollen wealth and railway regulation, and the participants, their utterances and the circumstances, gave the inquiry independence. It all made a notable contribution to the financial history—light and dark—of the time.

SAYS BONDS WERE MISSING

WITNESS SAYS THAT SYNDICATE APPARENTLY GOT MILLIONS FOR NOTHING.

New York, Feb. 28. — Counsel for the government renewed their attack upon the financial methods of the Harriman group in the Chicago & Alton railroad before the interstate commerce commission yesterday afternoon, when they called Charles W. Hilliard, controller of the road, as a witness. Under examination by Mr. Kellogg, Hilliard testified that he became controller in October, when, under the joint arrangement for the management of the property, the Rock Island took its turn. Hilliard said that his first task was to find money to carry on improvements that were under way.

Already Mortgaged.

There was money in the treasury for current expenses, but not enough to finish the improvements.

"I looked into the question of raising money by mortgage," he continued, "and I discovered that this line had already been mortgaged."

"Do I understand that this road had been mortgaged before it was built?" asked Commissioner Lane.

"Yes; I was told that it was covered by the mortgage of 1900, and there was nothing that could be done except put a second mortgage on it, which would have been poor security," said Mr. Hilliard.

Mr. Kellogg then read the mortgages to show the line had been covered by it. Resuming, the witness said:

Bonds Were Gone.

"All the bonds were gone. I found from the books that the $13,000,000 had never been paid for the bonds; that the $10,000,000 had never been paid to Stanton for the stock; that the $3,000,000 had never been paid to Stanton for the road, but that the $22,000,000 in bonds had been turned over to the syndicate which delivered the stock and the road through the intermediary, Mr. Stanton."

The commission wanted to know what the books showed had been actually expended in connection with the handling of the property, but while the witness was searching for the records the session was adjourned until to-day.

NELSON LAID UP BY GRIP.

May Not Attend Rest of Session in Senate.

Washington, Feb. 28. — Senator Nelson was unable to remain in the senate the greater part of yesterday, and he will doubtless remain away much of the time during the remainder of the session. For several weeks Mr. Nelson has been suffering with an attack of the grip and should have been in bed, but was obliged to be in attendance upon the senate on account of the bill authorizing appeals in criminal cases and other legislation which required his personal attention.

FITZGERALD IS RELIEVED.

Government Gives Teller a Furlough on Account of His Health.

Chicago, Feb. 28. — George W. Fitzgerald, the teller of the subtreasury, from whose cage $173,000 disappeared, has been given an indefinite leave of absence by the authorities of the subtreasury. It is said that Fitzgerald has worried so much since the shortage came to light that it was considered best to relieve him from work until he has in a measure recovered from the nervous strain.

DRAINS FOR NORMAN COUNTY.

Expenditure of About $30,000 Assured by Assessments Now on File.

Ada, Minn., Feb. 28—Ditch assessments have been filed with the register of deeds, showing that about $29,400 worth of ditching will be done in this county this year.

The officials of Mahnomin county have commenced the transcribing of the records from the old county and will soon be ready for business at the new county seat.

Find $125 in Stamps.

Stevens Point, Wis., Feb. 28.—Small boys discovered a roll of postage stamps amounting to upwards of $125 under a pile of boards in a local lumber yard. They are believed to have been stolen from some fourth-class postoffice last October.

Embezzlement Is Charged.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 28. — Charles H. Thornton, a note teller, and William W. Baker, a clerk, both employed by the Hamilton National bank of this city, were arrested last night, charged with having embezzled $10,000 of the funds of the bank.

Nab Alleged Swindlers.

Denver, Feb. 28. — C. L. Jackman, fiscal agent, and Arthur Levan, trustee of the Lost Bullion Spanish Mines company, with offices in this city, were arrested yesterday by deputy United States marshals on charges of having used the mails to defraud by advertising and selling worthless stock. The charges were made by the postoffice inspectors.

Rick Island Files Mortgage.

Pierre, S. D., Feb. 28. — The Rock Island Railway company has filed in the office of the secretary of state in this city a copy of a mortgage for $6,500,000. The mortgage runs to the Bankers' Trust company and covers all the property and equipment of that system.

WITH THE LAWMAKERS

Work Accomplished by the State Legislators.

St. Paul, Feb. 22.—The house passed the 2-cent fare bill yesterday, under suspension of the rules, within fifteen minutes after the bill had been reported to the house by the railroad committee. The vote was 115 to 1 in favor of the measure, and its passage was followed by prolonged applause.

The bill takes effect May 1 and makes it unlawful after that date to charge more than 2 cents a mile for passengers, or 1 cent for children under twelve, with baggage not to exceed 150 pounds for an adult or 75 pounds for children. The penalty is a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment not exceeding one year.

The Zelch bill for a harvester plant at the state prison was rushed through under suspension of the rules. The vote was 81 to 23.

A state drainage bill having the indorsement of the state officials engaged in that work was introduced by Representative Wells. It calls for an appropriation of $100,000 for 1907 for the drainage of state lands and a similar amount for each year thereafter until the work is completed. Private lands benefited are to pay their share.

Other bills introduced: Providing a penalty for giving a rebate or other favor by any common carrier for transportation of freight and a penalty for one receiving; to better promote the safety of employes and travelers upon railroads by compelling the companies to employ competent persons as locomotive engineers; locating, marking and surveying all or part of the battlefield of Wood Lake; to provide for levying assessments for expenses incurred in laying out and construction of public ditches.

In the Senate.

The bill to provide for the manufacture of certain agricultural implements at the state prison was the subject of a lively debate while the senate was in committee of the whole. The bill was finally recommended for passage. When the committee rose and the bill was reported to the senate it was passed under suspension of the rules by a vote of 37 to 9.

Fifteen bills were before the senate under general orders and ten of them were passed. The more important were: To require an annual apportionment and accounting of surplus of life insurance companies; exempting certain mutual insurance companies maintained by church people from the insurance laws of the state; to provide against fraud or deception in issuing receipts or certificates for grain, hay or straw weighed; to compel railroad companies to equip freight cars with automatic couplers and suitable grab-irons or hand holds; establishing standard form for life insurance policies.

A bill was introduced to encourage education in agricultural and domestic science by establishing county schools of agriculture.

Senator Hall introduced a bill to repeal the corrupt practices act.

Bills introduced: To place the state public school and the school for the deaf and blind under the management of the board of control; relating to the consolidation and annexation of school districts.

Both houses adjourned over until Monday on account of Washington's birthday.

St. Paul, Feb. 26.—A batch of tax measures was reported to the house yesterday by the tax committee. The income tax bill was reported for passage. The bill provides for a graduated tax on net incomes in excess of $5,000. The bill to submit to the vote of the people a proposition to taxe the railroads 5 per cent of their gross earnings was reported for passage.

Representative Adams introduced a novel bill. Instead of having the state loan $1,000,000 to the state fair association for an exposition in celebration of the admission of Minnesota into the Union, he would appropriate $1,000,000 for the different counties of the state for building monumental bridges.

According to a bill introduced by Representative Case chauffeurs and other automobile drivers must stop and give their names and addresses to people they run over.

Representative Hollister introduced a bill requiring express companies to deliver packages in all cities and villages.

Other bills introduced: Appropriating $200,000 for drainage; creating the bureau of labor, industries and commerce; providing for payment by towns of damages and cost of suits brought against persons doing road work.

In committee of the whole the house recommended for passage the bill requiring railroads to connect where they come within 500 feet of other roads. Seven other bills were recommended, the most important of which were: To prohibit the killing of prairie chickens and quail during the years 1907 and 1908; requiring the printing in three instead of one paper in each county of amendments to the state constitution.

In the Senate.

The senate held a short session last night and passed a number of important bills. Four of them were insurance bills. The following were the bills passed: Relating to printing commission and publication of session laws and indexes therefor; authorizing the railroad and warehouse commission to fix the time when local warehouse men shall keep their house open for business; relating to the location of polling places for elections; regulating life insurance companies and prohibiting diversion of funds for political purposes; relating to annual reports of life insurance compaies; defining the status of persons soliciting life insurance; prohibiting the issuance of non-participating policies by certain life insurance companies; relating to the salaries of county commissioners.

Bills introduced: Permitting weekly newspapers to change their publication office from one to another place in the county without losing standing as a legal newspaper; relating to investments by the state board of investments; relating to the swamp land fund.

St. Paul, Feb. 28.—The senate yesterday passed the 2 cents a mile passenger bill and the anti-pass bill. The 2-cent fare bill passed by a vote of 57 to 6, and the anti-pass bill received every vote but that of one senator who did not vote.

The bills came up under a special order at the afternoon session and were debated at length. The 2-cent fare bill prohibits the charging of more than 2 cents a mile for carrying passengers over twelve years of age. The bill goes into effect on June 1, 1907. The bill passed by the house recently goes into effect May 1, 1907. A conference may be necessary.

The anti-pass bill prohibits the giving of any special privilege or rate not accorded to any other person, "for the traveling accommodation or transportation of any person or property, or the transmission of any message or communication."

The senate passed the bill regulating disbursements of life insurance companies.

Senator Alderman presented a bill for the location of the industrial school for girls at Brainerd.

Senator Hinton offered a bill creating the bureau of labor, industry and commerce.

A bill to prohibit the use of of coal tar dyes and saccharine was offered by Senator White.

Other bills introduced were: Regulating the sale of carbolic acid; relating to the evidence of intent with relation to the sale of prohibited food products.

A number of bills were considered in committee of the whole.

A number of unimportant bills were favorably reported by the judiciary committee.

In the House.

Only cigarettes of pure tobacco will be permitted in this state if a bill introduced by Representative Wescott is adopted. The bill provides a fine of $50 or imprisonment for thirty days for any one who sells, manufactures or gives away any cigarettes containing any substitute for tobacco.

The committe on military affairs introduced a bill setting aside $10,000 for the erection of a monument to the late Col. William Colvill. It is to be located on the capitol grounds. His grave is also to be suitably marked.

Two additional pure food bills made their appearance yesterday. One places the responsibility for the sale of impure foods and the other prohibits the manufacture and sale of colored foods.

Other bills introduced were: Giving the railroad and warehouse commission jurisdiction over track scales used by common carriers for weighing car load freight; amending laws relating to the sale of lands for taxes; regulating inhritances in the case of unlawful killing.

The bill designed to give wider publicity to the constitutional amendments voted on at elections was passed. It calls for the publication in at least three papers in each county, and an amendment was added providing that one of the papers shall be of the ulating inheritances in the case of unlawful killing.

Other bills passed: To prohibit the killing of prairie chickens and grouse during 1907 and 1908; providing for the establishment of detention hospitals for the insane; to prohibit the desecration of Memorial day.

St. Paul, Feb. 28.—Woman suffrage received its death blow in the house yesterday. The bill providing for a constitutional amendment was indefinitely postponed by a vote of 65 to 35. This action followed a long discussion in the committee of the whole.

Majority and minority reports on the bill to increase the salaries of judges and justices of the supreme court were presented, and after a lively skirmish both reports were accepted and the bill placed on general orders. A hard fight against the bill seems certain.

The anti-cigarette bill was reported for indefinite postponement and the report was accepted. The bill prohibiting the sale of adulterated cigarettes was reported for passage.

Bills introduced: Providing for the annexation of territory by the city of Stillwater; to regulate the sale of plants, trees, shrubbery, and to provide against the spread of infectious diseases among plants and trees, and inspection of nursery stock owned or sold by companies or corporations doing a nursery business in the state; to prohibit the use and sale of automatic shotguns; to legalize the foreclosure of mortgages by advertisement where the power of attorney to foreclose the same has not been executed or recorded; authorizing cities owning an electric light plant to issue bonds; to place the state public school and the school for the deaf and blind under the control of the state board of control; fixing the rate of taxation on inheritances; imposing a tax of 10 cents a ton, for state purposes only, upon all tonnage ore mined or produced from any lands within the state.

In the Senate.

There were a dozen petitions presented in the senate in favor of county option, and two remonstrances against county option.

Senator Canfield offered another railroad bill. It refers to the gross earnings tax. For willful omission the state auditor in making his draft for such sum so omitted shall add 25 per cent to the principal sum omitted. Such omissions shall also be penalized with 15 per cent interest on the omitted property.

Senator Seward presented a bill to provide for demonstration work in agriculture, stock raising and horticulture and appropriating $1,500.

Senator Calhoun introduced a new pure food bill. He explained that it is a copy of the national pure food law, now the law of each state except three, and adds to that law the provisions already embodied in the state law.

The bill providing for the taxation of inheritances was reported for indefinite postponement.

Other bills introduced were: To accept donations for hospital buildings and equipment for the University of Minnesota and providing for maintaining free clinical hospital facilities; to empower cities of the fourth class to issue bonds in the construction of steam and electric roads; to appropriate $10,000 to commemorate the service of the First Minnesota volunteers and their late colonel, William Colvill.

Two bills were passed: Giving free education at the university to veterans of the Spanish war; allowing district judges to exchange duty under certain circumstances.

St. Paul, Feb. 28. — P. M. Ringdahl, chairman of the state board of control, yesterday filed charges of malfeasance in office against Sheriff Alexander B. Riddell of Cass county. Mr. Ringdahl filed a lengthy complaint with specific charges, and asked that Gov. Johnson remove Sheriff Riddell from office.

Mr. Ringdahl alleges in his complaint that Sheriff Riddell made false reports of expenses incurred while in the performance of his duties in removing prisoners from Walker, Cass county, to the reformatory at St. Cloud, and that he was paid this money by the state on these false reports.

GRAIN WAREHOUSE BURSTS.

Pressure of Wheat Caused Collapse of Building at Herreid, S. D.

Herreid, S. D., Feb. 28.—With a report like a cannon the large grain warehouse belonging to J. G. Brady slipped off its foundation and burst from the great pressure of 5,000 bushels of wheat it contained. Hundreds of bushels of wheat was scattered over the ground and the loss will be heavy.

Burglars in Saloon.

St. Paul, Feb. 28. — When Albert Primeau, saloonkeeper on Annapolis street, outside the city limits, reached his place of business yesterday morning he found that his saloon had been ransacked and the cash drawer robbed of $40.

Pry "Lid;" Are Nabbed.

Faribault, Minn., Feb. 28.—The city administration is determined to keep the "lid" on in Faribault. Yesterday John Shultz, a leading saloon man, was fined $25 and costs for keeping open on Sunday.

DECIDE IN FAVOR OF PERKINS

Contributions to G. O. P. Fund Not Criminal Offense.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 28.—The court of appeals decided in favor of George W. Perkins, a vice president of the New York Life Insurance company and a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., in the matter of the charge of grand larceny made against him in connection with the payment of funds of the New York Life towards the Republican national campaign in 1904.

Wreck Buildings After Raid.

New Orleans, Feb. 24.—A crevasse seventy-five feet wide, which unless closed immediately, will cause overflow water to back up as far as Gretna, a town opposite New Orleans, opened yesterday twenty-five miles below here in the west levee bank of the Mississippi river. It is the first serious break in Louisiana since the high water began. No lives are endangered but a large area of rich sugar and truck farming land will be inundated to a depth of eight feet in a few days.

HUNDRED DEAD ARE FOUND.

Bodies of Miners Taken From Mexican Coal and Coke Mine.

Eagle Pass, Tex., Feb. 24.—A dispatch from Las Esperanzas, Mexico, says that 100 dead bodies have been taken from the coal mine of the Mexican Coal and Coke company, in which an explosion of gas occurred four days ago. There are known to be twenty-three men still entombed in the shaft, and it is practically certain that all are dead.

The woman's sufferage bill has been killed in the house and the ladies will have to wait to vote.

The two-cent fare bill has passed both houses and will without doubt become a law. This will help some.

The plan to reapportion the state so as to give the northern part a fair representation in the state legislature is not quite dead, but very near it.

The express companies, the biggest robbers of them all, rather than stand for an investigation, have agreed to reduce rates twenty-five per cent.

The director of the Vesuvius observatory, who ought to be an authority on fireworks, predicts that some time this month a part of the new Marchetti comet will enter the earth's atmosphere, and that probably most dangerous consequences to the world will ensue. It is possible that the earth's atmosphere will be ignited and that every trace of life be wiped out in a flash.—Crookston Times.

There are no signs of any extra heat in this locality up to date. It will take more than a tale of a comet to eat up our snow piles.

Legislators who abuse J. J. Hill mistake the sense of fairness of the average Northwesterner. All thinking people agree that he has done more for the country between the Great Lakes and the Pacific than any other mortal.—Moorhead News.

If Mr. Hill has not been sufficiently reimbursed why not have the Minnesota newspapers start a subscription? Starting with nothing less than forty years ago he now has about one hundred million, and now people abuse him. Ain't it a shame?

Noses of Great Men.

Prominent noses seem to have been the property of many great men. Lycurgus and Solon had noses six inches in length, and Ovid was surnamed Naso on account of his large nose. Scipio Nasica derived his name from his prominent olfactory organ, and Alexander the Great and Cardinals Wolsey and Richelieu all had large noses. On the medals of Cyrus and Artaxerxes their noses came clear out to the rim of the coin. Washington's was the true aquiline type, indicative of firmness and patience, as was the nose of Julius Caesar. Mohammed had a singular nose. It was so curved that a writer has told us that the point of it seemed continually striving to insert itself between his lips. The noses of Franklin, Shakespeare and Dr. Johnson all had wide nostrils, betokening strength and love of thought. The nose of Napoleon was exquisitely though firmly chiseled. He often said, "Give me a man with plenty of nose!" Frederick the Great had so large a nose that Lavater offered to wager that blindfolded he could tell it among 10,000 by merely taking it between his thumb and forefinger.

The Fly That Buzzed For Mendelssohn

The following story is told of the music of the overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream:" While Mendelssohn was deep in the making of this same fine overture he went riding one day with a friend. In order, after awhile, to rest their horses the two boon companions dismounted and stretched themselves out under the shade of a great tree. Suddenly there came an excited "Hush!" from the great composer, who half arose very cautiously. A large fly was buzzing over them, and Mendelssohn was anxious to catch the true sound of the insect's hum as it gradually drifted farther away. Many days later when the overture had been completed the artist called his friend's attention to that passage in progression where the violoncello modulates in the chord of the seventh of the descending scale from B minor to F sharp minor. "There, that's the fly that buzzed past us at Schonhausen," said Mendelssohn.

Crushing a Critic.

School superintendents in New York among their many duties are expected to report on the personality of the teachers in their district. It is not always easy to get "a line" on that quality of a teacher, so many are lenient in the work. One of the superintendents, however, is never satisfied until he has made the test for orderliness by asking the teacher to open his or her desk. One day he found one of his fair subordinates with things in great confusion. She was evidently violating heaven's first law.

"My dear," said he to the blushing delinquent, "I don't believe you would make a good housekeeper."

The desk closed with a bang. There was fire in her eye as she calmly replied:

"Oh! Are you looking for a housekeeper?"—New York Press.

School Notes

February, the month of birthdays of illustrious men, is just past. Lincoln, Washington, Longfellow—these head the list and are all very dear to the American born. They are also dear to a great many others.

A new picture, The Shepherdess and Sheep, has been added to the grammar room decorations and makes the room more pleasant.

There is nothing like seeing for oneself. Next to visiting a strange country comes seeing and studying the strange things from that country. This is what the 5th and 6th grade geography class is doing. The plants of the different zones are being taken up.

Chamber's cyclopedia, ten volumes, and Larned's History for Ready Reference, six volumes, look more comfortable now since a neat little cabinet was provided for them. One thing is to get good books and another is to shelf them properly so as to give them the longest lease of life and usefulness.

But all good things are not got from books. There's nature, for instance, God's own out-of-doors. To be able to see and appreciate and understand at first hand the world about us is an education in itself. One learns to see things as they really are by trying to reproduce them, and looking again. Water colors are used in the three lower rooms. The little tots enjoy the work very much and can show some pretty good sketches.

In spite of the extremely cold and inclement weather during January we can show a goodly list of true and trusty pupils. Those who have been neither absent nor tardy during that month:

Primary Room—Gabriel Catheleneau, Tom Demars, Andley Lemieux, Frank Marier, Edward Palmgren, Delia Payment.

1st Intermediate—Annie Anderson, John Anderson, Olga Fricker, Clara Fin, Oscar Gigstad, Melvin Hanson, Clarence Johnson, Harry Jackson, Echo Olson, Leonard Peterson, Ethel Hoff, Melvina Fin, Minnie Ganderson.

Grammar Room—Ella Corno, Clara Gunstad, Bennie Hoff, Miles Jackson, Ruth Roy, Alice Hoff, Grace Hall.

THE STORY OF LONGFELLOW.

Not far from the sea in Maine lies a beautiful city. In this town Longfellow was born.

He had a very long name. It was Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. This is how he got it. Mrs. Longfellow's brother had this name. He gave his life to that town. Longfellow went to school when he was three years old.

Mrs. Longfellow's brother was a quick tempered boy. One day he broke his arm by turning summer saults. That shows he was like other boys. Most of his vacations were spent at his grandpa's house. The children never got tired of hearing grandpa tell stories.

He would tell about the war. This is how his grandpa was dressed. He wore a scarlet suit and white shoes and stockings.

Once Longfellow went to Spain. His father did not want him to go for the mountains were full of robbers. When he got there all the people wore coats, some wore blankets. The country seemed very poor. No robbers attacked Longfellow and soon he went home but he didn't go there any more. He was afraid it wouldn't go so good.

Soon he became a professor. He would not let his children come to class without their lessons.

When he came to a hotel he asked for a room. The lady said, "I do not let this room to students." He said, "I am not a student. I am a professor." So he got the room.

Once he went to visit a lady. She said it was like sunshine in the room while he was there.

Once he got married. Longfellow had six children. One was named Alice and one Charles. I do not know the other names. Once Charles went to war and a bullet went in under his arm and came out under the other arm. Once when Mrs. Longfellow was in a room cutting the curls of her girls a match fell on the floor and got lit and it burned Mrs. Longfellow so badly she died the next day. Mr. Longfellow felt so badly he couldn't go to the funeral. Soon he died and a grave stone was put up for him.

Webster's Compliment.

While it is well known that Daniel Webster in speaking of General Taylor's candidacy for the office of president pronounced it "a nomination not fit to be made," he never failed to do justice to the general's military abilities and eminent service in the field. On one occasion he paid the old soldier a delicate and well deserved compliment. General Taylor was complaining of the crowds of people who daily besieged him soon after his accession to the presidency.

"They interfere," he said, "with my official engagements and violate my domestic retirement, but still I do not wish to turn my back upon my friends."

"You never did upon your enemies, general," Mr. Webster instantly replied.

A Freshman.

A freshman who had entered one of the large universities and was not much accustomed to the ways either of institutions of learning or of cities was returning late one evening from a lecture. When near his lodgings he was halted by two masked men, who "held him up" in true metropolitan style. One of the men leveled the conventional revolver at the young man, while the other relieved him of his watch, pocketbook and other valuables. He made no mention of the matter to anybody at the time, but a few days later he reported it to the president of the university.

"It wasn't a great deal," he said, "but it was more than I like to lose, and I think it's an outrage to treat a boy that way."

"Why didn't you tell me of this sooner?" asked the president.

"I supposed they would bring the things back to me next morning," he answered. "It was a couple of sophomores hazing me, wasn't it?"—Youth's Companion.

Weary Watches.

"I suppose," said the watchmaker, "you do not know that watches, like human beings, sometimes don't 'go' for the very good reason that they are tired. Sometimes a watch is brought to me which is all right. Nothing about it is out of order, and it is fairly clean. When it becomes sulky and refuses to go except by fits and starts the best thing to do is to lay it aside and give it a rest. The mechanism in a 'tired' watch seems to be in perfect condition, but it won't work. The fact is that long and faithful service has thrown it slightly out of adjustment in perhaps ten different places. Scraping and cleaning and readjusting a fine watch is the worst thing that could be done to it. A month's rest will instead cause the works slowly to readjust themselves, and at the end of that time after careful oiling the watch will go as cheerfully as ever."—Washington Star.

Big Game Birds.

The capercailzie, or "black game bird of Norway," is one of the largest species of game birds in the world, being very hardy and frequently attaining a weight exceeding fifteen pounds, but when the birds are young they are easy prey of hawks. The birds are what are known as "rangers" for the reason that while in quest of food they cover a wide expanse of territory. During periods of heavy snowfall they burrow into the snow and remain until the storm subsides before venturing out again. Their food in winter consists chiefly of birch buds, and in summer they catch mice and other small animals. They are rated as members of the grouse family and in habits are much like the partridge.—Forest and Stream.

Patti's First Audience.

Adelina Patti once gave the following account of her first audience: At six years of age I was a prima donna of the nursery. When I had been put to bed on my return home with my father and mother from the opera I used to make sure that they and the rest of the family were asleep, and then I would hop out from beneath the counterpane and fancy myself a great cantatrice, bowing before the plaudits of a huge audience. I admit my audience was a little apathetic, but, after all, that is not to be wondered at, for they were only a row of dolls which I had ranged on chairs before me.

In Doubt.

On a famous rifle range there was an important team match one day, and the men were firing in pairs, one for each team, side by side. The best shot on the home team was given to aiming so long that bets were made on whether or not he had gone to sleep at the firing point. Presently he withdrew his head from the stock of his rifle, lowered the barrel and asked his opponent in a low voice:

"Did I fire or did you?"—Forest and Stream.

Work and Fatigue.

What fatigues the motive power is getting to work. Once the mind is fascinated and the field of consciousness restricted to a single object the brain works without exhausting itself. Let us apply ourselves for a good time to whatever we do and have several hours of sustained labor. By quitting the task to dream, to smoke a cigarette or to watch a fly one becomes exhausted.—Paris Revue.

Might Have Made a Killing.

A physician took it into his head to go rabbit shooting. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon he returned, tired out and empty handed, telling his wife that he hadn't killed a thing. Thereupon she remarked: "I told you so. If you had stayed at home and attended to your legitimate business you might have been more successful."—Chicago News.

Sweetly Said.

The influence of locality upon speech is illustrated by a reply received from a Vermont farmer and quoted in the Boston Herald. The old man had been questioned in regard to the value of an estate left by one of his neighbors. "Waal," said he, with great deliberation, "we cal'late he'll sugar off about $50,000."

No Wedding Bells For Him.

Weary Willie (reading "ad.")—Man wanted to chop wood, bring up coal, tend furnace, take care of garden, mind chickens and children. Fray Fagin (groaning)—Gee! Dem matrimonial advertisements make me tired.—Judge.

Sale of Ditching Jobs.

Notice is hereby given, that on the eleventh day of March, 1907, at two o'clock p. m., at the office of the county auditor in the city of Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county, Minnesota, I will sell the jobs of digging and constructing the Ditch No. 28 of Red Lake county, established by the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, state of Minnesota, by their order bearing date the ninth day of January, 1907, viz:

For the work as one job, and also for one or more sections of 100 feet each, and also for one or more of the construction jobs, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes as shown by the report of the engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet, and from thence, successively, up stream to the one including the source, said sections being numbered from No. 0 to No. 112 inclusive, to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, and that bids are invited for said work, said work to be completed within the time required, and in the manner specified in said Engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent over and above the estimate cost of the construction, in any case, as stated in the said order, and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond to be approved by the auditor of said county, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract, and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file, and may be seen at my office.

The approximate amount of work to be done in the construction of such ditch is as follows: The excavation and removal of 22,411 cubic yards of earth the same to be placed along the west side of said ditch from station "60" to station "93" and at all other points the material shall be placed along the side of the ditch and within the right of way thereof in such form as may be required by the engineer.

The estimated total cost of the work is two thousand sixteen and 99-100 dollars.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the auditor of said county, for not less than ten per cent of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

Dated January 15, 1907.

JOHN B. O'BRIEN,
County Auditor,
Red Lake county,
State of Minnesota.

H. A. Johnson left on Monday evening for Colraine, Minn., where he went to look over the country. He returned on Wednesday not particularly impressed with that section.

"If March comes in like a lion it will go out like a lamb, and if it comes in like a lamb it will go out like a lion," says an old saw. There was nothing lamblike yesterday and if the old saying holds good we may expect fine weather the latter part of the month.

An exchange intimates that the very best curfew ordinance is that one adopted in the family, where the old man acts as mayor, city council, night watch and calaboose keeper, where fine and punishment go together and hickory gad may be used occasionally and fines are not suspended, but promptly executed; where they don't bother so much about passing a lot of ordinances as they do in enforcing those already on the records.

Plummer Pioneer: Olaf Tande was here yesterday on his way home to Garnes from St. Hilaire with a fine three-weeks-old bull calf which he purchased from Chas. Gustafson. The calf is from a pure bred Guernsey sire and a choice grade Holstein dam which will make a choice dairy sire if he lives for two or three years more. Mr. Tande deserves credit for the efforts he is continually making to improve dairying conditions in this part of the country.

A chimney fire in Fred Soderberg's residence in the south part of the village last Sunday came very near burning the building. When discovered the roof was on fire and was only put out by the hardest kind of work. Very little damage was done.

Henry Goergen went over to Colraine and Bovey last Monday to have a look at the country with a view of locating. Mr. Goergen returned on Wednesday. He reports that everything is overdone in these towns and that he has concluded to remodel his store, stock it with new goods and stay at St. Hilaire.

News: A large number of Red Lake Indian reservation Indians were in Thief River Falls the first of the week. Many of them were Indians that formerly lived on the eleven towns. They all had quite an amount of money and did considerable trading with our local merchants.

Miss Eva Johnson was pleasently surprised last Tuesday evening by twelve of her old friends, the occasion being her birthday. The evening was spent in social chat, after which a bounteous supper was served. Those present were: Misses Kate Patterson, Clara Hoff, Mabel Hannay, Josie Gigstad, Mary Hoff, Alice Hall, and Mesdames Jens Nelson, George Austin, Martin Hoff and Hans Hanson.

At the teachers' examinations held here last month the following successful candidates obtained state certificates: Anna J. Fallman, 2d grade; Caroline Netteland, 2d grade; Norah E. Gazette: Joe McCaffrey arrived here Tuesday evening and is spending several days with his many Red Lake Falls friends. Joe is now employed by a large land firm at Winnipeg and is on his way to the southern part of the state, where he will spend the next month at advertising work for his firm. He will also travel through Illinois and Iowa for the same purpose. Joe has been making a big success of his work at the "Peg," and his many friends here are pleased to learn of his prosperity.

The rose that smells the sweetest is the first to fade, the boy who runs the fastest is the one to soonest jade. The brightest of the evenings has the gloomiest dawns, the man who buys the biggest yards must cut the biggest lawns. The apple that is biggest has the fattest worm of all, the fellow who gets on in life is sure to have a fall. The soup that looks the clearest is the first to show the flies, the fellow who would sell the goods must surely advertise. The hen that lays the biggest egg will be the first to set, and the things we always hanker for are the last we get. The simplest way is always best, yet we pass it by, to dabble with the tinseled thing that fool and catch the eye.—Exchange.

Mr. Whirry has purchased an interest in the creamery and will be buttermaker and manager. Crookston is fortunate in securing Mr. Whirry to run their creamery as they have secured a first class buttermaker and one of the best in the state. Mr. Whirry received a telegram from White Rock, S. D., Monday, that the townspeople there guaranteed a bonus of $700 if he would come there and put in a creamery, but he had already accepted the Crookston deal.

Sad Ending.

Courier: James Nelson, who was taken to the asylum for the insane at Fergus Falls from here last week, died at that institution Monday night.

Mr. Nelson's pitiable condition was aggravated by a high fever and other complications which hastened his end. The body will be shipped to Russel, Lyon county, for burial.

The widow left Wednesday night for Fergus Falls and accompanied the remains to Russel, where the burial took place today.

Burned Out.

Last Thursday while C. A. Hull and wife were in town shopping, their farm dwelling in River Falls caught fire and burned to the ground including all of the contents. H. Haupt, who lives nearly two miles away, was the first to see the fire and drove over but the building was almost entirely destroyed before he arrived. He succeeded in saving several small articles not to exceed five dollars in value, which was all of the property saved. It is not known what caused the fire.

Mr. Hull estimates his loss at $1,500. The dwelling was insured for six hundred dollars in the Bray Mutual and the contents for $200. The loss will be a particularly hard one for Mr. Hull as he is just starting in farming.

New Town Organized.

The petition of Joseph Johnson et. al., of township 153 39, for organization as a town, came before the commissioners at their meeting Tuesday and was acted upon favorably. The new town will be known as "Star" and the first town meeting for the election of officers, etc., will be held at the Johnson place sometime in March, on a date to be set by Auditor O'Brien.

The new town has many progressive citizens, and after the organization is completed will make rapid strides. There are only two unorganized towns left on the reservation, and they will probably come in for organization during the coming year.—Gazette.

Nelson Leads.

The January report of the St. Hilaire creamery makes a good showing for the coldest and stormiest month of the year. 31 cents a pound was paid for butter fat and butter made during the month sold for $2,501.25. This is a big increase over last year when the business for January amounted to $1643.53.

The following patrons received checks for over fifty dollars:

Not Always the Editor's Fault.

A dearth of local news often leads to murmurs on the part of those who prize local gossip above everything else, and it is not always the fault of the publisher. Any live publisher will not fail to give all the local news worthy of note; therefore when the local department is short you should not rail at the editor, but remember you might have committed suicide, got married, quarreled with your neighbor, stole chickens, let your team run away, or done a hundred other things to make a local.—Diamonddale (Mich.) News.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: Ole O. Vattendahl, a prominent Highlanding farmer, spent Sunday and Monday in this city. Mr. Vattendahl was interviewing the people here regarding the sale of shares in the Red Lake River Transportation company. This company was organized by a number of Highlanding farmers for the purpose of building a boat for freight and passenger traffic on the Red Lake river. They are now selling shares in the company, and expect to commence work early in the spring to get the boat in operation as soon as possible. Mr. Vattendahl was quite successful here and disposed of a large number of shares.

Gazette: Dave Paradis, one of Poplar River's foremost hustlers, was a caller here Monday. Dave reported that early last week a son was born to them—being their thirteenth child—eleven of whom are living at present. Mr. Paradis scoffed at the idea that it was hard to support a family of this size, and seemed of the opinion that most of the hardships in this life were imaginary ones. Mr. Paradis has a fine farm in Poplar River and has prospered very nicely during the past few years.

SEMI-CENTENNIAL FUND.

A Bill Introduced in the House Provides Aid to Build Bridges in Commemoration of Admission of Minnesota Into the Union.

Elmer E. Adams, member of the legislature from Fergus Falls has introduced a bill in the house appropriating $1,500,000 for a "Semi-Centennial Bridge Fund" to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the admission of Minnesota into the union. Various schemes have been proposed for celebrating the coming anniversary, the principal one being the holding of a six weeks exposition at the State Fair grounds for which a strong lobby is at work to have the legislature appropriate $1,000,000. The memorial which Mr. Adams proposes is certainly the most practical and it is one which will appeal to the people of every county in the state for everywhere there is need of permanent bridges, and the townships are unable to build them unaided. The bill provides for issuing certificates of indebtedness by the state for $1,500,000 bearing 4 per cent interest and these are to be paid off at the rate of $100,000 a year. This is the plan on which the $4,000,000 capitol was built and the one on which it is proposed to raise $1,000,000 for the "expanded" State Fair and the $1,500,000 for the capitol approaches. The bill divides the $1,500,000 among the counties of the state according to their size and needs and is to be used in building iron, stone or concrete bridges, and on each bridge there is to be a tablet of iron which shall read "Erected in 1908 in Commemoration of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Admission of Minnesota into the Union." The money when paid to the counties will be apportioned by the county boards, which will determine what proportion of the cost of the bridge shall be provided by the township or village and what proportion shall be paid out of the Semi-Centennial fund.

Under the provisions of the bill Red Lake county will receive $10,000.

Can't Vote on License.

Thief River News: A petition asking that a special election be called for the purpose of voting upon the license question was circulated last week. It is said that the petition had the backing of certain saloon keepers who wanted to force the city council to reduce the saloon license lower than $1,000 and if they failed to do this would unite with the temperence people of the city and vote out the saloons.

The petition will not be presented to the city council, however, for the reason that under our city charter the question of license cannot be voted upon. The members of the city council have the arbitrary right as whether or not liquor licenses shall or shall not be granted, and they also have the power to fix the license fee.

While the saloon keepers claim that they cannot make any money when forced to pay a license of $1,000, the fact remains that there are now sixteen saloons in the city and there would be more were it not for the fact that the council has limited the number to sixteen.

Calla Lily Farm.

What is probably the largest calla lily farm in the world is located in California. There is one fifty-acre field in Venture county devoted exclusively to the cultivation of these flowers. They are planted in long, narrow rows and are cultivated by means of plows and hoes, just like corn or potatoes. The lilies attain a very large size, and are, perhaps, the most beautiful specimecs of their kind to be found in the world. In beers as in anything else there is always one that is better than the rest. The most rigid test will prove to you the superiority of golden grain belt beer. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Who Gets Your Vote?

"Do you see that man there?" remarked a barber to a customer in his chair. "Well, he has had one and the same job for the past forty-seven years and has been married all that time, and his wife has never at any time during that period known what salary her husband was getting. The wife gets so much a week and no more and has never been able to learn what amount of money her husband has been receiving in exchange for his labor. Now, what bothers me is which should have the diamond medal—I say diamond, as in this case the finest would seem to be needed—the man for being able to so long baffle a woman's curiosity or the woman for surviving so long an unsatisfied curiosity."—Columbus Dispatch.

A Fearful Duel.

The most terrible duel fought at any time in Paris was the one between Colonel D., an old Bonapartist officer, and M. de G. of the Gardes du Corps, a mere youth, but of herculean strength. The two men, lashed together, so as to leave their right arms free, were armed with short knives, placed in a hackney coach and driven at a tearing gallop around the Place de la Concorde. They were taken out of the coach dead. The colonel had eighteen stabs, the youth only four, but one of these had pierced his heart.

SEVEN REASONS
Why One Should Carry an Account With a Bank.

I. BECAUSE, your money is safer in a bank than anywhere else.
II. BECAUSE, a bank account teaches, helps and encourages one to save.
III. BECAUSE, paying bills by check is the simplest and most convenient method, as well as the safest, as your check becomes a receipt for the debt it pays.
IV. BECAUSE, a check book is more convenient to carry than a wallet, and if lost, the bank will furnish you another free of charge.
V. BECAUSE, it gives you a better standing in the community especially among the business men to pay by check rather than in cash. To be known as having money in the bank strengthens one's credit.
VI. BECAUSE, your returned, cancelled checks with properly kept stubs and the pass book furnished by the bank, make a complete and clear record of business transacted, and is kept with less work than any other record could be.
VII. BECAUSE, by having a bank account and issuing checks and making deposits, you are, unaware to yourself, gradually building up the most valuable asset a man can have, namely, a good credit, and this credit will extend away from home.

Look at the subject from as many sides and as long as you will, the opening of a bank account is desirable and advantageous, and we tender you our services and facilities.

Pure White Lead is the Natural Paint Pigment

Numerous compounds are being offered to take the place of white lead as a paint, but no real substitute for it has yet been found. Pure White Lead has a peculiar property of amalgamating with the wood upon which it is used—added to this it has an elasticity which permits the paint to follow the natural expansion and contraction of the wood. Pure White Lead (with its full natural tenacity and elasticity, unimpaired by adulterants), alone fulfills all the requirements of the ideal paint. Every keg which bears the Dutch Boy trade mark is positively guaranteed to be absolutely Pure White Lead made by the Old Dutch Process.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

The testimony of thousands during the past year is that the Canadian West is the best West. Year by year the agricultural returns have increased in volume and in value, and still the Canadian Government offers 160 acres FREE to every bona fide settler.

Some of the Advantages

The phenomenal increase in railway mileage—main lines and branches—has put almost every portion of the country within easy reach of churches, schools, markets, cheap fuel and every modern convenience.

The NINETY MILLION BUSHEL WHEAT CROP of this year means $60,000,000 to the farmers of Western Canada, apart from the results of other grains and cattle.

DR. JAMESON'S CAPTOR

Now Fourth-Class United States Postmaster.

To lose a country and find a wife may not be a bad trade, even if it does involve descending from the seats of the mighty to the position of a fourth-class postmaster in a little hamlet on the very outskirts of civilization.

This is, in capsule form, the real life romance of Gen. Benjamin Johanis Viljoen, postmaster of Chamberino, Rio Arriba county, N. Mex. Ten years ago his name was a household word wherever the printing press is known, as the captor of the aspiring but premature Dr. Jameson, the South African raider. With equal success he fought the Basuto savages, receiving his reward in the shape of a seat in the volksraed, or senate, of the Transvaal republic.

With De Wet and Botha he aided in the shattering of British military idols from the start almost to the finish of the Boer war. Like Napoleon, he was sentenced to banishment for life on the lonely rock of St. Helena, and when amnesty was offered he preferred perpetual exile to taking the path of allegiance to the crown against which he had borne arms. With such of his kinsmen as chose to follow his uncertain fortunes, he started on the long "trek" to the Southwestern land of promise, finding a comforter and helpmeet before he reached his journey's end in a sympathetic lass of Illinois.

Benjamin Johanis Viljoen, now engaged in the humdrum occupation of selling 2-cent stamps at Chamberino, was born at Woodhouse, Eastern Cape Colony, thirty-eight years ago. In 1886, when but a beardless boy of eighteen years, he caught the gold fever and joined the rush of eager Argunauts to the Rand. The goddess of the mines did not smile upon his labors, and in 1890 he gave up prospecting to enter the service of the Boer government, as assistant public prosecutor. He still longed for adventure, and three years later he became organizing officer of the volunteer militia, with the rank of lieutenant, rising gradually until he became major. His first leap into the spot light was made in 1896, when he gained international renown as leader in the capture of "Doctor Jim," whose misfortune was that he made his spectacular move just a little too soon.

GEN. BENJAMIN JOHANIS VILJOEN

For his services at this time Viljoen was promoted to the position of commandant of the militia and special commandant of the burghier, or citizen forces of Johannesburg. His mettle having been tried and found true, in 1897 he was intrusted with leadership of an expedition to Swaziland.

During the earlier stages of the heroic Boer struggle for independence against an overwhelming weight of numbers and material resources, Viljoen captured many armored trains and kept up an unceasing campaign with the object of harrassing and worrying the enemy, while his compatriots, De Wet and Botha, were co-operating elsewhere. Two months before the last shot was fired he was ambushed at midnight, while crossing the British cordon with a small escort. His horse was shot under him, and he was severely wounded, making his capture easy. He was sentenced to banishment for life on the island of St. Helena, where he was confined until the fall of 1902. He was then paroled, and returned to South Africa to bid farewell to the land for which he had fought in vain, to sever old ties, and to gather together the little that belonged to him that had escaped the general cataclysm. He was one of the "irreconcilables," steadfastly refusing to accept amnesty at the price of swearing allegiance to the king. A few faithful followers, bound to him by ties of blood, elected to accompany him into exile, and together they set sail for the land of the free, arriving in New York in December, 1902.

The exiles found the hearts and homes of America open to them, and selected New Mexico as their land of opportunity. On his way to his new home Gen. Viljoen foreswore his allegiance to the red god of war, meeting a red-cheeked girl of Illinois in St. Louis, and surrendering unconditionally to the dimpled deity of love. He had lost his country, but he had found a wife, who now rules jointly with him over the postoffice at Chamberino; and if the shadows of past greatness sometimes haunt him in her sympathetic arms he banished regret.

Postage Stamps of the World.

The total number of all known varieties of postage stamps issued by all the governments of the world up to the present time is 20,496, of which 6,153 are apportioned to the British empire and 14,343 to the rest of the world. Europe has issued 4,361, Asia 3,856, Africa 4,469, America 4,688, the West Indies 1,637, and Oceania 1,485. These figures comprise only standard varieties of postage stamps, and do not include postcards, letter cards, stamped envelopes or wrappers.

HARDSHIPS OF ARMY LIFE

The experience of David W. Martin, a retired merchant of Bolivar, Mo., is just like thousands of others. Mr. Martin says: "I think I have had kidney disease ever since the war. During an engagement my horse fell on me, straining my back and injuring the kidneys. I have been told I had a floating kidney. I had intense pain in the back, headaches and dizzy spells and the action of the bladder was very irregular. About three years ago I tried Doan's Kidney Pills, and found such great relief that I continued, and inside a comparatively short time was entirely rid of kidney trouble."

Stimulate the Blood.

Brandreth's Pills are the great blood purifier. They are a laxative and blood tonic, they act equally on the bowels, kidneys and skin, thus cleansing the system by the natural outlet of the body. They stimulate the blood so to enable nature to throw off all morbid humors, and cure all troubles arising from an impure state of the blood. One or two taken every night will prove an invaluable remedy.

Each pill contains one grain of solid extract of sarsaparilla, which, with other valuable vegetable products, make it a blood purifier unexcelled.

Brandreth's Pills have been in use for over a century, and are for sale everywhere, plain or sugar-coated.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

TEACHING THE YOUNG IDEA.

Gratifying Results From Shooting Galleries of Eastern Schools.

The war department officials who have to do with the rifle practice in this country and who are engaged in devising means for its encouragement are much pleased with the reports which have come from New York respecting the successful work in the shooting galleries of the public schools. This is the system of education which the experts of the army have been advocating all along and it is proposed to renew next year the attempt to obtain from congress an appropriation of $1,000,000 to carry on this work at the public schools of all the large cities, at least as far as the fund will go toward introducing the system into the schools of the country.

It is realized that something must be done to teach shooting among the young. In the meantime it is a question to what extent the government will be able to promote rifle practice in this country without some special fund for that purpose. This year the allotment for the repair and construction of ranges has been exhausted without the accomplishment of much beyond the refitting of dilapidated ranges of army posts.

Nothing has been saved for the enlargement of the range at Fort Riley, Kan., where it was hoped to hold the next national match instead of Sea Girt, N. J. There is a site for a range in Ohio, but it cannot be prepared for the accommodation of marksmen to any such extent as now exists at Sea Girt, and as the department has no funds for Fort Riley it seems necessary to have the next match at the New Jersey range.

WHERE IDEALS QUICKLY DIE.

Commercial Atmosphere of New York City Acts as Cramp on Genius.

What ability or skill the great man of the provinces brought with him to the metropolis may be only the foundation for real work. There will surely be extensive revising of ideals and methods, says Atlantic. A story is told of a poet who arrived in town with a complete epic. This found no acceptance, so after cursing the stupidity of the public and the publishers he took to writing "Sunday stuff." Soon the matter-of-fact attitude of the workers around him, with the practical view of the market he acquired, led him to doubt the literary value of the work he had done in the sentimental atmosphere of his native place.

Presently a commission to write a column of humor a week came to him and he cut his epic in short lengths, tacked a squib on each fragment and eventually succeeded in printing it all as humor at a price many times larger than the historic one brought by "Paradise Lost."

Another newcomer brought unsalable plays and high notions of the austerity of the artistic vocation. Three months after his arrival he was delighted to get a commission to write the handbook which a utilitarian publisher proposed to sell to visitors seeking the metropolis. This commission brought not only a fair payment for the manuscript on delivery, but involved a vital secondary consideration. The title of the work was "Where to Eat in New York" and its preparation made it necessary for the author to dine each evening for a month in a different cafe at the proprietor's expense.

WOUNDING THE FIRE.

Superstition That Obtains in America and Asia.

A curious modern attempt to rationalize one of the oldest of superstitions is to be found in Kipling's "Life's Handicap," says London Outlook. There Mulvaney checks the author from stirring the fire with Otheris' bayonet, on the ground that fire takes the heart out of the steel. The real reason is much more mysterious. It was one of the maxims of Pythagoras "not to stir the fire with a sword," and to this day the wandering tribes of North America and Northeast Asia hold it a sin to take up a burning ember for a pipelight with the point of a knife. The explanation is undoubtedly given by Johannes de Plano Carpini, when he tells us that one of the Tartar superstitions concerns "sticking a knife into the fire, or in any way touching the fire with a knife, or even taking meat out of the kettle with a knife, or cutting near the fire with an ax; for they believe that so the head of the fire would be cut off."

This is evidently connected with the ancient idea that fire is a living creature, a sacred animal, which must not be wounded by its human owners, in case it should be annoyed and deprive them of its valuable services. Is this in any degree more irrational than the belief still existent among housekeepers that a feeble fire can be made to burn up by laying the poker across it, or that the sunbeams falling on a fire tend to put it out?

First American Stenographer.

Rev. Oliver Dyer, the first person to master stenagraphy in the United States, an associate editor with Robert Bonner in publishing the New York Ledger, and an intimate of many prominent statesmen and a well known author, has just died in Boston at the age of 72. He learned stenography in England personally from Isaac Pitman and was the first stenographer in the United States senate. His protege, Murphy, formerly his office boy, became the fastest stenographer in the world.

Deposits of Asbestos.

Rich deposits of asbestos covering hundreds of acres and containing thousands of tons of the valuable material, have been located in the mountains of Northern Luzon, Philippines. Samples examined in the bureau of science, at Manila, says the Far Eastern Review, are pronounced excellent in quality, with only 1 or 2 per cent of alloy. The deposits are inlaid between talcum and silica (both valuable deposits), and the fields of asbestos are within a few miles of excellent harbors.

AILING WOMEN
How Many Perfectly Well Women Do You Know?

MISS GRACE E. MILLER MRS. W. S. FORD

"I am not feeling very well," "I am so nervous it seems as though I should fly." "My back aches as though it would break."

How often do you hear these significant expressions from women friends. More than likely you speak the same words yourself, and there is a cause.

More than thirty years ago Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass. discovered the source of nearly all the suffering endured by her sex. "Woman's Ills," these two words are full of more misery to women than any other two words that can be found in the English language. Sudden fainting, depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere, backaches, headaches, nervousness, sleeplessness, bearing-down sensations, displacements and irregularities are the bane of woman's existence.

The same woman who discovered the cause of all this misery also discovered a remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs holds the record for a greater number of absolute cures of female ills than any other one remedy the world has ever known and it is the greatest blessing which ever came into the lives of suffering women.

Don't try to endure, but cure the cause of all your suffering. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. The following letters prove this:

Mrs. W. S. Ford of 1938 Lansdowne St., Baltimore, Md. writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"For four years my life was a misery to me. I suffered from irregularities, suppression, terrible dragging sensations and extreme nervousness. I had given up all hope of ever being well again when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended. It cured my weakness and made me well and strong."

Miss Grace E. Miller, of 1213 Michigan St., Buffalo, N. Y. writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"I was in a very bad condition of health generally; irritable, cross, backache and suffered from a feminine weakness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me after all other medicines had failed."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Ford and Miss Miller it will do for other women in like condition. Every suffering woman in the United States is asked to accept the following invitation. It is free, will bring you health and may save your life.

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of her vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

MASURY'S HOUSE PAINTS
THE STANDARD FOR OVER 50 YEARS
NEVER FAIL TO GIVE SATISFACTION

THERE is a reason why Masury's Paints meet with universal approval. During a period of sixty-five years they have proved to live the longest. Of course, there are no house paints that will not fade in time. The sun, the cold, the rain, and the wind bring their assaults to bear, and even Masury's will finally yield, but where other paints succumb in a year or two, Masury's House Paints will continue their resistance and brilliancy of finish years after cheaper paints have been forgotten. Therefore, THE PAINTS THAT WILL ENDURE THE LONGEST ARE THE BEST AND MOST ECONOMICAL.

MASURY'S HOUSE PAINTS are made from pigments carefully selected with a view to their durability. These pigments are ground in PURE LINSEED OIL, because this vehicle, on account of its elastic, preservative and drying qualities, has been proven, by sixty-five years of experience, to be superior to all others. LINSEED OIL PROTECTS THE SURFACES AND INSURES THE RETENTION OF THE COLOR for the longest possible period. Insist upon a PURE LINSEED OIL PAINT. Your best guarantee is that every package bears the name of

GRIEVING MOTHER TO AID OF THAW

TELLS OF CHANGE IN SON AFTER HE HAD HEARD EVELYN NESBIT'S STORY.

HER STORY IS IMPRESSIVE

STAY BEFORE JURY IS BRIEF AND SHE IS LOATH TO LEAVE THE STAND.

New York, March 2.—Harry K. Thaw enlivened an extremely dull session of his trial in the supreme court yesterday by giving out to the newspaper men a brief statement in which he accused District Attorney Jerome of having made unprofessional remarks in court, asserted that his wife's testimony was absolute truth, and in conclusion declared that Mrs. Thaw's "natural goodness" was above the comprehension of the prosecuting officer.

Thaw's Statement.

This is Mr. Thaw's second statement since Aug. 10:

"With the chances millions to one against her, after the catastrophe in 1901, it is wonderful that Mrs. H. K. Thaw prevailed in the cross-examination against the persecution backed by blacklegs.

"Her testimony was absolute truth.

"Our evidence was of conversations. The cross-examination has proved the exact facts under oath.

"Mr. Jerome, finding his informants in certain lines falsifiers, concluded by more usual methods, which is to his credit.

"However, from some of his questions and some of his unprofessional remarks in court, it appeared clearly that the natural and real goodness of the witness is above his comprehension."

Was Insane at Time.

Dr. Britton D. Evans, the alienist, was in the witness chair all of yesterday, undergoing cross-examination at the hands of District Attorney Jerome.

Dr. Evans and Mr. Jerome spent the entire day in going over eight letters written by Thaw and culling out of them excerpts on which Dr. Evans based his expressed belief that they were written by a person of unsound mind.

Judge Becomes Fatigued.

New York, March 3.—The insanity of adolescence, paranoia and the characteristics of "brain storms" occupied both sessions of the Thaw trial yesterday, and when adjournment until Monday morning was ordered Dr. B. D. Evans was still under cross-examination.

To Ask for Commission.

The net result of the day appeared to be that Mr. Jerome is still laying the foundation upon which he may ask for a commission in lunacy to judge of the present mental condition of the defendant.

Justice Fitzgerald indicated his fatigue at the day's cross-examination of the expert when Mr. Jerome began to question Dr. Evans about his knowledge of other instances of adolescent insanity which had resulted in acts of homicide.

Mr. Delmas objected to this line of questioning.

"But, your honor," argued Mr. Jerome, "we are just getting to the point of this thing."

"Well, we have been a mighty long time getting there," wearily remarked the justice.

New York, March 6.—A long stride forward in the trial of Harry K. Thaw was taken yesterday when District Attorney Jerome announced that his exhaustive cross-examination of Dr. Britton D. Evans, one of the alienists for the defense, had been concluded. Dr. Evans had been under fire since Wednesday morning last. He was immediately succeeded on the stand by Dr. Charles G. Wagner of Binghamton, N. Y., who accompanied Dr. Evans on most of his visits to Thaw in the Tombs. Mr. Jerome indicated by his questioning of Dr. Wagner that he may conclude to-day.

Mother Next Witness.

Mrs. William Thaw is expected to be the next figure in the witness chair. With Mrs. Thaw's testimony in, the defense will practically complete its case, and it is likely that the state's case in rebuttal may be begun before the end of the week.

Dr. Evans left the witness stand yesterday subject to recall for a direct examination. The witness protected the interests of the defense quite keenly throughout his cross-examination and at all times appeared to be a match for the district attorney.

Had Insane Knowledge of Act.

Dr. Evans yesterday, however, admitted that Thaw had an insane knowledge of what he was doing in Madison Square roof garden the night he shot and killed Stanford White.

Dr. Wagner declared that Thaw had irrational knowledge of what was transpiring on the roof garden. He believed the man's insanity dated from the time Evelyn Nesbit told him her story in Paris, in 1903.

Dr. Wagner Still on Stand.

New York, March 7.—Interest aroused in yesterday's session of the trial of Harry K. Thaw by the announcement that Mrs. William Thaw, the mother of the defendant, would take the witness stand, was quickly dulled by the continued cross-examination of Dr. Charles G. Wagner by District Attorney Jerome. Dr. Wagner was on the stand the entire day, and when adjournment was announced the district attorney seemed to have much ground yet to cover with the expert.

Judge and Jerome Clash.

Yesterday's session was made notable by a clash between District Attorney Jerome and Justice Fitzgerald, at the climax of which the prosecuting officer refused point blank to cite to the court the authorities upon which he was predicating an argument.

"I have such a high respect for the courts of this jurisdiction," retorted Mr. Jerome, "that I will not submit authorities on a question of law which is so elemental in character and upon which the authorities are so abundant that I must presume the learned court knows of them."

Judge's Ire Aroused.

With flushed face and a sharp rap of his gavel Justice Fitzgerald said if the district attorney did not submit the authorities the court would assume that he did not know of any. Mr. Jerome did not submit the authorities and Justice Fitzgerald ruled in favor of the defense on the point at issue, which, briefly stated, was the question as to whether the state on cross-examination should be allowed to go farther with an expert witness than counsel for the defense was allowed to go upon direct examination.

Questions Are Technical.

Dr. Wagner was allowed to give his conversations with Thaw during the period that he believed the defendant to be of unsound mind. He said Thaw remembered having approached and having shot White. He protested, however, that he had not intended at any time to kill the man, but wanted to have him legally punished.

Much of the day was given over to technical questions concerning the mental and physical examinations to which Thaw was subjected in the Tombs by Drs. Wagner and Evans.

New York, March 7.—Another dramatic chapter was added to the trial of Harry K. Thaw yesterday when the mother of the defendant took the witness stand to contribute what she might toward saving her son. Mrs. Thaw's story before the jury was brief. Mr. Delmas limited her examination to the change she had noted in her son's condition following his return from Paris in 1903, after Evelyn Nesbit had told him her life story, and District Attorney Jerome conducted a short and ineffectual cross-examination.

Wanted to Tell More.

But Mrs. Thaw felt she had not done her all and was loath to leave the witness chair.

"There is the question of heredity," she protested when both Mr. Delmas and Mr. Jerome told her she might step down.

"I have asked you, madam; all that is considered necessary," said Thaw's attorney with the utmost deference.

Mrs. Thaw half rose, hesitated, and was about to sit down again when the leading counsel for the defense offered her his hand to assist her from the stand.

Mother Breaks Down.

Twice during her recital of the events which had caused her to fear that all was not right with her son, Mrs. Thaw was unable to proceed. Her face flushed, she made an effort to speak, but the words would not come. She said that when Harry came home in 1903 he seemed depressed and apparently had lost interest in life. She told in a motherly way of her solicitude for the boy.

"He told me a wicked man—probably the wickedest man in all New York—had ruined his life."

It was not until some time after he had offered this explanation that she learned the story of the young woman who was to become her daughter-in-law.

Story Will Carry Weight.

If Harry Thaw's fate is thrown into the hands of the twelve men in the jury box who heard the mother's story there seems little doubt but that what she said will carry wonderful weight with it. But Mr. Jerome gave the impression that he might use the mother's testimony as a weapon in another direction—in his fight to have a commission appointed to test the present state of mind of the defendant.

At the end of Mrs. Thaw's examination court adjourned until Friday morning, a death in Justice Fitzgerald's family causing an abandonment of the Thursday sitting.

King Loses Automobile.

Biarritz, March 7.—King Edward lost an automobile by fire last night in a peculiar manner. While the tax agent was examining the machine with a lantern the flame came in contact with the contents of a can of petroleum and the oil immediately blazed up. The automobile was completely destroyed.

Physician Makes Libel Charge.

New York, March 7.—Col. Edwin R. Fox, describing himself as a veteran of the Civil war, was arrested here on a charge of criminal libel preferred by Dr. Harry Macdonald Peggs. The physician says Fox circulated a pamphlet libeling him.

Guilty of Embezzlement.

Wilber, Neb., March 7.—A jury in the district court last night found Former County Judge Hosmer H. Hendee guilty of embezzling $3,385 of the county funds. Sentence was deferred.

Plunges Over Embankment.

Warren, Pa., March 7.—A passenger train was wrecked last night between Irvington and this place. The train plunged over a twenty-five-foot embankment and nine persons were injured, none fatally.

PLOT TO KILL THE CZAR UNCOVERED

PLUNGES NICHOLAS INTO TERROR, AND HE STAYS AWAY FROM DUMA OPENING.

TROOPS RIDE DOWN CROWDS

MONSTER REVOLUTIONARY DEMONSTRATION—GENDARMES UES WHIPS.

St. Petersburg, March 7.—A plot to kill the czar in case he should attend the opening of the duma, it is declared, was uncoverered within twenty-four hours of the opening.

This, it is said, was what kept the czar from attending the opening.

The discovery plunged Nicholas into terror.

Terrorists Break Loose.

The opening yesterday of the duma, or lower house of the Russian parliament, although in itself devoid of incident, was made the occasion of a great revolutionary demonstration by the St. Petersburg proletariat and the students of the city, which resulted in several encounters between the police and the populace, and more or less serious injury to a number of the latter.

Fill Streets With Troops.

The situation was such that the authorities finally were forced to fill the streets with military patrols, as in the ominous days of the Trepoff regime.

After the adjournment of the session of the house a tumultuous crowd, estimated to number close to 40,000 persons with red banners flying and accompanied by the music of revolutionary chants, started, like the followers of Father Gupon on Jan. 22, 1905, toward the central quarter of the city, where the winter palace of the emperor is located.

Like "Red Sunday."

Few elements of the prelude of "Red Sunday" were lacking, and the command "Fire!" would have precipitated a similar massacre. But the present prefect of St. Petersburg, Gen. Dracheffski, followed another course and dispersed the procession by charges of mounted gendarmes armed with whips and by imposing display of force he prevented the demonstrators from reforming.

Premier Fears Assassination.

It was learned last night that Premier Stolypin, in order to diminsh his chances of possible assassination, would spend the night in the Tauride palace, and it is understood that he had taken a suite of rooms in a wind of the palace, which he will occupy as long as parliament is in session.

OTHER NATIONS JOIN FIGHT.

All Central America United Against Nicaragua.

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, March 7.—The army of Honduras is mobilized on the frontier, under the personal command of President Bonilla, who left a sick bed to take command of the army. His arrival at the front has inspired the troops with enthusiasm for active operations against Nicaragua.

A strong column of Hondurian troops has invaded Nicaragua through the department of Ooctal.

On March 3 a force of Hondurians attacked and defeated 400 Nicaraguan troops at Old Depilto and captured fifty prisoners and a quantity of rifles and field-gun ammunition. The loss to the Hondurians was small.

The general opinion is that Honduras will eventually triumph.

Troops Advance Fast.

Mobile, Ala., March 7.—The Thacker line steamer Mercator arrived yesterday from Porto Cortez, Spanish Honduras. According to statements of passengers Nicaraguan forces are on Honduras soil in great numbers and making rapid advances.

American Ships Go South.

Washington, March 7.—The United States gunboat Princeton has been ordered to Central America to assist the cruiser Chicago in looking after American interests threatened by the war between Nicaragua and Honduras. It also has been decided to send either the Dubuque or the Paducah to Bluefields, Nicaragua, to assist the Marietta in looking after American interests on the Caribbean side of Central America.

Other Nations May Join.

News received here yesterday is disquieting in the extreme to the officials who had been hoping that the trouble between Nicaragua and Honduras could be localized and soon terminated by arbitration. It is now stated that there is every indication that Salvador, Guatemala and Costa Rica will join forces with Honduras, making a combination of all the other Central American countries against the single state of Nicaragua.

Fire Evicts Officers.

Havana, March 6.—Fire broke out yesterday afternoon in the officers' quarters at Camp Columbia. Two houses, occupied by sixty-five officers, were destroyed. Lieut. Wilhelm and two privates sustained injuries.

Archie Doing Nicely.

Washington, March 6.—Dr. Rixey visited the White House last night, and as he was leaving said: "Archie is getting along nicely. His condition is not serious and there is no reason for alarm."

BOMB INJURES GEN. NEPLUEFF

SECOND ATTEMPT ON HIS LIFE—DUMA WILL PETITION FOR AMNESTY.

Sebastopol, March 7.—As Gen. Neplueff, commandant of the fortress here, who has just been transferred to a less hazardous post, was on his way last evening to attend a farewell banquet given in his honor a bomb was thrown under his carriage where it exploded.

The carriage was shattered. The general sustained injuries about the feet. His coachman was wounded, a woman pedestrian sustained serious injuries, and the horses were crippled. The man who threw the bomb escaped.

This is the second serious attempt upon Gen. Neplueff within a week.

Petition for Amnesty.

St. Petersburg, March 7.—The presentation by the lower house of parliament of a unanimous petition for amnesty for all political offenders except those guilty of actual murder probably will result from a conference of the Conservative deputies held last night.

At this meeting it was decided to support any request made by the Liberal members of the house for the pardon of all persons imprisoned or exiled for revolutionary agitation or propaganda whose hands were not actually stained with blood.

GOLD TOOTH BETRAYS.

Funny Story Makes Him Laugh; Then Police Chief Nabs Him.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, March 7.—A shining gold front tooth landed William Walker, alias Williams, behind the bars here. Walker is wanted by the Omaha police on a charge of forgery, and the description sent out by the police of that city mentioned, among other things, the fact that Walker had a gold front tooth. Chief of Police Tullar saw a man answering in a general way the description of the much-wanted man, and engaging him in conversation, started to tell him a funny story. As Walker laughed the chief caught sight of the gold tooth, which confirmed his belief that he had the right man, and Walker was at once escorted to jail.

DAKOTA MAY BE TOTAL WRECK.

Great Northern Steamship Will Soon Succumb to Wind and Waves.

Yokohama, March 7.—The position of the wreck of the Great Northern liner Dakota, which ran ashore March 3 off Mojima lighthouse, forty miles from Yokohama, is reported to be unchanged. It is only possible to approach her in open boats, which makes it useless to attempt salvage operations. A strong west wind is blowing and the vessel is exposed to both wind and waves, which apparently must soon result in her total abandonment.

SELF-DEFENSE PLEA WINS.

Assault Case at Grand Forks Ends in Acquittal.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 7.—John Osowski was acquitted yesterday at Grafton on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. Osowski was a guest at a wedding at Warsaw, at which there were over a dozen kegs of beer. A drunken fight took place, and Owoski admits that he defended himself with a knife.

COSTLY FIRE ON STEAMER.

New York, March 7.—Damage from a fire at sea, amounting to $250,000, was reported by the German steamer Vandalia, which arrived here yesterday from China and Japan. The fire started in the Vandalia's hold on the afternoon of Feb. 25 and was subdued only after the hold had been flooded with water.

POWDER IN LINERS' PATH.

Ketch Laden With Explosive Picked Up in Irish Channel.

Holyhead, Wales, March 7.—The ketch Esmeralda, with a large quantity of gunpowder on board, was towed in here yesterday. She was found drifting in the Irish channel in the path of the American liners. Her appearance suggested the hurried departure of the crew.

LANDSLIDE KILLS MAN.

Earth From High Bank Falls Upon Driver.

Sidney, Iowa, March 7.—Constantine Jones, a farmer living near Tabor, was found dead beneath a pile of earth which had caved in from a high bank. Jones met his death while driving along the roadway.

Milwaukee Fugitive Arrested.

Miles City, Mont., March 7.—Deputy Sheriff Daniel O'Conner of Milwaukee came here yesterday and started back with O. S. Pritchard, wanted for embezzling $4,000 from Carpenter's bakery in Milwaukee and jumping his bail bond. Pritchard was arrested a half hour after his arrival here.

Five Firemen Hurt at Big Fire.

Philadelphia, March 7.—Fire, which started in a six-story building in Filbert street yesterday, caused damage of $100,000. Five firemen were severely injured by the collapse of a fire escape on which they were standing fighting the flames.

Poisoned by Postal Card.

New York, March 7.—Frederick Huneker, a Jersey City letter carrier, is ill at his home of blood poisoning, caused by a scratch from a tinseled postal card. The edge cut his finger.

WALL STREET HAS AN EXCITING DAY

SENSATIONAL BUYING OF READING CARRIES UP WHOLE LIST OF STOCKS.

RUMORS PUT BROKERS AT SEA

HARRIMAN SAID TO BE SEEKING CONTROL OF THE READING PROPERTY.

New York, March 7.—Sensational buying of the shares of the Reading company yesterday gave Wall street its most exciting experience since the Northern Pacific contest of six years ago. An enormous buying movement in the shares carried the price up more than 8 points in half an hour.

Up to the close of the market there was nothing official to show the source of the purchasing orders, but a persistent rumor was in circulation that E. H. Harriman was buying the stock, with the object of acquiring control of the property.

Harriman Not Interested.

Mr. Harriman, who is in Washington, was informed of the use of his name in connection with the Reading transactions, and he then made a statement through his secretary to the effect that he was not "interested in Wall street and did not care to be denying all the rumors originating there." Further than this, nothing official was obtainable.

The trading in Reading reached the extremely large total of 736,500 shares, or about one-third of all the transactions on the stock exchange for the day. The magnitude of the sales seemed to preclude the idea that an ordinary manipulative maneuver for higher prices was being executed.

This sudden turn after the recent weakness in the market served to strengthen the entire list, and a general rally was soon in progress, and it continued up to the close, which was strong and active.

According to the report the big block of stock which changed hands represented the H. C. Frick interest in these two companies.

FIRST VICTIM OF GRIP DYING.

Man Who Started Disease in America Has It Again.

New York, March 7.—Henry Kipp Woodruff of Rahway, who is said to have been the first grip victim in the United States, so far as the diagnosis is concerned, is dangerously ill at his home in that city from a return of the disorder.

When he was first stricken in 1882 the grip was ravaging Russia. The physician called to attend him could not determine the nature of his malady, and six others were called. They finally declared he had the then new disease, the grip.

The doctors at that time predicted that Woodruff would not live a week and that if he did he would be a raving maniac. In time he recovered.

FALL KILLS EMPLOYE.

Man Tumbles From Step-Ladder and Is Fatally Hurt.

Clinton, Iowa, March 7.—Falling from a high step-ladder upon which he had climbed to oil the machinery, Hans Drilla, struck upon his head and sustained injuries from which he died a short time afterwards.

Cell for Deserters.

Des Moines, March 7.—The Iowa legislature enacted a law to punish wife deserters. It provides for a punishment not to exceed one year in the penitentiary.

Killed by Dust Explosion.

Huntington, W. Va., March 7.—In a dust explosion in the Ethel coal mine, near Logan, W. Va., Ed Grover, a miner, was killed and several others injured.

Loses Road; Freezes.

Philipsburg, Mont., March 7.—The body of John Semzie has been found in Sluice gulch. The man apparently lost his way and was frozen to death.

Burns Kill Mother and Babe.

Aitkin, Minn., March 7.—Mrs. Swartout and her infant daughter, who were badly burned Monday by the explosion of a lamp, died Tuesday.

Killed by Cave-in.

Chisholm, Minn., March 7.—Frank Seddlesock was killed by a cave-in while working in a drift at the Chisholm mine.

Train Kills Man and Wife.

Plymouth, Ind., March 7.—Mr. and Mrs. John Baker were instantly killed at Donaldson by the Pennsylvania flyer.

Suicide's Accounts Short.

Mount Vernon, Wash., March 7.—Experts who have been engaged on the books of the late Fred Blumberg, formerly auditor of Skagit county, reported the discovery of a shortage of $9,068 for 1905 and 1906. On Feb. 8 last Blumberg's body was found in a creek near West Mount Vernon.

Wife Murder Charged.

ROBBERS STEAL MAIL WAGON

MAIL POUCHES ARE RIFLED OF BETWEEN $3,000 AND $4,000 IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, March 5.—Daring robbers stole a mail wagon in which was a pouch of registered mail containing between $3,000 and $4,000 from the Washington street entrance of the Stock Exchange building, almost within the shadow of detective headquarters.

The wagon was found by the police on the West side. The horse was covered with lather and was steaming from the effects of hard driving. The thieves, it is thought, were incited to the robbery by the ease with which the subtreasury was looted of $173,000.

Six letter pouches were found yesterday in an outlying vacant lot. The pouches had been rifled. The loss is estimated by the postoffice inspector to be between $3,000 and $4,000.

KILL OFF THE DOGS.

Cheyenne Indians to Have but One for Each Family.

Miller, S. D., March 5.—There is crying and wailing among the children of the Cheyenne agency and the Indian men and women are fighting mad. The agent has notified the police to go to Indian camps and kill the dogs in excess of one for each family. Any family desiring to keep more than one dog must have a written permit from the agent.

As dogs are the chief stock in trade of the red men, it is easy to see how this order may make serious trouble. There was a time when it would have caused the Sioux braves to have taken the warpath.

SAVES BABE FROM DEATH.

Plumber Snatches Babe From Blazing Crib.

Aberdeen, S. D., March 5.—A. W. Griswold, a plumber of this city, saved the life of the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Hauge.

He was called to the Hauge home to make repairs and while at work he smelled smoke that appeared to be in an adjoining room. He investigated and arrived just in time to snatch the child from its crib, which was the center of a blaze, the clothing at the foot of the bed being on fire. He placed the child on the floor and threw the burning clothing into the street. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

INSANE, HANGS SELF.

Jensen's Father Before Him Took His Own Life.

Owatonna, Minn., March 5.—The second suicide within a week occurred here yesterday, the victim being James Jensen, who managed a farm. He evidently had the deed in contemplation several days, having purchased a new rope for the purpose.

Jensen is supposed to have been suffering from hereditary insanity, for his father committed suicide a short time ago, and two sisters and two brothers are in the asylum.

CLEAN UP FRISCO.

20,000 Volunteers Work With Picks and Shovels.

San Francisco, March 5.—At the sound of a bugle yesterday morning 20,000 men with picks, shovels and brooms, and 3,500 teams began to clean up the dirt and debris in the streets. The entire city was covered, but special attention was given to the burned district.

It was the result of volunteer labor and men of all professions and occupations participated. The women of the city aided by providing the workmen with food at designated quarters.

PICK HITS DYNAMITE.

Workmen in Chicago Sewer Trench Are Blown Up.

Chicago, March 5.—While a gang of laborers was working in a sewer one of them accidentally struck a stick of dynamite with a pick he was using.

A terrific explosion followed, fatally wounding Joseph Norter and Peter Hallersa and seriously injuring several others.

SHOOTS ARCTIC OWL.

Idaho Mail Carrier Gets Rare Specimen.

Spokane, Wash., March 5.—Frank Billps, a rural mail delivery man, working out of Nez Perce, Idaho, south of Spokane, is the possessor of an arctic owl, which he will send to the Smithsonian institution. He shot the bird on the Donaldson ranch.

Thrown From His Cutter.

Osnabrock, N. D., March 5.—While attempting to cross the railroad track ahead of a passenger train, a covered cutter containing Mrs. M. Hentzel and Charles Lundeby was struck and completely demolished. Mrs. Hentzel was so seriously injured that there is little hope of her recovery. Lundeby had two ribs broken.

Jumped to His Death.

Chester, Pa., March 5.—In an effort to escape being burned to death John Conly, a comedian of the Vanity Fair company, was instantly killed yesterday by jumping from a window of the Arcade hotel.

Takes Acid and Laudanum.

Detroit, March 5.—R. E. Binz of Philadelphia, who registered last Wednesday at the Hotel Renaud as Edward Tayton, committed suicide last night by taking carbolic acid and laudanum.

BANDITS HOLD UP TRAIN IN KANSAS

MAKE PASSENGERS DISGORGE BUT GET ONLY $100 AND SOME WATCHES.

ONE KILLED AND ONE INJURED

RESISTING PASSENGERS ARE SHOT—BANDITS MAY BE LYNCHED.

Pittsburg, Kan., March 6.—A Missouri Pacific passenger train, which left here at 7:20 last evening, was held up by two men in disguise, and Lon Jeff, a colored miner, was killed because he protested, and W. L. Westlake of Toledo was shot through the hand by a stray shot that had been fired at the negro.

There were few passengers on the train, and the robbers secured only a little over $100 in cash and a few watches and revolvers.

Made Passengers Shell Out.

The robbers boarded the train here at the station and began working the train as it passed the Kansas City Southern shops. They commenced at the smoking car, and one walked ahead with a revolver in each hand and quietly asked the passengers "to shell out" to the man behind him, who was closely following. They were not far behind the train auditor, and followed him into the woman's coach. When they came to Jeff in the women's coach he pulled his revolver and took a shot at the foremost robber, who shot twice at him. The first shot went wild and struck Westlake, but the second struck the negro in the head and Killed Him Instantly.

They then quietly made the auditor stand up and deliver, and hurriedly left the train as it entered the yards at Cornell.

A switch engine with a posse of officers were sent to Cornell. The country surrounding Pittsburg is thickly settled, and is dotted with scores of villages and mining camps. It is reported that the news that a miner was killed by the bandits has spread rapidly and that the miners will make an attempt to capture and lynch the men.

SPENDS NEARLY A BILLION.

Appropriations for the Next Fiscal Year Aggregate $919,948,679.63.

Washington, March 6.—Statements were made to the senate and house yesterday by Senator Allison and Representative Tawney, chairman, respectively, of the appropriations committee, and by Representative Livingston, the ranking minority member of the house committee, regarding the appropriations which have been made during the session.

The total appropriations aggregate $919,948,679.63, of which $756,622,674.27 is for the annual expenditures of the government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1898. The balance of the grand total is to be used as follows: $12,439,685.36 for emergencies and deficiencies on account of the fiscal year 1907 and prior years; $1,000,000 for miscellaneous objects, such as private claims and the like, authorized in special acts, and $149,886,320 for permanent annual appropriation to meet the interest charge on the public debt, the requirements of the sinking fund, expenses of collecting the revenue from customs, redemption of national bank notes and other purposes. The revenues of the government for 1908 are estimated at $850,000,000, which would leave a surplus of $20,000,000 and not a deficit, as had been predicted in some quarters.

STEAMER DAKOTA IS SINKING.

Bow Is Under Water Up to the Second Mast.

Tokio, March 6.—The captain of the Japanese steamer Tokai, which was steaming abreast of the Dakota Sunday, reports that when sighted the steamer was at full speed, heading south, when she changed her cosse quickly in order to avoid danger. Just at the moment, however, she struck, with her head down and the lower screw exposed. The passengers were rescued by boats from the Tokai and from land, which took them all ashore. The day was calm, but the dreaded current peculiar to that locality was very strong.

The Dakota lies one mile off shore, with her bow under water up to the second mast. She is still sinking.

Intense Rivalry Between Army and Navy Departments.

An army officer in Washington on a visit has directed attention to difficulty officers are experiencing in securing recruits for the army in order to keep it up to anywhere near its legal quota. He added that the scarcity of material for the making of fighting men had resulted in a peculiar condition in certain places where there are both army and navy recruiting depots. It has been charged that officers in charge of naval recruiting have "swiped" recruits that had been promised to the army, and vice versa, so keen has become the rivalry between the two branches of the service. He pointed to a recent occurrence at Sioux City, which is considered one of the best recruiting points in the United States. The army was the first to establish a station there. Then followed the marines, and lastly the navy came in its quest for sailormen. At first, it is said, the three officers in charge of the several stations were on friendly terms, but that condition is said to exist no longer. Each officer is trying to outdo the other, and any infringement on each other's territory is quickly and hotly resented. It is understood that an applicant is not enlisted until he reaches headquarters, and many are said to be enticed to rival stations. Among the causes advanced for the scarcity of material for the army are the severe penalties that are inflicted by the courts-martial and the absence of "extras" in the menus of the military posts, due to the abolition of the army canteen, which formerly supplied a company fund to provide butter milk and other things not contemplated in the army supply list.

MADE LIVING FROM RUBBISH.

Queer and Profitable Occupation of Washington Man.

A queer character who frequented the streets of Washington several years ago is said to have recently passed away in New York city. It was his practice during the regime of the old street-sweeping machines to go along the gutters on the main thoroughfares of the city every morning before the hand sweepers were out of their beds and delve into the piles of refuse that had been cast up by machine sweepers. It is said he found many articles of value and frequently money in the rubbish. The boys of the streets called the old man "Jack the Dipper." His right name was said to be McCarthy, and he was described as "lively and full of fun."

One morning just at the peep o' dawn McCarthy is said to have unearthed a pile of silver dimes and quarters and some nickels in one of the street piles. In all the find amounted to about three dollars, and the "dipper" declared that he felt like a Rockefeller. The pile was in front of a barroom, and he thought that the money had perhaps been lost by some drunken fellow who fell into the street after the saloon had closed at midnight.

Ever afterward he made it a point first to visit the saloon fronts along his "route" in quest of the losses of some belated "drunk." In New York he is said to have been employed as a member of the great "flock" of "white wings."

Unlovely Water Tanks.

"No doubt," observed the man who has fallen into the habit of observing the doings of others with critical eyes, "the structures which are being put up on the roofs of buildings in the business sections of the city add to the security from fire. For they are tanks filled with water and their function is to flood the threatened building when the fire appears. There is no question about the utility of these attachments, but why should all regard for appearance, not to say beauty, be overlooked in their design? If there is anything in preserving some uniformity in whaat artists and others delight to call the sky line of the streets of the city, why is the bare and unadorned water tank perched high up on the roofs of buildings allowed?"

"Have you any idea of what it costs to put up one of those unadorned water tanks as you term them?" asked one of the group, who heard the remarks of the critical citizen. "Perhaps if you did you would think they were beautiful, even though without ornamentation or artistic form as you suggest."

"That's the usual argument put up by the ignorant sordid," replied the first speaker. "Cost has nothing to do with beauty and the present structures are a disgrace to the city."—Washington Star.

Too Eager for Birthday.

The little girl had celebrated her third anniversary with a half-dozen little friends to help eat ice cream, cake and candy. In the evening, when mother was tucking her in her little crib, she asked the child whether she enjoyed her party and she responded brightly: "Yes, indeed, mamma. May I have another to-morrow day?"

Disposing of Increased Salary.

A group of congressmen were assembled in the lobby of the Willard the other night and were discussing the recent increase in salaries voted to themselves. One of the number, a poor man from the far west, found no difficulty in finding justification for his vote in favor of the proposition. But at the same time he regaled his colleagues with a statement made to him by a brother congressman, a rich man, by the way, whose income in one week more than equaled the congressional pay for a year. "I don't propose to use a cent of the increase," had declared the wealthy member. "I shall give it all to the hospitals of my district." He was somewhat taken aback when his colleague remarked that he also would not use a cent of the increase. "How's that?" said the rich fellow. "Well," returned the poor man, "I intend to let my creditors have it."

HOW A SHORT GIRL MAY LOOK TALLER

A French figure molder stood in front of a lay figure. "I am draping it for a window," said she, "and I get $25 for my work.

"You see," she added, "I am considered an expert at my business, and every day very exclusive dressmakers come to me for hints. They want to know how to make their customers look taller. Frequently they bring lay figures to me to be dressed in a statuesque way. I understand the art of even making a lay figure look tall.

"There is a furore now among girls, American girls especially, to look tall. Even the French woman, who has hitherto been content to look chic, is anxious to look higher than she is.

"This opens up a new field for the artistic woman; and I fell into it immediately. My special mission is to make a womna look a great deal taller than she really is. In some cases this is very difficult; in others it is very easy.

"There are women who naturally look short. They are tall enough, but they are so fat that they look little. There is no making them look anything but dumpy. The only thing in their case is to reduce the weight. Until they thin there is no such thing as increasing their height. I have a dozen of these a day. They are fat and dumpy looking, and they come to me clamoring to look tall and stylish.

"'Reduce your weight,' is about all I can say to them. But I manage to do so in a very diplomatic way, so that they depart thinking they are very nearly perfection just as they are.

"The girl who is too short must get thin. Thin people always look taller than they really are. As a rule the slender girl longs to be fat. But the minute she is fat she will look shorter. So she better keep thin and tall looking.

"But there are girls who are so short that they look little in spite of being thin. No matter how slender, they still look little. To these girls there are words of good advice.

"Don't, if you are short, wear tight-fitting clothing. The little short thin woman who puts on skin-tight dresses will look weazen. She will look shrivled up. She will look old. For she will have that curiously dried up appearance which belongs to the aged.

"Dress your shoulders broad if you are little. It adds somehow to your height. No one can tell why it is, but the broad shouldered girl always looks taller than she really is. That is the secret of the wonderful figure of the Gibson girl. She is broad shouldered, and it adds a foot to her height.

"Shoulder puffs, fat sleeves and all sorts of devices for increasing the breadth of the shoulders, were invented, not for the fat girl, but for the short girl. They are becoming and the modistes cling to them.

"The short girl can also make herself look taller by wearing long skirts. These increase the apparent height and make the short girl graceful. They may not be hygienic but they are immensely becoming. Put a short girl in a trained gown and she will immediately take on height and dignity.

"The short girl may wear stripes running lengthwise and she may wear the princess dress, and she can, if she so desires, get herself up in trimmings and stuffs that run from head to foot. All of these will make her look a little taller. But she should not overdo the matter. The short girl should never be conspicuous in dress nor should she wear many frills. They make her look old and fussy.

"But there are other things beside dress to make the short girl look tall. And one of these is her coiffeur. The short woman should dress her hair as high as possible, and, if necessary, add a tall comb to make it still higher. Of course she will avoid being grotesque, but she will carry the hair dressing as far as possible without going to extremes.

"There is a certain short girl in society. She wears high heels, but not high enough to make her look awkward. She dresses in tan colored gowns and in ecru and gray. She wears everything to make her look larger than she really is, for she does not weigh 100 pounds. Her skirts are striped and flowered, checked and plaided. The girl's hair is always coiffed high. And on top of the high coif she wears a hat well fitted at one side and trimmed with a rather high plume. No one suspects her of being the shortest girl in the four hundred.

"But there are other ways of making a girl look tall. One of these is by making her muscles supple. The girl who carries herself slowly and stiffly, who walks on such high heels that she appears to be on stilts, who moves as though she were in a vise, will always look short,—provided she is naturally short.

"But the short girl whose muscles are supple, the short girl who can move lightly and gracefully, the short girl who understands how to bend and bow, and who can go through a room easily and without consciousness, this is the girl who looks taller and more stylish than she really is.

"Short girls are usually very self-conscious. They imagine that every one is looking at them. They go through life fancying that they are objects of interest to all: Really no one notices a girl who is very short. But it is hard to convince the short girl of this. She thinks the whole world is watching her. It is a case of morbid self-consciousness.

"Let the short girl make herself graceful; let her exercise her muscles until she moves easily; let her take off her stilts and put on heels that are moderately high; let her dress her hair tall and lengthen her skirts, and she will immediately begin to look taller.

"These rules are known to every one who molds the figure feminine and they are put into practice in every establishment in Paris."

ANNA HELD MAKES HERSELF LOOK TALL

By Wearing an Exquisite Fitting Gown.

Changed, Yet the Same.

A Southern man, who has for some years past been established in New York, recently visited his former home in Virginia. While there he was busy renewing old acquaintances. Among those was the son of an old preacher whom the former Virginian remembered as having invariably discoursed on the same topic.

"Heard father since you've been back?" asked the son.

"I am sorry to say that I have not," said the other. "Tell me," he added with a smile, "is he preaching that same old sermon?"

"O, yes," replied the son, not at all taken aback at the question; "but for the last year or two he's been hollering in different parts of it."

Farm Machinery and Edged Tools for Canada.

Daily Consular and Trade Reports point out that the proposed reduction in the Canadian tariff by the present parliament, as recently announced by the minister of France, affords a splendid opportunity for the sale there of American agricultural machinery and edged tools by a reduction of duty from 25 per cent to 23 1-2 per cent. It will not do to depend on circulars to make use of this opportunity. What is wanted is sales agents. Those going into the province of Quebec should know French.

Vast Lake Drying Up.

The other day it was announced that Great Britain, France and Germany had agreed on their respective shares of Lake Tchad, Central Africa. Before many years the shares of water surface will be shares of swamp land, as the lake is drying up. In fifty years its area has diminished by 1,000,000 acres, and it is now very shallow throughout.

CUPID FINALLY SMILES ON MINISTER COREA

Rejected by One Southern Woman Because of Rumor That He Had Negro Blood, He Gets After All a Southern Bride.

The luck of Senor Luis F. Corea, Nicaraguan minister to the United States, has finally brought him a bride. This is all that lacked to complete his success in Washington.

Since the time he came here as representative and protege of President Zelaya, he has enjoyed the most amazing good fortune. The president of the United States and John Hay, secretary of state, no doubt for good reasons, made a favorite of him, that is in as far as it was proper for them to do without giving offense to other members of the diplomatic corps.

Society, won by his handsome face, courtly bearing and romantic manners, idolized him, and steadfastly declined to believe ill things that were persistently whispered of him shortly after his arrival in Washington.

He suffered only one rebuff, that was when the handsome Georgia widow, formerly Mrs. Ilah Dunlap Jordan, now Mrs. John D. Little, broke off her engagement with him, partly because of the persistent rumor that he had negro blood in his veins. As a true Southerner, she was credited with fearing that where such a doubt existed she could not be happy with Corea, and hence gave him up, though it is known that the separation cost her dearly at the time, for the swarthy minister had won his way deeply into her affections.

This incident would have ended the career of the majority of diplomats, and for a time seemed destined to put a period to Corea's Washington march of triumph, but in the end he remained at his post, and society continued to pet him, and now that he has got an heiress for a bride, even the memory of the Jordan incident has been pretty well wiped out.

As if to add balm to the wounded feelings of the suitor who was rejected by a Southern girl, she who became the bride of Corea on Feb. 27, is herself a daughter of the South, Miss India Bell Fleming, whose father, Col. Robert I. Fleming, was a gallant soldier in the Confederate army.

Miss Fleming is a debutante of this season, and is wealthy in her own right.

Thus abandoned by one Southern woman, Corea got another for wife, which clearly indicates that he must have conclusively proved his pure Caucassian blood.

It must be said of the Nicaraguan that in the Jordan incident he acted very creditably.

She was the daughter of a wealthy Georgian, and the man she married was a millionaire. He did not long survive, and Mrs. Jordan, beautiful and immensely wealthy, came to Washington just at the time that Senor Corea was on the top crest of his popularity.

From the first it was in evidence that he was in love with the young widow, and when it came apparent that she preferred his company to that of any other of her distinguished suitors, Washington approved, for such a match seemed entirely fitting.

A good part of the courtship took place in Paris. In fact the wedding preparations had gone to a point that while in the French capital she bought a goodly part of her trousseau.

Returning to Macon from Europe, Mrs. Jordan freely admitted her coming marriage, and nothing seemed to menace the happiness in store for the minister.

Just at this time came the thrilling and sensational incident that finally broke off the match.

An anonymous letter sent to the mayor of Macon made a number uncomplimentary charges against Corea, including one to the effect that he was in part a negro.

There was no proof for the allegation, and when Macon's mayor and three other citizens called on Mrs. Jordan to lay the facts before her, and protest against a daughter of Georgia taking a chance on allying herself with a man who had negro blood in his veins, Mrs. Jordan stood up loyally for her fiance. Her answer was to send a wire to Washington telling Corea to go ahead with the marriage preparations.

In this crisis Corea acted very manfully. There is no doubt that at this time he might have married Mrs. Jordan, for she doubted the accusations, including a new one that he had a family in Nicaragua and to prove her sympathy would have been loyal even to the point of consummating the wedding.

But Corea insisted that as long as any doubt remained, it was not fair to have her future tied up with his.

He demanded an investigation, and was taken at his word.

After emissaries had been sent to Nicaragua, and made their report, a member of the Jordan family made a public statement which exonerated Corta.

Now there was no obstacle, at least none that the public knew of, but in the meantime Mrs. Jordan had "changed her mind." Perhaps the reappearance of a sweetheart of her youthful days, gallant Capt. John D. Little of Georgia, formerly speaker of the house in his state, and more than a possibility for governor, had something to do with the change of heart.

MRS. JOHN D. LITTLE,

Formerly Mrs. Ilah D. Jordan.

At any rate Mrs. Jordan was soon so completely immersed in this new romance that poor Corea went under an eclipse, and eventually the engagement was broken off, although to the finish Mrs. Jordan insisted that he had acted as a man of honor and there was nothing in his private or public life, in his ancestry and his standing at home and abroad that disqualified him as a suitor for any honorable woman.

She married Capt. Little, much to the delight of Georgia, and Corea, disconsolate, saw her no more.

But the minister did not give up his place in Washington, instead he became a still more prominent figure socially. John Hay and President Roosevelt seemed to make special efforts to show the minister that they believed nothing of the many discrediting things that had been said against him.

At every public function, at every dance, at all gatherings of the diplomats, there was Corea, irreproachable as to attire, perfect in manners, graceful, polite, yet dignified and scornfully indifferent to whispered remarks about the rupture of his relations with Mrs. Jordan. His bearing was that of a man who felt that the incident reflected no discredit on him, and who was determined to maintain his place.

Then Miss Fleming entered society this winter, on Dec. 7, to be exact. She was a debutante, one of the most beautiful of the season. She also had a romance. It was said that while a school girl, years before a girl is supposed to give herself up to contemplation of the sentimental side of life, she had become engaged to wed an army officer.

Perhaps it was true, perhaps not, but if the former, certainly the sentiment did not long survive after Miss Fleming met the swarthy diplomat from Washington. All that had been in both their hearts was instantly swallowed up in an attachment that brooked no oppocition.

As far as can be learned, none has been urged. The popularity of Corea at the state department and the White House is taken to mean that he was the victim of an injustice. Miss Fleming ignores all that has been said against him, and married him in the capital, among those who saw him turned down in the Jordan episode.

It is not believed that Corea will remain in Washington much longer. It is said that the president of the Nicaraguan republic, who is his warm personal friend, has in contemplation for him a European post, where he is expected to take charge of diplomatic work of first importance.

Corea and his bride will perhaps welcome this change, for it will take them far away from an enmity and unkindness that has followed Corea from some quarters ever since the ending of his former engagement.

Nicaraguan Minister to United States.

"SAUCE FOR THE GANDER"

Hats-off-in-the-theater Rule Gives Every Woman Her Inning.

Score one for the women.

Under the present management of the Astor theater in New York every woman who holds a seat coupon is under contract to remove her hat if she is requested to do so. The agreement is one of the terms on which the ticket is sold. The man who conceived this idea is doubtless congratulating himself upon the fact that he has solved the problem presented when a woman occasionally declines to lower her top hamper. But in achieving his victory he has come into collision with two other problems.

A woman inquires with bland suavity whether the management, having forced the removal of the hats, has provided any place to put them. There are the veil and the hatpins as well as the hats. So long as their removal was a voluntary act of courtesy the women were content to carry them on their laps or fasten them on the backs of the seats before them. But under compulsion—that is a different matter.

The woman also asks with sweetness but deep feeling whether the management has imposed a contract on the male holders of seat coupons preventing them from forcing women to arise between every two acts and crowding by them that they may assuage their alcoholic thirst. She suggests that the bibulous ones be compelled to purchase end seats at a slightly increased price or refrain from impsing discomfort upon those about them.

Plainly, what is the sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

TURN OUT ANTIQUE OAK.

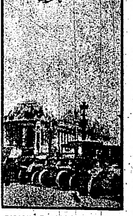
Modern Cabinet Makers Able to Satisfy the Demand Easily.

"You will have to go a long way," said an art collection the other day, "before you find a body of men more clever than those cabinet makers who produce goods to satisfy the desire of the public for furniture made of old and fancy woods. They can transform white wood into all kinds of exotic woods by means of chemicals, and a chemist would be surprised if he were to have the run of one of those factories for a day.

"The manufacture of antique oak is one of the easiest of their processes. The boards, moldings panels or whatever pieces are required are made of oak which has just had time to dry sufficiently to prevent excessive warping.

"They are then placed in a dark room on the floor of which and quite close to the furniture to be 'aged' are placed several bowls, plates and so forth of liquid ammonia. The room is then hermetically closed up and the wood is left for a month or so, according to the age which is required. The coloration will extend to a depth of nearly a quarter of an inch if the room is kept closed for a few months.

"That is why there is so much old oak furniture about. Of course, a little reflection would show that it could not be genuine—the forests of the middle ages would not have furnished one-half of it—but people do not always reflect."—Baltimore Sun.



DIRIGIBLE BALLOON "PATNI"

In Flight as Viewed From the Ground.

A SINGER'S LUNGS.

The Record of Notes Without Taking Breath.

The singer at the end of the practice aria panted heavily. "I sang 196 notes that time," she said, "without once taking breath."

"Indeed! That must be a record."

"No. Pounds sang 316 notes by Courtice respiration in 1898. The record previous to that was held by Farinelli, with 300 notes. Norman Salmond has sung 287 notes in this way." The average man could hardly sing 50 notes without breathing; to the singer 200 would be nothing.

Quite Agreeable.

"Major," said Deacon Goodley, who had come to remonstrate with Major Kaintuck on the morning after, "your friends are becoming alarmed about you. Now, I think it's about time you had your eyes opened——" "Capital idea, suh!" exclaimed the major, "I was just about to ordah one. Glad to have you join me, suh."

MUST NOT MIX BIBLICAL THEMES WITH IMMORALITY

Dramatists Are Given Lesson by Enforced Withdrawal of "Salome."

"Salome's" experience in New York ought to teach dramatists and composers the lesson that to be welcome a Biblical play must not outrage moral laws.

The product of Richard Strauss, the greatest musical genius of his day, a composer so far ahead of his contemporaries as was Wagner, it might have been expected that no fault of Oscar Wilde's lines and plot would be strong enough to overcome public interest in the music.

The production was one of the finest credited to the Conried regime. It represented many weeks of painstaking preparation. In the title role Olive Frenstad scored a remarkable dramatic and vocal success, and gave an impersonation that caused not only her audience to marvel, but also won her the enthusiastic praise of all the rival sopranos of the company.

Never was a more auspicious opening, yet the curatin had hardly fallen on the first performance before action was under way to make sure that it was the last performance.

The Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate company, composed of men of wealth, who own the big temple of music and occupy the boxes in the brilliant horse shoe, are not notably squeamish, but the sight of Salome licentiously fondling the severed head of John the Baptist, was a little too much for them, and at once they directed a letter of protest to Director Conried, insisting that as "Salome" was not a proper opera for the Metropolitan, they wished it withdrawn.

Mr. Conried and directors of the opera house protested. "Salome," they argued, was a work of art, and it would be unjust to the composer, the public of New York and to the management of the house that spent so liberally on the production to have it stopped. But the owners of the house continued obdurate, and Mr. Conried was compelled to yield a reluctant consent.

SALOME REQUESTING FROM HEROD THE HEAD OF JOHN THE BAPTIST—"Salome."

THE YOUTHFUL DAVID SINGING TO THE KING—"The Shepherd King."

Yet is is a mistake to say that it is refused because it brings Biblical characters into action.

A host of plays of this character have preceded it and, far from exciting adverse criticism, most of them have been big successes, artistically and financially.

Within the last five or six years popular preference has caused a whole flood of plays of a religious nature.

Nobody got angry over Wilson Barrett's "Sign of the Cross;" in fact, Christian people all over the United States, the kind who are rarely seen within a theater, flocked to the production, and enjoyed the story of the struggles of the early Christians in Rome when the power of a Nero held over them the rod of persecution.

"Quo Vadis," with its fair Christian bound to the horns of a bull and sent into the arena, from which she is rescued by a giant slave, who breaks the neck of the bull by sheer strength, also made a big appeal no less by the humanity of its emotion than for the realism of the picture of what early adherents of the faith had to endure.

Nobody thought to take offense at these plays for the reason that they dealt reverently with religious subjects, they preached the triumph of virtue, the glory of martyrdom.

"Ben Hur" comes in a similar classification.

These are all good dramatic stories. They had in them the element of passion, of the attraction of the evel men of a lascivious age toward the beautiful Christians, but the main purpose was ever dominant, a sort of action sermon that virtue must triumph.

Nothing like this entered into "Salome." Vulgarity reeked from curtain to curtain. Not a single pure or decent love came into the plot.

Herodias, the horrible wife of Herod, hated John the Baptist. She had sought to instil that same sentiment in her daughter, Salome, but the latter, on seeing John, develops a passion for him. Not a genuine love, for that might have redeemed and saved the story, but a physical and sensual desire that gloated on the beauty of his person. Failing to win his love, she dances for Herod, a dance so sensual that after the private rehearsal, where fifteen hundred invited guests had a hearing of "Salome," it was thought cautious to tone it down considerably.

New York was shocked at the dance in its expurgated form; what it would have thought of the original is hard to say.

As a reward for dancing, Salome scends into the cistern where John is imprisoned. The bloody head is passed up the infamouse pervert and for full twenty minutes she fondles and kisses the lips that were denied to her in life.

No wonder this horrible spectacle chases spectators from the opera house and forced "Salome" into retirement.

Another "Salome," this year, was much more cheerfully handled, and hence excited no protest.

E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe, as a feature of their repertoire, have virtually the same story, Sudermann's "John the Baptist."

It has been seen in a number of the bigger cities, including New York, which rejected the opera, yet no one has seen fit to complain.

Sudermann makes the love of Salome for John a much more decorous affection. She is impressed with the grandeur of his character, and pleads for his love. John repulses her.

When, after the dance, she asks for his head, it is with the intention of showing him her power, and then having his life spared so that he may love her.

But John is made of sterner stuff than Salome, child of period of pleasure and lust, had dreamed a man could be. He coldly casts her aside and goes to his death. There is no bloody head to be seen on the stage, no degeneracy.

Perhaps no Biblical episode could be more extreme than the story of Magdalen. Yet, unsuited for stage representation as it seems, it has been turned into a number of plays, one of which "Mary of Magadala," as played by the leading American actress, Mrs. Fiske, was a beautiful and worthy effort.

THE CHRISTIAN MAID GOES TO HER DEATH IN THE ARENA
"Sign of the Cross."

BIRDS CROSS THE ATLANTIC

Some of Them Can Make the Trip in Less Than Nine Hours.

The presence of American birds in this country raises the interesting question, How do they cross the intervening 2,000 miles of ocean? Can we suppose a bird is capable of sustained flight for a sufficiently long period to accomplish this? On the supposition that the yellow shank can fly at the rate of 150 miles an hour it would accomplish the distance in fourteen hours. And then it must be remembered that this bird, being a wader, would be able to rest from time to time on the water.

As regards the rate of flight attained by birds in their migratory journeys some interesting computations are to be found in Katke's "Heligoland as an Ornithological Observatory." His figures are 125 miles an hour for the hooded crow, 208 miles an hour for the northern blue throat and 245 for the Virginia plover. At the last rate the Atlantic could be crossed in about eight and three-quarters hours. Some six other American birds, including the red-crested snipe and Eskimo curlew, are recorded from the Scilly islands.

Other American birds, including the yellow-billed cuckoo, have been recorded in Ireland. And in connection with this crossing of the Atlantic by American birds it is interesting to note an apparent attempt to cross in the opposite direction. In a British association report for 1887 we read:

"At Rathtin O'Birne (West Donegal) immense flocks of birds—starlings, thrushes and fieldfares—passed west from Dec. 18 to 23. The nearest land to the west of this rock island is America. This is not an isolated occurence. The westerly flight of land birds at stations off the west coast of Ireland has been noticed on other occasions."

It would be interesting to know if any of these enterprising migrants ever reached the other side.—London Globe.

Two of Them.

News Editor—In speaking of Congressman Bliffkin's elevation to the senate, should we say it leaves a vacancy or creates a vacancy?

Political Editor—Well, it does both.

News Editor—Both? You mean either.

Political Editor—No, both. I leaves a vacancy in the house and it creates one in the senate.

Joaquin Miller and Ingersoll.

Joaquin Miller tells this one:

"I was riding with Col. Ingersoll in Washington. We came to a street torn up, and Col. Ingersoll said:

"'I wonder if I shall ever get to a city that is made?'

"I glanced up toward the sky and replied:

"'I am afraid not, colonel.'"

Tobacco Grown in Canada.

"Sounds funny to hear of tobacco being grown in Canada, doesn't it?"

He—What an awful lot of clocks said W. J. Clancy of Toronto. "Not so much perhaps to Wisconsin people, who know that it is grown in this state, where the mercury frequently goes out of sight, but the average American thinks of the waving palms of the tropics as soon as tobacco culture is mentioned. It is a fact, however, that the weed is now grown with great success in Ontario and other provinces in the eastern part of the dominion. So great have been the returns in fact that many farmers are giving up wheat growing and are planting tobacco in their fields."

HURRY FUNERALS.

Instructions That Sometimes Surprise a City Undertaker.

"Life and death both are strenuous in New York," said an undertaker. "We get orders sometimes that shock us.

"Not long ago we had an order from a family who asked us to make a hurry-up job for the reason that they had all arranged to sail for Europe two days later and they didn't want to postpone the voyage.

"What would you think of a woman who asked to have her husband buried as quickly as possible on the ground that a few days before his death they had agreed to a separation and that she would like to put away the deceased before the newspapers heard of their marital troubles? That is exactly what happened.

"Then there was this case: An elderly aunt, who had been an invalid more than a year passed away. We were asked to arrange for the funeral on the day of her death, and when we demurred unless there was some important reason we were informed by a nephew that they were anxious to know what was in her will, as the matrimonial chances of a niece depended upon what she was to get.

"Only yesterday a man came into our office and said that his mother-in-law had just died and that he would like to send her body South as soon as possible because his wife wanted to attend some sort of function three days later.

"In the good old days in some parts of the country it used to be the custom for friends of the family in which a death occurred to sit up with the corpse. In a case given to us a few months ago we were asked to send a couple of genteel appearing employes to the house to keep the vigil. We did it, but I confess to you it seemed to me rather heartless."—New York Sun.

Gambler's Last Throw.

Driven to desperation by their heavy losses, gamblers have often sought by some coup either to repair their shattered fortunes or to bring down utter ruin upon themselves. One of the most curious instances of the kind comes from England of the eighteenth century. A notorious gambler had been losing steadily in a game for high stakes with Marquis Lorne. Exasperated by his continued ill fortune, he suddenly sprung up from the card table, seized a large and costly punch bowl, and, balancing it above his head, called out to his opponent:

"For once I'll have a bet where I have an equal chance of winning! Odd or even for 15,000 guineas!"

"Odd!" replied the peer, placidly, and the gambler hurled the magnificent bowl against the wall.

When they counted the pieces Lorne had won.

Profit and Loss.

It had been a hard day for Mike Finnegan, the "ragman." Many and varied had been his wanderings, but no one seemed inclined to dispose of rags. As he was making his way homeward at the close of this hot July day, through one of the tenement sections of the city, he heard a cry from above. Looking up he saw a woman at a sixth story window violently beckoning to him. Mike's heart was full of hope as he stumbled up the broken stairs.

At the top he was met by a woman holding a weeping child by the hand.

"Hey, mister," cried the mother to the perspiring Mike, "don't you take bad little boys away in your big bag?"

A Complex Science.

John Mitchell was talking to a reporter about the wide interest that the world now takes in socialism and the labor question.

"Socialism and what it stands for," he said, "has become a complex science, like astronomy.

"There was a labor meeting in session behind closed doors the other day, and a friend of mine tried to get into it.

"'What are you?' the doorkeeper asked sternly. 'Positionist, Communist, Socialist, Marxist, Solutionist, Sinclairist, or Collectionist?'

"'I—' faltered my bewildered friend—'why, I—am a machinist.'"

Essential.

"What do you consider most important to a person who wants to be quick at repartee?" asked the intellectually ambitious girl.

"Friends who are slow to anger," answered Miss Cayenne.

—For They Shall Inherit the Earth.

Fashionable Bishop (to equally fashionable layman)—How can people ask, does Christianity pay? Look at St. Smug's, for instance. Ten years ago that property cost only $50,000 and yesterday it sold for half a million.—Puck.

They Try, Though.

The inability of some people to put themselves in another's place may frequently be seen in a crowded street car.

Didn't Care for Expenses.

"I can give you a bed and bath for 15 cents," said the lodging house clerk.

"De price ain't no object," rejoined the husky hobo who had just found a $2 bill. "Jist gimme a bed widout de bath, an' I'll pay de diff'rence."

Delicate Compliment.

"We made a big hit in Salt Lake."

"How was that?"

"Our press agent got out some extra printing and billed us as singing 'The Chimes of Mormandy.'"

Speaking of Egotism.

"Miss Bright refused to marry me last night."

"Too bad, old man!"

"O, I don't care. I wouldn't want to marry a girl with such a lack of sense, anyway."

Pure Food Troubles.

"Did your discomfort result from eating too much preserved fruit?"

"No. I felt all right until I accidentally read the confessions on the labels."

WEAK, PALE, THIN

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restored Mrs. Robbins To Health and Also Cured Her Daughter of Anaemia.

Mrs. Jocie Robbins, of 1121 Clar St., Decatur, Ill., says: "I was weak, thin and troubled with headaches. My appetite failed so that I did not relish my food. I was unable to do my work because my limbs pained me so and my feet were swollen. I got numb and dizzy, my tongue seemed at times to be paralyzed so that I couldn't speak distinctly. My extremities, when in this numb state, felt as if some one was sticking needles into me all over their surface. Through my shoulders at times I had such pain that I couldn't sleep. Many times I awoke with a smothering sensation.

"When the physician's remedies failed to benefit me I began to look for something that would. My sister, Mrs. McDaniel, of Decatur, recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to me and I at once purchased some. I was greatly encouraged when I saw how they acted on my nervous condition and continued using them until cured. I am now able to attend to my duties and have not consulted a physician since.

"I also gave them to my daughter who had always been weak and who at this time seemed to lack vitality. Her cheeks were colorless and she was thin and spiritless. She had anaemia and we feared consumption, because every time she went out doors if it was at all cold or damp she would take cold and cough. But Dr. Williams' Pink Pills brought color back to her cheeks and strength to her body."

"That was a bad break," said an automobilist, apropos of an embarrassing error. "It reminds me of the automobile dinner W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., gave last year.

"It was a large dinner of 200 covers or more, and some of the invitations were to motorists that Mr. Vanderbilt only knew slightly. A declination that he received ran like this:

"'Mr. T. Willie Fluble died last March, or he would no doubt have taken great pleasure in accepting Mr. Vanderbilt's kind invitation for dinner Thursday.'"

CHILDREN TORTURED.

Girl Had Running Sores from Eczema—Boy Tortured by Poison Oak—Both Cured by Cuticura.

"Last year, after having my little girl treated by a very prominent physician for an obstinate case of eczema, I resorted to the Cuticura Remedies, and was so well pleased with the almost instantaneous relief afforded that we discarded the physician's prescription and relied entirely on the Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills. When we commenced with the Cuticura Remedies her feet and limbs were covered with running sores. In about six weeks we had her completely well, and there has been no recurrence of the trouble.

"In July of this year a little boy in our family poisoned his hands and arms with poison oak, and in twenty-four hours his hands and arms were a mass of torturing sores. We used only the Cuticura Remedies, washing his hands and arms with the Cuticura Soap, and anointing them with the Cuticura Ointment, and then gave him the Cuticura Resolvent. In about three weeks his hands and arms healed up. So we have lots of cause for feeling grateful for the Cuticura Remedies. We find that the Cuticura Remedies are a valuable household standby, living as we do twelve miles from a doctor. Mrs. Lizzie Vincent Thomas, Fairmont, Walden's Ridge, Tenn., Oct. 13, 1905."

Worse and Worse.

Father (sighing)—These ten years have I been waiting in the hope that my wife would give up playing the piano.

Friend—Well, and now——?

Father—Now my three daughters play.

PREPARE THIS YOURSELF.

Tells How to Make the Best Blood Tonic at Home.

For those who have any form of blood disorders; who want new, rich blood and plenty of it, try this:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. Any good pharmacy can supply the ingredients at small cost.

This is the prescription which, when made up, is called "The Vegetable Treatment," by others, the "Cyclone Blood Purifier." It acts gently and certainly does wonders for some people who are sickly, weak and out of sorts, and is known to relieve serious, long-standing cases of rheumatism and chronic backache quickly.

Make some up and try it.

A Man of Experience.

The judge of the supreme court polished his glasses slowly and with the dignity becoming a member of so august a tribunal.

Saturday, March 9, 1907.

It cost over ten dollars a day to run the village the past year.

Look over the financial statement of the village which is published in this issue.

Some of our business men are talking of forming a Commercial Club. They should do more than talk—and do it now.

Congressman McCleary, the stand-patter, who was defeated for congress last fall, has been appointed second assistant postmaster general.

It is claimed that the new free alcohol bill is the right kind and alcohol for industrial purposes should soon be cheaper than gasoline.

Chicago thieves recently stole a U. S. mail wagon and got away with about five thousand dollars. Chicago thieves will tackle anything movable.

Congress has adjourned and left twenty millions in the treasury. It is claimed, however, that they did not know it was there or it would have been different.

It is very important that we have honest and enterprising officials in St. Hilaire the coming year. See that you do your duty by voting for the right kind of men.

The legislature has done nothing the past week towards passing the two-cent fare bill. Both the senate and house have passed a bill but they have not got together yet to make it a law.

The ship subsidy steal was defeated in the senate by filibustering tactics after it had passed the house. Our congressman, Halvor Steenerson stood by his people and voted against the steal.

The state senators will not legislate themselves out of office, so we will not have a reapportionment of the state at this session. Justice does not always win when personal interests are at stake.

"Go away from home to hear the news" is an old proverb well illustrated when the Thief River Falls News this week tells its readers that St. Hilaire is to vote on the license question next Tuesday.

The March apportionment of the state school fund is being apportioned. $605,201 will be distributed at the rate of $1.60 for each pupil. Red Lake county draws for 3,837 pupils and gets $6,139.20.

The state highway commission have allotted $64,000 provided by the legislature for state roads and Red Lake county draws $1,000. The largest amount awarded to any county was $1600, the smallest $300.

Farm Stock & Home: The man who doesn't want to be kept very busy, and who objects to a job in which the character of the work is very uncertain, will do well to keep out of Minnesota's state prison, as things look in the legislature at this writing. In addition to the many kinds of work done there now, it is proposed to add the manufacture of farm implements and machinery, to send prisoners out to crush stone and work on highways, and other sorts of work that may occur to some legislator to suggest. The intention evidently is that the traditional satanic influence upon "idle hands" shall be reduced to the minimum in the "gentlemen's club" at Stillwater.

All It Needed.

"I made this 'potato' salad for you myself," smiled she. "Isn't it delicious?"

"It would be," assented her husband, "if you had put a little more oil and vinegar and pepper and mustard seed and horseradish in the dressing and introduced a sliced egg or two and a few white onions and left half of the potatoes out."

Promises to the Dying.

A clergyman, discussing unhappy love affairs, said:

"Many a love tragedy is caused by a husband's promise to a dying wife that he will not marry again. He thinks when he makes this promise that it will be easy to keep. Whether it is easy or hard to keep, it is a promise rarely if ever broken. Time and time again widowers have sought me out for advice on this subject. They are in love, but they promised their dead wives not to marry again. Shall they break or keep this promise? I can only advise them to do as their conscience dictates. At the same time I think it is selfish of dying wives to extract such promises from their broken hearted husbands. Such promises, by the way, are rarely extracted by dying husbands from broken-hearted wives. But, then, when the dead husband's will is read it is usually found that if the widow marries again the money is all taken from her. So it comes to the same thing in the end, doesn't it?"—New York Press.

Famous Collection of Antlers.

Of the famous collections of antlers formed in the seventeenth century only two or three have escaped the general fate of conflagrations, sieges and pillage. One of these is in Moritzburg, the king of Saxony's historical hunting castle, near Dresden, while in the celebrated gun gallery in Dresden itself are to be seen in an unrivaled show the wonderfully inlaid arms used by the elector. The great banqueting hall of the castle of Moritzburg is one of the sights with which no doubt many a traveled reader has been charmed. It is a chamber of noble proportions, sixty-six feet long by thirty-four wide and thirty-eight feet high. On its otherwise unadorned white walls hang seventy-one pairs of magnificent antlers, which one may describe as the most famous of their kind in the world. Not a single one carries less than twenty-four tines or is less than 200 years old, while some are probably double that age.

A Celebrated Clock.

The art of the clockmaker has achieved many remarkable triumphs during many centuries. Sometimes it is a clock wonderful for the complexity of its movements and its busy population of automatons that attracts our admiration, like that in the Cathedral of Strassburg. At other times the immense size of the machinery and the dials excites astonishment. This is the case with the celebrated clock in the tower of the Church of St. Rombaut at Mechlin. A writer in La Nature thinks this clock possesses the largest dials that exist in the world. There are four of them, one on each side of the great square tower, and their extreme diameter is nearly thirty-seven and one-half feet. The figures showing the hours are nearly six and one-half feet high, and the hands have a length of nearly twelve feet.

No Rhyme For Tipperary.

A poet once jumped to the conclusion that there was no rhyme to Tipperary and said so, whereupon an indignant Irishman, who chanced also to be a bit of a versifier, pounced upon him and poked fun at him in a lengthy poem, every other line of which rhymed or was supposed to rhyme with the place in question. Thus:

A bard there was in sad quandary
To find a rhyme for Tipperary.
Long labored he through January,
Yet found no rhyme for Tipperary;
Toiled every day in February,
But toiled in vain for Tipperary;
Searched Hebrew text and commentary,
But searched in vain for Tipperary.

And so on through many scores of stanzas, ending up with:

He paced about his aviary,
Burnt in despair his dictionary,
Blew up sky high his secretary,
And then in wrath and anger sware he
There was no rhyme for Tipperary.

Glasses and the Eyes.

Every one knows that in using a field glass it is necessary to adjust it to a proper focus. Suppose that you put one of the tubes at your focus and the other tube at a focus that suited some one else and then you looked through both tubes. You would have a more or less blurred vision, and if you kept on looking the chances are that you would feel giddy and get a headache. Now, the two eyes are supposed to have an equal natural focus, and when by any chance that focus is unequal a headache results. The remedy is a pair of glasses or a single glass to make the eyes equal in power.

The Danes.

The Danes, or Northmen, first became prominent in European history in 783, when they began to ravage the north coast of France and southern shores of Great Britain. The daring of these hardy seamen was remarkable, for in their small ships they even penetrated the Mediterranean and became terrors to the seaboard population of Italy, Sicily and Greece. The first king of Denmark is said to have been Skiold, 60 B. C.

Village Politics.

A caucus of the voters of the village has been called to meet at the village hall this evening at eight o'clock for the purpose of nominating a ticket for the election which takes place next Tuesday, March 12th.

There seems to be little or no excitement and very little talk about candidates for the various village offices to be filled next Tuesday. The caucus tonight will nominate a ticket, after which the opposition, if there is going to be any, will develop.

No particular amount of work is being done by any candidate and it does not look at present as if we would have much of a contest, but you cannot tell what may develop.

A. S. Wilson for village president seems to have things all his way and there is no other candidate for that position at present.

For councilmen, E. M. Hoff, Daniel Patterson, Jens Nelson, M. L. Hanson, C. H. Martz and J. C. Dahl are mentioned and it is likely that three of these gentlemen will be chosen.

For recorder the fight will be between the present recorder, K. O. Gigstad, and Carl Johnson.

For treasurer, the present treasurer Leonard Holmes will probably have B. E. Burkee to contend with.

The assessor will be elected this year and O. H. Peters and A. F. Ittner will probably contest.

So far we have been unable to find any candidates for either constable or justice.

Ole Gunderson and family left last Monday for Crookston, where they will make their home. Mr. Gunderson has accepted a position with the lumber company.

Miss Ananda Gigstad, of Berwick, N. D., is here this week visiting with her uncle, K. O. Gigstad. Miss Gigstad has recently proved up on a North Dakota claim.

J. G. Prior left last Wednesday for Livingstone, Montana, where he will look over the country with a view to locating. Mrs. Prior and the children will remain here for awhile.

It is announced that the Markham hotel will be kept open for lodgers, but that for the present no meals will be served. It is to be hoped that the right party can be found who will run the hotel in a first class manner.

Judge Watts announces that he will hold a special term of the district court at the county seat on July 9th, for the purpose of issuing final citizen papers. Parties who wish to become citizens must give 90 days' notice, so all who wish to appear at that time must give notice before April 9th.

Married at Tacoma.

E. M. Hoff received a wire on Tuesday evening announcing the marriage of his eldest daughter, Selina, to Mr. Oscar A. Storaasli, of Tacoma. The ceremony was performed on last Tuesday evening at Tacoma, Washington, at the residence of the bride's uncle, John E. Burkee. The bride has been a resident of St. Hilaire since early childhood and is known and admired by everyone. She has hosts of warm friends who will rejoice in her marriage and wish all kinds of good luck and happiness.

The groom is not known here but we learn is a well known and respected resident of Tacoma. We are not informed as to the future intentions of the happy couple.

The Spectator wishes to extend congratulations.

Fined for Smoking.

Fergus Falls Journal: One of the students of the Alexandria high school was arrested this week and fined $5 and costs for smoking tobacco. His fine and costs amounted to $8.25 which his parents paid to avoid a week's imprisonment. The law on the subject is very strict and might be read with profit in other places besides Alexandria. It is as follows:

"Every person under 18 years of age and every minor pupil in any school, college or university, who shall use cigarettes, cigars or tobacco in any public place or place of business, shall be guilty of misdemeanor and subject to a fine not to exceed $10 or five days in jail, and any person who furnishes cigarettes, cigars or tobacco in any form to minors, or allows them to frequent premises owned, held or managed by him for the sale of tobacco in any form, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine not exceeding $50 or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days for each and every offense."

Closed Season for Fish.

March and April are the days of safety for Minnesota fish, as during this period, which is the breeding season, no hook and line fishing is permitted. Fish may be speared, but as the ice breaks and moves off they run little danger of being served at the family table. In view of the fact that the closed season is at hand, Charles Avery executive agent of the state game and fish commission, has issued the following notice:

"The closed season for all varieties of trout, except lake trout, is from Sept. 1 to April 15 following. All varieties of bass are protected between March 1 and May 29.

"Pike, muskallonge, crappie, perch, sunfish, sturgeon, and any other variety of fish except pickerel, suckers, redhorse, carp and bullheads must not be taken between March 1 and May 1.

"The law permits spearing of pickerel and rough fish at all times and a fish house license is good until April 1, provided that no fish may be taken with hook and line in a fish house after March 1, and the fish taken in such house in any manner must not be sold, but are for domestic use only.

"All varieties of fish, except trout and bass, may be sold during the open season, but the sale of all Minnesota game fish is prohibited during March and April. Game wardens are instructed to enforce the law as to the closed season strictly and to arrest and prosecute every person found violating its provisions.

"There are very important reasons for strict enforcement of the closed season and the game and fish commission does not prosecute people for the purpose of persecution, as some appear to believe.

"The spring is the spawning season for fish, and if our 10,000 Minnesota lakes and hundreds of streams which formerly teemed with millions of fish are to be restored to their former condition, the process of reproduction must not be interfered with.

"The state is doing much to propogate and distribute the best varieties of game fish, but nature must of necessity do the greater part of the work.

"The fish in the lakes and streams constitute one of the most important and valuable food products for the people and have a great economic value in addition to their value to the angler and sportsman. With national law enforcement that heritage will be protected for the next generation, to whom the conscientious game protector must look for appreciation of his work."

Council Proceedings.

Regular meeting of the village council of St. Hilaire held at the village hall March 4, 1907, at 8 o'clock p. m.

Meeting called to order by the Clerk.

Hone Stones of Belgium.

The district of Bihain, Belgium, has the unique distinction of possessing the hone quarries of crystalline slate or carticula. These mines or quarries have been worked for centuries, and at the present time are exporting the product to all countries of the world. This crystalline slate is very rich in garnet. The strength and thickness of a stone generally determines its value. Do you know that golden grain belt beer is not only the purest of all beverages but also the most beneficial to body and mind? Its daily use will insure perfect health. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

The Wrong Jam.

Haskell—What's Bobby crying for? Mrs. Haskell—Oh, the poor boy caught his finger in the pantry door. Haskell—H'm! He evidently didn't get the jam he was looking for that time.—Pick-Me-Up.

Flattery is telling a man to his face that which was intended only for his tombstone.—Dallas News.

ANNUAL VILLAGE ELECTION NOTICE

The citizens of the Village of St. Hilaire, in the county of Red Lake and state of Minnesota, who are qualified to vote at General Elections, are hereby notified that the annual election for said village will be held at the village hall in said village, on Tuesday, the 12th day of March, A. D. 1907, between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and four o'clock in the afternoon of the same day for the following purposes, viz:

To elect one President, three Trustees, one Treasurer, one Clerk, and one Assessor, for the term of one year; also one Justice of the Peace and one Constable for the term of two years, and to do any other business proper to be done at said election when convened.

Given under my hand, this 1st day of March, A. D. 1907.

K. O. GIGSTAD,
Clerk.

School Notes

Notice to Parents.

A beginner's class will be started on Monday, March 18. All parents having children six years of age, or nearly so, will please start them to school on that date. It is highly desirable for the beginners and for the teacher as well to have all start together.

Our reason for starting them thus early is to get them well into the work before school closes and also that they may attend school long enough to draw apportionment for the district.

Casper E. Bergh,
Principal.

"School Notes" go to print by Thursday noon.

"The Monkey That Would Not Kill" is going the round of the rooms. "Tricky" seems to be a first class entertainer.

The 4th Grade has finished reading this week "The King of the Golden River" which they enjoyed very much.

The 7th Grade pupils will entertain the other members of the Grammar room with selections of their own choosing, during the reading period Thursday and Friday.

Teacher, in spelling class, "Define 'whey'" Pupil, "It is what we say to the cows."

Some good sectional maps of the United States drawn by 3rd Grade pupils may be seen on the walls of the 2nd Intermediate room.

There's music in the air, but there is also music on the blackboard. If you doubt it, step into the Grammar room. Music looks funny on the blackboard, doesn't it? Notes don't look that way when you hear them.

Current Literature, Little Chronicle (2 copies), Our Times (2 copies), and Youth's Companion have been provided for the use of the three upper rooms. They are furnished jointly by the teachers of those rooms. What becomes history today helps to shape the future of to-morrow. It is the world of today—the throbbing, working, thinking, groaning, and enjoying world—that we must keep tab on.

The High School room is getting ready to organize itself into a law-making body modeled after our national house of representatives. Bills will be introduced and considered in committee and championed on the floor by solons not as deep, probably, in law-making lore as the venerable ones at ——, D. C., but deeper, likely in earnestness and enthusiasm. Who is to say but that this mimic law-making will be to some a stepping-stone to the real thing? The White House seemed vastly farther from Lincoln when he lay on the floor working problems on the back of a coal shovel by the light of the open fire place.

George Washington.

George Washington was born in Virginia.

When George Washington was a very little boy the log cabin burnt down. His father moved to another place in Virginia.

They had negro slaves to do the work.

He said "Thank you, father, I think I can make good use of it." And he chopped down the cherry tree. At dinner time his father came home and he said to George, "Who has chopped down my cherry tree?"

George said, "Father, I cannot tell a lie. I did it with my little hatchet."

When George was eleven years old his father died.

When George went to school his friend's name was Henry Lee. They wrote letters to each other. This is the one Henry Lee wrote to George. "Papa has got me two books. It is a picture in it of a elephant, a little boy on his back, and a picture of a tiger and leopards. Will you come and see me some day? You may go with me and uncle."

This is the one George wrote to Henry Lee. "Mamma says if I am good I may go. I can read two or three pages and I know all the words."

George's mother had many horses. One of them she loved very much. No one could ride him.

One morning George said, "I am going to ride him." He took his two half-brothers out to hold the bridle. George got upon the horse's back. "Let go the bridle, boys!" So they let go of it, and George started across the meadow. The horse kicked and jumped and backed. The horse jumped up again and broke a blood vessel.

Just then the dinner bell rang. George's mother said, "I wonder how the horses are getting along." The boys looked at each other. George said "I killed the reddish brown horse." His mother grew angry. Soon she said, "I am glad you told the truth, George."

George Washington was our first president.

George Washington is called "The Father of His Country."

Pearl Dainard,
1st Grade.

MORTALITY REPORT

CONSUMPTION AND PNEUMONIA HEAD DEATH LIST.

Statistics Show That the Greatest Number of Deaths From Lung Trouble Occur in Winter.

The Bureau of Census has published a report presenting mortality statistics for the United States for the five calendar years 1900 to 1904.

As shown in the table, tuberculosis of the lungs and pneumonia were by far the leading causes of death. The greatest number of deaths from lung trouble occur during the winter months. Colds are so prolific of lung trouble that they should not be neglected. Persons with weak lungs should be especially careful.

A noted authority on lung trouble advises that as soon as a cold is contracted the following simple treatment should be given. The ingredients can be purchased from any prescription druggist at small cost and easily prepared in your own home. It is said to be so effective that it will break up a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough that is curable.

Take one-half ounce Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), two ounces of Glycerine and eight ounces of good Whisky. Shake well and take in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

Be sure that the Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) is in the original half-ounce vials, which are put up expressly for druggists to dispense. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper, with the name, —Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure)—guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30, 1906, prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, O.—plainly printed thereon. There are many rank imitations of Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) which are put out under various names, such as Concentrated Oil of Pine, Pine Balsam, etc. Never accept these as a substitute for the Pure Virgin Oil of Pine, as they will invariably produce nausea and never effect the desired result.

To Memory Dear.

The Governess—Did you visit the Louvre while you were in Paris, ma'am?

Mrs. Newcoyne—I forget; did we, John?

Mr. Newcoyn—Why, I don't see how you can possibly forget that place, Jane. That's where you had your pocket picked.—Puck.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Reported by Lothrop & Johnson, patent lawyers, 911 Pioneer Press building, St. Paul, Minn.: Peter Hallen, Brookings, S. D., combined coat and hat rack; Andrew Hawkinson, St. Paul, Minn., pulling box for conduits; Ira C. Jones, Minneapolis, Minn., brick drier; Samuel C. Kagarice, Sioux Falls, S. D., invalid bed; John S. Richardson, Nowesta, N. D., bundle loader; Edwin M. Rosenquist, St. Paul, Minn., wearing apparel; Edgar A. Wolf, Nerstrand, Minn., signal.

In All Hotels.

Miss Simpleton—I understand that in some hotels one often sees palms about the dining rooms. What kind of a palm is the most prominent?

Mr. Dinewell—The waiter's.

The Wings of Time.

Methuselah was walking in his garden.

"My goodness," he exclaimed, suddenly, "there's another flower on that century plant! Why, it seems but yesterday since I plucked a blossom from it."

He walked slowly toward an oak tree two hundred years old which he had tenderly raised from an acorn.

"Ah, me," he mused, "how time flies!"

His Average.

"Winter has many drawbacks," said Henry J. Woodhouse, the noted meteorologist in Washington, "and not least of these is the winter fog that drops down soot upon men's faces. Some day we shall dissipate this fog with electricity, but the day is distant."

Mr. Woodhouse smiled.

"In a restaurant, on a recent foggy, sooty day, I couldn't resist leaning over and whispering to a well dressed man at the next table:

"'Excuse me, sir, but there's a speck of soot on your nose.'

"The man smiled agreeably.

"'No,' he said. 'No, that isn't soot. It is a peculiar kind of mole and you are the seventh man since breakfast to ask me to wash it off. My average for foggy days is ten.'"

COFFEE THRESHED HER.

15 Long Years.

"For over fifteen years," writes a patient, hopeful little Ills. woman, "while a coffee drinker, I suffered from Spinal-Irritation and Nervous trouble. I was treated by good physicians, but did not get much relief.

"I never suspected that coffee might be aggravating my condition. I was downhearted and discouraged, but prayed daily that I might find something to help me.

"Several years ago while at a friend's house, I drank a cup of Postum and thought I had never tasted anything more delicious.

"From that time on I used Postum instead of coffee, and soon began to improve in health, so that now I can walk half a dozen blocks or more with ease, and do many other things that I never thought I would be able to do again in this world.

"My appetite is good, I sleep well, and find life worth living, indeed. A lady of my acquaintance said she did not like Postum, it was so weak and tasteless.

"I explained to her the difference when it is made right—boiled according to directions. She was glad to know this because coffee did not agree with her. Now her folks say they expect to use Postum the rest of their lives." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

PROMINENT IN THE PUBLIC EYE

JOHN F. STEVENS OF ST. PAUL,
Chief engineer of the isthmian canal, whose resignation is announced at Washington in a statement issued from the White House.

War Eagles in Demand.

War eagles in unusual numbers have appeared in the neighborhood of Kaw City, says the Guthrie Capital. The plumes and feathers of these eagles are highly prized by the Osage and other reservation Indians. Shorty Boyd of Kaw City killed two eagles last week and sold them to an Osage for $18.

New Version of an Old Tale.

In a recent number of a German magazine a writer offers a variant of the tale lately published in a book of children's true sayings which relates how two small girls tried to sit on one stool and one of them remarked: "If one of us was to get off this stool there would be more room for me." The Teutonic version tells how a German sat by the bedside of his dying wife and murmured piously: "If it pleases the good God to take one us I shall go to Berlin."

Watches No Longer Affected by Cold.

"When a man's watch goes wrong in winter he is apt to think it is because the cold has affected it," said a jeweler. "It used to be so, because the cold contracted the metal of the delicate balance wheel. But now this wheel is made partly of brass and partly of steel, like the compensation pendulum in a clock. These metals have opposite expansibilities and the result is that the balance wheel is always of the same size and runs with the same speed in all kinds of weather and the cold does not affect it."

Curative Value of Light.

The value of light as an agent in curing diseases is becoming increasingly recognized. The latest development of the idea is the assertion of a medical man that the clothes worn by consumptives should be of a color which will allow the light to penetrate to the body. White materials, it is found, are the best for this purpose, and, consumptives are consequently advised to clothe themselves in snowy raiment, either of linen, velvet, cotton or cloth.

Where He Balked.

"It was funny how they threw eggs and other deleterious matter at those Brooklyn comedians who were attempting to do an Irish stunt on the stage," said the fellow who likes to spring a fresh one now and then. "You know the Irish societies objected and——"

"Yes, it was very funny," said the man who generally submits patiently, "but if you are going to make some crack about its being another blow at playing the races I am going to leave you."

WHAT WESTERN CANADA DOES.

Satisfactory Yields of Wheat and Good Prices.

Dundurn, Sask., Sept. 30, 1906.
Mr. W. H. Rogers, Canadian Government Agent,
Indianapolis, Ind.
My Dear Sir:

When you were at our place in July I promised to write you what my north quarter made per acre. You will remember it was all sown to wheat. Well, I finished threshing yesterday and received from it an average of 43¼ bushels per acre—testing 64½ pounds per stroked bushel. The wheat is the best sample I have ever raised—so uniform and even in size. You may know it was a good sample when I tell you that I have already sold 2,000 bushels of it for seed to my neighbors. This year has been my best effort in farming during my life. My wheat totaled 9,280 bushels and my oats nearly 5,000.

If you remember I pointed out to you a half section lying just west of our house and joining my upper quarter on the south, which I said I should have in order to make one of the best farms in western Canada. I am very glad to be able to tell you that I now own that half section. My ambition now is to be able to market 20,000 bushels of wheat next year. If some of those good, honest Hoosiers could have been with me during the last two weeks and could have seen the golden grain rushing down the spout into my wagon and then could have seen it in great piles in my granaries, I feel sure they would have been forced to acknowledge there is no better farming country in the world than this. I may just say that I have done all my farming with eight head of horses and one hired man except during harvest and threshing. This year I proved to my neighbor that the Hoosiers, when once "woke up," can raise grain equal to the best Minnesota farmers. His best yield was 42½ bushels per acre, so you see "old Indiana" is holding the ribbon this year.

Yours very truly,
N. E. BAUMHUK.

Social Boredom.

Mrs. Hetty Green, in an interview in New York condemned the excesses of modern society.

"And with all these excesses," she said, "with all these swimming parties, and monkey dinners, and horse teas, what is the result?

"A fashionable hostess greeted a young man at a dance.

"'So glad to see you,' she said. 'But where is your brother? Why didn't he come, too?'

"'He couldn't the young man explained. 'Only one of us could come. So we tossed up for it.'

"'Tossed up! How delightful' cried the hostess. 'And you won!'

"The young man yawned and answered absently:

"'No; I lost.'"

Baseball in Brazil.

Lloyd Griscom, the new ambassador to Italy, described at a dinner in Washington a diplomatic game of baseball in Brazil.

"An Englishman," he said, in the course of this description, "caught for his side, though the poor fellow was strange to the catcher's box.

"The Englishman grew confused in the second inning, missed a ball, and it struck him on the nose, keeling him over.

"'What was it?' he said, feebly, as he came to.

"'A foul—only a foul,' said the umpire.

"'Man alive,' said the Englishman, 'I thought it was a mule.'"

Consonance.

"We asked for bread," cried the poor, "and you hand us a stone!"

It was an old song, but now, curiously enough, the rich acknowledged the justness of the implied rebuke.

"Ah, no doubt a lemon would be more in consonance with the suirit of the age," quoth they.

And indeed it was not to be gainsaid that the fashions in a manner affected these things.

CCCC.

"Here's Mrs. Cadleigh's name in the society column. It says 'Mrs. Charles C. C. Cadleigh will spend the winter ——.'"

"For goodness' sake! where did she get the two middle letters?"

"Oh! haven't you heard? She just stuck them in so that her monogram would represent the 'Four Hundred.'"

Lord Rosebery's Definition of Memory.

Somebody of a psychological turn of mind asked Lord Rosebery, "What is memory?"

"Memory," Rosebery replied promptly, but somewhat pensively, "memory is the feeling that steals over us when we listen to our friends' original stories."

Result of Target Practice.

Captain—Do you see that captain on the bridge five miles away?

Tar—Aye, aye, sir.

Captain—Let him have one of those 12-inch shells in the eye.

Tar—Which eye, sir!

So He Prefers to Leave It Pure.

Schoolmaster (at end of object lesson)—Now can any of you tell me what is water?

Small and Grubby Urchin—Please, teacher, water's what turns black when you puts your 'ands in it!

Willie—What does mommer mean by Bernard Shaw and Henry James, pop?

His Father—Hush, my son! You're not old enough to understand such things.

Women Make Successful Farmers

By Mary Logan Tucker

Women on Farms as Capable of Directing as of Doing the Drudgery—Men Employes Foolishly Scorn Aid of Agricultural Literature—Women Should Begin in Small Way—Aim at Quality Rather Than Quantity—Women Who Have Succeeded by Specializing—The Knack of Displaying One's Wares.

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

(The clever daughter of Gen. and Mrs. John A. Logan and wife of Lieut. Col. William Tucker, U. S. A., Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker, is known throughout the country. She is prominent in Washington society. Owing to the delicate health of her younger son Mrs. Tucker has established herself on a beautiful farm in Maryland a few miles from the national capital. There her house parties are famous and her crops are entirely creditable to her as a farmer of ability.)

So rapid has been the advance of women into all branches of trade and every opening for a livelihood that women to-day compelled to seek an avenue of self-support find great difficulty in gaining an opportunity. In these occupations so long considered advantageous competition has reduced the salaries until now they are below a "living" footing. This is a day of specialists. In every branch taken up by women only experts command salaries commensurate with the education and ability of the college graduate, or even the high school graduate. The monotony of office work, the drudgery of the school room, the tax on health and the desire for outdoor life or a life having more independence of thought and action have led many women to take up occupations heretofore considered the province of men.

There are to-day women coopers, women ranch owners and managers, women mine operators, women mail carriers, women "motormen," a woman blacksmith, and so on. But no other field offers, woman the return, financially and physically, on the capital invested, nor gives her the added time for pleasurable occupations and mental improvement that farming does. Women by nature are endowed with patience with small details, a desire to experiment and a readiness to adopt new ideas, which specially fit her for a successful farmer.

The day when woman's work on the farm consisted in cooking, washing dishes, raising a few chickens and turkeys for pin money, going to the circus or a funeral for diversion, has passed. To-day an intelligent woman with common sense and practical ideas can compete creditably with men in the management of any branch of agriculture. The college graduate, with her knowledge of geology, chemistry, botany, and the other sciences, should be best fitted for success, in this day of farming on scientific principles; but she will require the salt of good common sense to solve the daily problems confronting her, and the necessity of taking advantage of things "at hand" that only a practical nature can grasp.

Those who are less fortunate in their opportunities should not, however, be discouraged from undertaking the work, as the scientific knowledge can be readily acquired and our government, through the agriculture department, is carrying on a work at the experiment stations, the results of which are being given free to the farmers and those interested in agriculture in a series of pamphlets, containing information and suggestions of inestimable value and presented in a simple and most practical manner. No woman recently graduated from college with a most indifferent idea of farming would have shown such utter ignorance as did a young graduate of West Point at an army post where I was once stationed. When placed in charge of the company garden he ordered the sergeant to buy some turnips and have the men assisting cut them up to plant, as they had done with the potatoes.

One of the greatest obstacles to success one has to contend with is the ignorance of the average farmer or hired man, who treats with contempt the literatuire of the agriculture department, preferring the long-exploded theories and systems of his father. Therefore one is obliged to study the modern systems to direct intelligently, and must have, too, the courage to force her convictions and live through the days of doubt and unbelief of her employes, watching that they do not assist their desire for her failure and thereby insure her future dependence upon them.

In 1865, long before any such assistance was given the people by the government, a woman who has since become prominent in affairs, with the aid of a negro refugee and two or three "hands" to help work and pick the crop, raised seven bales of cotton surpassing in quality that raised by men farming in that section of the country. Prior to this she had never seen a cotton plantation. In addition she grew the hay, corn and oats for her teams, and all the garden produce consumed by her family, having in her well-stocked garden the first celery ever grown in that part of the country. Her flower garden was noted for its rare varieties of roses and flowers, yet she found time to teach her child. Her name was a familiar one to every soldier in the western army for her work in their behalf.)

If truck farming or any branch of it is undertaken, a woman, to be successful, should be willing to begin in a small way—too large ideas and sudden enthusiasm are too often the secret of the failure and disgust of women with farming as a profitable venture.

Cultivate only so much land as you can direct personally, requiring but one or two men for the rough work of plowing and tilling the soil. Much of the lighter work can even be undertaken by a woman herself, where necessity demands. This need not be done in a way to destroy any good looks or personal attractions she may possess. With proper attention she may still preserve her smooth skin and hands which mark the woman of refinement. In exchange for the pale, lifeless complexion, the narrow chest, she may acquire the glow of health, the expanded chest of good lung development, and the brightness of eye indicative of happiness and mental activity.

To truck farming the larger crops can be added in order to provide for the stock and animals necessary to carry on the work or add to one's comfort in living. Corn and grass crops are profitable as well.

On entering upon farming one must examine the land or select it with reference to the crop one wishes to cultivate or which is most profitable for the market one is to supply. The question of soil enters most prominently into all one's plans and profits, as the feeding and working of the soil quickly increases or diminishes the profits in expense and labor. Fertilizing materials or food for the soil beyond what may accumulate on a farm where animals are owned, and fed are now prepared and sold by companies at a less cost than one can prepare them by the old methods. This greatly simplifies the work and reduces the time necessary to the proper preparation of the soil. Then, too, they can be accurately depended upon as containing only such ingredients as are absolutely essential to the growth and character of your produce. While one must be guided by one's market there are a few things which apply to all markets.

Specialties are better than too many things which cheapen as the season advances. A farm growing all kinds of vegetables requires so much labor, owing to so many things maturing at one time, that the profits are rapidly consumed.

If a woman will select one or a few specialties, such as asparagus, strawberries, melons, the cantaloupe, celery, artichokes, all kinds of lettuce and salad luxuries, fine varieties of which are found only on the tables of the rich, and will carefully improve in quality and delicacy to their greater perfection, the labor required is less and the profits are greater. Should she be able to add a small greenhouse lettuce, onions, radishes and mushrooms, and even cucumbers will furnish a good revenue in the winter months, with an opportunity to add to these violet culture or some variety of floriculture in which women have ever been most successful.

Quality rather than quantity to-day plays an important part in the success and profit of market gardening, as one can command a better price for a perfect product attractively presented than a great quantity which does not leave one time carefully to prepare for market, and so must be sold at the lowest price.

PUSSY MADE LONG JUMP.

Leaped Fifty Feet from Telephone Cross Arm—Unhurt.

That cats bear charmed lives—nine to each pussy—has long been contended by students of the feline race. Now comes the Boston Transcript with a tale of a large Angora in Watertown that was discovered marooned on the cross arm of a 50-foot telephone pole. All attempts to coax the cat down or to reach it by means of ladders failed, but it finally reached the ground by jumping and astonished the spectators by escaping unhurt. The cat is a pet in the family of H. B. Hartford. It was playing in the yard when a passing dog sighted it and gave chase. The cat was cut off from the house and there was no tree convenient, so it climbed the telephone pole. Some time later its cries were heard and steps were taken to release it. Coaxing failed, and at last a long ladder was procured.

After climbing as high as the ladder permitted, the would-be rescuer worked his way up the remaining distance, but the cat kept retreating toward the end of the cross arm on which he was perched, and as the climber made a last desperate grab the cat jumped. Striking the ground on all four feet, it shook itself and ran for the Hartford house.

Has Heart Like Human Being.

To discover the heart of an oyster the fold of flesh which oystermen call the "mantle" must be removed. This is fatal to the oyster, of course, but in the interest of science and for the benefit of the "curious" it is occasionally done. When the mantle has been removed the heart, shaped like a crescent or horned moon, is laid to the view. The oyster's heart is made up of two parts, just like that of a human being, one of which receives the blood from the gills and the other drives it out through the arteries.

Suicide Among Negroes.

The number of negroes committing suicide is increasing rapidly each year, but before emancipation such thing as a negro killing himself was almost unheard of. Now they occur with great frequency.

TWICE-TOLD TESTIMONY.

A Woman Who Has Suffered Tells How to Find Relief.

The thousands of women who suffer backache, languor, urinary disorders and other kidney ills will find comfort in the words of Mrs. Jane Farrell, of 606 Ocean Ave., Jersey City, N. J., who says: "I reiterate all I have said before in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills. I had been having heavy backaches, and my general health was affected when I began using them. My feet were swollen, my eyes puffed, and dizzy spells were frequent. Kidney action was irregular and the secretions highly colored. To-day, however, I am a well woman, and I am confident that Doan's Kidney Pills have made me so, and are keeping me well."

Papa's Habit.

Visitor (to little Willie)—Well, my boy, I'm afraid I can't wait to see papa any longer, as I have to go and see my uncle."

"No, my boy. Why?"

"Well, papa always takes something with him when he goes to see his uncle."

Confronting the Condemned.

"I have," said a lawyer, as he entered his condemned client's cell, "good news at last."

"A reprieve?" eagerly asked the prisoner.

"No, not a reprieve, but your uncle has left you $2,500, and now you can meet your fate with the satisfying feeling that the noble efforts of your lawyer in your behalf will not go unrewarded."

JUST HINTED.

Passenger Was Getting a Little Tired of Ethel.

The train was crowded. In one compartment a dignified, middle aged gentleman was trying to read. Among the passengers was a lady with a very sprightly little girl who had blue eyes, a head of blistening gold and an inquisitorial tongue. She asked the dignified gentleman innumerable questions and played with his watch chain.

The mother fairly beamed upon him. He was becoming nervous, and turning to the lady said:

"Madame, what do you call this sweet child?"

The mother smiled, and replied: "Ethel."

"Please call her, then."

MORE BOXES OF GOLD

And Many Greenbacks.

325 boxes of Gold and Greenbacks will be sent to persons who write the most interesting and truthful letters of experience on the following topics:

1. How have you been affected by coffee drinking and by changing from coffee to Postum.
2. Give name and account of one or more coffee drinkers who have been hurt by it and have been induced to quit and use Postum.
3. Do you know any one who has been driven away from Postum because it came to the table weak and characterless at the first trial?
4. Did you set such a person right regarding the easy way to make it clear, black, and with a snappy, rich taste?
5. Have you ever found a better way to make it than to use four heaping teaspoonfuls to the pint of water, let stand on stove until real boiling begins, and beginning at that time, when actual boiling starts, boil full 15 minutes more to extract the flavor and food value. (A piece of butter the size of a pea will prevent boiling over.)

This contest is confined to those who have used Postum prior to the date of this advertisement.

Be honest and truthful, don't write poetry or fanciful letters, just plain, truthful statements.

Contest will close June 1st, 1907, and no letters received after that date will be admitted. Examinations of letters will be made by three judges, not members of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd. Their decisions will be fair and final, and a neat little box containing a $10 gold piece sent to each of the five writers of the most interesting letters, a box containing a $5 gold piece to each of the 20 next best, a $2 greenback to each of the 100 next best, and a $1 greenback to each of the 200 next best, making cash prizes distributed to 325 persons.

Every friend of Postum is urged to write and each letter will be held in high esteem by the company, as an evidence of such friendship, while the little boxes of gold and envelopes of money will reach many modest writers whose plain and sensible letters contain the facts desired, although the sender may have but small faith in winning at the time of writing.

Talk this subject over with your friends and see how many among you can win prizes. It is a good, honest competition and in the best kind of a cause, and costs the competitors absolutely nothing.

Address your letter to the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich., writing your own name and address clearly.

TIRED AND SICK YET MUST WORK

MRS. AUG. LYON

"Man may work from sun to sun but woman's work is never done."

In order to keep the home neat and pretty, the children well-dressed and tidy, women overdo and often suffer in silence, drifting along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have help to overcome the pains and aches which daily make life a burden.

It is to these women that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, comes as a blessing. When the spirits are depressed, the head and back aches, there are dragging-down pains, nervousness, sleeplessness, and reluctance to go anywhere, these are only symptoms which unless heeded, are soon followed by the worst forms of Female Complaints.

keeps the feminine organism in a strong and healthy condition. It cures Inflammation, Ulceration, displacements, and organic troubles. In preparing for child-birth and to carry women safely through the Change of Life it is most efficient.

Mrs. Augustus Lyon, of East Earl, Pa., writes:— Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"For a long time I suffered from female troubles and had all kinds of aches and pains in the lower part of back and sides. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and following the advice which you gave me I feel like a new woman and I cannot praise your medicine too highly."

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Out of her vast volume of experience she probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

Did you ever hear of a man's getting married for the purpose of having some one to read poetry to him?

REVIEW OF THE WORK OF CONGRESS

Important Measures Passed During the Short Session—Immigration Law—The Right of Appeal in Criminal Cases.

It is probably safe to say that a careful and discriminating review of the business transacted by congress at its short session, would compel the admission that this three months' session was productive of more important business than has emanated from the federal legislative body at any previous short session in recent years.

The chief features of the session may be summarized as follows:

The development of distinctively new and important policies in federal appropriations.

The passage of the immigration bill and the bill relating to appeals by the government in criminal cases.

The resolution relative to the Brownsville episode and the resulting debate thereon, with respect to the influence of that debate upon the discussion of the race question in and out of congress.

While these features of the session stand out in bold relief, there are many other matters which will challenge the attention of the country as being of far reaching magnitude and importance.

* * *

With respect to the appropriation bills passed within the ninety days of the session, it should be said that in no previous session has there been crowded into these federal expense budgets so much which makes for wise public policy in dealing with the public moneys. This is so notably true in the matter of the appropriations for rivers and harbors that the subject demands more than passing comment.

The policy outlined in the river and harbor appropriation bill of this year is to complete a dozen or more of the largest projects in the international improvements, and to put in the way of early completion other projects upon which a vast sum of money has been expended during the past quarter of a century. All the harbor projects on the Atlantic seaboard, furnishing accommodations to the great foreign and coastwise shipping, are now in a fair way to be completed within a short time.

Projects on the Great Lakes and on the Mississippi and its tributaries are so provided for in the bill of this year that assurance is given of the completion within a short time of a vast internal waterway system connecting the upper sections of the Northwest with the gulf, and bringing the country tributary to the Mississippi valley in closer touch with that great artery of commerce which flows through the fat valleys of the Middle West.

The full scope of the important works accomplished by the river and harbor legislation, with respect to the harbors and rivers of the entire country, and the new policy of bringing to speedy completion the most important projects, are certain to make for material development of the commerce and industry of the entire country.

* * *

In the details of other appropriation bills policies are put into workable shape which are soon to plant the impression of federal laws upon commerce and industry. This is particularly true in the matter of the details of the agricultural appropriation bill, with its provisions for increased inspection of food products; with its addition of plans for grain standards and inspection, and throwing around the trade of the country safeguards to prevent injury from the influences of frauds and adulterations.

There are features of the postoffice supply bill, also, which are certain to prove of special value to the people, at least in the direction of pointing the ways to betterments to come. The mail delivery system, so important to the people everywhere, is to be encouraged through more liberal compensation of carriers, whether in the rural districts, in the cities or on the railroads. With respect to the railway carriage, however, the increased cost is incurred in paying the postal clerks, and a diminuation of the aggregate expense of mail carriage is secured by changes in the railway mail pay.

* * *

In the senate a protracted debate was brought about over the race problem, incident to the passage of the resolution of inquiry into the Brownsville matter. Whatever may be the result of that inquiry, it is not too much to say that the debate on the whole question contributed more than any other single influence that has been in operation for many years to show up how much of cheap and frothy demagogy has been indulged in by agitators who have sought to profit by keeping alive the animosities engendered by race differences in the South and throughout the country.

It was clearly shown during the debate that the race problem has been grossly exaggerated; that there is no call for the violent harangues which have been projected into the senate and out among the people by agitators who have painted the evils which have grown out of race differences in the South in too vivid colors. It will be more difficult in the future for the agitators to obtain public attention.

In the meanwhile the people will quietly and methodically pursue their way in efforts to find a solution of the real problems involved in the so-called race question.

* * *

The senate also settled a question that has been before that body for more than a year, namely the ratification of the Santo Domingo treaty. By this action the government of the United States is not committed to any more certain duty in looking after the interests of the Latin-American republics of this hemisphere, than is incurred in the avowed national policy of upholding the Monroe doctrine.

But what is gained, as is believed, by the ratification of this treaty is tranquillity in Santo Domingo and the aid and encouragement by this government to Santo Domingo in pulling herself out of the mire of debt in which she is involved without any accompanying annoyance from foreign powers.

* * *

With respect to general legislation, probably the most important action of the congress just closing was the passage of the immigration bill and the measure conferring upon the federal government the right to appeal in criminal cases.

The immigration law just enacted opens the way for improvement in the character of the immigrants that come to these shores. Taken in connection with the policy outlined in the provision relative to the incoming of Oriental laborers and the provision for a thorough investigation of conditions surrounding emigrants and the sources of immigration in foreign countries the bill enacted at this session is of tremendous importance to the whole country, industrially and commercially.

It is a troublesome problem, this attempting to depart from the ancient rule of asylum for the people of all lands. Time has shown, however, that the United States has, in addition to furnishing homes for the best classes of people, who have come to be American citizens of the highest standard and who have contributed to the upbuilding of the nation in all directions where well directed labor and wealth production under wise laws have added to the comfort and happiness of this country—in addition to these desirable features the gates which have always opened inward have let in far too many undesirable people, diseased, maimed, degenerates and criminals, who have gone to swell the almshouses and the jails, thus becoming charges upon the well-to-do in this land, as well as detracting from the social order and well being of our people.

A measure which affords relief from some of these great evils, as the immigration law just enacted promises to do, cannot but be of great value to the American people.

* * *

The criminal laws of the United States are statutes passed by congress. There is no common law relating to crimes so far as the nation is concerned. Issues of law in the trial of persons charged with violation of the criminal statutes of the United States have always been taken advantage of by defendants, but no provision existed for the government taking such issues of law to the higher courts where the decisions of the judges of the lower courts were favorable to the defendants.

The law is changed by the action of the congress at its present session. The government will now have the right to prosecute appeals or writs of error on questions of law decided by the inferior courts to the highest tribunal in the land. The defendant in a criminal court has always the protection of his constitutional rights, which may be urged in his favor to the highest court.

It has been found upon many occasions that decisions of the lower federal courts, touching questions of law, when in favor of the defendant on trial for infraction of a criminal law of the United States, even before the defendant has lost the protection of the jeopardy right in the constitution of the country, has appeared to be so erroneous that the defendant would go unwhipped of justice. It is now provided that such issues of law so raised may be prosecuted by writ of error sued out by the government to test in the higher courts the soundness of the legal opinion rendered by the judge in the lower court.

So many new and complicated statutes of a criminal nature have been enacted by congress during the past few years in the effort of the people to secure redress of grievances by the abolition of railway rebating and kindred wrongdoing by great corporations that it has come to be recognized that the government must, in the interests of justice be clothed with the power to test legal questions in criminal cases by some authority other than the judges in courts of first instance. This legislation is supplemental to the acts of this and previous congresses intended to restrain the powers of those whose evildoing is, in the main, an abuse of the use of wealth.

* * *

Among the other measures passed by congress at this session is the currency bill, making important changes in the laws relating to banking and the currency of the country. The chief provision of this law is that the secretary of the treasury may now deposit customs receipts, as well as internal revenues, in the national bank depositaries. The object of this change is to give wider latitude to the head of the treasury in relieving against congestion of the public money in the government strong box.

The Value and Importance of Ethical Remedies.

Remedies which physicians sanction for family use, as they act most beneficially and are gentle yet prompt in effect, and called ethical, because they are of Known Excellence and Quality and of Known Component Parts.

To gain the full confidence of the Well-Informed of the world and the approval of the most eminent physicians, it is essential that the component parts be known to and approved by them, and, therefore, the California Fig Syrup Company has published for many years past in its advertisements and upon every package a full statement thereof. The perfect purity and uniformity of product which they demand in a laxative remedy of an ethical character are assured by the California Fig Syrup Company's original method of manufacture, known to the Company only.

There are other ethical remedies approved by physicians, but the product of the California Fig Syrup Company possesses the advantage over all other family laxatives that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts, without disturbing the natural functions or any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of Syrup of Figs, and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent of family laxatives, and as its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well-Informed of the world to be the best of natural laxatives, we have adopted the more elaborate name of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtlessly it will always be called for by the shorter name of Syrup of Figs; and to get its beneficial effects, always note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package, whether you simply call for Syrup of Figs, or by the full name, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, as Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is the one laxative remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company, and the same heretofore known by the name, Syrup of Figs, which has given satisfaction to millions. The genuine is for sale by all leading druggists throughout the United States in original packages of one size only, the regular price of which is fifty cents per bottle.

Every bottle is sold under the general guarantee of the Company, filed with the Secretary of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., the remedy is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906.

NEWS OF THE Northwest.

SPOONER RESIGNS FROM THE SENATE

WISCONSIN STATESMAN'S ACTION CAUSES GREAT SURPRISE IN HIS OWN STATE.

LIVELY TIMES ARE EXPECTED

Washington, March 5. — Senator Spooner has written a letter to Gov. Davidson of Wisconsin, tendering his resignation as senator of the United States, to take effect May 1 next. The letter was dated Saturday, but the fact that such a letter had been written, or that Mr. Spooner contemplated resigning did not become known in the senate until late yesterday, when it created great surprise, and the Wisconsin senator at once found himself the subject of many anxious inquiries. To all he replied that his mind was fully made up.

Sacrifice Too Great.

He had found, he said, that to continue in his present position would require a sacrifice on his part that he could not justify himself in making. In reply to questions he said he would resume the practice of law, but declined to say whether he would locate in Wisconsin. He did say, however, that he would continue to be a citizen of that state as long as he lives.

On being informed of Senator Spooner's resignation the president said: "I cannot sufficiently express my regret at Senator Spooner's resignation. We lose one of the ablest, most efficient, most fearless and most upright public servants that the nation has had."

Complete Surprise.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 5.—The announcement from Washington that United States Senator John C. Spooner of Wisconsin had sent his resignation to Gov. James O. Davidson, to take effect on May 1 next, came as a complete surprise throughout Wisconsin.

It will be recalled that six years ago, or a year before Senator Spooner's previous term expired, he issued an open letter stating that under no circumstances would he be a candidate to succeed himself. However, in spite of this he was elected by unanimous choice of his party and was practically compelled to again serve in the upper house of congress.

Lively Times Expected.

Lively times are expected in the Wisconsin legislature from now on, and it is expected that before many hours elapse there will be many candidates in the field for the unexpired term of Senator Spooner.

Among those prominently mentioned in connection with the vacancy are Isaac Stephenson, the multimillionaire lumber king; Former Speaker Lenroot, Lieut. Gov. Connor, Former Secretary of State Houser and Congressmen Cooper and Esch.

LOCKS HIMSELF IN CELL.

Man at Aberdeen Blocks Efforts of Officers to Take Him to Iowa.

Aberdeen, S. D., March 5. — After compelling the Sioux City authorities to secure requisition papers, Otto Rohn, who was arrested here about ten days ago on a charge of burglary by the police of the Iowa city, again blocked the efforts of the authorities to get him back for trial. Detective Richards of Sioux City arrived here last night for the prisoner. Rohn said he would not go, and he kept his word.

The sheriff went to the cell, unlocked the door, but could not open it. Rohn, inside the cell, laughed at the efforts of the sheriff. He had made a rope of his bedding and fastened the door in such a manner as to prevent the rope from being cut from the outside. When the time for the departure of the train had passed, Rohn removed the rope.

BAD YEAR FOR LOGGERS.

Cut Will Show 33 Per Cent Decrease, It Is Estimated.

Washburn, Wis., March 5.—Loggers are trying hard to make up for the small cut of the first part of the winter, which was caused by the heavy snowfalls in the woods and the scarcity of labor. They estimate that the total cut will fall off more than 30 per cent from last season. The winter has been one of the worst loggers have experienced in years.

Switch Engine Kills Two.

Madison, Wis., March 5.—Catherine Marie Quinn, aged fifteen years, and Catherine Margaret Quinn, sixteen years old, cousins, were killed by a switch engine yesterday.

Girl and a Match.

Sioux Falls, S. D., March 5.—A little girl and a match caused a heavy loss to Irving Mann and wife. Practically all of their household goods were destroyed, the building and contents being almost wholly consumed.

State Art Exhibit.

Fergus Falls, Minn., March 5. — The state art exhibit was opened at the library building here with a musical program and addresses by Mayor Townley and President Kohler of the state art society.

Takes No Anaesthetic.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 5.—J. W. Cliff submitted to an operation for the amputation of his right leg without the use of anaesthetics, and conversed with the physicians while the operation was being performed.

Man Aged Eighty Ends Life.

Tama, Iowa, March 5.—Henry Woolering, eighty years old and wealthy, committed suicide by firing a bullet through his head. Ill health is thought to have furnished the motive for the act.

MANY AFTER SPOONER'S TOGA

EVEN DOZEN ASPIRANTS ARE IN THE FIELD—LOOK TO LA FOLLETTE.

Madison, Wis., March 7.—The contest for the seat in the United States senate made vacant by the resignation of Senator Spooner is absorbing the attention of the members of the legislature to the exclusion of all other business. An even dozen of prominent citizens of Wisconsin are spoken of either as avowed or prospective candidates for the vacant seat. They are: John J. Esch, Henry A. Cooper, James O. Davidson, W. W. Webb, W. D. Connor, W. H. Hatten, Isaac Stephenson, Walter L. Houser, I. L. Lenroot, Joseph V. Quarles, John J. Jenkins and James H. Stout.

Friends of La Follette in the legislature, it is said, will not declare themselves until the preference of the senator is known. Senator La Follette is suffering from grip in Washington, and there is said to be danger of a return of the serious stomach trouble from which he suffered years ago. In response to a telegram Mrs. La Follette went to him yesterday. Senator La Follette is said to favor the candidacy of Stephenson.

Senator Spooner, of course, has no suggestion to venture, nor have any of his political followers.

The opinion prevails generally that La Follette can name his colleague.

St. Paul, March 7. — The secret of United States Senator John C. Spooner's resignation from the upper house has been brought to light.

The famous Wisconsin solon, whose recent retirement from the United States senate caused a profound sensation politically, has doffed the senatorial toga to accept the important post of general counsel for James J. Hill's interests, including the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroads, as well as the Great Northern Steamship company, the Northern Steamship company and the other varied Hill interests, of which the ore lands, both in Minnesota and other states, constitute a factor.

Assume Duties in May.

Senator Spooner will assume his new duties on May 1, the day when his retirement from the senate takes effect.

It is said that, at Senator Spooner's request, Mr. Hill had determined to withhold the official announcement until April 1, but now that the news has become public it is probable that Mr. Hill will take immediate steps to issue the circular which will proclaim Senator Spooner's appointment.

About six months ago Mr. Hill personally approached Senator Spooner and proffered to the Wisconsin solon the position of general counsel.

Headquarters in New York.

It is said that Senator Spooner accepted the same, but with the condition that he be given until May 1 before assuming his duties.

To this President Hill agreed. From what can be learned at this time, Senator Spooner, after entering the Hill services, will probably make his headquarters in New York, where he will personally direct all of the higher legal policy of all of the Hill interests.

It is said that Senator Spooner's salary will be $50,000 a year.

The position was first offered to Elihu Root, who declined it.

MURDER BILL IS $10,000.

Estate of Slayer Is Sued by Estate of Slain Girl.

Davenport, Iowa, March 7.—A novel lawsuit has been filed in the district court here. Last September Harry Drenter of Summit, Iowa, shot and killed Grace Rose, a pretty school teacher at Summit, and then took his own life. In the present suit A. L. Stone, administrator of the estate of Miss Rose, seeks to recover $10,000 damages from Drenter's estate, on the ground that Drenter was responsible for the death of Miss Rose.

RAILROAD SHOWS PLANS.

Northern Pacific Would Improve Duluth-Superior Bridge.

Superior, Wis., March 7. — The Northern Pacific railroad has submitted to the government engineers for approval plans for double-tracking the railroad bridge between Superior and Duluth. In double-tracking, improving approaches and spans the company will expend approximately $500,000. Besides the Northern Pacific, the bridge is used by the Great Northern, Omaha and South Shore roads.

GIRLS STEAL GOLD WATCH.

Northfield Pair Are Sent to State Training School.

Faribault, Minn., March 7. — Cora Sellers, aged sixteen, and Gertrude Emmiott, aged twelve years, both living in Northfield, were brought before Judge Buckman in this city, charged with stealing a gold watch from a lady's room in Northfield. They plealed guilty and both were sentenced to the state training school at Red Wing.

Eau Claire, Wis., March 7. — John Shirley had a narrow escape from death and was seriously injured by the caving in of some sawdust which he was removing from an ice house where he was employed.

WITH THE LAWMAKERS

Work Accomplished by the State Legislators.

St. Paul, March 1.—The house yesterday passed the resolution calling for an investigation of the finances of the state university by a vote of 92 to 14. The university regents are said to court the investigation.

A resolution was offered calling for an investigation of the stories of alleged cruelties at the St. Peter and other insane hospitals. The resolution went over under notice of debate.

The Standard Oil is the next octopus to be investigated by the house. A resolution calling for a thorough investigation was introduced by Representative Brady. It is to be along lines calculated to bring out the information whether or not the Standard is in control of the oil sold and distributed in Minnesota.

A raise in salary for the legislators in the shape of $1,000 for the two legislative years made its appearance in the form of a bill introduced by Representative Wells. The speaker is to have $10 a day in addition to this figure.

Representative Timberlake introduced a bill giving the university regents the right of condemnation of land and the erection of the necessary buildings for the enlargement of the university. It is a wide-open expansion bill, and for the carrying out of the same a three-tenth mill tax for a period of five years, to be levied over the state, is authorized.

A standard for canned fruits and vegetables is provided for in a bill introduced by Representative Dorsey. Canners who comply with the pure requirements can label their products "Minnesota Standard," a term which will be copyrighted for the state.

In the Senate.

The senate yesterday killed the bill requiring that dogs should be restrained by their owners in order to prevent the spread of rabies.

A bill to prevent unfair competition was introduced by Senator Hinton. It provides that any person, firm, company, association or corporation, foreign or domestic, doing business in Minnesota and engaged in the production, manufacture and distribution of any commodity in general use, that shall intentionally or otherwise, for the purpose of destroying the business of a competitor in any locality, discriminate between different sections by selling such a commodity at a lower rate in one section than another, shall be deemed guilty of unfair discrimination. When found guilty they must pay the costs, and their permit to sell shall be revoked by the secretary of state.

Other bills introduced: Relating to the furnishing of liquor to certain persons; delinquency of children under seventeen years of age, giving jurisdiction to the juvenile courts; to appropriate $50,000 for the deepening, straightening and improving of Buffalo creek, its tributaries and branches, in the counties of Renville and McLeod.

Bills passed: Appropriating money for the purchase of seed grain for farmers whose crops were destroyed in whole or part by excess rainfall in 1905 and 1906; relating to the Minnesota sanitarium for consumptives; prohibiting the manufacture and sale of blank cartridges, big firecrackers and other explosives; relating to the use of seines in fishing.

St. Paul, March 2.—Senator Wilson yesterday introduced a bill creating a permanent tax commission. The commission shall be composed of three members to be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate. Each member shall devote his entire time to the office. Their salary is fixed at $6,000.

Senator Lundberg's bill relating to the reorganization of the forestry board, making the governor a member of the board, was passed under suspension of the rules.

Senator Hinton offered a bill which exempts wages not exceeding $30 due for services rendered during thirty days preceding from attachment, garnishment or levy of execution. If wages are paid at briefer intervals than thirty days the exemption shall be in the same proportion.

Senator Vail introduced a bill amending the law relating to the sale of timber on state land.

Other bills introduced: Relating to quarantine of animals; relating to proceedings for drainage of lands and meandered bodies of water; acceptance and administration of gifts and endowments for the benefit of educationable, charitable and other institutions maintained by the state; to prohibit the use of deception, misrepresentation, false advertising, false pretenses and unlawful force in the procuring of employes to work in any department of labor in this state, and fixing penalties, civil and criminal, for a violation thereof; providing for the election of one alderman at large in cities; establishment of county schools of agriculture, industrial science, manual training for school teachers, and appropriating money therefor; to empower villages and cities in this state to appoint gas inspectors.

In the House.

The resolution calling for an investigation into the charges of cruelty in insane asylums was referred to the committe on insane hospitals, with instructions to hold an investigation if it deemed it necessary.

The house had a wonderful streak of industry yesterday. An afternoon session was held at which forty bills were recommended for passage in committee of the whole.

Representative Dalzell introduced three bills for the regulation of sleeping car transportation. One prohibits the giving of tips to employes of the road. Another provides that the rate charged for upper berths shall not exceed 75 per cent of the price charged for lower berths. The third requires the sleeping car companies to furnish a safe, where the valuables of passengers may be stored.

Representative Timberlake offered a bill providing for the examination of the eyes and ears of all school children.

The house passed the memorial to congress for a constitutional convention to propose an amendment for the election of senators by direct vote of the people.

Bills introduced: Authorizing probate courts to grant administrations; regulating the sale and manufacture of binding twine; relating to the incorporation of villages; relating to kinds of business insurance companies may transact; providing for a proportionate earnings tax on telephone companies; permitting the acceptance of gifts and bequests by the state; providing for the establishment of department of agriculture; regulating the use and transportation of game and fish.

St. Paul, March 5.—There is nothing to warrant the charges in the joint resolution passed in the North Dakota legislature regarding the Minnesota grain inspection and warehouse laws, and the Minnesota legislature respectfully declines to amend the laws to conform to the wishes of the North Dakota legislators. This is the reply of the Minnesota legislature to the resolution from North Dakota. The reply is in the form of a joint resolution.

A petition against the enactment of a 2-cent fare law was received by the house from the Commercial club of Morton.

Villages may give franchises to electric railways to carry freight under a bill introduced by Representative Thayer.

Representative Murphy offered a bill providing for the appointment of a permanent tax commission.

Representative Thayer presented a bill, which provides for the protection of homesteaders from mortgage foreclosures.

Other bills introduced: Making 8 per cent the highest rate of interest allowed; regulating telegraph tariffs; prohibiting deception in securing employes; creating a bureau of statistics

In the Senate.

A bill to prevent the election of a majority of the officers of an incorporated village on a wave of popular sentiment on some particular subject, without due consideration of the qualifications of the candidates, was introduced by Senator Canestorp. The bill provides that the clerk and president shall be elected for two years, and in alternate years, while the three trustees shal leach be elected, one each year, for a three-year term. Under this plan a majority of the officers will at all times have been in office for a year or more.

St. Paul, March 6.—The senate yesterday unanimously passed a resolution directing the committee on railroads to report out the house 2-cent fare bill not later than Thursday of this week. The preamble related the fact of the passage of the two bills, each in their respective houses, and alleged that the legislature was anxious that this line of legislation should become effective.

Five petitions in favor of county options were presented.

A new liquor license law of farreaching effect was introduced by Senator Vail. It provides that no license for the sale of liquors shall be granted to any person who is not in the actual possession in his own right as owner, or as the bona fide lessee, of the room specified in the license. Whenever such license ceases to be in the actual bona fide possession of the room so specified, or ceases personally to manage such business, the license shall be deemed annulled.

Senator Alderman offered an amendment to the liquor law which makes the selling of liquor to a minor a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not less than $10 or more than $100, or by imprisonment for not less than ten days or more than ninety days.

The senate passed fourteen bills yesterday, most of them of minor importance. Among them was the bill to appropriate $250,000 to pay deficiencies in aid to high schools, graded, semi-graded and rural schools, the past two years. Another important bill passed was one making it compulsory for deaf children at eight years of age to be sent to the state school for the deaf at Faribault.

In the House.

No strings will be tied to the lobbyists by the present group of legislators, for they voted down the measure requiring the registration of lobbyists when it came up for passage yesterday. The death blow was administered by a vote of 42 to 67.

Another bill killed was that authorizing officers of corporations to administer oaths and take acknowledgments in matters in which they are interested.

The house had its working clothes on yesterday and made its first serious attempt to break the log jam of bills which is held up all along the line. Among the bills passed were the following: To punish persons who make false statements for the purpose of securing credit; appropriating money for the erection of monuments to the Third, Fourth and Fifth Minnesota infantry and the First battery on the battlefield of Vicksburg; requiring the payment of interest on delinquent gross earning taxes; creating the position of county weighmaster; prohibiting pawnbrokers and second-hand dealers from receiving valuable property from minors; restoring full citizenship to persons convicted of felony after they have served their time and complied with certain conditions.

Only three bills were introduced: Relating to temporary relief of the poor; relating to appropriations for expenses of county officers; providing for exemption of wages from garnishment.

St. Paul, March 7.—The senate railroad committee yesterday reported the senate 2-cent fare bill as a substitute for the house bill. Tuesday the senate passed a resolution directing the committee to report on the house bill. The action yesterday leaves the situation as it was before the resolution of Tuesday was offered. It now looks as though a conference between the two houses will be necessary.

Eight petitions in favor of the initiative and referendum were presented.

Remonstrances against county option were received from Polk and Cottonwood counties.

The committee on game and fish introduced a bill in which the following prohibitive clause is the new matter: "And no person shall shoot any wild ducks, geese or brant, or shoot at them with any rifle or revolver while they are sitting on the water, or as they arise from the water."

MEN OF THE FORGE UNITE.

Southern Minnesota Blacksmiths and Wagonmakers Organize.

The Southern Minnesota Blacksmith and Wagonmakers' association was organized in Mankato at a meeting of thirty-five delegates representing Mankato, Lake Crystal, St. James, Vernon Center, Amboy, Mapleton, Good Thunder, Minnesota Lake, Janesville, Belle Plaine, Le Sueur, Henderson St. Peter and St. Clair. John Dossett of Lake Crystal was elected president; Walter Friend of Lake Crystal, secretary; Frank Mahowald of Mankato, treasurer, and Thomas H. Foley, Conrad Mayer and C. Kuehn, all of Mankato, law committee. Mankato is to be the headquarters of the association.

It was decided to ask the legislature to amend the law relating to the qualifications of blacksmiths, which at present applies to cities of 50,000 and upwards, so as to take in all towns and villages in the state. It is said that this law has proved very beneficial where it is operative.

The territory covered by the new association embraces all of Southern Minnesota outside of the Twin Cities, and an endeavor will be made to include in the membership representatives from every city and village.

Mankato Ordinance Gives Franchise Ordinance Its First Reading.

At a special meeting of the Mankato city council an ordinance was introduced and given its first reading granting a franchise to construct and operate an electric street railway within the city limits and a lighting and steam or hot water heating heating plant. The franchise is to be granted to W. L. Hixon and H. E. Hance, who will transfer it to the Mankato Traction company as soon as it is organized. Arthur J. Whipple, a financial map, and R. A. Pratt, an engineer, arrived from Chicago. They represent the construction company which proposes to build the line.

HAS BRACKEN'S APPROVAL.

Indorses Steps Taken in Mankato to Prevent Spread of Rabies.

Dr. H. M. Bracken of Minneapolis, secretary of the state board of health, who was in Mankato recently, indorsed the steps taken by the city officials to stop the spread of rabies. Eleven dogs that were bitten by the dog that was found to have rabies were killed by the police at the request of the owners.

The parents of the Kelly girl, who was one of those bitten last week, are too poor to send her to the Pasteur institute at Chicago, so at a conference held recently between county and city officials it was decided that the girl be sent to Chicago at the joint expense of the two.

The dog did not break Sidney F. Jeld's skin, and therefore his physician deems it unnecessary for him to take the treatment.

It's easier for a man to convince a woman that he loves her than it is for him to keep her convinced.

CUT ON "PERISHABLES."

Perishable Goods Get the Lowest Rate in New Schedule Ordered.

One of the most important clauses of the order recently sent to the express companies operating in the state making a cut in express rates is that relating to perishable goods and other articles included under the head of "general specials." The reduction in these rates is marked, being 10 to 15 per cent lower than the rates on merchandise established by the new schedule, which itself represents a cut of 20 per cent in the old rates.

The rates on perishable goods are extremely low, and what makes this matter of importance is that while certain articles of merchandise, on which a higher rate must be paid, may be shipped only a few times a year, the perishable goods, on which the low rates have been fixed, are shipped by thousands of farmers throughout the state two and three times a week.

The cut in these rates was the greatest made by the commission, and it will mean thousands of dollars to the farmers and country shippers of the state every year.

The following table shows how the rates on perishable goods compare with the new rates on merchandise:

	Rates in Cents, Per 100 Lbs.
Distance in Miles.	Mdse.	Perishable Goods.
1 to 30	$0.40	$0.40
45 and over 30	.45	.40
60 and over 45	.50	.40
75 and over 60	.55	.50
90 and over 75	.60	.50
105 and over 90	.65	.60
120 and over 105	.75	.65
135 and over 120	.85	.65
150 and over 135	.90	.75

LESS THAN HALF PASS.

Result of the Teachers' Examinations in the State.

Of 5,501 who took the teachers' examinations throughout the state the last week of January, 2,168 received certificates, according to figures just completed by State Superintendent jects, and therefore were not strictly says, to say that the others failed, as many of them did not write complete examinations, but only on some sub-J. W. Olsen. But it is hardly fair, he applicants for certificates. However, there were 30,367 papers written and 20,887 passed.

Of the certificates issued there were 181 complete first grade, good for five years, 87 conditional first grade, those who failed in one subject. These are good for one year. Of the second grade certificates there were 765 complete, good for two years; 612 conditional, good for one year, and 528 limited, issued to applicants who had no previous experience.

STATE GETS $3,389,881.14.

Tax for 1906 on Gross Earnings of Railways.

The thirty-two railroads operating in Minnesota will pay into the state treasury in taxes for 1906 the sum of $3,389,881.14, an increase of $374,204.20 over 1905. The total gross earnings for the roads in 1906 were $84,741,848.03, while the total earnings in 1905 were $75,391,924.83, making an increase for 1906 of $9,349,923.20. Figuring on a basis of thirty-two roads the average gross earnings per road would be $2,648,182.76, while the average taxes accruing to the state per road would be $105,933.79.

The largest gross earnings of any road was that of the Great Northern, $20,264,362.14, an increase of $1,723,965.87 over the year 1905. The smallest gross earnings reported by any road is $3,188.19 by the Green Bay & Western line. This is an increase of $287.89 over 1905, while the state tax, $127.53, is an increase of $11.52 over the preceding year.

DISPLAY OF CATTLE.

Leading Breeders of Country Will Exhibit at State Fair.

The three leading cattle breeders' associations of the United States have now made appropriations for the Minnesota state fair live stock exhibition for next September, assuring a display of cattle of great size and of international interest.

Secretary E. W. Randall has just been notified that the American Hereford Breeders' association has set aside $500 for the show. This, with an equal amount offered by the Minnesota State Agricultural society, makes a total of $1,000 to be paid in premiums this year to owners of Hereford cattle alone.

A short time since the American Aberdeen-Angus Breeders' association appropriated $300 for special premiums for that class of cattle, and the shorthorn association made its appropriation earlier. With these prominent classes hanging up big money for the Minnesota exhibition, the other breeders will find it necessary to do their best to compete.

DEATH LOSS IS ABOUT 100

VICTIMS ARE HURLED THROUGH AIR—HUNDREDS HORRIBLY INJURED.

Toulon, March 14. — The powder magazines on board the French battleship Iena blew up yesterday afternoon, and as a result Capt. Adigard, the commander of the battleship; Capt. Verries, some of them horrible in their exnean squadron, and from seventy to eighty bluejackets are dead, while Rear Admiral Manceron and hundreds of other men are suffering from injuries, some of the horrible in their extent. Naval circles are aghast and the public is stunned by the appalling catastrophe.

Victims Hurled Through Air.

The entire after part of the Iena was blown to pieces. The bodies of the victims were hurled through the air by a succession of explosions, and panic-stricken workmen at the arsenal fled for their lives from the vicinity of the dry dock. Scores of those on board the Iena jumped overboard onto the stone quays and sustained serious injuries.

The primary cause of the accident was the explosion of a torpedo.

Pride of Navy Destroyed.

What caused the explosion is not known, but the powder magazines of the Iena were set on fire and their contents in exploding practically destroyed what was considered one of the best vessels in the French navy.

The first shock was extremely violent and shook the vessel fore and aft. It was followed instantly by other shocks. The crew was thrown into a condition of panic.

The hundreds of men below deck were in a fearful position, and while they groped their way toward the exits they became the prey of suffocating fumes which caused many of them to fall unconscious.

Survivors Go Insane.

It will be impossible to ascertain the exact number of killed and wounded until a roll call can be held, as many of the men were completely blown to pieces, while others were incinerated.

Many of those who escaped with their lives suffered most severe injuries, and becoming temporarily insane rushed frantically around the vicinity of the dry dock until they fell exhausted.

LAND FRAUDS IN IDAHO.

Government Will Sift Them to Bottom and Punish the Guilty.

Lewiston, Idaho, March 14. — Hints from Boise as to startling land fraud disclosures at Lewiston tend to confirm reports from authentic sources that the government has for a year considered the land frauds in Idaho more gigantic than in either Oregon, Montana or Washington, and that it is the intention of the government to sift them to the bottom, bringing guilty ones to trial and then bringing reentrance proceedings after conviction to secure re-possession of the lands fraudulently secured from the United States.

Means Ruin for Many.

This latter step will mean great financial loss and perhaps absolute ruin to private individuals and banking institutions, which are or have been, it is asserted, directly or indirectly connected with the handling or ownership of lands said to have been fraudulently acquired. It is known that the few indictments secured at Moscow at the last two terms of court are but a beginning. There are, it is said, other indictments to follow, which are to bring into the pale of the law men high in all walks of life, and whose names so far have not been even suggested.

It is asserted that evidence has been secured which, when presented in court, will prove astounding to the general public.

COW ATTACKS MAIL MAN.

Carrier Is Knocked Down Twice, but Dog Saves His Life.

Rosemount, Minn., March 14.—John Johnson, carrier on Rural Route No. 2, from Rosemount, was severely injured by a vicious cow. Johnson was walking across the barnyard when, without any provocation, the cow attacked him, knocked him down and tried to gore him with her horns. He struggled to his feet and started to run to a place of safety, but he was overtaken and again was struck down. The infuriated animal would have killed him had not his dog come to his assistance.

FORM COMPANY TO FIGHT VICE.

Corporation With $100,000 Capital Is Planned.

La Crosse, Wis., March 14.—Following sensational reports by spies hired by the La Crosse Pastors' union to investigate vice in La Crosse, the organization of the Civic federation, with a capital stock of $100,000, the object of which will be to force the suppression of evils which have been revealed, has been announced. It is stated that a number of leading citizens will subscribe principal portion of the stock.

JEROME LOSES EVERY POINT

CEASELESS BATTLE BETWEEN PROSECUTOR AND ATTORNEY DELMAS.

New York, March 13.—On the first day of the state's case in rebuttal at the trial of Harry Thaw, District Attorney Jerome yesterday came to a temporary standstill against the practically solid wall the rules of evidence have built around the story of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. Mr. Jerome began to attack this story as soon as court opened. There ensued a well nigh ceaseless battle between the prosecutor and D. M. Delmas, the leading counsel for the defense, at the end of which Justice Fitzgerald upheld the rule laid down at the beginning of the trial—that Mrs. Thaw's story was admissible only as tending to show the effect it might have had in unbalancing the defendant's mind and its truth of falsity is not material.

Mr. Jerome tried to avoid this rule by declaring he was endeavoring merely to show by inference—by circumstantial evidence as to facts and details in the story—that Mrs. Thaw could not possibly have told the story to her husband. Although he will doubtless be blocked by the same rule when the time comes, it is said the district attorney may attempt in the same way to prove an alibi for Stanford White on the night he is alleged to have maltreated young Miss Nesbit.

Delmas Wins Every Point.

Nine-tenths of yesterday's sessions were spent in argument, and in nearly every instance when the smoke of conflict cleared away Mr. Delmas had won his point as to law, while Mr. Jerome in the very argument itself had got before the jury a perfect knowledge as to what his witnesses would have testified to had they been permitted. The district attorney called ten witnesses during the day, but aside from drawing the state's witnesses to the tragedy the opinion that Thaw seemed rational the night he shot and killed White, little real hearway was made.

THAW SANE NIGHT OF MURDER.

White's Brother-in-Law Tells of Talk With Thaw Before Tragedy.

New York, March 14. — The end of the Thaw trial at last seems to be in sight. Tentative plans for the final stages of the trial were agreed upon yesterday by opposing counsel. District Attorney Jerome has at last burned behind him all bridges leading to a lunacy commission and has irrevocably pointed his course to proving that Thaw was sane when he shot Stanford White, and that being sane his crime constituted murder in the first degree. Within ten days or two weeks the case should be in the jury's hands.

Played Strongest Card.

Mr. Jerome played yesterday probably the strongest card he holds—evidence which came to his knowledge but a few days ago and which undoubtedly caused him to abandon the idea of sending White's slayer to a madhouse and to try for a straightout conviction under the criminal statutes. The evidence came from Mrs. Stanford White's brother, James Clinch Smith, who told a remarkably clear, succinct story of the events of Madison Square Garden the night White was killed and of a long conversation he had with Thaw just prior to the shooting.

Thaw Talked Like Sane Man.

It seems that Thaw sat for some time with Smith during the fateful first performance of "Mam'selle Champagne" and discussed with him a variety of topics in a manner, Mr. Smith declared, such as any sane man would talk.

Attorney Delmas, for the defense, bitterly fought the introduction of this testimony for nearly two hours. He declared that Mr. Smith was properly a witness in chief and should not be allowed to testify in rebuttal. Mr. Jerome replied that he had known only for a few days the real value of Mr. Smith's testimony—the conversations with Thaw.

Hard Blow to Defense.

Justice Fitzgerald held that, in the interest of justice, the jury was entitled to all the facts. It was one of the most serious blows the judge has dealt the defense since the trial began.

NEW RATE RAISES FARE.

Wisconsin Cut Unpopular With Merchants.

La Crosse, Wis., March 14. — The new 2 1-2 cent passenger rate which just went into effect on Wisconsin railroads is raising a storm of protest from merchants of La Crosse, on the theory that while it will be a benefit to the merchants of Milwaukee and to travelers going the entire distance across the state, it works to the disadvantage of La Crosse merchants by increasing the railroad fare from nearby villages and towns.

Many instances have been found in the new tariffs published by the railroads in which the fare from towns within a radius of fifty or seventy-five miles of this city has been increased since the adoption of the 2 1-2 cent rate.

Conscience Aches; Pays.

Springfield, Ill., March 13.—Impelled by an aching conscience, T. E. Timmus has turned over $4.75 to the local passenger agent of the Illinois Central, explaining that he wanted to pay for a ride which he had taken last July on another man's pass.

Two Hurt in Runaway.

Eau Claire, Wis., March 13.—Willis E. Kent was seriously injured as the result of a runaway accident. Ephraim Lampman, his companion, escaped with slight injuries.

JEROME ATTACKS THAW AND WIFE

SAYS HUMMEL WILL SWEAR EVELYN TOLD HIM THAW HAD WHIPPED HER.

WHITE NEVER BETRAYED HER

COURT ADJOURNS EARLY TO ALLOW DELMAS TO FRAME A REPLY.

New York, March 14.—After a forenoon session occupied almost entirely by District Attorney Jerome in a bitter denunciation of the defendant and his wife, the trial of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White was adjourned shortly after 12 o'clock yesterday until this morning. The prosecuting attorney found his opportunity to attack Thaw and Evelyn Nesbit in arguing on the question of the admissibility of the testimony which Abraham Hummel, the lawyer who is under indictment for subornation of perjury in the Dodge-Morse divorce case, has to offer.

Delmas to Frame Reply.

It was to enable Delphin M. Delmas, leading counsel for the defense, to consult authorities and frame a reply to Mr. Jerome, and also to allow the latter an opportunity of completing the hypothetical question which he is to put to his experts that the early adjournment was ordered. Mr. Jerome said he hoped to close the rebuttal for the people this evening.

Thaw Whipped Evelyn.

During his argument yesterday the district attorney asserted that Hummel would swear Evelyn Nesbit told him three days after her return from Europe, in 1903 that Thaw had beaten her cruelly because she would not sign papers he had prepared, falsely accusing Stanford White of having drugged and betrayed her. Mr. Jerome contended that she had told much more; that Thaw seemed bent upon putting Stanford White that the statement that White had betrayed her was not true; that Stanford White had never harmed her, and that Thaw was consumed with rage when she refused to sign and swear to the papers containing "lies against Stanford White."

In the Penitentiary;

"These things were put in the form of an affidavit," declared Mr. Jerome, "and that affidavit was subscribed to by Evelyn Nesbit when she knew what she was doing and what the paper contained.

Delmas Objects.

"Thus," he concluded, "the jury may infer from her own statements after her return from Europe in 1903 whether or not she had within two months of that time told this defendant the things she said she did."

Dr. Delmas objected to Hummel as a witness on the ground that his testimony had to do with the truth of falsity of Mrs. Thaw's narration, and was not permissible under the rules of evidence. He will proceed with his argument to-day.

SELLS WYOMING RANCH.

Arbuckle Says Uncle Sam Has Taken Pasturage.

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 14. — John Arbuckle, the New York coffee king, has ordered the manager of his big "P. O." ranch, containing 55,000 acres and lying north of this city, to be sold at once, together with the stock, which consists of $125,000 worth of cattle and horses.

The sale is due to the recent action of the federal government in forcing Arbuckle to tear down forty-five miles of fences erected on government lands, and in the absence of a land leasing law Arbuckle has no place to range his live stock. Arbuckle has been offered $300,000 for the property.

BEAT WITH EAR TRUMPET.

Wife Asking Divorce, Declares Aged Husband Treated Her Cruelly.

Chicago, March 14. — Averring that her husband, to whom she was married before the war, beat her most unmercifully on occasions, and even at times resorted to his ear trumpet as an instrument of torture and lavished many painful whacks upon her person, Mrs. Julia Dawson, sixty-five years old, filed a bill for divorce in the circuit court.

WEDS HER DEFENDER.

Woman's Midnight Marriage in Court Follows Murder Trial.

Shreveport, La., March 14.—At midnight last night, in the court room where he had five minutes before been declared not guilty of murder, Lee Brock was married to Mrs. Hattie Kelly, the woman in defense of whose reputation he did the killing which caused the trial.

KEEPS WORD WITH PRESIDENT

SAN FRANCISCO BOARD RESCINDS ORDER BARRING JAPS FROM SCHOOL.

San Francisco, March 14.—The San Francisco board of education, keeping its word with President Roosevelt, yesterday unanimously rescinded the resolution of last October by which Japanese were segregated in the public schools, and adopted an alternative resolution in accordance with the understanding reached at the Washington conference between the president, Secretary Root, the school board and Mayor Schmitz.

The president having telegraphed Mayor Schmitz that he would direct Mr. Devlin to dismiss the suits against the board in the United States circuit court and the supreme court of California as soon as the action stated should be taken by the board, members of that body look upon the Japanese incident as now closed in so far as San Francisco is concerned.

REWARDS RUNAWAY GIRL.

Papa Is So Glad She Is Found He Says She Can Be Married.

Ottumwa, Iowa, March 14. — Nora Baker, the young high school pupil whose disappearance from her home in this city gave rise to rumors that she had met with foul play, has been found at the home of her sweetheart's parents. Her father was so overjoyed at finding his daughter alive and well that a reconciliation followed and he gave his permission for the wedding.

IS DROWNED IN WELL.

Boy Slips and Plunges Headforemost Into Water.

Deer River, Minn., March 14. — While playing about a well, the curb of which was coated with ice, the oldest son of John Wall of Marcel slipped and fell headforemost into the well. The hole through the ice being too small to permit him to turn, the boy drowned before help could reach him.

IS CAUGHT IN PULLEY.

Man's Mangled Leg Is Amputated and Shock May Be Fatal.

Albert Lea, Minn., March 14.—H. A. Spencer was caught in a pulley and before he could be released he had sustained a shocking injury to one leg, the bone being broken and the flesh terribly mangled. It was found necessary to amputate the limb. Fears are entertained that he will not recover.

GIRL DIVES FAR TO DEATH.

Leaps From Top of Thirteen-story Building, Hundreds Viewing Act.

Cincinnati, March 14. — Leaping head first from a window ledge on the thirteenth floor of the Traction building, Gertrude Hanish, aged twenty years, a stenographer, committed suicide in the sight of hundreds.

Two Killed in Wreck.

Waterloo, Iowa, March 14. — Engineer Kellogg and his fireman were killed last night in a wreck on the Chicago Great Western railroad. A car on a west-bound train jumped the track while passing an east-bound train.

LOSS OF LIFE IS CAUSED BY FLOOD

MANY TOWNS IN MONONGAHELA VALLEY SUBMERGED—PROPERTY LOSS HEAVY.

FIVE PERSONS ARE DROWNED

TWO HUNDRED PERSONS HOMELESS AND THOUSANDS OF MEN ARE IDLE.

Pittsburg, March 14.—The Monongahela, Allegheny and Ohio rivers are rising rapidly. A stage of twenty-five feet has been reached in this city and by to-day twenty-eight feet is anticipated. This stage is six feet over the danger mark and will inundate the lower portions of the city.

Reports from up-river points are alarming. Many towns in the Monongahela valley are submerged and the property loss is heavy. It is raining heavily over Western Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Three Trainmen Drowned.

The high water came so rapidly that little time was given persons in the flood district to prepare for it. A bridge at Marmarsville collapsed, precipitating a freight train into the water and drowning three trainmen; residents in the flood district were rescued from their homes in skiffs, and thousands of men are idle owing to the suspension of coal mines along the river.

Two Are Drowned.

Swept by the swollen current against the pier at Lock No. 3 last night the towboat Cruiser, owned by the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke company, was sunk and two of her crew were drowned. Two others were rescued, almost frozen, after they had been in the water an hour. Three of the crew clinging to the bow of a submerged boat were saved after a hard fight with the heavy ice which fills the stream.

Two Hundred Homeless.

Hamilton, Ohio, March 14. — Three railroads were washed out, a freight train wrecked, two hundred persons rendered homeless, one thousand thrown out of employment and $75,000 damage caused by the sudden flood of the Great Miami river, following a thunder storm yesterday.

MAY SETTLE STRIKE.

Louisville Street Car Trouble May Be Arbitrated.

Louisville, March 14.—A settlement of the strike of the union employes of the Louisville Railway company is in sight. As the result of strong pressure brought by business interests, especially the directors of the Greater Louisville exposition and the Commercial club, a conference was held yesterday afternoon.

The proceedings were kept secret, but it was learned on good authority when the conference adjourned to meet again this morning, that the commercial bodies confidently expect the strike to be in process of arbitration and car service fully resumed by tonight.

WOMAN DANCES TO DEATH.

Drops Dead Near End of Final Waltz in Program of Twenty-four.

Philadelphia, March 14.—Dancing to the music of a waltz, which brought to a close a ball, Mrs. Annie Schearer collapsed in the arms of her partner and fell over dead on the ballroom floor.

A physician who was summoned said the young woman had danced herself to death by overexertion.

There were twenty-four dances and not one was missed by the young woman.

HOSPITAL TAKES FIRE.

Damage to Milwaukee Institution Is $8,000.

Milwaukee, March 14.—The Milwaukee hospital, formerly known as the Passavant hospital, was threatened with destruction from a fire which started late yesterday afternoon in the operating room on the fourth floor of the west wing of the structure. Fortunately the blaze was subdued after damage to the extent of $8,000 had been wrought by the fire and water. No one was injured.

CHAMPION HUSKER DIES.

Strain of Feat With Corn Ears Proves Fatal.

Sidney, Iowa, March 14.—His vitality exhausted by the strain of his successful effort to break the world's corn husking record, Ora Haskins, formerly of this place, died at a hospital in Lincoln, Neb. On Nov. 29 last Haskins performed the feat of husking 217 bushels of corn in ten hours.

J. J. Hill Gives $2,000.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 14.—The Commercial club of Grand Forks yesterday received from President Hill of the Great Northern Railway company a check for $2,000 as his contribution toward the new St. Michael's hospital.

TOTAL DEAD MAY REACH 120

FULL EXTENT OF CASUALTIES ON FRENCH WARSHIP NOT YET KNOWN.

Toulon, March 14.—The efforts to recover the bodies of those killed by the explosion on the French battleship Iena here Tuesday have not yet resulted in definitely fixing the number of casualties. After the last roll call last night there were still unaccounted for eight officers and 110 men. There is little doubt that all these perished. The roll call was appied only to the crew of the Iena, but as it is believed that some twelve or fifteen arsenal hands were at work on the battleship it is feared that the total of dead will reach 120. The naval hospital here has been instructed to prepare mortuary space for that number.

Fifty bodies were recovered during the day, but only twelve could be recognized. The others were formless masses of charred flesh.

HEAVY RAINS CAUSE WRECK.

Engineer, Fireman and Brakeman Killed as Train Plunges Over Bridge.

Pittsburg, March 14. — Three men drowned, a railroad bridge washed away and an engine and five freight cars precipitated into the water are the first results of the rapid rise during the night of Deer creek, near Har-

ALL 'ROUND SLUMP IN STOCK MARKET

MOST SENSATIONAL DECLINE IN PRICES FOR A PERIOD OF SEVERAL YEARS.

HILL AND HARRIMAN SUFFER

NO NEWS TO ACCOUNT FOR THE BREAK—FINAL SLUMP AT CLOSE.

New York, March 14. — The most sensational decline in prices for several years occurred on the stock market yesterday. Except that money rates were higher and that the tone on the foreign exchanges was unfavorable, there was no news to account for the break in prices. The market opened weak under the influence of lower prices for Americans abroad and the drop in consols to the lowest price since 1886. At first the downward movement was gradual and the selling did not appear to be of an urgent character, but as soon as the rate for call money got above 6 per cent heavy blocks of stock were offered for sale, apparently without regard to price and the downward trend of quotations became precipitate.

Hill and Harriman Hit.

Breaks from one-half to a point between sales were frequent, and the buying power was so limited that it seemed to be difficult in some of the weaker features to execute selling orders. It was noticed that weakness centered in Reading, the Harriman railroads and the Hill stocks, and the weakness of the latter was closely associated in the minds of the professional traders with the departure for Europe yesterday of J. Pierpont Morgan. The drop in Reading was as rapid and as sensational yesterday as was the sharp upward movement in the same stock a week ago, but there was no more news to account for the day's movement than there was for the former one.

Slump Follows Rally.

After the decline had reached its full momentum, about midday, there was a rally, followed by another break, which in turn was succeeded by a renewal of the rally, but the better tone did not hold, and just before the close there was a final slump, with the list generally weak and prices at or near the lowest of the day.

BANK'S HEAD A SUICIDE.

President of Canton (Ohio) Institution Shoots Himself.

Canton, Ohio, March 14. — Horace G. McDowell, president of the Farmers' bank of Canton, shot and killed himself at his country home yesterday morning. He was known throughout Ohio as a breeder and buyer of high-class sheep.

The Spectator.

ST. HILAIRE, . . MINNESOTA.

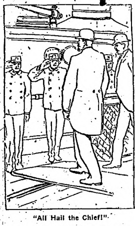
Rather Mean Trick Played on Man Over Impressed with His Own Importance—Took Ceremony as His Just Due.

A former chief engineer of the volunteer fire department in the little town of Hinsdale, N. H., who is well known throughout New England for his great dignity, gruff manners and small stature, took a pleasure trip to New York some time since with a friend who was not lacking in a sense of humor. They decided to inspect the fireboats in the harbor, those powerful engines which can throw an avalanche of water, compared to which the old hand-tub, the engine of the Hinsdale department, could throw but a drop to a bucket.

The chief's friend managed to slip a word to one of the officers about the chief's appreciation of himself and his position. When, therefore, the visiting party boarded the fire-tug they found the crew lined up in double row. An officer inquired about the personality of their leader, and back came the reply: "Chief of the Hinsdale fire department:" Instantly every hand came to the salute, and as one voice the crew repeated: "All hail the chief!"

With perfect gravity the chief boarded the boat, taking the ceremony as his just due while behind him his companions' faces were wreathed in smiles, and as he passed along the line the crew might be seen doubling up as though taken with cramps.

This same chief will be remembered for an incident which occurred a few years later. His unpopularity came to a climax at the spring town meeting, and whereas he had received his office of chief engineer year after year by acclamation, and had indeed served the town well, this year there were votes printed and it was decided to vote by ballot.



"All Hail the Chief!"

Teh town clerk was elected by a motion from the floor instructing the moderator to cast one ballot for the chosen candidate. Then followed balloting for chief engineer, which resulted in a new man having 177 to the former chief's 1.

Following this a wag stepped up to the ex-chief and said: "How's this, chief; here the town clerk has one vote and is elected, while you have one vote and are not elected?"

But for the timely interference of friends a lively fight would have ensued.

Human Penholders.

A man who lives in Manhattan has hit upon an unusual scheme whereby he always carries his writing pen with him. He has been letting the nail of his forefinger grow for more than a year, until now it is nearly an inch long and it is cut and shaped like the nib of a goose quill pen. Whenever he wishes to use pen and ink he dips his finger into the ink and scribbles along at a very rapid rate.

Writing in this way was not as easy as it looked. With no long holder to give the hand balance and with an entirely different position of the hand and fingers to master, this human penholder found that it required some practice and skill to do as well with his novel instrument as with the ordinary one.

Water From Pennsylvania Mines.

Over 500,000,000 gallons of water are pumped out of the anthracite coal mines of Pennsylvania every day in the year. The exact average for 1905 was 633,000,000 gallons a day. Nearly 1,000 powerful engines, delivering from mine bottom to surface 500,000 gallons of water a minute, are required. Mines may be shut down and coal production suspended, but the water flows on forever. According to the Iron Age, the cost of removing it is one of the important items of expense that make up the price of anthracite.

Houses of Whale Bones.

Not very long ago there was on the coast of Lancashire, England, a cottage and boathouse that were made almost entirely from the remains of a score or so of whales that had been driven ashore some years before. The framework of the edifice consisted wholly of whalebone, and the dried skins of the huge creatures were neatly and strongly fastened as a covering for walls and roof. There is another building of exactly the same kind in Scotland, and in this case the skulls of the whales and some of the heavier bones are used with great effect as outside ornaments.

Soldier's Gold Watch.

A soldier of the First regiment of artillery named Jules Corneloup was, says the Paris Figaro, leaving the station of the Metropolitan at the Avenue de Suffren when a passer-by said: "Look out, you're going to lose your watch."

He looked down and found a magnificent gold watch hanging by a chain to a button of his dolman. It had evidently been caught in the crowd and remained hanging to the button.

FIRST WOMAN PROFESSOR OF FAMOUS FRENCH SCHOOL

Madame Curie, Who With Her Husband Discovered Radium, Is Honored.

Fitting reward has come to Mme. Curie. This noted French woman, partner in the discovery of that wonderful new agent, radium, has just been elected professor at the noted French academy, Sorbonne, being the first woman to whom the honor has ever fallen.

Recently Mme. Curie delivered her inaugural lecture before one of the most distinguished audiences it would be possible to muster even in Paris, that city of savants. Peculiar pathos attended the occasion, and had its principal been anything less than a woman of extraordinary capacity, she might not have been able to carry through her part.

It was within a day of two years when on the same platform her husband delivered his celebrated address on radium, and told the world that a new epoch had been reached, a new force harnessed for the benefit of mankind.

In this address he went to most painstaking extremes to give full credit to his wife for her share in the discovery of this mysterious concentrated salt that represents a power hitherto undreamed of.

Some of his auditors felt at that time that his husbandly affection carried away his judgment, that he went too far in praising the share Mme. Curie had contributed, but events since the tragic death of Mr. Curie have shown that he did but simple justice to his wife.

The lecture of the late M. Curie at the Sorbonne was the official announcement of radium. Those of his widow will deal with the development of its applications, for since the discovery of radium and her husband's death, she has been constantly pushing forward her investigations regarding the wonderful mineral.

She to whom this responsibility is entrusted, was a pupil at the Sorbonne only a few years ago, so was that husband, of whom all speak now as one of the foremost French students of the geeration.

Madame Curie is Polish by birth, her name before marriage was Mlle. Skadowska.

Even in those days she ranked as a notable student, for in her pupil stage she discovered thorium, a metal much resembling radium in its radio-active qualities.

Prof. Curie was then teaching at the school.

The chemical professor and the Polish pupil married; he was many years her senior. Then they hid themselves away in a tumble-down sort of house in one of the most dismal streets in what remains of the old Latin quarter.

But material discomforts mattered little to this pair. Their surroundings might be squalid, but they knew nothing of it, for their minds were soaring in that serene realm that is open only to science and art.

Here Madame Curie did serious work, and there was nothing dainty or attractive about it. Enveloped in a huge apron she sat for hours watching by her retorts over the furnaces, tending liquified substances that had to be kept at a certain fixed temperature. What she was experimenting with was the boiled down residum of tons of a dark kind of earth imported from Bohemia.

One day there emerged from this stuff a spark, a speck so small that a microscope was needed to inspect it. The quest was over. Radium was discovered, and the fame of Curie had been made for all time.

DOMESTIC SIDE OF MADAM CURIE'S LIFE.
Madam and Her Child.

Not only his, but that of his helpful, able wife. Curie put himself on record at once as insisting that she be given fullest credit for her part.

The reward came quickly, and Prof. Curie was at once offered the chair at the Sorbonne. Most men of his moderate means would have accepted eagerly, but Curie imposed two conditions, first, that his wife should be officially named as his coadjutor, and second, that a properly equipped laboratory be supplied in which they could go still further in their researches.

Among some of the Sorbonne savants there was at first a tendency to quibble, but Curie had his way.

It is the purpose of Madame Curie to follow out even to the smallest details the life of her husband. Like him she will refuse all decorations and rewards that are purely personal.

The position which her promotion gives Madame Curie in France can hardly be understood in the United States, where little attention is paid to scientific discoveries until they are perfected and assume a definite financial value.

All France is interested in radium, this wonderful concentrated salt. The difficulties of getting the pitch-blend with which to make it, are well known, and the cost so tremendous that an American millionaire is credited with having offered half a million dollars for the first piece that Prof. Curie and his wife obtained.

Radium continually emenatés rays that are capable of penetrating any known substance. Several tons of earth are required to produce two grains of radium, but the result is worth while, for the product is all powerful and eternally powerful. Radium never loses any of its strength. Put a few grains in a tin box and suddenly bring them in front of human eyes, and the effect is just the same as though a flood of sunlight had been turned on the optics.

Put the same tin box against a person's skin—only for an instant, longer may be dangerous—and no immediate consequences will show, but in fifteen days or thereabouts a serious scar, as though from a burn, will develop. If the skin is kept in contact with the box or tube containing radium for any length of time a terrible and perhaps fatal wound results.

During his experiments Prof. Curie burned himself so terribly that he always kept his hands in his pockets when in the presence of strangers, so sensitive had he become as to their frightful appearance.

In its effect in contact with human tissue radium is similar to the X-ray.

That for which France, and, in fact, the world hopes most from the researches of Mme. Curie, is that experiments now being carried on for the treatment of lupus cancer by the use of radium will succeed.

The entire world of science may be said to wait on the work of this woman for its next advance in the direction of an all-powerful curative.

Her Sincere Prayer.

There had been a dressmaker in the house, and Minnie had listened to long discussions about the very latest fashions. That night, when she said her prayers, she added a new petition, uttered with unwonted fervency:

"And, dear Lord, please make us all very stylish."

ONE OCEAN LITTLE KNOWN

Vast Area Between Africa and India Traveled Less Than Formerly.

Perchance of no area of our great oceans do we at the present day know less than of the Indian ocean within the tropics. Fifty years ago in the days of the great China and Indian clippers it was, save for a small area to the north of Madagascar, alive with white wings anxious to take advantage of every slant of wind or the smallest current. Its minutest characteristics were then the subject of anxious study, whereas now its greater part is to most navigators an unknown sea.

With the opening of the Suez canal there was a profound alteration of trade and the most important routes now start not from Mauritius or the Cape, but from the Red sea. Hundreds of steamers, laughing at winds and currents, pass annually from Aden to Bombay and Colombo on the one hand and to East African ports, to Madagascar, Mauritius and Seychelles on the other.

From Colombo again there are regular lines to Calcutta, Singapore, West Australia, Mauritius and South Africa. But except on the lines from the Red sea to Colombo and from the latter to the Far East and to Australia there is a relative absence of competition, a want of that necessity for accurate knowledge of the winds, currents and topography which is only called forth by a keen desire for saving time or mileage.

The routes across her surface are also wide apart and her islands are commercially unimportant. Great areas are seldom or never crossed by ships. In our six months' cruise on his majesty's ship, the Selkirk, we never saw except in port a single steamer and only one solitary brig, a small trader from Mauritius to the Chagos.—Geographical Journal.

A Slight Hitch.

Stranger—Sir, do you remember giving a poor, friendless tramp 50 cents one cold night last winter?

Jones—I do!

"Sir, I am that tramp; that 50 cents was the turning point in my career; with it I got a shave, a shine, a meal and a job. I save dmy money, went to Alaska, made a million dollars and last week I came back to New York to share my millions with you. But, unfortunately, I struck Wall street before I struck you—and—have you another 50 cents that you could conveniently spare, sir?"

Locomotion.

"I know the service is bad," acknowledged the traction magnate; "but we are about to take steps to improve it."

"If you have to take as many steps to get home as I do," exclaimed the indignant Northsider, "you'd do something to improve it right away!"

ROMANTIC MARRIAGES FOR FAMOUS BEAUTIES

The Much-Pictured "Fencing Girl" and the "Girl With the Angel Face."

Two romances, culminating at almost the same time, have just sent into wedlock "The Fencing Girl" and the "Girl With the Angel Face."

Miss Blanche Mecredy is the former, Miss Violet Blossom Conrad the latter.

Roy Atwell, leading man in the Marie Cahill company, has led the "Fencing Girl" to the altar, while Charles Ridgely Ellicott has given his name to the girl with the angelic features.

All over the United States the beauty of these two girls is known. The picture of a nattily attired fencing girl, seated in the corner of a fencing room, with one knee gracefully crossed over the other, on her shapely breast the red mark which indicates to her opponent the heart, his vital mark, is one of the most popular pictures of the last ten years. It has gone into thousands of American homes and clubs.

Miss Conrad is a bit less known to the general public, perhaps, but among artists her fame is still greater.

The very forefront of our painters and sculptors, such men as Blashfield, Alphonse Mucha, Daniel French, Anderson and Christie, have called on Miss Conrad when they desired to get a model for angels. In a dozen notable works of art, the serenely beautiful features of Miss Conrad have gone.

Neither of the ladies needed to pose, in each instance it was only the persuasions of friends that made them permit the use of their faces and figures. Both had fathers whose means put them beyond need of earning a living. The "Fencing Girl's" father is Robert C. Mecredy, a former Philadelphia councilman. Miss Conrad is a daughter of the late Maj. Casper H. Conrad of the United States infantry.

Miss Mecredy is an expert swordswoman. It was quite by accident that the famous picture suggested itself. She had been fencing and was resting, when one of her friends remarked what an artistic and entrancing figure she presented. Then it was proposed that she have her picture taken in costume. She did so, and the picture in a hundred different forms, from a cheap kind, selling for 10 cents, to one that was worth that many dollars, went from one end of the United States to the other.

Under the name of "Blanche West" she joined the Marie Cahill company.

Here she met Roy Atwell, who made a hit by his "Willie Drinkwater" in one of Miss Cahill's performances.

"How much your face reminds me of some one I have seen before," said Mr. Atwell after the presentation.

"Easily explained," responded Miss Mecredy, who had frequently been through the experience. "I posed for the "Fencing Girl."

"Did you?" he replied. "How curious; I have a copy of it in my den. I have long thought it one of the most graceful and artictic pictures I ever saw."

Naturally with such a start as that, the rest was easy. In no time Miss Mecredy and Mr. Atwell were in the midst of a romance, for he had reached her heart just as skillfully as though in every-day life she wore her heart on her breast, the red mark that is part of the fencing make-up.

Mayor George B. McClellan of New York, a personal friend of the bridegroom, had also admiration for the "Fencing Girl" picture, a copy of which hangs in his den, and willingly consented to officiate at the ceremony that made the couple man and wife.

The romance of Miss Conrad's marriage to Mr. Ellicott related principally to the ceremony itself, and the unexpected way it was brought about. The guest of honor at a surprise party, "the girl with the angel face" suddenly turned the function into a wedding by introducing into the company a minister and the man she intended to marry. No one had any preliminary notice and the shock the ceremony gave the company was far greater than the original surprise planned by her friends for Miss Conrad.

"The Girl With the Angel Face" got the title on the occasion of her debut in Washington society, where her sponsor was Mrs. Nelson A. Miles.

MRS. CHARLES RID GELEY ELLICOTT,
The "Girl With the Angel Face."

Before going to Washington she had lived in Fort Randall, S. D. Her father was in command there. The young girl, the beautiful daughter of the commandant, was a pet of the whole regiment, and on the free open plains she grew to a fine height and beauty of proportion that matches her face.

When Miss Conrad went to Washington she was a queen in figure, standing exactly six feet tall, and an angel in face.

The term "angel" was quickly fastened on her by artists, who noticed the long oval face, with the broad, low forehead and straight Greek nose, showing no indentation at the bridge. Her eyes are far apart, of a gray-blue with dark lashes. Miss Conrad's hair is light, and she parted it in the middle, loosely coiled in the nape of her neck. The beautiful chin and mouth completed the picture that won her the name that still clung to her.

Posing was not to Miss Conrad's taste, but she yielded to the importunities of those who wanted to put her features on canvas and chisel them out of marble.

In Mr. Blashfield's famous painting, "Progress," which is now in the state house at Des Moines, Iowa, Violet Conrad appears as a triplicity of angels.

Miss Conrad's father, who was a hero of Santiago and El Caney, has been dead for eight years, and Miss Conrad lived with her mother in New York.

Recently that estimable lady thought it would be a delightful surprise for her daughter to give her a party on her twenty-third birthday, taking into her confidence a number of friends of "the girl with the angel face," she arranged the affair for a hotel.

Strictest confidence was enjoined on every one invited, but unfortunately the list of guests included Mr. Ellicott, who, without the knowledge of any one else had been engaged to Miss Conrad for a long time.

"Let's give them a real surprise," suggested Mr. Ellicott to Miss Conrad, when he told her in confidence of the proposed affair. Why not turn the surprise party into a wedding ceremony."

Miss Conrad warmed up to the humor of the idea and assisted in the plans.

On the night of the party she was summoned to the hotel and ushered into a banquet room, where all her friends were seated. On the table was a big birthday cake.

Miss Conrad pretended great surprise, but joined heartily in the merry-making.

Late in the evening she was called on to respond to a toast. Then she unloosened her surprise.

"My friends," she said, "I can't tell you how gratified I am, but knowing that it is better to give than to receive, I, too, have planned a little surprise. I want you all to meet Mr. Ellicott, who in a few minutes will be my husband."

Almost before the startled guests could decide whether or not a joke was being played the Rev. Dr. Warren had united the pair in wedlock, and an orchestra concealed behind screens was playing the wedding march from "Lohengrin."

Then the birthday cake had to do duty for a wedding cake.

STRANGE TRIBES OF INDIANS

Crarations of North Carolina Lighter Than Any Other Redskin People.

Senator Overman of North Carolina enlightened his colleagues recently on a bit of romantic American history which few of them had ever heard. He told them that down in his state there is a tribe of Indians unlike any other of the aborigines that had ever been known or written about.

This tribe lives in Robertson county, where for generations it has had its home, and its tribal name is Craraton. Just where the Craratons came from is shrouded in mystery and romance. They are lighter color than any other indians known, have lived for a century or more just as white people, own their homes and farms, are clannish to a marked degree, never intermarrying with the whites, and enjoy all the rights and privileges of the white citizens of the state.

There is a tradition that they are the descendants of the women of the first colony brought to North Carolina by Sir Walter Raleigh. He settled this colony on Roanoke island and soon sailed back to England for others. When the bold mariner returned to the settlement he had founded in the new world for his royal mistress he found it utterly deserted and was unable to get any trace of his colonists Cut in the bark of a tree near what had been the cented of the settlement was the word "Craration."

The legend is that a tribe of aborigines of this name had swooped down upon the colonists, killed the men, thrown their bodies into the sea and taken the women captive back to their tribe. From this mixed stock is supposed to have come the Craratons who now form in North Carolina one of the most unique body of citizens in the country.

FORGOTTEN IRONSIDES.

Removal of Scots Greys Recalls an Incident of Long Ago.

The tyranny of Mr. Haldame in removing the Scots Greys from Edinburgh has brought to light again a long ago forgotten incident of military interest to Scotland. Years ago, in Cromwell's time, an island off the coast of Scotland was garrisoned by a number of Ironsides, and they were actually forgotten. At any rate the troops were never withdrawn, and record avers that the men intermarried with the islanders and became a part of the local population. The fort—or, rather the ruins of it—in which Cromwell's soldiers were stationed, may still be seen by the curious.

The Pressing Need.

THE WARDROBE OF THE EASTER BRIDE

The shops of the modistes are humming with the stitching of the gown of the Easter bride. Say what you will the bride's trosseau grows more and more elaborate, and this season it is decreed that there shall not be less than a dozen handsome complete gowns, to say nothing of the dozens of blouses, lingerie and otherwise, the separate coats and the negligees all in the trousseau of the Easter bride.

The Easter bride will be a creature of plaids and checks this year; she will be gowned in stripes and shadows and in many a delicate dress combination. She will wear linings of the most brilliant cross-bar plaids; and all her clothes, from her lingerie outward, will bear some trace of the plaid styles.

The going-away gown of the Easter bride will include a little coat which, to be in style, must be slightly elongated this season. Instead of being cut off at the waist line it is tight fitting and below the hip length. It is cut somewhat on the blazer order, sloping sharply away in front. But this only makes it the prettier, as it reveals the very smart lingerie waists underneath, and sets smartly to the form.

Most likely the traveling dress of the very modern bride will consist of coat and skirt that are entirely different. The skirt will be a soft wool plaid, in brown and tan. The plaids will be rather shadowy and there will be very little trimming except a hem around the foot and a few tucks.

Perhaps the bride will prefer a very elaborate foot design in stitched taffeta bands, which are considered very smart upon a wool check, or she may like a trimming of soutache.

The jacket in this case is a soft gray green broadcloth of light weight. It is buttoned with a set of three green enamel buttons and the bride carries in her hand a green enamel handbag, which just matches the buttons. Her gloves are glazed tan gloves and her hat is a gray straw, trimmed with green plumes, with one big red rose stuck in the side in a French fashion.

COPPER-COLORED RECEPTION GOWN WITH GOLD FLOWERS.

Spring Brides in Brown.

If the bride has a preference for brown—and there will be many brides dressed in brown—then there comes a chance for the pretty little brown jackets, which are worn so much this spring. The jacket may be one of the little pony coats, trimmed with braid, all in different shades of brown, while the skirt is a plaid, maybe a red and green plaid. There is no limit to the extent to which plaids are to be worn. The hat is brown straw, trimmed with red roses, and the bridal traveling gown is finished with bag, gloves, umbrella and neck ruffle, all of brown.

Very few traveling dresses are all of a color this season. And the majority of them are made with coat to contrast with the skirt. But there are pretty [illegible] suits that are made up in the bolero and corselet skirt styles, and others in the cutaway style.

The bolero comes into vogue each season with much persistence. And this year is no exception to the rule that the bolero is fashionable every spring. There are countless numbers of the little suits, and the modistes say that there will be countless more. Certainly no trousseau is complete without at least one bolero suit.

One of the handsomest gowns in the trousseau of a bride-to-be is made of rose-colored cloth in a grade that resembles cashmere. The skirt is a corselt skirt, coming up high upon the bust, and the bolero is a dainty little trifle, trimmed with stitched bands of taffeta and a quantity of soutache. This little coat is worn over a lingerie blouse that is nearly all lace. It is so open that it plainly shows the delicate lace corset cover run with its pink satin ribbons of narrow width.

The Easter bride will rejoice in a number of separate coats which will include the long coat usually designated as an opera cloak. But this season the dressy long cloak will be greatly in demand for day affairs when one wears a lace waist and a delicately colored skirt.

The bride will doubtless have an embroidered muslin, a chiffon muslin, one or two India lawns and mull and any number of lingerie waists finished up in colors. This is the very latest fashion idea, namely the finishing up of the lingerie waist in contrasting tone. One of the prettiest of these waists was in pale yellow lace combined with muslin of very thin quality. This makes as handsome a waist as one would want to wear on any occasion, day or evening.

Little Necks of Lace.

The decollete gown is always appropriate for certain evening occasions. But there is a growing tendency to wear a lace necker, and this means that there will be some very handsome and very fine lace necks. One lovely neck was of the most delicate lace set into an evening gown of chiffon mull, the most delicate thing imaginable. The whole gown was made over white chiffon. And this was, in turn, lined with white taffeta, so as to give the gown some foundation.

There is little need of making up a very fine gown this spring without lining it in some way. It will not keep its shape and will soil soon and become a spoiled article of dress. The French modistes are lining lace gowns with a very becoming pale rose chiffon; and they are treating other dresses to linings of pale blue, white and gold color.

The bride must look well to her gloves, which are plentifully embroidered this year. They come in all the pastel tones, as high as the shoulder, and richly embroidered upon the backs in silks of many colors. The design is always a delicate one and the tones are pale so that there is nothing that would offend the taste or conflict with the other colors of the wardrobe.

MINNESOTA STICKS TO GRAIN LAW

North Dakota Legislature's Request for Changes Is Refused and Charges Are Denied—Minnesota's Answer Explains Grain Inspection Laws of That State.

The legislative assembly of North Dakota, some time previous to its adjournment, adopted a concurrent resolution which was transmitted to the Minnesota legislature, in which certain complaints or charges were made regarding the grain inspection laws of Minnesota. The Minnesota legislature was requested to change or amend the laws so as to remove the alleged evils complained of.

In reply the Minnesota legislature adopted a concurrent resolution which denied the charges and declined to make any changes in the Minnesota laws. The Minnesota resolution said in part:

There has never been any opposition on the part of any legal authority of this state to the establishment of an "equitable grain inspection law at Superior, Wis.," nor any attempt to prevent a competitive market at that place.

The Minnesota inspection and weighing laws are considered by the grain trade to be the best and most efficient laws of their kind in vogue. Minnesota inspection and weighing certificates are accepted the world over as prima facie evidence of what they stand for. The laws have proved themselves acceptable to the grain producers of this and other states, and no complaint has been received from any other state.

Minnesota grain hospitals, or mixing houses, have improved the condition of hundreds of thousands of bushels of Minnesota and North Dakota wheat, and it follows that the owner of such a mixing house is entitled to a just reward for his labor, and this he receives in the higher price which he obtains for the better grade of grain that he has established. The business is perfectly legitimate from a legal and commercial standpoint. No mixing of grain is permitted in any of the public terminal elevators of this state.

There is nothing in the Minnesota laws that prevents the erection and operation of terminal elevators by any person so disposed.

Evidence submitted to the legislature shows that the suction draft, so-called, does not in a material manner affect the weight of grain and the dockage taken. A subcommittee inspected this process in actual operation. The removal of grain from a car was viewed from the time the doors were opened until the contents were deposited in the hopper scales at the top floor of the elevator. From this car, weighing 63,090 pounds, there was collected a total waste of four pounds and seven ounces. There would be very little dockage to account for if the grain was cleaned before it was loaded for shipment. The Minnesota dockage of grain is applied under the most liberal rules to the shipper, who is given the benefit of the doubt as to the amount of dockage to be taken. The average dockage per bushel for wheat for ten years in this state was 19.8 ounces.

The system of car inspection for "bad-order" cars stands in the front rank of all such inspection systems.

A congress held in Chicago in December, 1906, adopted a standard of uniform grades for grain, which are practically the official grades now in force in this state. A delegate convention held in London, England, recently, approved the Manitoba and Minnesota inspection of grain, to the exclusion of any other system.

Accompanying the Minnesota resolution was a detailed description showing how the work is performed under the Minnesota law. It says in part:

When a carload of grain reaches the terminal market it is placed by the railroad company upon special tracks, called "inspection tracks," which are provided in each railroad yard.

A state sampler first takes the record of the car number and initials, and also records the number of the seal that he breaks in order to enter the car. He then takes a hollow brass tube, called a "probe," and by plunging this probe down through the grain to the bottom of the car in several places he secures a fair sample of the grain throughout the whole load. The sampler then re-seals the car and keeps a record of the state seal applied.

A sample of the grain is also taken by a chamber of commerce sampler, which is given to the consignee of the car.

The sample obtained by the state sampler is then taken to the state inspection office, where under a proper light it is carefully inspected by expert inspectors. The grade and dockage, if there is any dockage, is then determined by means of apparatus adapted to the work, consisting of finely adjusted scales and sieves of different kinds.

If the shipper or the consignee is not satisfied with either grade or dockage on the car in question, it is his privilege to call for a reinspection. The case is then carefully reviewed by the chief deputy inspector or the assistant chief deputies. In case the parties interested are still dissatisfied, an appeal can be called for, which means that the merits of the case would then be considered by the state board of appeals, a board of three members. The grade and dockage as determined by them is final.

The rules that govern the grading and dockage of grain are established at the beginning of each grain year by the members of the board of appeals, consisting of six members, three at Minneapolis and three at Duluth.

Another particular duty of the inspection department during their work in the railroad yards is to make an examination of each car of grain for any leaky conditions that might exist.

When the grade and dockage has been finally determined, a certificate of inspection is issued.

Again the car load of grain comes under the direct supervision of the state department, for the state weigher at once makes a careful examination of the car to detect any bad order condition, and a most complete record is made of any such condition found.

At the large elevators in the system where the weighing is done on hopper scales in the cupola, two men are employed, one being stationed up stairs where the weighing is done, and the other man supervises the handling of the grain down stairs.

After the examination of the car has been completed and the seal record secured, the car is placed at the unloading pit, where by means of powerful steam shovels the grain is unloaded. It is elevated directly to the garner, which is the large receiving hopper located just above the scale hopper. After the scale has been properly balanced and closed, the grain is drawn down from the garner into the scale hopper.

The grain is then carefully weighed by the state weigher, and the original entry of weight is made according to law in the record book provided for the purpose.

He then takes a specially arranged ticket, and by means of the type-registering device with which all scales are equipped on which state weights are given he obtains a type-printed record.

Since an incorrect record cannot be obtained from the type-register, provided it is not actually out of order, it is practically impossible for error to enter into the work of weighing under the present system.

However, no man would assert that mistakes cannot possibly be made in some part of the operation, for as long as man is infallible an error will occasionally occur.

Another check upon the work is the fact that all through the weighing operation the state weigher has not been alone in the work, for the mill or elevator weigher has been present all the time, and as a result two men are enabled to compare their work and figures as an extra precaution against mistakes.

When the shipper of a car load of grain obeys the law by placing a card in the car giving the shipping weight, an immediate investigation is made if there is an apparent discrepancy between the state weight and shipping weight.

Where track scales are used instead of hopper scales, the loaded car is uncoupled from all other cars, placed upon the scale platform and weighed. Then when the grain has been unloaded the empty car is weighed to obtain the tare weight. his tare weight is deducted from the gross weight to determine the net weight. A complete record of the work is kept the same as in hopper scale weighing, and the work checked by the type-registering device previously mentioned.

The state weighing department thoroughly investigates all claims that arise in the work, and no effort is considered too great if in the end a just settlement can be obtained.

The state stands as an arbitrator between the seller and buyer; it treats both with equal fairness; it is disinterested as to the financial interest involved, its only care being to see that justice is done.

The state weighers who do the weighing are each under a substantial security bond of $5,000, and while they are thus held liable for the results of their work, still they are wholly independent, not knowing to whom a single car of grain belong which they weigh, and they also know that the tenure of their office is not dependent upon the good or ill will of mill or elevator people at whose industries they might be stationed.

A close supervision is kept over all the scales on which state weights are given, and this work does not mean ordinary care in the use of the scales, but means a complete and severe test up to full capacity of every scale in the system.

At the state weighmaster's office an official certificate of weight is issued bearing upon its face the car number, initial, contents and state weight, together with the time and place of weighing. This certificate is stamped with the seal of the office of the state weighmaster and forms the basis of settlement between seller and buyer in the matter of weight.

Another very important branch of the state weighing service is the system of watching or patrol, whereby the cars loaded are continually watched while going through the terminal yards to detect any leaking conditions that might exist, as well as to guard against pilferage.

Say "Cure" Aided Death.

St. Cloud, Minn., March 13.—Alleging that the treatment given, instead of effecting a cure, hastened his death, the heirs of Casper Pick have entered before Probate Judge Klasen an objection to the allowance of the claim of Dr. M. Gau against the estate of the deceased.

Blaze in Hudson Church.

Hudson, Wis., March 13.—Fire broke out in the Baptist church in this city while the Young People's society was in session. The flames were extinguished before the fire department arrived.

Falls Dead in Saloon.

St. Paul, March 13.—Dominic Courtis, an Italian employed as a section boss at Havre, Mont., dropped dead in B. Rossini's saloon. Death was due to heart failure.

Delirious Man Killed by Cars.

St. Paul, March 13.—Robert O. Glanville, a patient at the city hospital, escaped last night, clad in his nightgown, ran two blocks and was killed by a passenger train as he was crossing the railway tracks.

Archie Still Improving.

Washington, March 13.—Archie Roosevelt, the president's son, who is ill with diphtheria, continues to improve. There was no setback and he rested easily last evening.

GIRL NOT THE ATTRACTION.

Young Man Claimed Other Reason for Regular Calls.

On this occasion, when shown into the parlor, the young man did not find Lucille waiting for him as usual, and after five minutes had passed and he was beginning to wonder, her father appeared and said:

"Harold, I wish to have a word with you this evening."

Her Father Appeared and Said: "A Word with You This Evening."

"Yes, sir."

"You have been coming here two evenings a week for the last three or four months."

"Yes, sir. Yes, I have been coming here two evenings a week."

"And our friends are beginning to put two and two together."

"Yes, sir."

"I mean by that that they think it time I asked your intentions toward Lucille."

"My intentions!" exclaimed Harold in surprise.

"Yes, sir. If you are in love with my daughter and wish to marry her—"

"Miss Lucille is an admirable young lady, sir, but I must say that I had no intentions, as you call them. I might have later on, but up to the present time I have simply thought of her as a most charming young lady."

"Then let me ask why you have called so regularly?"

"Why, to play poker with you, sir. Some evenings I have never even caught sight of your daughter. It was your suggestion the first time I called that we play poker, and we have kept it up ever since, and I am about $50 out of pocket."

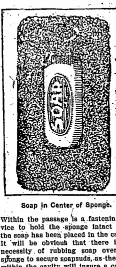
"Oh, I see," observed the father after a moment, and he led the way into the library and proceeded to beat the young man out of another week's salary.

SOAP INSIDE THE SPONGE.

Massachusetts Woman Invents Really Valuable Combination.

A Massachusetts woman has combined the uses of a sponge and a cake of soap in a novel manner. She does away with the usual method of soaping the sponge and then applying it to the skin or the object that is to be cleaned. Instead she employs a rubber sponge, in the center of which is a chamber or cavity.

In this chamber she places a cake of soap, the latter being inserted through a passageway leading from the chamber to the outer surface of the sponge.



Soap in Center of Sponge.

Within the passage is a fastening device to hold the sponge intact after the soap has been placed in the cavity. It will be obvious that there is no necessity of rubbing soap over the sponge to secure soapsuds, as the soap within the cavity will insure a continuous supply, the suds working to the outside of the sponge through the pores. Besides being useful as a toilet sponge, the device would also be found advantageous for all cleaning purposes.

Set in Her Way.

Dot took her city cousin out to the hen house to get the eggs, but the speckled hen was on her nest, determined to set, and Dot did not dare to take her off. "We can't get these eggs, Bert," she said, "for old Spreckle is awful setty and she is so cross I'm afraid of her."

Romance in a Banana.

A Handsworth (Eng.) servant girl had a singular romance arising out of a love letter which she found inside a banana. When preparing a banana for the table she noticed a bird's quill projecting, and inside was a letter written in the smallest characters, but legible.

The writer enclosed his address and stated that he was engaged upon the Jamaica plantation. His life was very lonely and he desired a mate to share his loneliness. The girl decided to answer the letter, and two months later received a further reply repeating the offer of marriage.

Correspondence continued for about a year. Both were looking forward to marriage, when, unfortunately for the Jamaica planter, a former soldier lover of the young lady appeared on the scene and the wedding with the old sweetheart has now been fixed.

Bears at Hibernating Time.

Many bears that hibernate dig into a hillside to find a nest, but for a mild winter they are likely to roll up in some shallow excavation or a hollow tree.

Different Shades.

The celebrated medium rapped three times on the black cabinet.

"And now, kind sir," she said in a spooky voice, "what would you like me to tell you about?"

"Why," replied the little man in the audience, "I would like you to tell me the shade my wife told me to match when I started down town to-day."

Reaction.

With a heavy sigh the candidate threw himself on the lounge in the family sitting room.

"Maria," he said, "the election is going against me. I am sure to be defeated."

"Then," spoke his wife, in a cold, metallic voice, "I don't get the fine new bonnet you were going to buy for me when you were elected!"

"By George!" he exclaimed brightening up. "I hadn't thought of that!"

A Relative.

During our last election I listened to a colored man who was trying to swear in his vote. He had a friend aong as a witness.

"Is this man related to you?" asked the judge.

"In what way is he related to you?" continued the judge.

"His wife do ma washin', sah."

GENERAL BREAKDOWN

A Condition Which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the Great Blood Tonic, Have Been Curing for Years.

There is no more perplexing trouble for a physician to treat than debility cases, especially in women, in which there is no acute disease but in which the patient every day sinks lower and lower despite changes of medicine and similar experiments.

That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will restore health under these conditions is no speculation but the fact has been proved in hundreds of cases similar to that of Mrs. Sarah Ramsey, of 1008 St. John St., Litchfield, Ill. She says "I never felt well after my first child was born. I had a gnawing pain in my stomach and could not hold any food down. My head ached a great deal and sometimes the pain went all through my body. I had dizzy spells so that I could not stand and seemed to be half blinded with pain. These spells would often last for over an hour. My blood seemed to be in a very poor condition and my hands and feet were like ice. I seemed to be growing weaker and weaker and could not get around to do my work in the house. I was extremely nervous and the least excitement would bring on a dizzy spell.

"For a number of years I was under a doctor's care but seemed to get no better. I had heard about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I began to take them. I soon felt better and gained in weight and strength. My nerves are strong now and I am a well woman in every way."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. A booklet of valuable information, entitled "Plain Talks to Women," sent free on request.

Worth Knowing.

That Allcock's Plasters are the highest result of medical science and skill, and in ingredients and method have never been equaled.

That they are the original and genuine porous plasters upon whose reputation imitators trade.

That Allcock's Plasters never fail to perform their remedial work quickly and effectually.

That for Weak Back, Rheumatism, Colds, Lung Trouble, Strains and all Local Pains they are invaluable.

That when you buy Allcock's Plasters you obtain the best plasters made.

We will all sneeze when the wind gets in the north after the Roseau snuff factory is started.

Dowie, one of the greatest religious fakirs of the age, is dead. He could fool the people, but the grim reaper, never.

The two-cent fare bill still hangs fire between the house and senate at St. Paul. Are the railroads going to win after all?

The railroads threaten to abolish all excursion rates if a two-cent fare bill is passed. It would be a good thing if they did, as excursion trains and overloaded cars are one of the principal causes of wrecks.

Thief River News: According to the treasurer's statement, the village of St. Hilaire has $2,000 deposited in one of the banks at St. Hilaire on time deposit drawing five per cent interest. There is not many villages in this state that have money to lend and St. Hilaire is to be congratulated.

Rural route No. 1, to start here and run northwest was started last year and we learn that some of the business men of Thief River Falls have started an agitation to induce the patrons of the route to have it changed so as to go out from that city. It is rather dirty work for a neighboring town to try and steal a little thing like that, and if they persist it is more than probable that they will lose a great deal more friends than they will make. We hardly think it will pay Thief River Falls to spread out too thin at present or try too hard to make a hog of themselves.

Sunbeam: There is a local war in Plummer, in which the business men are trying to starve out their local paper. The place is pretty small, and the general location not the best for a newspaper, and by mading a united effort the business men of that town ought to be able to drive a newspaper out of there. If they could succeed in stopping the publication of their present paper, we would bet dimes to doughnuts that they could not get another newspaper located there for a number of years, as a newspaper man looking for a location would not be apt to locate in a town where the people have the reputation of driving their local paper out of business because its editor did not agree with Tom, Dick and Jerrie, on local issues.

Something In It.

The story of a country merchant who met a farmer with a windmill pump in his wagon, which he had purchased from a Chicago catalog house is going the rounds of the press. The merchant chided the farmer for sending his money out of the community and the following conversation took place: "I would have sold you a pump just as cheap right here at home, saved you the freight and you could have seen what you were buying." "Then why didn't you tell me so?" replied the farmer. "I've been reading our home paper for years and have never seen a line about your handling windmill pumps and I'm no fortune teller, how am I to know what you've got and what price you can make on it? You have not even got a pump on display. The Chicago concern sent its advertisement to my house, telling me it had just what I wanted and that it could sell me a pump much lower than any local merchant could. It took the trouble to ask for my trade and got it. If you had taken the trouble to let me know that you could have sold me not only this pump but probably a lot of other stuff I've sent away for during the past seven years, I would have bought of you.—Ex.

School Notes

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

A beginner's class will be started on Monday, March 18. All parents having children six years of age, or nearly so, will please start them to school on that date. It is highly desirable for the beginners and for the teacher as well to have al start together.

Our reason for starting them thus early is to get them well into the work before school closes and also that they may attend school long enough to draw apportionment for the district.

"Whichever way the wind doth blow
Some heart is glad to have it so.
So blow it east or blow it west,
The wind that blows, that wind is best."

One of the gongs became temporarily indisposed the other day, but upon prompt treatment by the janitor it was soon restored to its usual good health.

"Prosperous Washington," a profusely illustrated magazine issued by the Seattle Post Intelligencer, came to hand this week and is of interest in studying the geography of the western states.

Holland, the land of dikes, canals and old-fashioned windmills; March, the windy month. It is said one can stand on the dikes almost anywhere in that queer country and count dozens of those peculiar windmills. When the wind blows they look like huge birds in every direction flopping their wings. In the primary room they are now deeply taken up with the study of this odd country. Along with hearing and reciting interesting stories such as "The Leak in the Dike" and others they draw and sketch with water-colors the windmills, lighthouses, and also Dutchy-looking boys and girls. These are also cut out of paper.

The house of representatives was duly organized last Friday and is now in full swing grinding out laws for the good of suffering humanity There was a little flurry of surprise and interest when during the election of speaker a third name besides the regular caucus nominees split up the vote so as to leave no one with a majority. On the second ballot there was a veering of forces and one whose name was held in reserve during the first balloting was elected by a handsome majority. Julia Selberg as speaker presides over the deliberations with ability and tact and the nimble pen of Eddie Dahl records what happens without fail or omission. Some twenty bills were introduced last Friday and given first reading and left with the proper committee for consideration. The bills will then be discussed on the floor.

A SKIING PARTY.

Skiing! How well I recollect the "skiing party' I attended one sunshiny afternoon in the month of December.

Having never taken part in such sport before it is hardly of use to say that going down a steep hill with each foot posted on a narrow pine board looked rather dangerous to me. After some persuasion on the part of my friends, and not wanting to b the only coward in the "bunch" I finally did consent, though with much hesitation to get on to the skis and have a ride.

A second more and I was going down the hill at the fastest rate I ever have or ever will make a journey. The only sound which reached my ears was the voices of my companions, who at the top of the hill were ordering me to "bend forward." This I did for a second or so but wishing to see what would happen if orders were disobeyed I stood up straight for a minute. No, indeed! Not for a minute for in less than a second I was sprawling in a large snowdrift, some place, I knew not where but evidently not in company with my skis. They not caring to hear the jeers of my companions at the top of the hill quietly took leave of me and made their way with great rapidity down to the foot of the hill. Feeling that disobeying orders was not a pleasant thing I arose, ridded my wraps of snow, and made my way up hill, a sadder but a wiser girl, knowing now that punishment always follows disobedience, especially in skiing.

Java's Precious Teak-Trees.

The chief wealth of the forests of Java, at the present time, consists in the wood of the teak tree, which is extensively employed for naval construction. The trees are ordinarily cut when they have attained an age of about 50 years. The species most esteemed has wood of a brown color possessing a greasy feeling to the touch. A trial will convince you that golden grain belt beer is the best tonic for your stomach-nerves—it gives them strength to digest and assimilate the food you eat. Confused the Elevator Man.

"It is too confusing," said one man. "For example, two men stepped into my car the other day. One said, 'Fifth floor.' The other said, 'Next.' I stopped at the second floor and waited and waited for the man who had ordered 'next' to get off. He flew into a rage. 'I don't want this floor,' he said. 'I said the sixth floor. Didn't the other fellow say "Fifth," and didn't I say "Next," and isn't sixth next after fifth? Huh?'

"The following day one passenger called out, 'Third floor,' and the other said 'Next' at the same time. I thought I knew my business that time. I hustled the third floor man right up to his landing and took the chap who wanted 'next' on to the fourth floor. He was angry, also. 'What did you bring me up here for when I wasn't looking?' he thundered. 'Didn't you hear me say next?' 'Yes,' said I, 'but the other man said third'— 'I don't give a rap,' said he, 'what the other man said. We were then on the first floor, and when I said next didn't that mean second? I'll report you for inattention, that's what I'll do.'

"And that is what he did do," sighed the operator. "Clearly the word 'next' ought to be abolished."—New York Sun.

The Old Fashioned "Hired Girl."

The "hired girl" (we never, never alluded to her as "the maid" in the small American town or quiet country place where you and I were "raised") was like one of the family, and mother was glad to have her help, and none of us put on any frills with her, and she was not compelled to put on any frills of cap or apron with us. Ofttimes, especially in the quiet country places, her social standing was as good as that of anybody else. Usually she was one of a grown family of girls There was plenty of help at her house, and so she came and assisted our mother at our house. In their hours of ease mother and she discussed the neighborhood gossip together. The "hired girl" had her beau, a neighbor's stolid, sheepish son, and much was she joked about him, and finally, after years of faithful and friendly servitude, she married him. We went to the wedding, and it was quite a social affair, with much temperate merriment and with many cheap but useful presents.—Everybody's Magazine.

No Duplicate Chandeliers.

"Did you ever notice," said the observing man, "that every public building has chandeliers unlike those of any other public building? There are no duplicates. You go into one church and you see a handsome chandelier that it would seem worth while to duplicate for another church, but you never find it in another church. You go into a big hall, and you'll observe some stunning globes and chandelier fixtures and look for 'em in some other big hall, but they're not there. I don't know what principle the makers of chandeliers go on, whether it is a matter of pride with them not to fit out two buildings alike or whether contractors for such buildings insist on exclusive designs, but the chandelier people must employ some remarkably versatile artists to think up so many different designs. It seems like a waste of money to make only one of a kind, but it is a pleasure to know that hall or home may be exclusive in its chandeliers."

The Concertina.

The threatened revival of the concertina as a serious musical instrument in England would be a return to an old fashion no doubt, but not to a very old one, since the concertina dates from the early part of the last century. Its invention was an early indiscretion of Sir Charles Wheatstone of telegraph fame, who took out a patent for it in 1829 the very year in which somebody in Vienna invented that similar instrument, the accordion. The concertina was popularized by Sig. Regondi, who had come before the public as a juvenile prodigy with the guitar. At one time no London concert was really complete without him and his concertina, and he astounded the Germans with the music he could get out of it.

Gladstone as an Orator.

It was a budget last night—about a page of a morning paper spoken in two hours by Mr. Gladstone, and he hardly referred to a note, never paused a moment, broke through cheers, dashed over interpellations—logic, figures, illustrations, extracts—all pellmell, with a whirl and fury that took the breath away. And he did it all with the utmost ease and got to the end without turning a hair. Mr. Gladstone took it all quietly and did it quietly and left the house and went home quietly, probably mentioning to Mrs. Gladstone as a reason for being rather tired that he had been saying a "few words" that evening.—From Whitty's "Parliamentary Retrospect."

Temperatures of Flames.

According to the results of experiments, the flame of acetylene is perhaps the hottest known except that of the electric arc. The following figures have been given: Bunsen burner, 1,871 degrees; acetylene flame, 2,548 degrees; alcohol flame, 1,705 degrees; Denayrouze burner—half alcohol, half petroleum—2,053 degrees; hydrogen flame in air, 1,900 degrees; gas jet flame with oxygen, 2,200 degrees; oxyhydrogen flame, 2,420 degrees. These are all centigrade degrees. One degree centigrade equals 1.8 degrees F.

A Mother's Argument.

"The most to be regretted act of my life," says a commander of the navy, "was a letter I wrote to my mother when about seventeen years of age. She always addressed her letters to me as 'my dear boy.' I felt at that time I was a man, or very near it, and wrote saying that her constant addressing me as a 'boy' made me feel displeased. I received in reply a letter full of reproaches and tears. Among other things, she said: 'You might grow to be as big as Goliath, as strong as Samson and as wise as Solomon; you might become ruler of a nation or emperor of many nations, and the world might revere you and fear you, but to your devoted mother you would always appear in memory in your innocent, unpretentious, unself conceited, unpampered babyhood. In those days when I washed and dressed and kissed and worshiped you, you were my idol. Nowdays you are becoming part of a gross world by contact with it, and I cannot bow down to you and worship you, but if there are manhood and maternal love transmitted to you, you will understand that the highest compliment that mother love can pay you is to call you "my dear boy."'"

Some Old Time Giants.

Cajanus, a Swedish giant who was nine feet high, was on exhibition in London in 1742, and several old handbills still exist which set forth the measurements of this freak of nature. Thirty years later we have Charles Byrne, who was eight feet four inches in height in his stockinged feet. He, however, died young, at the age of twenty-two, from hard drinking. Cotter O'Byrne, another Irish giant, followed a few years later. He was born at Kinsale in 1761 and at the age of fifteen was eight feet high. This by the time he was twenty-three had increased to nine feet four inches, and then he changed his name to O'Brian in order to make people think that he was descended from King Brian Boroihme and went on exhibition. At that business he, of course, soon realized a very comfortable fortune and retired, dying at Clifton on Sept. 8, 1804. His will especially provided that his body should be thrown into the sea in order to prevent the surgeons from cutting it up.

Tolerance In Japan.

Westerners seem to find it inconceivable how the Japanese can maintain allegiance to different creeds at one and the same time. One broad explanation of this is that we as a nation are tolerant in mind, especially in matters pertaining to religion.—Japan Times of Tokyo.

Gazette: The Misses Nora Smith, Inga Iverson and Clara Olson, teachers in the St. Hilaire public schools, were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. John B. O'Brien, of this city, last Friday evening, returning to St. Hilaire Saturday.

G. W. Hooper, of Crookston, has been here a couple of days this week looking over the prospects of putting in a local telephone system. Mr. Hooper is connected with the Polk County Telephone company and has considerable experience in the work. It is probable that Mr. Hooper will ask the village council for a franchise at the next meeting.

Marshal Killand had a caller at his residence last Thursday evening in shape of a large musk rat which he killed. Mr. Rat must have figured that there was going to be a damp, bad time down at the river soon and that it was time to look for dryer quarters. This may indicate that there will be something doing soon in the flood line.

Crookston Times (Monday): Bert Middleton left this morning for St. Hilaire where he has been for the past few months getting the books and business of the Crookston Lumber company's office at that place in shape to close up, after spending Sunday at his home in the city. He states that his work at St. Hilaire is nearing completion and that he thinks one more trip after this will see the finish.

Julius Pleth the hustling real estate man of Plummer was a business visitor here last Thursday. Mr. Pleth has given up his idea of moving to St. Paul and has decided to stay in Red Lake county and help boost the best dairy county in northern Minnesota. Mr. Pleth has a large amount of farm lands in the eastern part of the county and he has concluded that they can be handled better by staying here. His decision means much as he brings a large number of people every year into the county and a good percentage are purchasers.

N. E. Norton, U. S. postoffice inspector for rural routes arrived here on Thursday and started yesterday over the proposed rural route north and east of here. Upon his report depends whether or not the route is established. Inspector Norton came in last evening and reported that he was well satisfied with the condition of the proposed route. All differences among the patrons was satisfactorily adjusted and Mr. Norton will report favorably on the establishment of the route. It is probable that the route will be established inside of three months.

COMMERCIAL CLUB.

All who are interested in the starting of a Commercial Club in St. Hilaire which will work for the interest of the village and the surrounding country, are requested to meet at the village hall next Tuesday evening, March 19, at which time steps will be taken to perfect such an organization. All business men and property owners who are interested in the progress of St. Hilaire and the surrounding country are requested to be present at 8 p. m.

BE A BOOSTER!

Do you know there's lots o' people,
  Settin' 'round in every town,
Growlin' like a broody chicken,
  Knocking every good thing down?
Don't you be that kind o' cattle,
  Cause they ain't no useion earth,
You just be a booster rooster,
  Crow and boost for all you are worth.

If your town needs boostin', boost 'er,
  Don't hold back an' wait to see
If some other feller's willin',
  Sail right in, this country's free:
No one's got a mortgage on it,
  It's yours just as much as his,
If your town is shy on boosters,
  You get in the boostin' biz.

If things don't just seem to suit you,
  An' the world seems kinder wrong,
What's the matter with a boostin'
  Just to help the thing along:
'Cause if things should stop a goin'
  We'd be in a sorry plight,
You just keep that horn a blowin',
  Boost 'er up with all your might.

If you see some feller tryin,
  For to make some project go,
You can boost it up a trifle,
  That's your cue to let him know
That you're not a going to knock it,
  Just because it ain't your "shout,"
But you're going to boost a little,
  'Cause he's got "the best thing out."

If you know some feller's failin's,
  Just forget 'em, 'cause you know
That same feller's got some good points,
  Them's the ones you want to show!
"Cast your loaves on the waters,
  They'll come back," 's a sayin' true,
Mabbe they will come back "buttered."
  When some feller boosts for you.

Chas. Hughes Gets Pension.

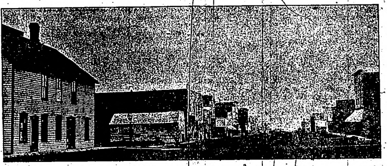
Chas. Hughes this week received a communication from Congressman Halvor Steenerson regarding the allowance of his pension claim. The letter advises Mr. Hughes that his claim has been allowed and that he will receive $17 per month, with back pay from Dec. 1, 1898. Mr. Hughes was a member of Troop F of the Rough Riders.

Mr. Steenerson has been untiring in his efforts to secure favorable action by the pension commission on the allowance which has been pending for several years, and Mr. Hughes feels greatly indebted to Mr. Steenerson for the interest taken in his behalf.—Kelliher Journal.

Rocksbury Election.

The election in Rocksbury was a very quiet one and the same officers who served during the past year were re-elected as follows:

Supervisor—Chas. Gustafson.
Clerk—P. Engelstad.
Treasurer—Ed. A. Aubol.
Assessor—Ole A. Aubol.
Justice—P. Engelstad.
Constable—John Hanson.



BUSINESS PORTION OF ST. HILAIRE IN 1896.

Grand Jury Drawn for ——?——

Gazette: A grand jury has been drawn for the March term of the district court for Red Lake county, for what particular purpose no one seems to know.

At present there are no criminal matters on tap that require the attention of a grand jury, and whether or not there is a sensation or two to be sprung when they get together is a matter for speculation.

No hint has been given as to what will come before this most august body, but there appears to be a general opinion that there is something ready to be sprung. Evil doers, if there are any within the confines of the county, will do well to take the hint and hunt up the tall timber, lest the grand jurymen be given an opportunity to get a turn at them.

The county attorney's office is mum regarding the object of drawing a grand jury, so all the anxious ones can do is to wait and see what will develop. The list of those who will serve on the jury is published elsewhere in today's paper.

Village Caucus.

The voters of the village assembled at the village hall last Saturday night to nominate a ticket. H. E. Ives was elected chairman and C. E. Bergh, secretary, and C. L. Hansen and Chas. Fellman were appointed tellers.

A. S. Wilson was nominated without opposition for village president.

For councilmen there were four candidates: D. Patterson, E. M. Hoff, Jens Nelson and C. H. Martz, the first three receiving the nomination.

For treasurer, Leonard Holmes was nominated over B. E. Burkee by a vote of 32 to 22.

For village clerk K. O. Gigstad was nominated over Carl Johnson.

For assessor A. F. Ittner received more votes than O. H. Peters and was declared the nominee.

Big Receipts.

Buttermaker Geo. L. Austin reports the biggest day of the year on Friday of last week, when the creamery received 5,600 pounds of cream in one day. Both churns had to be started to handle this large amount.

Considering the time of the year and the backward condition of the spring this showing is truly remarkable. It is by far the largest amount of cream ever received in this or any other northern Minnesota creamery in any one day in the winter.

Boost for St. Hilaire.

LET'S PULL TOGETHER.

Start a Commercial Club And Do Business for St. Hilaire.—Contributed.

Now that spring election is over, why not each and all up and do something for the common good. If you sustained a slight disappointment at the polls, don't bury the hatchet but use it, not for destruction, but in hewing out a better future for the village and community. There is work ahead for us all. Sitting by brooding over wrongs, real or imaginary, never righted them nor made them rest easier on the mind.

Let us disentangle our unused resourcefulness and shake it clean of cobwebs and dust and put it into service for God and humanity, our poor selves. We need to hang together or we'll starve together. As long as a town feels down 'round the corners of the mouth and merely flounders along, it is starving. It isn't in health. It lacks the joyful feel of a strong pulse and active constitution.

In losing the mill our village was not "winged" by any means or crippled at all but only deprived of a somewhat useful tail-feather. All we've got to do is to fly along without it and get used to its not being there, or grow another. In either case we can get along blissfully well. If we only get to think so, I don't know but that we can do greater feats without it than we did before.

Why not unite our energies in developing the resources at hand and organizing ourselves so as to be ready and alert to take advantage of the good things that may come our way. Let us lay hands on and put life into that Commercial Club phantom that is haunting us. I think it would develop into a most congenial and helpful friend.

Nothing good comes to him who sits back and whimpers. We are here to make or unmake our destiny. He who isn't willing to bestir himself and put forth systematic efforts for success and advancement doesn't deserve them. That applies exactly to our village. We need concerted and systematic and sustained effort: For that purpose we must have an organization, and a Commercial Club would be just such a body. Why not organize one and do it now? 'Tis the early bird that finds the worm.

A Humble One.

To International Falls.

Roseau Times: For the past year there has been considerable talk about the Great Northern building from Warroad to International Falls, and the report of such contemplated extension of the Thief River-Roseau branch to Koochiching Falls has in some instances eminated from official sources. It is expected that in a few weeks the work of laying the track from Greenbush on the completed grade to Badger, Roseau and Warroad will begin and the work pushed as rapidly as possible. The appearance of Great Northern surveyors at Warroad this week means something and from remarks dropped by the engineer while in Roseau enroute to Warroad, it can be stated that a preliminary survey is to be run from Warroad to International Falls before the frost leaves the ground. The Great Northern people are alive to the importance of occupying this territory with its immense wealth of timber and manufacturing possibilities, knowing that the road once built, would be a paying proposition from the start.

List of Grand Jurors.

Suit Against the Meehans.

Crookston Journal (Monday): Word was received here yesterday that upon the suggestion of the attorney general U. S. District Attorney Butterfield has filed an action at Milwaukee to recover the sum of $18,461 the value of timber alleged to have been cut from public lands in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

The defendants in the actions are James and Patrick Meehan formerly of Thief River Falls and the Thief River Falls Lumber company. The complaint recites the fact that the defendants during 1898 and 1899 cut timber from lands belonging to the government in the two states amounting to 2,735,000 feet. James Meehan who has been at Thief River Falls for a few days went below last evening.

THE RIGHT KIND OF A TRAITOR

By HEADON HIRE

Author of "THE QUEEN OF NIGHT," "CAGED," Etc.

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Under the lee of Cape Griz Nez two vessels were hove to within 50 yards of each other. From the maintop of both flaunted the tricolour of France, but with this ominous difference, that on the smaller vessel it surmounted the Union Jack of England.

The brigantine Firefly was in the hands of the French. The lumbering old coaster, bound from London to Chichester Harbor, with a general cargo, had been blown off her course by contrary winds to the wrong side of the channel; the 42-gun frigate Alceste had pounced upon her; and now her skipper, Jacob Dempster, was ruefully giving an account of himself on the frigate quarter-deck.

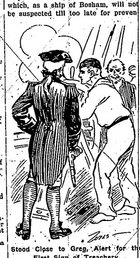
"Ha! say you that?" exclaimed the French captain, who spoke English well. "Your ship is of Bosham, in the harbor of Chichester? Know you the Manor house at Bosham, owned, but not inhabited, by one Squire Bullard?"

"I do—seeing as I live within 100 yards of it," responded the rugged old mariner, sullenly.

"Certain French officers are residing there—prisoners of war on parole?"

"They were when I left for London—three weeks back," said Dempster.

"My brother," continued the captain, "Lieut. Camille Fournier, is one of the prisoners living at the Manor house of Bosham. He cannot attempt to escape himself because of his parole, but that makes no reason why I should not release him by force. I propose to put 100 of my men on the Firefly which, as a ship of Bosham, will not be suspected till too late for prevention, and run in and effect my purpose.



Stood Close to Greg, Alert for the First Sign of Treachery.

Jacob Dempster laughed sourly. "I'd like to see you try it," he replied, sourly. "Don't you know that Basham, though a port, lies six miles from the sea up a creek, which is an arm of the inlet known as Chichester Harbor? You'd be stuck on a mud bank before you'd gone a mile up the creek. Where are you going to get your pilot?"

It was the Frenchman's turn to laugh now. "It is you who will pilot us, my friend—in return for your liberty," he said. "My men will remain below for concealment, while you and your crew work the vessel, as though in due course returning home. Then, when we sail away with the French prisoners, I shall leave you and your men behind. If neither you or any of your crew will steer the brigantine up the creek, I will hang you all at the yard-arm within five minutes."

There was a moment's dead silence, and the old skipper turned and faced his crew.

"What say you, my lads?" he asked, quietly. "I'm for hanging."

A lip or two amongst the married men twitched as they thought of the wives and little ones even now watching for the Firefly to come staggering up the creek, but the answer was unmistakable. "We're with you, Jacob," seemed to settle the question unanimously.

Not quite, however, as it proved. One voice among the Firefly's company was silent, and all eyes were turned on the tall, blue-eyed young fellow in the center of the line in amazement. Was Greg Applegarth of all men going to turn traitors?

Avoiding the withering glance shot at him by old Jacob, the young man raised his head for a second and answered: "Yes, I'll pilot her up the creek—if so be as you'll spare my mates' lives as well as mine."

"But certainly—unless they attempt to thwart me," said Fournier, contemptuously.

Greg Applegarth was permitted to remain on deck, but Jacob Dempster and the rest of his crew were thrust into the hold, where they passed their time in cursing their comrade's treachery.

And that the traitor should be Greg Applegarth was the most astonishing fact of all—especially to old Jacob, who was aware of certain tender passages between the smart young sailor and his own wayward daughter Peggy. Till the French prisoners of war were quartered at the Manor house, Greg and Peggy had been regarded as good as promised to each other, and it had only been of late, since Camille Fournier had taken to speaking to the girl, that a coldness had sprung up between them.

Camille Fournier, the brother of the captain of the Alceste had early contrived to scrape acquaintance with Peggy Dempster, and the vivacious village beauty had been flattered into allowing a warmer flirtation than she had, perhaps, intended. Possibly she took delight in piquing the jealousy of her faithful admirer Greg.

The Firefly was captured on a Saturday at noon, and it was not till dawn was breaking on Sunday that Greg was called on to act as pilot, when the brigantine was rounding Selsea Bill. Capt. Fournier, pistol in hand, stood close to Greg, alert for the first sign of treachery.

But, if anything, the young man seemed to err on the side of intense caution in the interests of his new employers. Though the rate of progress was slow Fournier did not grumble, seeing that if the wind held from the same quarter it would serve the more important purpose of taking him quickly out again.

And so, creeping on between the golden corn fields, the brigantine emerged from the narrow gut of the winding creek into the broader waters of its termination at the village, just as the bells of Bosham church ceased ringing for morning service.

The captain gave the necessary orders, and at once set about making his dispositions for landing his entire force, except a sufficient guard for the prisoners.

Though the landing entailed several journeys in the Firefly's boats, it was rapidly effected, and with Fournier at its head started for the Manor house under Greg's guidance. Only 100 yards of marshy pasture-land lay between the creek and the moat, but the young sailor led the Frenchmen a long slant up the meadows and back again before finally approaching their goal. The captain looked at him once or twice suspiciously.

"What is the meaning of this? Why not advance direct?" he asked, tapping his pistol. "You know what to expect if you play me false."

"You don't want your men stuck in the mud?" replied Greg, and he pointed convincingly to a quagmire they were passing.

After half an hour's wandering to and fro in the meadows he led the party up to the bridge over the moat, and they entered the grounds of the Manor house from the rear. As they filed round to the front a group of men who were sitting under a tree on the lawn started up on seeing the familiar uniform, and came running forward. A minute later Capt. Fournier had embraced his brother, and explained the situation.

The prisoners of war were in an ecstacy of delight at the prospects of, as one of them facetiously put it, being "brutally dragged from their parole," but on the captain proposing an immediate return to the boats, Camille waved his hand gaily in deprecation.

"Wait a brief time, my brother," he laughed. "The little god Cupid demands it, and we are quite safe from opposition here. There are not 20 able-bodied Britons in the place. Most of them are in church, and they are all unarmed."

"My dear Camille," said the captain, "there are plenty of bright eyes in France to console you, and if we dally too long we may have to slit the throats of some of the villagers before we get away."

"What matter, so long as I gain my purpose?" retorted the lieutenant, brutally. "No; take the others and sail away, if you please. As for me, nothing will move me unless I take the fair Mlle. Dempster."

Capt. Fournier bit his lip, but gave in. At most it must mean waiting till the close of service, which could not be long deferred, and in the seclusion of the Manor house grounds the presence of the landing-party would in the meantime remain undetected.

But when the minutes grew into an hour, and the hour into an hour and a half, yet no signal was given by the man posted in the shrubbery to watch the church door, the captain began to fume and stamp with rage. Finally Greg, who had been casting furtive glances in the direction of the Firefly, plucked the captain's sleeve.

"Captain, see there!" he cried, and leading him to the churchyard wall, he pointed mockingly at the Firefly. The brigantine lay high and dry on the mud at her anchorage, and would not float again for ten hours at least.

For a moment the brave lad's life trembled in the balance. Then with a muttered oath the captain put up the pistol he had drawn. He saw that there was no hope for himself and his men to get away to sea before an overwhelming force would be upon them, and to commit any sort of outrage would only aggravate the treatment he would receive.

There was nothing for it but to quietly await the arrival of English soldiers, and then lay down his arms. He had been outwitted by the local knowledge of a sailor, who had depended on the fact that the water goes right away from Bosham at low tide, leaving the bed of the creek a vast expanse of oily pools and slime.

So after all that was the kind of traitor Greg was. His chief reward lay in the removal of all the French prisoners—new as well as old—to safer quarters, as he had hoped from the first. As for old Jacob Dempster, when he was fetched ashore in triumph, and found that the lad's pluck and cunning had not only captured 75 of his captors, but restored his vessel to him, he presented Greg with a quarter share of her there and then.

The Bloomer Costume.

A portrait in a magazine shows us a very old lady in a curious costume. Her legs are attired in orthodox trousers but over them she wears a short skirt to the knees. Above this again is a cape fastened at the neck with a large brooch! What is this strange figure? Why, the last of the famous "Bloomer Brigade!" Her name is Susan Fowler and she lives at Vineland, N. J. She has worn this costume for 40 years, is now 80, and lives all alone, scorning the help of man. One cannot but admire the dauntless old lady in thus sticking to her principles. It is only a question of time when women's clothes will be radically reformed! Could anything be more ridiculous, more inartistic and more unhealthy than woman's present costume? Trailing skirts, too tight bodices, stiff collars, absurd head-gear—nothing beautiful, nothing useful about any part of it.—Montreal Herald.

VALUABLE FORMULA

WELL-KNOWN AUTHORITY CLAIMS IT IS MOST EFFECTIVE.

Says It Will Break Up a Cold in 24 Hours and Cure Any Cough That Is Curable—Inexpensive.

A noted authority on diseases of the throat and lungs, who established a camp for consumptives in the Pine Woods of Maine, and whose remarkable cures there have attracted great attention from the medical world, says that his entire treatment consisted of fresh air, nourishing food and the Pure Virgin Oil of the White Pine Trees mixed with Whisky and Glycerine, in the following proportions:

Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure)	½ oz.
Glycerine	2 "
Good Whisky	8 "

Used in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

It is claimed that the above mixture will heal and strengthen the lungs, break up a cold in twenty-four hours, and cure any cough that is curable.

The ingredients can be secured from any good prescription druggist at small cost and can be easily mixed in your own home.

Inquiry at the prescription department of a leading local pharmacy elicited the information that Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) is put up only in half-ounce vials for dispensing. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case with engraved wrapper with the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure); guaranteed under the Food and Drug Act, June 30, 1906. Prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, O.—plainly printed thereon. Only the cheaper Oils are sold in bulk, but these produce nausea, and never effect the desired results.

About $6,0,000,000 is a present invested in England in the manufacture of motor wagons. About 250,000 men are employed in them as chauffeurs, etc., and their wages aggregate $75,000,000 a year.

A MID-WINTER VERDICT.

"Bright Sunshine All Winter," Is What a Western Canada Lady Says.

Maidstone, Sask., Canada,

C. J. Broughton, Esq.,
Canadian Government Agent,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir:

Being so well pleased with Canada we wish my father and brother to come here. Will you please send them reading matter on Canada.

We have been here nearly a year and are delighted with this country. We have lived in Illinois, Iowa, and Michigan and we find Canada away ahead of any of them. We have had bright sunshine all winter so far, only two nice, easy snow storms. If it was not all right you know I would not want my father and brother to come here, but we think it is grand.

Yours truly,
(Signed) MRS. ED. TROUPE.

HIS DELAYED MESSAGE.

Tenant Had Taken the Matter Into His Own Hands.

The tenant faced the landlord with a determined look.

"The man you let into the vacant suite last week," he said, "plays the flute."

"Does he play much?"

"No; he only plays a little. He plays a great deal of the time, but he only plays a little."

"You mean that he's a poor player."

"I mean that he's a player with poor taste. Any flutist that gets up at 2 o'clock in the morning and tootles out scales and things isn't much on taste, to my way of thinking."

"I'll have to have a talk with him," said the landlord.

"It's no use," sighed the tenant. "He won't listen to you."

"We'll soon find out about that," said the landlord, as he reached for his hat.

"It's no use, I tell you," responded the tenant. "Him and me had a fight last night an' I broke his flute an' he moved out this morning. That's what I came in to tell you." — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE WHOLE FAMILY.

Mother Finds a Food for Grown-Ups and Children as Well.

Food that can be eaten with relish and benefit by the children as well as the older members of the family, makes a pleasant household commodity.

Such a food is Grape-Nuts. It not only agrees with and builds up children, but older persons who, from bad habits of eating, have become dyspeptic.

A Phila. lady, after being benefited herself persuaded her husband to try Grape-Nuts for stomach trouble. She writes:

"About eight years ago I had a severe attack of congestion of stomach and bowels. From that time on, I had to be careful about eating, as nearly every kind of food then known to me, seemed to cause pain.

"Four years ago I commenced to use Grape-Nuts. I grew stronger and better, and from that time I seldom have been without it; have gained in health and strength and am now heavier than I ever was.

"My husband was also in a bad condition—his stomach became so weak that he could eat hardly anything with comfort. I got him to try Grape-nuts, and he soon found his stomach trouble had disappeared.

"My girl and boy, 3 and 9 years old, do not want anything else for breakfast but Grape-Nuts, and more healthy children cannot be found." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little booklet, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

MATTERS FEMININE.

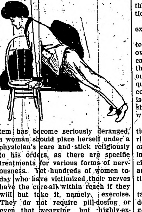
CURE FOR "NERVES"

SYSTEMATIC PHYSICAL TRAINING WILL DO MUCH.

Forms of Exercise Within the Reach of All, Without Overtaxing the Strength—Good for Body and Mind.

The average case of "nerves" from which most women suffer will yield to systematic physical training when intelligently and persistently pursued at home.

Of course, where the nervous system has become seriously deranged, a woman should place herself under a physician's care and stick religiously to his orders, as there are specific treatments for various forms of nervousness. Yet hundreds of women today who have victimized their nerves have the cure-all within reach if they will but take it, namely, exercise. They do not require pill-dosing or even that wearying but highly-extolled rejuvenater, the "rest cure."



Women are such reckless spendthrifts of strength that it is a great wonder we do not see more cases of nervous exhaustion. They make the most ruinous overdrafts upon their nerves, sapping their vitality, until they are so broken down by pain and weariness that the reserve force, the nerve capital, is utterly worn out.

Every woman should fight off nervousness as she would a wild beast. A nervous woman is never a healthy woman or a beautiful one, for a sound body makes sound nerves, and where these are unstrung or easily put on edge trouble is brewing somewhere.

A nervous woman must train her mind; she must not allow things to upset her; she must not take the world too seriously. For, after all, the mind is much to blame in connection with her unstrung nerves.

A nervous woman should never attempt to take a violent exercise or to overtax her strength. She should cautiously test her strength and at the same time taking all the kinks out of her mind. The only device required is a strong bedroom chair of convenient size and shape, one that is not likely to give way under her should she be something of a heavyweight.

For a good exercise assume the position as shown, and, with the body rigid, turn as far as you can, endeavoring to catch a glimpse of the ceiling. Repeat. This exercise is especially good for developing the chest and arms. After tiring in this position then reverse it.

While these exercises are being taken open the windows and breathe deeply. Just before retiring is a good time, as the exertion will then produce sound, wholesome slumber.

PROPER MANNER OF WALKING.

Body Should Be Carried Well to Derive Real Benefit.

There is no exercise so thoroughly invigorating and restorative for overstrained nerves as walking. When there is no organic weakness which is aggravated by the exertion it is the easiest thing to walk right into health. "Almost all fatigue and ungracefulness can be traced to a violation of the laws of economy within which the body moves."

To derive any real benefit from walking the step must be light and elastic. Swing the body so easily from one leg to the other that its weight is not felt. The harmonious play of the muscles imparts a supple grace and litheness that is felt mentally as well as physically and produces a healthy glow, showing that the sluggish blood is stirred to action in the most remote veins.

This manner of walking, as may be imagined, strengthens the whole body, giving tone to the nerves and producing just the sort of healthful fatigue which encourages sound rest and beautifying slumber.

When one rises to walk the whole body should be thrown into a state of gentle tension, putting every muscle which harmonious movement employs into vigorous, responsive action and so perfectly balanced that every part does its work without perceptible strain.

The abdominal muscles should hold that obtrusive part in becoming restraint—quite possible even with the portly if they will but make the effort instead of allowing themselves to relax in an ungraceful attitude. The shoulder, hip and ankle joints should be upon a line, the chest held high and head erect, but not tipped back. The correct position of the head may be tested by holding a book on the crown. In this position the body acquires its greatest ease and every muscle performs its maximum of labor with a minimum of waste and consequent expenditure of force.

Most people bend the knee far too much when bringing the leg forward, whereas the correct walker will keep the leg almost straight, so that the knee motion is imperceptible.

The position in which the arms are carried is important if graceful walk is to be attained. Who would call the woman striding along the street with arms swinging at the same rate as she is walking graceful? When a parcel is carried this unlovely habit of swinging the arms is soon overcome. In fact, to insure a good walk it is necessary to have something to hold or the feeling that the arms do not belong to one will either encourage the swinging motion or else the arms will hang by the sides in a limp, unpleasing manner. The arms should neither swing exceedingly nor hang limply, but be carried with just a slight swinging motion.

As walking is an everyday exercise, it is one that is worth while cultivating correctly and an easy walk and graceful carriage are always admired—nay, many times envied.

Lace Shawl Frocks.

Lace shawls are made into frocks now, and are considered particularly smart for dinner and reception wear. They are really used exactly like the materials of which the robes are made, yet whenever it is not absolutely essential to cut in order to make them fit these shawls are the more expensive and desirable, and a woman who possesses one that will make a train—if only a short one—is decidedly fortunate. These laces, besides being unusual, are particularly attractive because of the graceful folds in which they may be draped about the body. They are becoming alike to both stout and slender women.

For Facial Eruptions.

A simple remedy for facial eruptions: One dram of precipitated sulphur, one dram of spirits of camphor, 20 grains of powdered tragacanth, one and one-half ounces of limewater, rosewater sufficient to make four ounces. Apply at night and bathe away next morning, when the skin should be anointed with creme marquise. Keep the digestive organs active, bathe daily and drink plenty of water.

HAIR MORE SIMPLY DRESSED.

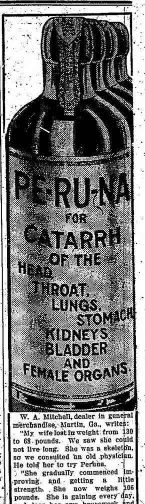
Exaggerated Styles of Last Season Are Not Seen.

A clever French writer in Vogue says that there is a marked change in the appearance of hats since last year; then they were tipped on one side or the other; often the hair was exaggeratedly voluminous, aureoled and loaded with false curls and puffs, adding enormously to the size of the head. And the exaggeration in hair dressing is still seen—it is still the mode; but the women of real elegance the women of the chic, the exclusive world, those who launch and give tone to new fashions—have abandoned this manner of hair dressing, for it has become vulgarly common. Only the other day, walking a couple of blocks from one appointment to another, I was greatly amused to see a pretty young girl of the small shop-keeping class, with her hair elaborately arranged over one of the "cages" launched by a leader of the mode last year.

Now, the last word of elegance is to have the hair lightly bouffant over the forehead and about the temples, with the knot placed at any part of the head most becoming. The hat is set neatly flat, tilted becomingly, but without exaggeration. To achieve a harmonious and becoming outline the hair is then pulled and pinned into place, and, if necessary, puffs and curls are added, but naturally—without marked effort. At afternoon functions one sees numbers of jaunty little toques made of soft folds of velvet and trimmed with many outstanding wings, small, thick tufts of feathers, or a huge flower.

Marital Fallings-Out.

The wife who praises all her clever husband does, soon becomes his worst enemy. The husband who loses that amount of appreciation of his wife's ability that touches high-water mark, loses all discrimination, says the Pilgrim. Continual harmony makes life monotonous. The woman who always reiterates, "I don't know, dear," and the man who constantly answers, "Just as you say, darling," are the most maddening of mortals.



W. A. Mitchell, dealer in general merchandise, Martin, Ga., writes:

"My wife lost in weight from 130 to 68 pounds. We saw she could not live long. She was a skeleton, so we consulted an old physician. He told her to try Peruna.

"She gradually commenced improving and getting a little strength. She now weighs 106 pounds. She is gaining every day, and does her own housework and cooking."

Deer Dainty as to Food.

How sensitive deer are in the matter of food was proved once again during the hearing of a case at Feltham, Eng., where three men were charged with sleeping in a deer pen in Bushey Park. A keeper said they had pulled down from the racks about 10 shilling's' worth of hay, which the deer would not afterward touch because it had been laid upon. In fact, the deer would not go near the pens, as the men had slept there.

RELATIVE MERITS OF DIFFERENT METHODS OF CREAMING

A Testing of Hand Separators and Gravity Systems Proves Favorable to the Use of the Separator.

An experiment has just been completed by Prof. O. F. Hunkziker, of the Purdue (Ind.) agricultural college, which will prove of special value to dairymen. It was undertaken with the four-fold object of determining the skimming efficiency of the various systems of creaming; of studying the effect of these systems on the quality of the cream and skim milk; of determining the influence of such factors as the steadiness of running and care of the machine, the speed of the bowl, the temperature and physical condition of the milk, the rate of inflow and the richness of the cream, on the skimming efficiency of the hand separator, and of pointing out to dairymen those methods and conditions that will reduce the loss of butter fat in skimmed milk to the minimum and improve the quality of the cream.

The following table shows the results of the creaming experiments, the per cent. of fat in cream and skim milk of the four different systems of creaming under the most favorable conditions being given:

The conditions under which the results shown in the above table were obtained as follows:

First, in the hand separator tests, four of the leading makes of hand separators were used. The milk was separated immediately after milking (temperature 90 deg. F.). The samples were taken from the total skim milk of each separator.

Second, in the deep-setting system, cow-warm milk (temperature 90 deg. F.) was set in a can of the shotgun type, surrounded by a water jacket and equipped with a faucet at the bottom. The water in the jacket was held at 40 deg. to 45 deg. F. during the entire period of creaming. The milk was allowed to set for 24 hours. Then the skim milk was drawn off from the bottom of the can, leaving about one inch of skim milk in the can.

Third, in the shallow pan system, cow-warm milk (temperature 90 deg. F.) was set in a pan 20 inches square and four inches deep. The pan was placed in a vat containing water at 50 deg. F. After 36 hours the cream was carefully dipped off with an oval shaped dipper. The remaining skim milk was thoroughly mixed, then sampled.

Fourth, in the water dilution system, cow-warm milk (temperature 90 deg. F.) was diluted with equal parts of water to 100 deg. F., well mixed and set for 12 hours. In some cases the milk was set in cold water (temperature 60 deg. F.), in others it was allowed to cool in the air. The skim milk was drawn from the bottom of the can.

The figures in our table demonstrate that when the creaming is done with due attention to all details, the results of each system are fairly uniform, and that, where all the conditions unfavorable to effective skimming are removed, there is still a great loss of butter fat in the skim milk of the gravity systems.

Our illustration will serve to more graphically set forth the relative merits of the four systems of creaming shown in the table. The different lots of butter represent the butter lost in the skim milk of one cow in one year. It is assumed that the cow gives 6,000 pounds of milk and that 100 pounds of milk produce 85 pounds of skim milk. The butter is calculated at the rate of a 1-6 overrun.

A summary of the conclusions reached as a result of the experiments is as follows:

1. The use of the hand separator in the place of the gravity systems of creaming, will effect a saving of $3.50 to $7 worth of butter fat from one cow in one year.

With the hand separator a richer cream and a better quality of cream and skim milk can be produced than with the gravity systems.

2. Of the gravity methods the deep setting system is the least objectionable. It produces a more complete separation and a better quality of cream than either the shallow pan or the water dilution systems.

3. Any neglect to thoroughly clean the separator after each separation reduces the skimming efficiency of the machine and lowers the quality of the cream and butter produced. Wash the separator after each separation.

4. A trembling machine, insufficient speed, sour, curdled, slimy or cold milk, and over-feeding the separtor caused a loss of butter fat in the skim milk amounting to from 8 to 12 pounds of butter per cow in one year.

5. Other things being equal, high speed and a small rate of inflow tend to produce a thick cream. Insufficient speed, a trembling machine and a large inflow result in a thinner cream.

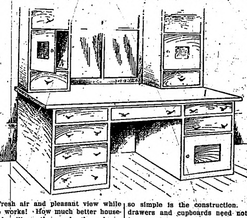
Making the Most of a Kitchen Window



Fresh air and pleasant view while one works! How much better housework will go then, only those know who have tried this way and also the "other way." On both sides of the kitchen window, and in front of it, suggests Country Gentleman, have constructed the simple kitchen cabinet that is shown in the cut. It can almost be made by the housekeeper herself—certainly it ought to be within the ability of the "man of the house;" but even if a carpenter must be called in, the expense will be slight, so simple is the construction. The drawers and cupboards need not be just as shown—may suit the individual ideas of the housekeeper; but utilize the window for the light and air and the outlook it affords while mixing cake or rolling out biscuit. Almost all the ingredients for cooking can be kept in such a cabinet, and as it will be convenient to the kitchen stove, a great many steps will be saved—and the saving of steps is one of the secrets of making housekeeping easy, or at least, easier.

The Young Sow.—The young sow needs good support in raising her first litter. She has not so much reserve flesh as the old sows, and is easily reduced in flesh to the point of damage to both sow and litter. Arrange to feed the litter as soon as they will eat, as this will relieve the strain on the young dam.

Parasites Expensive.—Parasites on farm stock cost a great deal of money in the long run.

CALL FOR MILLIONS

NEW BUILDINGS NEEDED AT WASHINGTON.

Many Departments at Present Insufficiently Housed—Magnificent Structures in Contemplation or Course of Erection.

"While visitors who have not seen the nation's capital in several years are universal in their comments upon the marked improvement and expansion of the city," said a Washington architect, "these evidences of our growth are nothing to what may be summarized and presented as a bird's-eye view in even so short a time as two years hence.

"Omitting the congressional library from our conclusions, it will be noted that many years elapsed between the erection of the war, state and navy buildings and that occupied by the post office department, the most recent acquisition to our department structures. While this building has been occupied since 1899, it is now very much overcrowded, many of its divisions being scattered in other buildings down town.

"The government printing office building can hardly be classed as an office structure, and neither can that of the bureau of engraving and printing. The building occupied by the latter is so very much overcrowded that the work is stated to be seriously interfered with, and that unless congress speedily grants an appropriation for further additions the congestion at present existing will offer a difficult problem to those who have to do with its solution.

"The new office building of the senate and the house of representatives will in nowise relieve the congestion in the executive departments, and which, by the scattering of the various divisions and bureaus of the different departments throughout the city, is a source of great annoyance and inconvenience to all concerned, not to speak of the heavy expenditures for rentals. The department of justice is especially inconvenienced by reason of being inadequately housed in what was formerly a private library in another structure over half a mile away. The newly created department of commerce and labor also has no home which it may truthfully call its own. In the vicinity of the war, state and navy building there are three or four structures filled with the overflow from the mammoth granite pile.

"Hence, as large as an appropriation of $10,000,000 for office buildings in this city may seem at first blush, it would, indeed, be found to be inadequate to properly accomplish the purposes, and a total of $15,000,000 allowing $5,000,000 each for three new buildings would be found to be more in keeping with a situation which is perfectly well understood to exist in this city, and which, as has always been the case since the inception of the government, has been one which has never been fully met by our chief legislative body.

"From the standpoint of simple commercialism, eliminating all the other important constituent elements of this highly important governmental and local question, it would be supposed that the proper housing of its executive and working forces in the capital would be a primary consideration with congress.

"But we cannot have too many public buildings in the city, even though the outsider may imagine that we already have a sufficiency, and we will not, therefore, be unnecessarily alarmed at the fear that we may have too many of these structures. The yearly volume in the increase of the government's business, and the necessarily enlarged forces required to handle it, are so great that it will not be long that the need for new structures will be increasingly imperative.

"With the completion of the senate and the house of representatives' office buildings the rectangle bounding the east end of the capitol grounds will, with the exception of a single square, be covered by marble structures of beauty and size which cannot be duplicated in any other capital in the world, and there will be formed a plaza which in itself will be worth a continental or an ocean journey to feast the eyes upon. In fact, the beautiful white union station structure, being but two squares from these grounds, might with propriety be included within the radius."

History Revised.

De Soto was observed to be running through the Florida wilderness, barefooted and penniless.

"Great Half-Moon," exclaimed a friendly Indian, "where is all your gold?"

"Don't ask me," gasped De Soto. "I stopped at one of those Palm Beach hotels for a few days, and when they presented their bill I was cleaner than a sea turtle."

And De Soto rued the day he had not put up at a wigwam.—Chicago Daily News.

Did Taft Smile?

A little story anent Secretary Taft, which I think has never been in print, was told the writer by a friend who was an eyewitness. It was on a Washington street car and nearly all the seats were occupied. A pretty young lady and a bright-looking small boy sat near the rear door. The car came to a halt and Secretary Taft entered. Of course, every eye was fastened upon the distinguished official, who, with becoming stateliness and dignity, passed down the aisle to a vacant seat in the rear end of the car. The small boy climbed on the seat and watched the royal progress with fascinated eyes. Then, breaking the silence of awe, rose his clear, penetrating childish voice:

"Auntie, auntie! Why has the gentleman got his legs put on behind?"

The secretary sank into the nearest seat and the silence was still further broken by irrepressible giggles.—Boston Herald.

STOP WOMAN AND CONSIDER

First, that almost every operation in our hospitals, performed upon women, becomes necessary because of neglect of such symptoms as Backache, Irregularities, Displacements, Pain in the Side, Dragging Sensations, Dizziness and Sleeplessness.

Second, that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, has cured more cases of female ills than any other one medicine known. It regulates, strengthens and restores women's health and is invaluable in preparing women for child-birth and during the period of Change of Life.

Third, the great volume of unsolicited and grateful testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., many of which are from time to time being published by special permission, give absolute evidence of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

For more than 30 years has been curing Female Complaints, such as Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation and Ulceration, and Organic Diseases, and it dissolves and expels Tumors at an early stage.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. for advice. She is the Mrs. Pinkham who has been advising sick women free of charge for more than twenty years, and before that she assisted her mother-in-law, Lydia E. Pinkham in advising. Thus she is especially well qualified to guide sick women back to health. Write today, don't wait until too late.

We Are Experts in Making

HOUSE PAINTS

We have been constantly at it for sixty-five years and we know that we make the best and most economical house paints in the world. They have been tested in every conceivable manner for sixty-five years and have never failed.

They last the longest and have greater preservative qualities than other paints. For these reasons, combined with the fact that they cover a greater surface per gallon than other paints, they are by far the cheapest in the end. It is the part of wisdom to demand

SONG PREVENTS PANIC AT FIRE

FIRE STARTS UNDER PLATFORM WHILE BIG REVIVAL IS IN PROGRESS.

PREACHER STARTS A HYMN

Aberdeen, S. D., March 12. — While big revival services were in progress in the Auditorium last night, fire started below the platform, where about 300 of the choir and preachers were sitting. The place was packed with people, fully 2,000 being present.

When the smoke was noticed several walked out and Rev. R. E. Johnson, the leader of the revival, at once began singing. The choir took up the song and ministers went among the congregation, advising them to leave quietly.

Some of the more excitable people jumped through the windows, but in ten minutes the large hall was empty.

Not a Single Accident.

Before the choir and the evangelist left the platform the rear was in flames. The firemen fought the fire for an hour, subduing it after most of the platform had been burned.

Through the presence of mind of the evangelist, aided by the work of the ministers, not a single accident occurred. Before the last of the congregation were out the firemen were fighting the flames. Several children became separated from their parents, but they were soon restored, neighboring stores being opened to assist in this work.

MUST BE AT COUNTY SEAT.

No Special Terms in Towns for Naturalization.

Brainerd, Minn., March 12.—Clerk of the District Court Johnson has received a letter from the chief of the division of naturalization of the department of commerce and labor, stating that the provision of the laws of Minnesota allowing district judges to call terms of court at points other than county seats to hear applications for naturalization are void under the new naturalization laws, and that such hearings must always be in the office of the clerk of the court at the court house.

ACCIDENT SERIAL.

One Brother Breaks a Leg and the Other an Arm.

Sioux Falls, S. D., March 12.—Fred Arp of Gregory county, who recently had his leg broken while wrestling, sent for his Boyd county (Neb.) brother. The brother had not been on the scene more than a few hours when he, too, met with an accident, and now both brothers are under the care of physicians. The Nebraska brother attempted to haul a load of hay, but lost his balance and fell, breaking one of his arms.

FREED; KILLS TWO.

Former Manslaughter Convict Murders Women.

Beaver Dam, Wis., March 12.—Roscoe P. Miller, a former convict for manslaughter, who had been freed for good behavior, shot and killed his divorced wife and also his stepmother. He then committed suicide. It is said there had been trouble over some property which was left to his stepmother when his father died about a year ago, Miller being cut off without a cent.

$10,000 Blaze at St. Paul.

Withdrawing Jap Troops.

Mukden, March 12.—Japan is withdrawing all her troops from Manchuria except 15,000 railway guards.

SHOOTS FRIEND; KILLS SELF

ONLY MOTIVE SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN THAT THEY DIE TOGETHER.

Fairfax, Minn., March 14.—The plot of a desperate man to murder his friend and to kill himself was only partly carried out here last night, when Henry Kaatz, aged thirty-five shot Martin Kunz, a barkeeper, aged forty, in the back of the head and then turned the weapon upon himself, inflicting a wound in his own head from which he died immediately.

The shooting occurred in Joseph Dickmeyer's saloon, in which Kunz had worker as a barkeeper for a dozen years.

Kaatz and Kunz were engaged in what seemed to be a mutually agreeable conversation, when suddenly Kaatz strode from the table to a position close beside his friend and taking a revolver from his pocket fired a bullet at close range into the back of Kunz's head. Without a second's delay Kaatz raised the gun to his own forehead and blew out his brains.

Kunz was seen to be breathing and was taken to the office of a physician where the bullet was removed, and he is now recovering.

Kunz declares there was no provocation for the attempt upon his life and no motive for the suicide of Kaatz, unless it be that the latter had grown tired of his reckless and unsatisfactory way of living and had plotted his own death and that of his inseparable friend so that the two might be joined in death.

FINDS NO GROUND FOR CHARGES.

Legislators End Investigation at St. Peter.

St. Peter, Minn., March 14.—It has been clearly established that the stories of cruelty at the hospital for the insane in this city have been grossly magnified and exaggerated. The special committee from the state legislature, appointed to investigate these charges completed its probe yesterday afternoon and the members of the committee are convinced that there was no necessity for the investigation.

Nothing discreditable to the hospital management was disclosed at the hearing and the committee will make no criticism of the manner in which the institution has been and is being conducted. In fact, the investigation has been decidedly to the advantage of the hospital.

LIFE SOUGHT BY "BLACK HAND."

Quarry Foreman Guarded by Detectives—Quarry Is Threatened.

Waukesha, Wis., March 14.—A score of detectives for more than a week have been guarding the property of the Waukesha Stone and Quarry company, which has been threatened with destruction by fire by an alleged "Black Hand" society. The detectives claim that the fire which destroyed the plant on Sept. 7 was the work of the "Black Hand" organization, and that the reason for destroying the company's property is to get rid of A. E. Houfrack, foreman of the works. Houfrack is said to have received a number of threatening letters from the organization.

Houfrack, who is followed by a guard of detectives, claims to be unable to give any reason why he should have been selected as the object of a "Black Hand" vendetta.

VOTES TURN AGAINST LID.

Open Policy Supported at Elections in Various Parts of the State.

St. Paul, March 14.—The lid fared but poorly at the hands of Minnesota voters yesteday, when the elections were held in various cities, towns and villages. In some places the no-license vote was the heavier, but in many of the places where license was the issue there was a decided vote in favor of the liquor traffic.

Among the larger places in which the lid policy was sustained was Rochester.

The heaviest vote in favor of license reported last night was at Brown's Valley, where the antagonists of the lied corraled 101 votes for that policy. Hayfield reported the closest vote, with a bare 2 to spare in favor of license, and Duck Creek came next with a majority of 5.

ANXIOUS ABOUT COUNT.

Sparr's Friends Fear Nobleman Has Met With Foul Play.

Miller, S. D., March 14.—Fears are expressed by friends of Count Sparr, who after coming here last year from South America and establishing a big ranch, later returning to Germany, that he has met with some accident or foul play, as he has not been heard from. He was expected at his ranch some time ago.

Seymour, Iowa, March 13. — Fire which broke out in the roof of the tipple at the Numa coal mine destroyed all the buildings and equipment at the mine except the engine house. The loss is estimated at $6,000.

Attempted Murder.

Charles City, Iowa, March 13.—Sam Miller, a retired farmer, attempted to murder his wife. He is in the county jail. He is a drinker and is quarrelsome. His wife is in a serious condition, but may live.

WITH THE LAWMAKERS

Work Accomplished by the State Legislators.

St. Paul, March 8.—County option went down and out in the senate yesterday. The committee on temperance reported the bill for indefinite postponement. The knockout came on the adoption of the majority report of the committee, and the bill was indefinitely postponed by a vote of 36 to 23.

The bill to appropriate $10,000 for a silver service for the new battleship Minnesota and to create a commission to present the same was passed after a full hour of debate. According to an amendment adopted Miss Rose Marie Schaller, daughter of Senator Schaller, is made a member of the commission. Miss Schaller christened the ship.

Senator Cushman introduced a bill to establish a 4 per cent gross earnings tax on all express companies. At present these companies pay 6 per cent on net earnings.

Senator Glotzbach presented a bill to provide for the punishment of men who fail to support their families.

A bill by Senator Sullivan calls for $10,000 to be appropriated for a water plant at the state prison.

Senator Calhoun offered a bill creating a woman's department of state and naming Mrs. C. C. Whitney as first superintendent.

A board of six visitors for state institutions is created in a bill presented by Senator Clague. They are to have advisory power only. Investigation of institutions through the board may be ordered at the discretion of the governor.

Senator Nelson introduced a bill to provide a hospital of detention and treatment for the use of dipsomaniacs, inebriates and those addicted to the excessive use of narcotics, under management of the state board of control.

The insurance committee reported out the bill relating to the salaries of officers and agents of insurance companies. Section 2 is made to read that no domestic life insurance company shall pay as a salary more than $10,000 a year to any one person.

In the House.

For fear that the legal proceedings to defeat the tax amendment adopted by the people may succeed, Representative Tighe introduced a bill proposing a submission of the same amendment to the people at the next general election. It is the same as the so-called "wide-open" tax amendment and is introduced now simply as a precautionary measure in the event that the steel trust and other associate concerns which are behind the movement to recount the votes on the constitutional amendment are successful in the attempt to have the vote declared insufficient to carry the measure.

The bill prohibiting the inducing of a mother not to nurse her child was reported to pass. It was amended to confine the prohibition to parties outside the immediate family.

Representative Mork offered a bill providing for a compulsory state inspection of dairies and dairy cattle.

Protection to the life and health of miners is sought in a bill presented by Representative Saari, providing for a mine inspector to be appointed by the governor.

Representative Christensen sent in a bill to regulate the traffic in trading stamps.

In committee of the whole six bills were advanced to the calendar, among them being two bills relating to the state prison. One of them was the bill authorizing the board of control to sell binding twine outside of the state after the wants of the farmers and dealers had been filled. The other was the bill relating to the employment of prisoners in the state prison and reformatory.

The bill providing for a state inspector of rural schools was killed after a rather acrimonious debate. The committee on education had reported the bill for indefinite postponement.

St. Paul, March 9. — The house will take up the tax bills next Wednesday. Chairman Thayer of the tax committee secured the adoption of a motion to place the tax bills at the head of general orders to be considered in committee of the whole next Wednesday morning. The bills include the mortgage tax, income tax, inheritance tax and the special taxes on saloon licenses and dealers in cigarettes.

A bill was introduced appropriating $500,000 for the construction of a new state prison at Stillwater. One-half of the sum is to be available this year.

Representatives Bjorge and Jefferson offered a bill which provides for a tax of 5 cents on every ton of iron ore mined in this state, this tax to be in lieu of the customary ad valorem tax.

The bill authorizing the board of control to sell binding twine outside of the state after the farmers and dealers of the state have been supplied, was passed, as was the bill regulating the employment of prisoners at the state prison and reformatory. The purpose of the bill is to enable the board of control to manufacture farm machinery. The bill prohibiting persons from inducing mothers not to nurse their children was passed by a vote of 71 to 24.

Among the bills passed was the bill authorizing the county commissioners to maintain the water in navigable lakes at their normal level, and the bill providing for the appointment of probation officers in counties of less than 50,000 inhabitants.

In the Senate.

The senate passed a number of bills yesterday. Among them: Limiting the quantity of land that corporations may acquire; creating 10 per cent penalty for failure of telegraph companies to pay taxes at the required time; providing for an asylum for criminal insane and dangerous persons; establishing standard measures and tests for milk and cream.

Senator Durment added one more bill to the several pending on telephone company taxation. It provides for a 4 per cent gross earnings tax.

Senators Hardy and Dunn introduced a bill to establish a state hospital for indigent, crippled and deformed children in St. Paul. A portion of the city hospital grounds and buildings is to be donated for the hospital. The bill places the institution under the supervision of the university regents.

The state dairy and food commission is given all the present powers of the state live stock and sanitary board in a bill introduced by Senator Noonan.

Willful trespass upon state timber is made cause for dissolution of the offending corporation, if organized in Minnesota, in a bill by Senator Noonan.

Senator Stephens introduced a bill providing for rotation in office in the board of grain appeals, instead of all going out at the end of every two years.

An additional agricultural school and state experiment station is established in a bill presented by Senator Hanson. It requires the institution to be located at or near Heron Lake, on a tract of 320 acres.

Senator Peterson offered a bill which authorizes the state railroad and warehouse commission to designate in railroad records to what account any items shall be charged.

Resolutions from the Fergus Falls Commercial club opposing the semi-centennial bill were presented.

St. Paul, March 11.—The house Saturday by a decisive vote killed the bill exempting lodge buildings from taxation. The bill came before the house with a majority report for indefinite postponement and a minority report for passage. After considerable debate the majority report was adopted.

The bill to make employers liable for accidents to employes in cases where the employe showed contributory negligence was killed in committee of the whole. Bills considered favorably in committee of the whole were: Authorizing municipalities to issue their bonds to the state of Minnesota; prohibiting corporations or stock companies acting as agents or solicitors for life insurance companies; to amend the statutes relating to insurance; proposing an amendment to Article IV. of the constitution, authorizing special legislation in regard to cities.

The license and regulation of clairvoyants, trance mediums, palmists and fortune tellers is provided in a bill introduced by Representative Stokes.

A code of insurance laws for special application to fraternal beneficiary associations is provided in a bill presented by Representative Timberlake. The bill is the one drawn by the legislative committee of the Minnesota Fraternal Beneficiary association and approved by the fraternities of the state.

Bills passed: Providing for the election of town supervisors in newly organized towns; authorizing certain counties to levy an additional tax for road and bridge purposes.

Bills introduced: Amending laws relating to savings banks; exempting from taxation rural land taken for highway purposes; appropriating the funds necessary for insuring state buildings.

St. Paul, March 12.—A bill to prohibit discrimination by telephone companies between persons and localities in rates and telephone rentals and incorporating the long and short haul principle of railroad rates as applied to telephone service, was introduced in the senate yesterday by Senator Hanson.

A bill was presented by Senator Thorpe which prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquors within a mile of any military reservation within the state.

All conveyances of real estate made by separate deed of husband and wife within the last five years are legalized by a bill offered by Senator Alderman.

A bill substituting a petition to the railroad and warehouse commission for a petition to the district court by railroads desiring to abandon a part of their lines, and making other amendments to the present law relating to the abandonment or closing of traffic of railroad lines, was introduced by Senator Clague.

The house was not in session, having adjourned last Saturday until Wednesday.

St. Paul, March 13.—The senate yesterday passed H. F. 486, the 2-cent fare bill. The vote was 43 to 5, the opposition being Senators Alderman, Calhoun, Durment, Hardy and Wilson. The bill as passed contains the amendments attached by the senate and makes the bill the same as the Peterson bill of the senate. The bill will now go to the house for concurrence of that body. It is probable that this action will be refused by the house. This will mean the appointment of a joint conference committee.

The house bill to establish a plant at the state prison at Stillwater for manufacture of rakes, mowers, harvesters and binders was passed by a vote of 87 to 10.

The site of old Fort Ridgely, Nicollet county, will be turned into a state park if Senator Johnson's bill passes.

The senate adopted a resolution for the appointment of a committee composed of two senators and three representatives to investigate the advisability of the adoption of the indeterminate sentence plan for the punishment of all criminals.

A memorial from the state of Maine was received relative to the calling of a convention to consider an amendment to the constitution for the suppression of polygamy.

The following bills were passed: Commitment of patients to hospitals or asylums for the insane, providing for the establishment of detention hospitals therefor; relating to warehouses, railroads and grain; limiting the time when real estate mortgages may be foreclosed when the time of maturity is not stated in the mortgage; relating to the payment of taxes, insurance premiums and interest on prior liens, during the period of redemption by purchasers at foreclosure or judicial sales; relating to municipal court; relating to license for the sale of milk or cream; relating to town and farmers' mutual insurance companies.

St. Paul, March 14.—The house yesterday tackled the tax bills. One of the thirteen bills reported was indefinitely postponed, two others escaped the same fate by being laid over. Four of the bills were recommended to pass and the rest were laid over without being touched. The bill providing for a gross earnings tax for sleeping car companies was recommended to pass without debate. The same indorsement was given the bill to tax private freight car lines. The income tax bill was laid over, as was also the bill increasing the railroad gross earnings tax. The bill to license cigarette dealers was favorably reported. Two bills relating to foreign corporations were recommended to pass. The bill for the distribution of surplus state revenue was indefinitely postponed and then replaced on general orders. The bill to increase the saloon license $100 was killed.

A general gross earnings tax bill was introduced by Representative Wells.

The house by a unanimous vote refused to concur in the senate amendments to the house 2-cent fare bill, and the speaker appointed a conference committee on the part of the house.

The house concurred in the senate amendments to the bill for the manufacture of farm machinery at the state prison.

Bills introduced: Providing salaries instead of fees for sheriffs in counties of $5,000 or under; repealing the law creating the state highway commission; prohibiting telephone companies from exacting a toll when municipalities adjoin each other; permitting a limited license ordinance for villages; providing for a bronze statue of Peace for the new capitol; limiting the issuance of saloon licenses in the state; prescribing additional duties for the dairy and food commission.

In the Senate.

The nomination by primary election of party candidates for the United States senate and the selection of a state candidate by popular vote at the general election is provided in a bill introduced by Senator McColl. The bill is framed along the lines of the Oregon law.

The cause of woman suffrage received a boost yesterday when the judiciary committee reported favorably a bill for an amendment to the constitution relating to the qualifications of electors in the state.

The senate passed a bill to require an annual apportionment and accounting of surplus of life insurance companies as to policies heretofore issued.

Senator Johnson put in a live stock bill making it obligatory on common carriers to run stock trains at least fifteen miles an hour, making allowances for feeding and watering and allowing one hour to pass through cities of more than 50,000 people.

Money for the Crookston branch school of agriculture is provided for in a bill offered by Senator Stephens.

A bill was presented to provide for a state board of examiners for chiropractics and natural healing methods and to regulate the practice of those professions.

TO WED STEPMOTHER.

Young Man Is Refused License to Take Father's Widow as Bride.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 14.—Deputy Clerk Joseph Maher almost fell off his chair from sheer astonishment while examining an applicant for a marriage license. E. J. Shoemaker applied for a license to marry Myrtle J. Shoemaker and when the clerk asked if there was any relationship between the parties, Shoemaker replied:

"She's my mother-in-law."

It afterward appeared, however, that the woman was his stepmother, and the license to wed was refused, as the Iowa statutes deny the right of a man to marry his father's widow.

Shoemaker was twenty-seven years old and the woman twenty-five.

MURDERERS SAY GUILTY.

Two Men Confess That They Killed John Gavin, a Farmer.

Mount Pleasant, Iowa, March 14.—Thomas Grimes, colored, and Arnold Zimmer have pleaded guilty to the murder of John Gavin, a well-to-do farmer, who was found dead in the road near New London on Jan 22. Judge Withrow will hear the evidence of the prosecution and defense, and will determine the degree of murder of which the men are guilty and will then sentence them.

EFFORT TO RENT FATAL.

Aged Farmer Overdoes in Showing Property and Falls Dead.

Cedar Falls, Iowa, March 14.—After spending four hours at his farm south of here showing a prospective renter about the place, Charles H. Foote, seventy-five years old, returned home and before he could remove his overcoat dropped dead. Heart failure, brought on by his exertions, is believed to have caused his death.

Newspaper Robbed.

Superior, Wis., March 14.—Burglars robbed the Superior Telegram building and carried off the cash box from the safe, which had been left unlocked. Between $400 and $600 in checks and money was taken.

Injured on Wedding Trip.

Sioux City, Iowa, March 14.—Dr. I. E. Nervig and wife, who were injured when an enormous icicle fell on a trolley car which was passing the Whirlpool rapids in Niagara gorge, were on their honeymoon.

G. W. Perkins Refunds Campaign Money to New York Life.

New York, March 9. — George W. Perkins, former first vice president of the New York Life Insurance company and now a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., has sent to the New York Life his personal check for $54,019.19 to reimburse the company for the Republican campaign contribution with which Mr. Perkins recently was made defendant on a charge of larceny.

The man who contends that the world is growing worse, always goes about armed with a muck rake.

The State DAY BY DAY

DOESN'T LIKE HIS JOB.

Hotel Inspector Ryan Hopes the Legislature Will Do Something.

John A. Ryan, state hotel inspector, whose claim against the state for $2,832.55 was cut down to $637 by the senate claims committee, filed his quarterly report for the quarter ending March 1, 1907, with the state auditor. The report shows that in the last quarter nine hotels were reinspected, fees were collected and the expenses of the department were $46.50, which with the salary makes the total amount to $346.50.

That the hotel inspector is not very much in love with his job is shown by the following report attached to the financial statement:

"Despite the fact that the legislature has been in session for several weeks, there has been no step taken by it thus far to cure some vital defects in the act under which my office was established. I have been working under a disadvantage, intensified during the present quarter, inasmuch as there has been an absolute lack of pecuniary aid from the state, necessitating the expenditure of private funds in order that the work intrusted to me under the law might be consistently carried on.

"I had hoped that the legislature would not hesitate to promptly make up any deficiency incurred in pursuance of my official duties, and failure so to do has exhausted my financial resources and compelled the abandonment of further active field work, however imperative, during the remainder of my term under the existing act.

"In the event that the hotel inspection law shall become a permanent feature of our statutes, it is highly essential, as experience proves, that adequate funds be provided direct by the state if beneficial and satisfactory results in hotel regulation by law be desired."

ORE FINDS BOOM LANDS.

Iron Prospecting Near Aitkin, Minn., Meets Success.

Recent rich finds of iron ore in Aitkin county have caused much excitement, and a number of syndicates have been formed and have taken options on land where the indications of ore are good. The latest find has been on the farm of J. G. Jacobson, who lives on Rice river, northeast of town, where drilling has been in progress for several months.

One forty has been drilled by Cuyler Adams and in the eight holes put down the iron tests have ranged from 48 to 58 per cent metallic iron. The explorations were made by Adams on a sharing basis and Jacobson has been offered $8,000 for his share in the property, the per cent of his interest not being stated.

A local syndicate of composed of J. J. McDonald, C. H. Warner and J. B. Galarneault have bought 160 acres from Jacobson for which they paid him $20,000 and agreed to give him a one-tenth interest in the mineral.

PLAN CHAUTAUQUA WORK.

Officers and Chairmen of Committee Are Selected.

The guarantors to the Chautauqua movement have perfected an organization for carrying on the work this season at Albert Lea. The officers and chairmen of committees are as follows: President, V. Gillrup; vice president, Rev. H. M. Buins; secretary, C. E. Southwick; treasurer, D. C. Armstrong; finance committee, chairman, W. G. Chamberlain; talent, Clint L. Luce; advertising, J. P. Hurley; grounds, W. A. Morin; ladies' auxiliary, Mrs. Hattie Smith Fuller. It is the plan to buy talent for about 2,000 and have the Chautauqua this year where it has been heretofore, on the campus of Albert Lea college. The meetings have been held in a tent, and it it planned to build eventually a pavilion or auditorium.

HIRE DAIRY INSPECTOR.

Creamery Men May Create Office and Share Expense.

The creamery men of Freeborn county are to hold a meeting in Albert Lea in a fortnight, and one of the principal topics to be considered will be the advisability of securing an inspector for the county, to be paid for by the various creameries. His duties would be to inspect barns, give instructions in feeding, handling milk and testing herds and cows. It is believed that a man in that position would earn his salary many times over in the improved condition of milk when taken to the creamery, the saving in feed and the general improvement of the dairy yard on the average farm, while he would weed out the poor cows, as farmers would not keep them when it was shown that the cows were not paying for their feed.

BANK EXAMINER QUITS.

T. V. Knatvold Finds Work Too Onerous and Confining.

T. V. Knatvold, bank examiner for the Albert Lea district, has tendered his resignation, to take effect on April 1. Mr. Knatvold stated that he had found the duties of the position so exacting that he was almost continually away from his home in Albert Lea. The work was so onerous and confining, he added, that it threatened to impair his health and he concluded to guard against this by resigning.

PAYS BACK $54,019.19.

G. W. Perkins Refunds Campaign Money to New York Life.

New York, March 9. — George W. Perkins, former first vice president of the New York Life Insurance company and now a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., has sent to the New York Life his personal check for $54,019.19 to reimburse the company for the Republican campaign contribution with which Mr. Perkins recently was made defendant on a charge of larceny.

STATE LAND SALES.

Auditor Announces Times and Places of Summer Auctions.

The state auditor has announced the dates for holding the June and July land sales. There are about 300,000 acres of land to be sold at public auction to the highest bidders.

The law requires 15 per cent of the purchase money to be paid at the time of the sale. The balance may run for forty years at 4 per cent interest. The title to all land is perfect.

The places for holding the sales and the dates are as follows:

	Acres Offered.

GRAND OPERA.

The Metropolitan Opera Company to Appear in St. Paul.

The Metropolitan Opera company opens in St. Paul April 23 with "Tannhauser." The cast will include Emma Eames, Fremstad, Burgstaller, Van Roy and Blass.

Wednesday Matinee—"La Boheme." The cast will include Caruso, Bessie Abbott, Stracciari, a fine baritone, and Geurnet.

Wednesday Evening—Double Bill—"Pagliacci." The cast including Bella Altin, Scotti and Bars. "Hensel and Graetel." Cast includes Bella Altin, Weed, Manfeld and Goerity.

"Salome" will not be taken on the road, and Mr. Conreid announces that this will be positively the last tour the company will ever make. Hereafter they will only play in New York city.

Schuman-Heink will not sing with the opera company in either St. Paul or Minneapolis, but will appear in concert in St. Paul on the 11th of April.

WOULD GIVE UP CANNING.

Lake Crystal People Want to Stop Factory Work.

Mountain Lake has formed a stock company for the purpose of putting up a canning factory. Other Southern Minnesota towns have done the same, among which is Lake Crystal, where work on the factory is under way. There the stockholders, numbering 150 to 200 farmers and townspeople, have become dissatisfied with the project and have retained counsel to try to get the contract for the plant rescinded. Notice was served on the builders to stop work. The stockholders claim that the parties who sold them the factory machinery represented that the profit would be 60 per cent a year, whereas investigation has shown them that similar factories are losing investments and can be purchased for a fraction of the money invested. They also claim that the machinery being furnished is cheap. The company's capital stock is $13,800.

The College Widow.

George Ade's comedy, "The College Widow," which appears in St. Paul for four nights commencing Easter Sunday, March 31, and in Minneapolis for three nights and Saturday matinee, April 4 to 7, enjoys a unique distinction among the present day stage successes. It was not built to appeal in particular to faddists or class, but to the average man or woman, in whom, though sometimes slumbering, there exists an inherent love of honest sport. Hard play is just as much a part of the busy Americans' creed as is hard work, and in the fact that every figure in Mr. Ade's comedy concentrates himself heart and soul upon the interests of a football team, lies one of the chief fascinations of this wonderfully successful performance. An auditor of "The College Widow" is just as certain to become a partisan of one or the other of the mimic football teams in the play as are the people of Ade's imagination.

Has Health Board.

Winona, Minn., March 9.—Following the suggestion of Dr. H. M. Bracken of the state board of health, Winona county now has a county board of health composed of Commissioners Roth and Monohan and Dr. D. B. Pritchard.

Killed in Collision.

Betterdorf, Iowa, March 9. — Two passenger trains collided head-on near here yesterday. The engineer was killed and one person fatally and two seriously injured.

Crushed by Ore Car.

Eveleth, Minn., March 9.—Pasquala Demperil was fatally injured in an accident in the Elba mine. Demperil fell under an ore car and was crushed so badly that he died a few hours later.

Marshalltown, Iowa, March 9.—William A. Fuller was probably fatally and his wife and child seriously injured in a runaway accident.

BLOW FEARED BY THAW HAS FALLEN

COURT TO DECIDE IF TRIAL SHALL GO ON OR COMMISSION BE NAMED.

JEROME SPRINGS SENSATION

ACCUSED DEFENSE OF UNPROFESSIONAL CONDUCT IN HOLDING BACK FACTS.

New York, March 17.—With Attorney Delmas fighting him every inch of the way, District Attorney Jerome yesterday secured from Abraham Hummel his complete story as to the affidavit which it is alleged Evelyn Nesbit Thaw made in the lawyer's office in 1903, charging Harry K. Thaw with beating her, and when she had told him that the statement that Stanford White had drugged and ruined her was not true. Mr. Delmas, first objecting broadly to all of Hummel's testimony, offered a specific objection to each question put by the prosecutor. Justice Fitzgerald overruled every objection.

Evelyn Thaw Called.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was called to the stand in the effort of the defense to keep Hummel silent. She declared she had called upon Hummel in his professional capacity and to seek his advice as a lawyer. Justice Fitzgerald declared that, admitting the proposition of counsel and client, Mrs. Thaw had herself waived the professional privilege by taking the stand early in the case and giving her version of what transpired at Hummel's office.

Gets Hummel's Record.

Unsuccessful in blocking Hummel's testimony, Attorney Delmas in cross-examining the witness brought from his own lips the fact that he had been convicted in December, 1905, on a charge of conspiracy. He further admitted that two indictments for subornation of perjury are pending against him and that one of these indictments charges him with having caused a false affidavit to be made.

Mr. Delmas wanted to know if Hummel had any more recent business transactions with the district attorney, and asked if Mr. Jerome was pressing the charges against him.

"He certainly is," said the witness, with spirit.

Affidavit Held Up.

At the conclusion of this testimony District Attorney Jerome asked permission to introduce the carbon and photographic copies of the affidavit in evidence. It was near the closing hour, and Mr. Delmas asked that adjournment be taken before arguing as to the admissibility of the affidavit. He said that after reading the paper over he might not object to its being offered in evidence. "Coming, as it does," he said, "in such questionable shape, we may deem it best to have the paper go in evidence."

District Attorney Jerome completed his medical testimony during the morning session, Attorney Delmas, for the defense, declining to cross-examine any of the experts.

New York, March 20.—The case for the people in the Thaw trial was finally closed yesterday by the introduction of the much discussed Hummel affidavit, which, with the consent of the defense, was read in full to the jury. The affidavit proved a surprise only in the alleged severity of the assaults Harry K. Thaw is said to have made upon Evelyn Nesbit during the trip through Europe in 1903, when, according to the testimony of Abraham Hummel, Miss Nesbit would not sign statements which Thaw had prepared, accusing Stanford White of having drugged and ruined her.

Contradicts Hummel.

The affidavit was in some ways a direct contradiction of Hummel's recent testimony upon the stand. In order that the defense might not prevent him from telling the story of the affidavit he stated positively that he was not acting as Miss Nesbit's attorney when he drew up the document; that he was acting solely in the interest of Stanford White and that no legal action was contemplated in behalf of the young woman who is now Harry Thaw's wife.

Was Evelyn's Attorney.

There was considerable surprise consequently, when Mr. Jerome read the opening words of the affidavit, which were: "Supreme court, county of New York; Evelyn Nesbit, plaintiff, against Harry Kendall Thaw, defendant." It is said the action contemplated with the affidavit was the recovery of certain property, which it was alleged Thaw had wrongfully taken from the girl. In dictating the affidavit Hummel referred to himself as Miss Nesbit's attorney.

Offers Hummel's Record.

When Mr. Delmas began the introduction of testimony in surrebuttal he introduced first of all the record in the trial and conviction of Hummel on the charge of conspiracy.

Mr. Delmas put upon the stand three policemen who saw Thaw the night of the tragedy or early in the morning after, and they all declared that he either looked or acted irrationally.

After this testimony had been presented Mr. Delmas passed to the final stages of the trial by introducing the first of seven alienists. Three of them were disposed of yesterday, and it now seems certain that unless the unexpected happens there should be a verdict by Friday night.

New York, March 21.—The blow of which Harry Kendall Thaw has been in terror since his trial for the murder of Stanford White began fell yesterday. District Attorney Jerome did not make formal application for the appointment of a commission in lunacy, but in an impassioned speech he appealed to the conscience of the court, asserting that Thaw is unable intelligently to advise his counsel and is believed by every one who has watched and come into contact with him to be insane.

Thaw's Counsel Accused.

Mr. Jerome asserted that the six alienists who testified for the state were convinced that Thaw was of unsound mind. Mr. Jerome dramatically accused the counsel for the defense of concealing testimony which, if presented to the court, would make the continuance of the trial a crime. So earnestly did he plead that Justice Fitzgerald dismissed the jury until Friday morning and adjourned court until this afternoon, when he will consider whatever evidence either side has to offer and decide whether the trial shall go on or whether a commission in lunacy shall be appointed to pass upon Thaw's present mental condition.

Dramatic and Exciting.

The scenes attending the adjournment of court shortly after 1 o'clock were dramatic and exciting. Thaw's counsel seemed taken utterly by surprise.

"If the real facts were known," declared Mr. Jerome, "I have no right to be here trying a man for his life. But the knowledg I have cannot be put in legal form before the jury. It is mostly hearsay. But if I could get the facts before you they would shock and horrify the conscience of the court and instantly this case would be stopped."

Defense Scents Victory.

Justice Fitzgerald demanded that counsel on both sides submit to him today all the evidence they possess touching upon the sanity or insanity of the defendant.

When the trial adjourned Messrs. Hartridge and O'Reilly of Thaw's counsel professed the greatest pleasure over the turn of affairs.

"The district attorney has acknowledged himself beaten," said Mr. Hartridge. "We can combat the lunacy commission. In the meantime the district attorney has acknowledged that he believes Thaw was insane when he shot Stanford White. That ought to give us an acquittal."

EVANGELIST FLEES TOWN.

Rev. Hunt Leaves Grand Forks Too Fast to Take Grip.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 21.—Evangelist Hunt of Minneapolis made a hurried departure to the south last night, and rumors are rife that he has left this scene of action for good. In his haste to catch a south-bound train he forgot his grip at the Great Northern depot. The evangelist has been rather disheartened for the last day or so on account of the strenuous opposition to his methods by many church people of this city. One of the faithful stated that Hunt had gone to Wahpeton.

HOWARD CANNOT RECOVER.

Man Stabbed by Daughter Is in Critical Condition.

St. Paul, March 21.—Charles Howard, who was stabbed in the breast with a butcher knife Tuesday night by his eighteen-year-old daughter, Fern Howard, continues in a critical condition at the city hospital, and the physicians say that he cannot recover. The mother and the daughter were remanded to the county jail yesterday by Judge Hanft to await the outcome of the father's injuries.

JUDGE'S HOUSE BLOWN UP.

Assailant Uses Seventy Feet of Fuse on Bomb.

Oakland, Cal., March 21.—A bomb was exploded in front of Judge Ogden's house last night. The whole front of the house was destroyed, but none of the inmates were injured.

The bomb had seventy feet of fuse attached, so that who ever fired it had time to escape. Judge Ogden suspects an insane man, whose name he has given the police.

Explosion Kills Six Men.

Dubois, Pa., March 21.—An explosion late yesterday in the Emporium powder mill, two miles west of Emporium, Pa., caused the death of six men. The cause of the explosion has not been ascertained.

Killed by Shot in Back.

Hattiesburg, Miss., March 21.—Edward Howell, one of the most influential negroes in Southern Mississippi, was shot in the back and killed while on his way home. The shooting is a mystery.

Run for Train Costs Leg.

Aberdeen, S. D., March 21.—James Miller of Dubuque, Iowa, was run over at Roscoe last night by a train which he was running to catch. He lost a leg.

Business Man Hangs Himself.

Cokato, Minn., March 21.—In the basement of his store A. J. Erickson of the firm of Moody & Erickson committed suicide by hanging himself. The only known reason is liquor and money matters.

County Fair for Wheaton.

Wheaton, Minn., March 21.—A fair association has been organized. Five thousand dollars were raised in two days by the merchants and farmers. A tract of land is to be bought adjoining the village.

Every woman likes to be considered an authority on social affairs.

WITH THE LAWMAKERS

Work Accomplished by the State Legislators.

St. Paul, March 16.—The work of the state highway commisson was given a setback yesterday when the senate adopted the finance committee's report containing an amendment to Senator Canfield's bill providing for an annual appropriation of $200,000 to aid in building and repairing highways under the supervision of the highway commission. The amendment provides that the money shall be expended under the supervision of the boards of county commissioners, instead of the highway commission. This action was taken after a debate of about two hours.

The beginning of the understanding on the 2-cent rate bill was noted when a communication from the house was received, asking for a conference on the bill.

Tributes to the memory of the late Senator McGill were delivered in the senate yesterday.

Bills passed: Relating to standard tests and measures for milk and cream; relating to payment of real estate taxes and accrued penalties thereon; county road and bridge fund expenditure; relating to partial distribution of estates; relating to bonds of trustees of cemetery associations; relating to the summoning and attendance of grand jurors in court; establishing the Twentieth judicial district; providing for the acceptance and administration of gifts, bequests, devises and endowments in aid or for the benefit of educational, charitable and other institutions maintained by the state.

In the House.

The house yesterday passed the Tighe bill licensing dealers in cigarettes and what is known as the "makin's." The fee is $15 and goes direct to the state for revenue purposes. The bill passed by a vote of 82 to 28.

The anti-rebate bill was passed, only four members voting in the negative. The bill relates to both the giver and receiver of rebates and makes the same a penitentiary offense.

The bill providing for an income tax passed the house unanimously.

Other bills passed: To tax sleeping car companies; requiring foreign corporations to file annual reports with the secretary of state and to pay annual fees therefor; relating to property exempt from taxation.

Boards of county commissioners are authorized to spend $50 for the burial of any old soldier dying under their jurisdiction by the terms of a bill introduced by Representative Randall.

The bill to tax all saloons in the state an additional $100 was killed.

Bills introduced: Relating to the power of county commissioners to divide school districts; to provide for the recovery of excess transportation charges exacted by common carriers; appropriating $50,000 to reimburse owners of infected horses that were killed; relating to the taxation of property omitted from tax laws; providing for a system of publicity of the prices paid for grain at public local warehouses of the state; relating to the abolition of the poll tax payment of road taxes.

St. Paul, March 18.—A proposition to have the legislature meet annually was made to the house Saturday in a bill by Representative Carl. The bill came in the form of a constitutional amendment, but does not make provision for the submission of the question to the people, but it may be amended in this respect. Another idea in the bill is that the length of the session should not be limited, but left to the discretion of the legislature.

The bill to allow petit jurors in civil cases to render a verdict by a five-sixths vote was killed in committee of the whole.

The house administered a second death blow to the bill providing for the study of the effects of alcoholic drinks in connection with the subject of physiology in the public schools.

Bills passed: Relating to maintenance of a ditch in Hennepin; authorizing cities of 50,000 to issue sewer bonds; authorizing Minneapolis to issue bridge bonds; providing a method of foreclosure of mortgages.

An anti-treating bill was introduced by Representative Horton. It makes it unlawful for any person to treat or give any intoxicating liquor to any person in a place where drinks are sold, and also makes it unlawful for anyone to accept any drink as a gift in such place.

Other bills introduced: Appropriating money for the state farm school; prohibiting marriages of second cousins; providing penalties for the use of obscene language in the presence of a female.

In the Senate.

A bill proposing a constitutional amendment relating to taxation of church property was introduced by Senator Thorpe. The amendment simply adds the words "used for religious purposes" after the words "church property" among the exceptions to the requirement that all taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects.

Another bill to regulate the practice of chiropractics was introduced by Senator Hall.

A bill including the having in one's possession, to the prohibition against offering or exposing for sale for human food, any domestic or wild fowls, or slaughtered rabbits, squirrels or other small animals, wild or tame, was presented by Senator Fosseen.

A bill prohibiting the sale of any barley or other grain which has been subjected to fumigation was offered by Senator Thorpe.

A long list of bills was considered in committee of the whole, but in the end not one bill was recommended for passage.

Bills passed: Relating to the notice of expiration of redemption on tax judgment sales; to empower cities and villages to appoint inspectors of gas, electric light, heat and water meters, and to provide for their compensation; pertaining to the board of investment of the school, university, and other trust funds; relating to storage and shipment of grain; relating to claims for damages to person or property; regulating the priority and rank of liens for general taxes and assessments for local improvements in cities of more than 10,000.

St. Paul, March 19.—The house had a fit of industry yesterday and put in the entire time of the session in the consideration of bills on general orders. On motion of Representative Dorsey all other business was dispensed with and the house went into committee of the whole. A large grist of bills were considered and many of them were recommended for passge. The most important bills that received favorable consideration were:

To prohibit any junk dealer, pawnbroker or second-hand dealer to purchase or receive mechanics' tools as security for money advances; prohibiting the manufacture and sale for use as food of certain articles and substances; raising salary of state chemist; to amend constitution establishing road and bridge fund and authorizing the legislature to levy an annual tax for the purpose of constructing and improving roads and bridges within this state; designating a commission for the erection of the monument to the First Minnesota battery at Shiloh; relating to the salary and compensation of county commissioners in counties of not less than 20,000 nor more than 75,000 inhabitants; requiring express, telephone, telegraph and other companies to pay special assessments; relating to punishment for drunkenness; to prevent corrupt practices at primary general election, village and city election; relating to the prevention of fraud and deception in the sales of spices and condiments; compelling common carriers by railroad to employ competent persons as locomotive engineers; relating to the fees of constables and reimbursing them for cost of food for prisoners; to appropriate money to commemorate the services of the First regiment of Minnesota volunteers and their late colonel, William Colville, and to provide a suitable monument for his grave.

St. Paul, March 20.—Provision for the construction of the new buildings for the enlarged state prison at Stillwater by an appropriation of $500,000 is made in a bill introduced yesterday by Senator Sullivan. The appropriation is made available at the rate of $250,000 a year for the two years ending July 31, 1908.

In committee of the whole the senate voted to indefinitely postpone both bills relating to the establishment of a normal school in the northern part of the state.

A number of bills received favorable consideration in committee of the whole, among the more important being:

Relating to the salaries of officers and agents of life insurance companies; to create county boards of education for unorganized territory within the state and to define their scope and power; to authorize the railroad and warehouse commission to fix the time when local warehousemen shall keep house open for business; proposing an amendment to section 1 of article IX. of the constitution of the State of Minnesota relating to taxation; to regulate the killing of tuberculous cattle and glandered horses and to provide for compensation to the owner by the state.

The senate passed the bill authorizing the state board of control to allow the sale of binding twine manufactured at the prison, when, in its judgment it is for the best interests of the state to do so, and authorizing dealers to charge a profit of 1 1-2 cents a pound on the twine when it is sold on credit.

Other important bills passed were: Authorizing the state drainage commission to co-operate with the United States government in making a topographical survey and map of the State of Minnesota and appropriating money therefor; to create the office of inspector of apiaries; to provide for liens upon horses and other animals for the cost of shoeing the same; to provide against fraud or deception in issuing receipts or certificates for grain, hay or straw weighed; to provide for summer sessions at normal schools and to appropriate money therefor; to provide for the erection and maintenance of guide-posts and guide boards at points where public roads cross or branch in different directions; to appropriate money for the installation of a water plant at the state prison.

In the House.

The drunkards' reform bill was passed in the house by a vote of 71 to 18. The bill amends the present law providing for the punishment of drunks by adding a proviso that the court may suspend sentence for six months on good behavior of the defendant.

The bill requiring locomotive engineers to have three years' experience as firemen, or one year as engineer, or three years in both capacities, was killed.

The following were among the important bills passed at the session:

To authorize cities to acquire, construct, own, operate and lease public utilities and to provide means therefor; relating to foreign corporations; relating to township delinquent road taxes; relating to the publication of the notice of application for license to sell intoxicating liquors; the incorporation, organization and government of cities; prohibiting the manufacture and sale for use as food of certain articles and substances; relating to special tax levy for the payment of municipal indebtedness to the state fund; relating to the dairy and food department. A large number of bills were acted on in committee of the whole at the afternoon session.

St. Paul, March 21.—The bill providing for a hospital for crippled children to be maintained in connection with the St. Paul city hospital was recommended for passage by the senate in committee of the whole. The city of St. Paul is to provide the necessary building and also accommodations for convalescing children at Phalen Park.

Senator Johnson offered a bill for the appointment of a commission composed of Gen. J. H. Baker, Azro A. Stone and Gen. L. F. Hubbard to take charge of the erection of a monument on the land bought at Traverse de Sioux, in Nicollet county, to commemorate the signing of the peace treaty between Alexander Ramsey and others and the Sioux Indians.

The Torrens system of land registration is to be extended to all the counties in the state, if they so elect, according to the provisions of a bill introduced by Senator Alderman.

Senator Sullivan introduced a bill providing for the collection of statistics of the state and naming the state auditor as ex-officio commissioner of statistics.

Senator Canestrop proposes an amendment to the present inheritance tax law. It requires the tax to be extended to the transfer of any and all properties in Minnesota where such transfer is in connection with the settlement of the state.

Two bills on the calendar were passed: To establish a public employment bureau in St. Paul and Duluth; to provide for detaching territory included within the corporate limits of villages.

In committee of the whole a number of bills were progressed. The bill to require corporations to pay employes twice a month was killed.

In the House.

The house yesterday reconsidered the vote by which it killed the bill compelling engineers on locomottives to have at least three years' experience as firemen. The vote was close, 50 to 45, but it was sufficient, and there was much elation among the labor leaders present in consequence.

A bill was passed under suspension of the rules which is designed to provide state agents, whose duty it would be to look after and care for paroled asylum and state defective patients.

Representatives Bjorge and Peterson introduced a new tonnage tax bill, the third to be offered by them. It is on a graduated scale and provides for a tax ranging from 2 to 7 cents a ton. The size of the tax is to be according to the quality of the ore.

Bills introduced: Relating to reports to the railroad and warehouse commission; relating to the rate of tax for road and bridge purposes; requiring canned goods to bear labels giving age of contents; relating to schedules of railroad rates; prohibiting the sale of liquor in more than one place in a building; fixing the rate of taxation on inheritances; prohibiting the sale of cigarettes.

ANOTHER LINER ON ROCKS.

Steamer Jebba Strikes within Sight of Wrecked Suevic.

London, March 20.—Almost within sight of the wrecked White Star line steamer Suevic, the Elder-Dempster line steamer Jebba ran on the rocks under the cliffs, near Prawle Point, in the early hours of the morning.

Her seventy passengers and her crew were safely taken ashore by the breeches buoy. The Jebba will prove a total loss.

Details received of the disaster to the Suevic, with nearly 600 passengers and crew on board, show that she struck the Brandies rock, close under the Lazard lighthouse, at about 10:30 Sunday night, and probably will be a total wreck. Lifeboats and tugs from the Lizard and Falmouth soon reached the scene and by 1 p. m. all the passengers had been landed, but the members of the crew were still standing by the wreck.

Fought a Pistol Duel.

Houghton, Mich., March 20.—William McDonald and John Auger, miners, fought a pistol duel over the division of a case of beer. McDonald was shot in the left lung and will die. Auger escaped injury.

Interurban in Montana.

Helena, Mont., March 20.—Butte and Helena are to be connected with an electric line which will cost $3,000,000. Eastern and local capitalists have formed a company, and a third of a million in cash already has been subscribed.

Carnegie Makes Good.

Albert Lea, Minn., March 20.—The $25,000 contributed to the endowment fund of Albert Lea college by Andrew Carnegie has been received by C. B. Augur, president of that institution.

ARMED FORCES CLASH AT LAST

NICARAGUA CLAIMS A VICTORY OVER FORCES OF HONDURAS AND SALVADOR.

Managua, Nicaragua, March 21.—It is reported here on good authority that the Honduran troops have suffered a serious defeat at the hands of the Nicaraguans. No details are at hand.

Big Battle Has Begun.

San Salvador, March 21.—The following communication was made by Gen. Jose Dolores Presa, commander of the Salvadorean force that is engaged with Honduras in fighting Nicaragua:

"We prepared to attack the enemy yesterday in the fortified hills known as the Portilles de Namasique.

"The battle began at 5 o'clock in the morning with a heavy artillery fire. Our columns, with unrivaled gallantry carried the front and flanking positions, excepting the last, where a desperate resistance was made.

"The final effort of the engagement will be made at this point. The enemy is estimated at 5,000 well armed men.

"The Honduran forces had regrettable losses in commanding and other officers.

"The enemy's losses in killed and wounded were considerable."

PADDED THE PAY ROLLS.

Former Railroader Implicates High Railroad Official.

Waterloo, Iowa, March 21.—John B. Hollenhors, formerly roadmaster of the Chicago Great Western railway, now in the county jail awaiting trial on four indictments, charging padding of pay rolls of section men, has made a complete confession of his part in the alleged conspiracy to defraud the company out of about $3,000.

It is said the confession implicates a high official of the company, and some sensational developments are expected.

A. L. COLE IS A SICK MAN.

He Underwent an Operation Recently for Stomach Trouble.

St. Paul, March 21.—A. L. Cole of Walker, the Republican candidate for governor last fall, is in Florida, seeking to recuperate his health. The arduous campaign he went through affected his health, the nervous strain aggravating stomach trouble from which he suffered. Three weeks ago he was operated on in Chicago and from there went to Florida.

INSURANCE MAN ON TRIAL.

Will Try to Explain Disappearance of $150,000.

South Bend, Ind., March 21.—The trial of Richard C. Barney of Elkhart for alleged subornation of perjury began in the Elkhart circuit court yesterday. The defendant will try to explain the disappearance of $150,000 which it is said should have been in the treasury of the American Mutual Insurance society when that concern failed a few months ago.

FINED AND IMPRISONED.

Promoter of Coal Combine Sentenced for Violating Anti-trust Law.

Omaha, Neb., March 21.—Judge Sutton in the district court sentenced Samuel F. Howell, president of the Omaha Coal exchange, to six months in the county jail and to pay a fine of $1,000 and costs. Howell was convicted of violating the Nebraska anti-trust law in connection with the regulation of coal prices in the city of Omaha.

WRITER WOUNDS SOLON.

French Journalist and Senator Fight With Swords.

Paris, March 21.—A duel with swords that went six bouts was fought here yesterday between Emmanuel Arene, senator from Corsica, and Adolphe Brisson, a journalist. Both contestants were wounded in the arm, Brisson slightly and Arene severely. The encounter arose from an alleged insulting letter sent by Arene to Brisson.

COURT-MARTIAL ORDERED.

Captain of the Connecticut Must Face Trial.

Washington, March 21.—The navy deartment yesterday issued the order for a court-martial to try Capt. William Swift, commander of the battleship Connecticut on two charges.

"Through negligence, suffering a vessel to run upon a rock," and "neglect of duty in connection with above."

BLOCKADE IS RAISED.

For Two Days Northern Pacific and Great Northern Were Snowbound.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 21.—After being tied up for two days the Northern Pacific road has succeeded in getting through two passenger trains that had been stalled north of Cashel. The Great Northern cleared the Hannah line after being tied up for two days. The snow storm was one of the worst of the winter.

Contractors Indicted.

Freeport, Ill., March 21.—An alleged pooling arrangement whereby a dozen bridge companies combined, it is said, and allotted certain territory to each other, yesterday resulted in the returning of several indictments against a number of bridge contractors.

Cashier and $60,000 Gone.

Charlotte, N. C., March 21.—Frank H. Jones, assistant cashier of the Charlotte National bank of this city, is missing with $60,000 of the bank's funds.

75 INDICTMENTS CHARGE BRIBERY

RESULT OF SIX MONTHS' PROBING OF MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS AT FRISCO.

"BOSS" RUEF THE DISTRIBUTOR

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS SPENT FOR CORRUPTION.

San Francisco, March 21.—The long-looked-for indictments in the municipal graft cases were returned last night. Seventy-five indictments charging bribery were brought in. These were found on evidence presented to the grand jury after six months' probing into the municipal affairs of this city by Assistant District Attorney Heney and Secret Service Agent Burns.

Sixty-five Against Reuf.

Of the indictments, sixty-five are against Abraham Ruef, charging him with bribing the board of supervisors to grant franchises to the United Railroads, the Home Telephone company, the San Francisco Gas and Electric company and the so-called "prize fight trust." Ten are against T. V. Halsey, former general agent of the Pacific States Telephone and Telegraph company, who is charged with having bribed the supervisors not to grant a franchise to a rival company.

Ruef the Distributer.

The money in all these cases is alleged to have been handled by Ruef.

Judge Coffey fixed the bail at $10,000 for each indictment, or a total of $640,000 for Ruef and $100,000 for Halsey.

In the overhead trolley deal, Ruef, according to Burns, was given $485,000 by the United Railroads, of which the political boss is alleged to have divided $91,000.

In the restriction of boxing permits to the "Big Four" the indictments charge that $500 was given to each of eighteen supervisors, although a fund of $20,000 was said to have been collected for Ruef.

Handed to City Fathers.

In the alleged deal by which the gas company was given an 85-cent rate, $12,000, it is charged, was divided among sixteen supervisors. Besides the $25,000 bid for the franchise, Ruef is charged with having divided among thirteen of the city fathers $62,000 received from the Home Telephone company for the granting of the franchise to it. In this connection it is noteworthy that fourteen of the supervisors are alleged to have also taken $50,000 each from Halsey to prevent the granting of the franchise to the Home company.

Merely the Beginning.

Heney stated yesterday's indictments "are the beginning of the end of Ruef," but merely the beginning of the work of exposing the municipal corruption in San Francisco and the prosecution of those "high up" who are responsible for such conditions in this city.

FARM SCHOOL GRADUATES.

Commencement Exercises Held at Agricultural College.

St. Paul, March 21.—Commencement exercises at the state agricultural school were held yesterday afternoon in the large stock pavilion. The audience taxed the seating capacity to its limit and the stage was well filled with the graduates, the board of regents and the speakers. The graduating class numbers 91, of whom 60 are young men and 31 are young women.

FALLING LOGS KILL TWO.

Men's Lives Are Crushed Out Near Eideold, Wis.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., March 21.—Joseph Matson and Harry Astlin were killed near Eideold while skidding logs. They were standing near a pile when suddenly the logs on top broke loose and crushed down on them. Their heads were crushed and their limbs broken. Death was instantaneous.

BOY OF 19 DRINKS ACID.

Drink and Family Troubles Lead to Suicide in Billings.

Billings, Mont., March 21.—Edward Fahey, about nineteen years old, committed suicide by drinking two ounces of carbolic acid. Overindulgence in liquor and family troubles is said to have been the cause.

Guilty of Murder.

Elizabeth City, N. C., March 21.—Joshua Harrison, charged with the kidnapping and murder of Kenneth Beasley, the nine-year-old son of Former State Senator Beasley, was found guilty.

Two Killed by Girder.

Sandusky, Ohio, March 21.—Two men were instantly killed and another was fatally injured when a seven-and-a-half-ton girder fell from the top of an eighty-foot derrick at the Pennsylvania docks.

J. A. Wild Dies on Train.

St. Louis, March 21.—J. A. Wild, a wealthy lumber dealer of Hoffman, Minn., died on a passenger train nearing St. Louis. His death, according to a verdict of the coroner, was caused by asthma.

Saturday, March 23, 1907.

The legislature has decided that another normal school is not necessary [illegible] big fight is off.

The cheerful news is again announced that there will be an advance in the price of lumber.

The winter has passed according to the calendar and the sun now shines on us more than one-half the time.

The legislature may pass an anti-treating bill but it's very doubtful at present whether they will giv [illegible] a two-cent fare bill.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: St. Hilaire will organize a commercial club. Here's hoping it will do much good for the saintly city.

The present legislature started out very brave and made a great show at reform, but in the end it will about average up with its predecessors.

Congress has adjourned. the Thaw trial is nearing its end and the legislatures will soon expire, but thank goodness it will soon be time to talk baseball.

A. G. Rutledge and C. J. Pryor have purchased the Bemidji Pioneer. The boys are the right kind and should win out. "Doc" Rutledge, however, is rather strong on fish stories.

Mankato Free Press: Senator D. S. Hall has a bill which defines chiropractics as "the science of assisting nature to cure disease by adjusting any luxation and subluxation or abnormal position of any of the three hundred articular junctions of the bony structure, especially of the spine, and may use any and all natural methods as hydropathy, chromopathy, mechanical and manipulative vibration, massage and electro-therapeutics, that will assist nature to remove the effects of vital depression from any cause." That ought to help some.

It is with pleasure that we clip the following editorial from the Thief River Falls News:

>  "If the SPECTATOR would take the trouble to learn the truth regarding this matter, that paper would not make the above statement. As a matter of fact Thief River Falls does not want this route, and all of the sentiment in favor of having the route run out of Thief River Falls was worked up by a resident of St. Hilaire. There is no probability of any change."

We are sorry that we were misinformed in the matter and if the News will only publish the name of the St. Hilaire man who started this "sentiment" we will be under many obligations. Neither THE SPECTATOR nor the people of St. Hilaire wish to be unfair, but we do intend to look after our own interests and guard them as well as possible.

He Earned the Hat.

Barty Hilliard, who many years ago lived in a small town in northern Vermont was noted for his careless vagabond habits, ready wit and remarkable facility for extempore rhyming. While he was sitting one day in the village store of what is now a part of Montpelier among a group of idlers the genial merchant asked him why he wore such a shockingly bad hat. Barty replied that he could not afford a better one.

"Come now," said the merchant, "make me a rhyme on a bad hat, and I will give you the best I have in my store." Instantly Barty threw the old one on the floor and began:

Here lies my old hat,
And pray what of that?
It's as good as the rest of my raiment!
If I buy me a better
You'll make me your debtor
And send me to jail for the payment.

The new hat was voted to be fairly won, and Barty bore it off in triumph, saying, "It's a poor head that can't take care of itself."—Boston Herald.

Too Fast.

"The first day he went out with his new auto he got pulled."

"For going fast?"

"No; quite the opposite."

"I don't see"—

"For stopping fast. He had to hire a farmer to haul him home."—Houston Post.

School Notes

State High School Board examinations in the common branches the last two days of this week.

Soon time for the state graded school inspector to come around. It will be a new man this year—S. A. Challman. Rankin fills a chair at the U.

The house of representatives passed a large batch of important bills last Friday. Oscar Johnson led the insurgents, and his close scrutiny of some of the bills brought out some valuable discussions. Among the prominent visitors in the galleries were Wilbert Aimer and Ole Lund.

Six beginners entered school this week. They were naturally assigned to the primary room. Together with a few that have been absent a good deal they make a class of about the right number. We hope the weather will be such from now on that they can attend regularly and that the parents will make an effort to have them do so. A day out now and then means just that much absolute loss to them. A pupil in the higher grades can make up for lost time to some extent. The little tots cannot. They move only as fast as they are led, and every day seems a big day to their wide-awake, eager minds. Days absent from school are like bricks left out in building a house. Their absence endangers the whole structure. And sometimes when the danger is too apparent it becomes necessary to pause in the course, stop building operations, tear up parts and go back and replace the missing facts, and from there do all the work over again. Ke [illegible] school every schoolday in the year. You cannot do him a more far-reaching kindness.

Reports on current events has been made a regular feature with the history classes in the grammar room on Fridays.

And the seventh grade reads "Lady of the Lake."

Yes, the compositions below are original. Give them credit for all that.

"AN ACCIDENT."

Harold Holmes, 5th Grade.

One day two boys, whom I will call Ned and Herman, and myself went down by the river to spend the after noon.

We went out on the logs. Ned was farther out than Herman; I did not venture to go out as far as they did. Just then the log that Ned was on started to move down stream. He quickly jumped on the log on which Herman was standing and this caused Herman to fall into the water, while Ned jumped ashore.

Herman cried and shouted. Ned and I started to run away but Herman cried "I'll give you a thousand dollar if you help me out!" Ned would not go out so I jumped on the log and tried to help Herman. The log started to move down stream, but I caught it and held it. I pulled it near the shore and then jumped into the water. Quickly I grabbed Herman and pulled him ashore. I don't believe there was ever a boy so frightened as Herman was. Then I asked him for the thousand dollars. He said he would not give it to me but he would give me a treat. We went home after the exciting time. I haven't gotten my treat yet and I don't expect it either.

"THE LOST BOY."

Eva Johnson, 5th Grade

Once there was a little boy who lived in a village in the mountains of Switzerland. His name was Andy Nelson and he had no brothers and sisters. He had a pet lamb who was his faithful companion wherever he went.

One day while Andy was taking a nap his pet lamb went out on the mountain side to play. When Andy woke up he went out to look for his pet. He looked everywhere but he could not find it. He wandered so far out over the mountains that when he looked back the mountains had hidden every familiar object. But he did not give up hunting for his lamb. When at last he had traveled until he was tired he heard a plaintive bleat. He looked down the mountain and to his great joy he saw his pet lying on the grass. When he came to it he saw that it had broken its leg. He took off his hat and tore it into strips. He bound the strips around the lamb's leg and lay down by it to wait for help. He had never been in this place before, so he did not know the way home. It was growing dark and no help had arrived. Soon the moon came up and he could see a light coming toward him. When the light came nearer, he saw that it was his father and a neighbor. Andy screamed out "Papa, I am safe!" Then the two men brought Andy and his pet lamb home.

Andy was very glad when he was in bed that night, and he never wandered away alone again.

Why He Wanted an Autograph.

A young man once wrote to William Dean Howells for his autograph. The novelist replied in a typewritten line:

"Have you bought my last book?"

The young man answered:

"I have not. I want to sell your autograph in order to get money enough to buy it."

Historic New York.

New York city has more points of historical interest than any other city on the continent, there being scores of them, extending from Fort Amsterdam, where the new custom house stands, at the Battery, on the south, to Fort George, Fort Washington and the Van Cortlandt manor house on the north.

The Awful Carib Fish.

A traveler in Venezuela gives an interesting description of the fish of the Orinoco country. He says the party several times came in contact with the carib fish, which are the most ferocious inhabitants of the water known. The fish are not over fourteen inches long, but they travel in schools. Their teeth are three cornered. Any living object which attracts their attention is attacked with fury. Mr. Thompson tells of an Indian woman who entered the water to fill a bucket. She was attacked by the fish and reached shore only to die in fifteen minutes. The flesh was literally torn from her body. Mr. Dart, who was with Mr. Thompson, caught one of the fish and pulled it upon the bank. He held the carib under his foot while he pointed at the peculiar teeth with his finger. With a quick movement the carib flopped out from under Mr. Dart's foot and seized him by the finger, cutting that member to the bone. The fish frequently have been known to bite ordinary fishhooks in two.

Progress of Dentistry.

Though dentistry became a science under the hand of Professor Richard Owen as late as 1839, there are evidences that it was practiced in a crude way by the ancients. Herodotus refers to treatment of the teeth by the Egyptians, and evidences of attempts to supply artificial teeth have been discovered in ancient skulls and mummies. Galen was the first physician to speak of treatment of troublesome teeth, and Ambroise Pare, in his work on surgery in 1550, makes mention of the preservation of the teeth. It is only since the middle of the last century, however, that dentistry has become a branch of surgical science. Before that time bad teeth were extracted, and mere tooth drawing constituted dentistry early in the nineteenth century. The first dental school in the United States was erected at Baltimore in 1839. In 1845 Cincinnati boasted of a similar institution, and in 1856 a dental school was erected at Philadelphia.

A Gentleman of the Old School.

Lady Dorothy Nevill in her reminiscences tells a story of her father, a gentleman of the old school, "in nankeen shorts, with white stockings and a brass buttoned blue coat, with big collar, over a beautifully embroidered waistcoat." But he swore, after the manner of the age. "He was traveling at night on the continent alone in a post chaise when the postboy, while passing through a forest, began to drive like a man anything but certain of his way. My father's wrath soon rose, and the explosion of strong language which issued from the carriage so alarmed the driver that, murmuring, 'Je ne veux pas conduire le diable' (I will not drive the devil), he pulled up and, having expeditiously unfastened the traces, made off with his horses at a gallop. My father, I believe, passed the whole night alone in the woods."

Colonial Fear of Lawyers.

In the columns of the New York Gazetteer of Sept. 8, 1786, there was a paragraph lamenting the increase of lawyers as threatening to the future prosperity of the community and degrading to freemen. "An honest trade in former days," said the writer, "was all that people of common ability and education were ambitious of, but now no profession is genteel but the lawyer and the merchant. The lawyers are now creeping into every post of importance and thrusting themselves wherever there is a vacancy. Our congress, our assembly, are crowded with them, and even in our great commercial convention there are five lawyers to one merchant."

Curing the Bad Boy.

You remember the old fashioned woman who when she heard her young son swearing or using naughty words washed his mouth in soapsuds. There is an Atchison boy who could not be reformed in this way, so his father took him in hand. Every day his father called him in and said: "Now, your mother objects to those naughty words you use, but I, being a man, like them. Go over the list for me." The boy promptly complied at first, but in a few days he tired of the words and has now given up his list entirely.—Atchison Globe.

The Toad and Its Skin.

The toad sheds its skin at certain periods, the old one coming off and leaving a new one, which has been formed underneath, in its stead. It does not give its cast off coat away to any poorer toad, and there are no toads dealing in second hand raiment. Neither does it leave its cast off jacket on the ground after the fashion of the shiftless snake. It swallows its overcoat at one mouthful, converting its stomach into a portmanteau.

Noses Out of Joint.

When I was a girl, the aristocratic nose was high, beautifully modeled, rising in a delicately waving ridge and at the tip standing well out from the face and not turned up. But now the fashion has completely changed. The pretty women one sees portrayed in illustrated papers and magazines very seldom have much to speak of in the way of noses.—Dowager in London Chronicle.

The Difficulty About Our Composers.

"Who is your favorite composer?" inquired the artistic person. "I can't say just at this moment," answered Mr. Cumrox, with an appealing glance at his wife, "but it's somebody whose music I can't remember and whose name I can't pronounce."—Washington Star.

Wicked men cannot be friends either among themselves or with the good.—Socrates.

The Snob.

The snob cultivates a man or a woman not because he expects to get a job or a loan out of either, but because he thinks either can help him along into society's elect. He cuts a former acquaintance because the unfortunate person seems to be of no use in his own social advancement. He suppresses the impulse that may lead him to dislike useful people and like useless ones just as the ambitious bank clerk suppresses his small extravagances, his fondness for the race track. Because social position seems so important to him he admires excessively those who have it and snubs those whose position he deems inferior to his own.—New York Mail.

The Letter A.

The letter A is in Hebrew called aleph, an ox, and the Phoenician character which represents this sound was originally a picture of an ox head; hence the name. The right hand stroke of the A represents the top of the head, the other down stroke the left side, and a line, since fallen out of use, represented the right side of the head, while in very old Phoenician manuscripts two dots above for eyes and two below for nostrils rendered the resemblance complete.

Bachelor Ignorance.

"Aren't men the limit?" said young Mrs. Wheel. "When I told my brother this morning that baby had just cut a tooth, he asked me savagely why I had allowed it to play with knives."

"And my bachelor uncle," said Mrs. Whoa, "when he heard that my baby had begun teething, wanted to know if it would begin hairing soon."—New York Press.

5,000 Rifles FREE TO BOYS

SEND NO MONEY

Just send us your name and address so that we may tell you how to get this fine rifle Absolutely FREE.

YOU CAN HAVE ONE

As we are going to give away 5,000 of them. We mean it, every word, and this is an honest, straightforward offer, made by an upright business firm who always do exactly as they agree. All we ask is that you do a few minutes work for us. It is so very easy that you will be surprised. This Hand-some Rifle is not a toy air rifle, but is a genuine steel, blue barrel, hunting rifle, that is strong, accurate and safe and carries a 22 calibre long or short cartridge. If you want a fine little hunting rifle, just write and ask us for particulars. They are free and you will surely say it's the best offer you ever saw or heard of.

BE SURE and WRITE AT ONCE before the 5,000 rifles are all gone, as the boys are taking them fast. Address through the storm and darkness while the suffering one at home is in danger, perhaps of death, is a terrible trip. Why not have a good, sure family remedy in the house? One that has proven a life saver in thousands of cases during the last forty years.

Going for the Doctor

Watkins' Vegetable Anodyne Liniment.

Think what a world of terror and anxiety was saved this man.

DISPENSES WITH DOCTORS.

Middle Grove, Illinois, June 4, 1901.

We have used Watkins' Vegetable Anodyne Liniment in severe cases of flatulent colic; have employed veterinary surgeons before, but rely entirely on Watkins' Liniment now, for family use as well as for stock. WALTER DIKEMAN.

Watkins' Liniment is not only a great thing in cases of serious injury through accident, but is always helpful in cases of Cold, Colic, Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Indigestion, Cuts, Burns, etc. It is equally good for man or beast.

SUBTERRANEAN RIVERS.

Yucatan's Only Streams Flow Beneath Coral Rock.

There are no streams in Yucatan which flow above the ground, but the whole peninsula is one vast table of coral rock and beneath it are immense sheets of fresh water, with regular though ill defined tides and currents. Along the coasts these subterranean waters are quite near the surface, but in the interior, where the calcareous layer is of great thickness, the waters are low down. At intervals they break into caverns formed by earthquakes by pressure of their own force or by the infiltration of surface water into the natural grottoes of the coral rock and wherever the water can be reached, whether through artificial pits or by the operations of nature, the place is called a cenote. There are a great many of them scattered all over Yucatan, and those near Merida are utilized as public bathhouses, affording most refreshing resorts.

Centuries ago the Indians marked the courses of the subterranean rivers by heaps of stones and always built their cities close by the water caves, as their ruins show, and it is interesting to note to this day all the civilized centers of Yucatan have arisen around these natural reservoirs. There are many forms of cenotes. When the water flows at a slight depth and the calcareous layer has been only partially eaten away there follows an irregular sinking, which forms a cave, opening from side to side, but when the crust is thicker and the underground stream has a regular course the soil is generally corroded in a circular space and the vault thus formed, lacking support, falls in, making an immense open wall. Often the crust is so deep that the soft parts only crumble down, leaving a small aperture toward the top, fashioning a real grotto, with stalactites and stalagmites galore. Again, it happens that the crust is exceedingly thick, when a colossal subterranean passage, like a tunnel, is formed. In short, all the variations which an undisturbed stream may produce in a friable soil by the silent work of ages may be here witnessed. The cenote of which I write is a natural cavern nearly fifty feet deep, broken down at one side, thus forming a gigantic arch. Within it appears every form of stalagmite and stalactite, and its roof is perforated with holes, in which are thousands of birds' and hornets' nests. At the bottom of it, reached by a flight of stone steps from the charming garden above, is an extensive sheet of clear, fresh water, containing a multitude of tiny fish (Pescado cenote) similar to those found in the Mammoth cave of Kentucky, only these are not eyeless. The overhanging roots of trees fringe its broken arch, affording shelter to innumerable lizards and iguanas, which dart along the ledges like embodied sunbeams, while above them countless swallows circle in masses so dense that the whirring of their wings produces a deafening noise, echoed from below in hollow reverberations.

The Italian Baby.

No infant receives a warmer welcome to the world or is more happily born than the Italian baby. No infant is the object of more caresses or is more fondly admired. Indeed, no matter how poor the mother and father may be, no matter how large the family, they have very merry times when another son or daughter comes to them. The neighbors are invited in, a feast is prepared, a gallon or two of cheap wine is procured, and the merriment sometimes lasts several days. The Italian considers there are only three great events in the life of man—namely, his birth, marriage and death. These three events never pass without a gorgeous and elaborate celebration. In this simple way they strive to carry out the tender life lesson: "When you were born you wept while those around you smiled. So live that when you die you alone may smile and those around you weep." And so they laugh and drink wine and sing, for they believe it will have an effect upon the life of the quivering form soon to take its place among them.—London Standard.

Machinery of Memory.

The machinery of memory was thus interestingly described by an authority on the brain: "The act of remembering something," he said, "involves a distinct change in the brain substance. The thing to be remembered is recorded by a little nerve cell. The first time the cell does its work an impression is made upon it. But that impression is apt to wear off unless the action of the cell is repeated, and the oftener this is the case the more fixed becomes the impression, or 'cell memory,' as it is called. Suppose that the work of this particular cell is to enable you to recognize a certain smell. If the impression is made but once, the cell may fail to retain it, but if it is repeated several times a lasting impression will be made, and you will recognize the particular odor when you meet with it again."

Southern Wit.

In the early days of the civil war, says Mrs. D. G. Wright in "A Southern Girl In '61," many northern senators were especially violent in their denunciations of the seceding states, occasionally much to the amusement of their listeners.

On one occasion a western senator ended a speech by declaring that were certain threatened events to occur he would "leave this country and join some other nation. Even the Comanches he would prefer to this government in such a case."

Senator Wigfall of Texas rose in answer and stated in a tone of grave remonstrance that he trusted the senator would consider well before he took such a step, "for the Comanches had already suffered too much from contact with the whites."

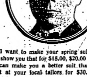
EDITORIAL.



I want to make your spring suit. I want to show you that for $15.00, $20.00 and $25.00 I can make you a better suit than you can get at your local tailors for $30.00, $35.00 and $40.00.

My Spring goods have now arrived, and they are the most beautiful fabrics I ever saw.

Write me today for samples and tell me about the kind of clothes you are thinking of getting. By return mail I'll send you a bunch to select from, also self-measurement blanks.

Remember, I have the largest tailoring establishment in the world, that I absolutely guarantee perfect fit and satisfaction or refund your money; and I pay all express charges, so your clothes cost you no more than if you got them right here in Minneapolis.

Yours truly,

YEARS OF THE EARTH

THIS WORLD OF OURS COUNTS THEM BY THE MILLIONS.

Various Calculations by Which the Famous Scientists Have Endeavored to Figure Out the Age of the Planet Upon Which We Live.

The time has admittedly gone by for attempting to "reconcile the facts of nature," to use a recognized phrase, with the chronology of the Bible, which makes the age of the world rather less than 6,000 years.

Indeed, in the Egyptian rooms at the British museum the visitor can see for himself objects which go back to an authenticated period long antecedent to 4000 years B. C., and great is the wonder produced on the minds of those who first make their acquaintance.

In that same department, among the mummies, there is what is in many respects the most striking of the exhibits in the department—the body of a man who belongs to the stone age. It lies in an accurate representation of the peculiarly shaped grave in which it was found, and it has been in consequence somewhat irreverently nicknamed by the habitues of the museum "the man in the pie dish."

The particular interest in that corpse, which men, women and even children look upon without the least thought or suggestion of the fear or horror usually inseparable from death, is that it is unquestionably the oldest exhibit in the museum, and scientists have been rather struck by the fact that the authorities of the great institution in Great Russell street have not, so to say, taken the bull by the horns, boldly labeled that exhibit as dating from 50,000 B. C. Thus with one single stroke of the pen Bishop Usher's Biblical chronology is multiplied by about nine, and it may be that an even higher number would be required to satisfy the requirements of the age of that particular specimen.

How long has the earth been a planet capable of supporting not only human, but all forms of life?

In an address Lord Kelvin once delivered on the subject he gathered together the opinions of various scientific men which cannot but be of interest to every thinking being. Darwin, in his "Origin of Species" stated that, "in all probability a far longer period than 300,000,000 years has elapsed;" while later on, in the same book, he wrote: "He who can read Sir Charles Lyell's grand work on the 'Principles of Geology,' which the future historian will recognize as having produced a revolution in natural science, yet does not admit how incomprehensibly vast have been the last periods of time, may at once close this volume."

Lord Kelvin himself—then Professor William Thomson—later made an attempt to calculate the length of time during which the sun has been burning at its present rate, and in that connection he wrote: "It seems on the whole most probable that the sun has not illuminated the earth for 100,000,000 years and almost certain that it has not done so for 500,000,000 years. As for the future we may say with equal certainty that the inhabitants of the earth cannot continue to enjoy the light and heat essential to their life for many million years longer unless new sources, now unknown to us, are prepared in the great storehouse of creation."

It is a remarkable evidence of the acute perception of Lord Kelvin's mind, as of the rare prevision of his intellect, that the last words—"unless new sources, now unknown to us, are prepared in the great storehouse of creation"—should have been added to that remarkable sentence.

As an example of the very extraordinary range of time given to the age of the earth, consider the following statement from Professor Jukes' "Students' Manual of Geology." He wrote: "Mr. Darwin estimates the time required for the denudation of the rocks of the weald of Kent, or the erosion of space between the ranges of chalk hills known as the north and south downs, at 300,000,000 years. It may be possible, perhaps, that the estimate is a hundred times too great, and that the real time elapsed did not exceed 3,000,000 years; but, on the other hand, it is just as likely that the time which actually elapsed since the first commencement of the erosion till it was nearly as complete as it now is was really a hundred times greater than his estimate, or 300,000,000 years."

Professor Phillips in a lecture at the University of Cambridge considered the rate of erosion between the ranges of the north and south downs to be rather one inch a year than Darwin's estimate of one inch in a hundred years, so that on mere geological grounds he reduced the time to about a hundredth. Calculating, however, the actual thickness of all the known geological strata of the earth he came to the conclusion that life on the earth's surface may probably date back to between 38,000,000 and 96,000,000 years.

Professor Sollas of Oxford, working on new principles applied to the stratified rocks, reduced this time very considerably, for he wrote, "So far as I can at present see the lapse of time since the beginning of the Cambrian system is probably less than 17,000,000 years, even when computed on an assumption of uniformity, which to me seems contradicted by the most salient facts of geology."

What are the data, it will naturally be asked, on which calculations of this magnitude are made? Among the most important are the consideration of the underground heat which is constantly being conducted out of the earth—in other words, the cooling of the earth—the speed at which the earth rotates on its axis as well as physical properties of rocks at high temperatures.

The loss of heat by conduction was

THE SOLAR SYSTEM.

Some Facts Which Give an Idea of Its Immensity.

In all the heavens, with the exception of passing meteors or meteorites, not one body occupies a position closer to earth than the moon, which is some 240,000 miles away—very far, of course, side by side with any earthly distances, but a mere fraction side by side with other astronomical distances. Next to the moon our nearest occasional neighbor is Venus, and then Mars. Both Venus and Mars, however, are often farther away from us than the sun, which remains always at somewhere about the same distance, roughly at from 90,000,000 to 93,000,000 miles.

This dividing space between sun and earth is of great importance in thinking about the stars, and it should be clearly impressed upon the mind. Next to the sun in point of nearness come the more distant planets—Jupiter, which is about five times as far from the sun as our earth is; Saturn, nearly twice as far as Jupiter; Uranus, nearly twice as far as Saturn, and Neptune, nearly three times as far as Saturn. All these planets belong to our sun, all are members of his family, all are part of the solar system. The size of the solar system as a whole, consisting thus of the sun and his planets, including our earth, may be fairly well grasped by any one taking the trouble to master two simple facts. They are these, that our earth is roughly about 92,000,000 miles away from the sun and that Neptune, the outermost planet of the solar system, is nearly thirty times as far distant from the sun as our earth is.—Chambers' Journal.

AN ODD BIRD.

The Kiwi of New Zealand Has Some Remarkable Peculiarities.

That queer bird, the kiwi, is a native of New Zealand. Its remarkable peculiarities are, first, the apparent absence of wings, as the plumage so covers the small, rudimentary, sticklike appendage of a wing that none whatever is apparent. The situation of the nostrils at the bill's extremity is a second peculiar feature. While hunting for earthworms it probes the soft ground, making a continual snuffing sound. Thus the scent is evidently of great help in finding food and the reason for the position of the nostrils quite apparent.

A third peculiarity is the very disproportionate size of the egg in comparison to the bird; it being a little less than one-fourth the bird's own weight. One kiwi's egg found weighed fourteen and one-half ounces, while the bird weighed just under four pounds (sixty-four ounces) and was about the size of an ordinary hen.

The plumage of the kiwi is a dull brown streaked with light gray, and the body resembles a miniature hay shock, rather badly hacked off at the rear part, as nature has not provided the kiwi with such decoration as a tail. The absence of wings is compensated for by its swiftness of foot, and the large, clumsy looking legs, which are sometimes used as weapons, are placed far back on the oddly shaped body.—St. Nicholas.

That Was All.

A young girl who is always trying some new thing was present once when the doctor set a neighbor's broken arm. She was sure that she knew exactly how it was done and rather anxious to put her new knowledge into practice. Some time later a hen out in the chicken yard broke its leg. The girl directly announced that she meant to set it "and make it as good as new." Accordingly it was put into a plaster cast and left for the proper length of time to knit. When the day came to take off the cast the girl ran out to the henhouse in great eagerness to see the result. Presently there was a scream that brought every member of the family to her side. The chicken was jumping miserably over the ground sidewise instead of directly forward. You know a hen's leg has a crook. Well, she had crooked it the wrong way, that was all.

Aliens In Old London.

Here is a curious report of the aliens in London in the year 1567: "There being a great increase of foreigners in the city, her majesty ordered the lord mayor to take the name, quality and profession of all strangers residing within the city of London." The list was headed by the item, "Scots, 40." Other nations were represented by "French, 428; Spaniards and Portuguese, 45; Italians, 140; Dutch, 2,030; Burgundians, 44; Danes, 2; Liegeois, 1."

Shark's Tail For Luck.

Attached to the extreme end of the bowsprit of a sailing vessel there may sometimes be seen a piece of some material that looks remarkably like leather. This seeming piece of leather is really a shark's tail. It is placed there because the sailors think that it augurs good luck, believing that pleasant voyages will be their lot while it remains there. Instead of the bowsprit the tail is at times nailed to the top of one of the masts.—London King.

A QUEER POKER GAME

IT WAS PLAYED BY TWO STOCKMEN IN A DENVER HOTEL.

The Turn That Came When the Fortunes of Both Men Were Piled on the Table—A Side Bet and a Card That Was Not Shown to the Board.

The old St. James hotel in Denver was one of the landmarks of the city for over a quarter of a century, and many famous sporting men were among its guests. Numerous stories are told of the "stiff" poker games that used to be played there in the late eighties and early nineties of the last century.

A game was played one night between two stockmen, a banker and a mining man. The story goes that the mining man and the banker played until they were "all in," leaving the two stockmen to battle it out. It came up to the "consolation" jack pot, and those who had lingered to see the finish were not disappointed when they expected something spectacular to take place. The stakes were running high, the ante being $500, with no betting limit. One of the stockmen opened for $2,500 and was promptly raised before the draw. Then there followed a series of raises and counter raises until the pot contained $11,600 before cards were drawn.

"Gi' me that one," blandly announced the man who had "seen" the last raise. The dealer slipped one card across the table, laid the deck down, relighted his neglected cigar and said unconcernedly, "I'll play these."

Then the betting commenced in earnest. The player had opened, and he led off with $2,500 as a "feeler." The dealer raised a like amount, and the other fellow followed suit. It was plain that one or the other of the men was going to lose his fortune. Checks were written, torn up and made out for larger amounts, and finally mortgage papers on real estate and cattle were passed into the pot. Finally one man said to the other:

"Say, Henry, I'm going to stay with you until everything I've got, right down to the clothes on my back, is represented on the table. Now, I'm in doubt as to some of my property holdings, so I'll make you a proposition. Give me until tonight (it was then 4 a. m.) to find out just where I stand and we'll play the hand out. Meantime let us seal up my hand in one envelope, yours in another and the deadwood in still another. We'll leave the three envelopes in the office safe, to be delivered to both of us together."

The other player agreed, and envelopes and sealing wax were sent for. The hands and remaining cards in the deck were duly sealed and deposited as per arrangement.

Meantime friends of the two players endeavored to get the men together on some sort of compromise proposition, knowing full well that neither could afford to bank his entire fortune on a poker hand, leaving his family destitute, but both men were obdurate and would listen to no proposition to split the pot. An interested and expectant group gathered in the lobby about 8 o'clock in the evening, among them being the man who had opened the pot. They talked together in a friendly manner, speculating upon what would happen when the man who went to look up his assets returned. While they were talking he walked in.

"Well, Henry, I'm ready to resume our little argument," he announced in a matter of fact tone. Then the crowd repaired to the room where the game had been played. The man announced that he had $33,000 to "play back." Securities and certified checks representing this amount were piled on the table. Then, and not until then, did either of the men show signs of nervousness. The opener had drawn a check for $33,000 and started to tear it out of the book when the other man said in a slow, deliberate voice:

"Looks a little strong for either of us, doesn't it, Henry?"

"Well," rejoined the other man, toying with the check, "what would you consider a fair proposition at this stage of the game?"

"It's not gambling, I know," said the other, "but if you want to split the pot and"—

"She's split," calmly announced the man who had opened for $2,500. The currency, gold, checks, mortgage papers and securities were equally divided. Not a word was spoken. Silently the man who opened took up the envelopes, tore them open and laid the two hands on the table, faces downward.

"Bet you a cigar I had you beat," he bantered.

"You're called," said the other, turning over four cards, jacks and sixes. The opener also turned over four cards. They were jacks and sixes.

"I'll bet you," said the dealer, "a thousand dollars that I've still got you beat."

The other man peeped at a corner of his buried card, toyed a moment with a stack of currency and shoved $1,000 to the center. Then, without waiting for the man he had called to show his hole card, he turned up a four spot. The dealer looked at it, smiled, touched the bell and put his hand in the deck. He never told what the other card was.—Denver Times.

Lights of London.

A farmer who visited London for the first time was walking along Oxford street, filling his pipe, when a matchboy came up to him with the usual "Lights, sir?" The farmer took a box from the boy, extracted a match, lit his pipe and handed the box back to the astonished lad, passing on with the remark, "Lor, what a wunnerful place Lunnon is, to be sure!"

Commercial Club Meeting.

About thirty-five of the representative business men of the village met at the village hall last Tuesday evening in response to a call to start a Commercial Club for St. Hilaire. The meeting was organized by electing A. S. Wilson president and Jens Nelson secretary. After considerable discussion, it being the unanimous sentiment that there was need of a club being organized, the chair was instructed to appoint a committee of five on permanent organization with instructions to prepare and submit a constitution and by-laws. The chair appointed Messrs. Ives, Post, Hannay, Patterson and C. L. Hansen as such committee. The chair also appointed Messrs. Gigstad, Martz and Cummings as a committee to solicit membership. Both committees were instructed to report to the meeting on next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

It is earnestly requested that each and every citizen of St. Hilaire who is interested in its future prosperity will attend this meeting as it is the intention to perfect an organization and start the club at that time. Let every one attend.

Was It Rabies?

Plummer Pioneer: Anton Lee was in yesterday from his home north of town and told the Pioneer that a dog belonging to him was taken violently ill during the first part of the week and that he at once tied the dog up to prevent his doing any possible harm. On Tuesday the dog was in a bad condition and was continually snapping and biting at pieces of wood or anything else that he could reach. Mr. Lee became alarmed and killed the dog at once rather than take any chance at his breaking loose and doing serious damage. Mr. Lee could not say for certain what the disease was but he thought the dog was suffering from rabies. Such being the case he deemed it his duty to make the matter public so that people in this vicinity may be on their guard against a possible spread of the disease and take every precaution to keep their dogs from doing any injury.

H. Haupt Leads.

The creamery statement for February was issued last Wednesday and shows a substantial increase over last year's receipts. The price paid to patrons, 32 cents a pound for butter fat, breaks the record in northern Minnesota, being the highest price ever paid. The receipts so far this season would indicate a $75,000 business this year.

The following is the report:

Total receipts, Feb. 1907	$ 3,133.93
Total receipts, Feb. 1906	2,019.97
Price per pound butter fat	.32

Those drawing $50.00 or over:

N. A. Nelson	82.52
Gust Kjonikson	75.40
N. E. Beebe	60.91
L. Jahnke, Red Lake Falls	60.51
Chas Seeger	51.38

Number of patrons, 135.

Court Sets Monday.

Gazette: The March term of the District Court for Red Lake county will convene at the court house in this city Monday of next week, with the Hon. Judge Watts on the bench.

The calendar for this term is not a very extensive one, but there are enough cases on hand to be tried to keep the mill grinding for a week or more at least.

The grand jury will probably get together on that day, also, but what will be the result of their deliberations is not even hinted at. There is but one minor criminal case on the calendar, but perhaps some can be found if the jury is thus inclined.

There are no sensational or really important cases listed on the civil calendar, but there will be several jury cases, and the session will likely last a week or more.

Rural Route No. 1.

A party from Thief River Falls made a statement last week saying that I and several of the farmers called at the office there in regard to having the mail route changed and that I had been working up a petition among the farmers. These statements are absolutely false, as I didn't know anything about such a petition until I was told by one of the patrons that there was such a petition out.

I have no authority to take part in any such petition and don't want to be pulled into it.

Geo. Biskey, Carrier.

Plans Are Here.

The blue print plans for the improvement of the water power and the electrical plant have been received from the Duluth Engineering company and the village council are expecting to take action on the matter at their first meeting in April. The contract with the lumber company has not yet been closed but probably will be inside of a few weeks.

Dairymen Meet.

The co-operative creameries and the dairymen of the state held a meeting at St. Paul yesterday and the St. Hilaire creamery was represented by Chas. Gustafson. The meeting is an outcome of a plan to organize and co-operate in selling their butter to the best advantage and also buy the things they need at the cheapest possible price.

For Sale or Rent.

The west half of NW quarter of section 7-152-43 and east half of NE quarter of section 12-152-44 containing one hundred fifty acres adjoining the village of St. Hilaire. The best and most convenient stock and grain farm in Red Lake county. If interested write K. O. Lee owner at Aberdeen, S. D., or call on K. O. Gigstad, agent at St. Hilaire.

Mary—Dark circles under the eyes indicate a sluggish circulation, torpid liver and kidneys. Exercise and Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea will make you well and beautiful. 35 cents, tea or tablets. Imperial Drug Co.

Albert L. Cole Dying.

Journal: A letter received by a prominent citizen of Crookston today written from Palm Beach, Florida, bears the sad news that Albert L. Cole, of Walker, recently the republican candidate for governor, can live but a few weeks at the most. Mr. Cole's health was not strong when he was nominated at Duluth last June and the rigors of the campaign completely exhausted his failing vitality. He left for West Baden to recuperate and did recover somewhat, but he was unable to resume the cares of his business and was compelled to go south for the winter. Messages from there to his friends are most discouraging.

Delayed Meeting.

Crookston Times: Rev. A. Sand, of St. Hilaire, passed through the city this morning enroute to his home after preaching at Grand Forks and at Hillsboro. He had quite an experience on this trip. He arrived in Crookston too late to make connections with his train and had to wait for another train which landed him in Grand Forks just too late to make connections with the train to Hillsboro. In fact he arrived in Grand Forks at exactly the time he should have begun services at Hillsboro. Finally he reached that place an hour and a half behind time and met the congregation just going home after the service. They went back with him however and a short meeting was held.

Another Use for Electricity.

For electricity, still another use has been found; namely, in the launching of vessels. The British battleship Agamemnon, recently launched, slid to the water by this new method. A series of interlocking levers were connected with the electrical arrangement. As a safeguard against disease we suggest the daily use of golden grain belt beer. It is brewed from the best of nature's products and should go into the home as a health maker. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Age Pension.

Crookston Times: Congressman Steenerson received notice this morning that the pension claim of Julius Chapman of Henning, Minn., had been allowed. This is the first claim to be allowed under the new act of Congress which went into effect on Feb. 6th, 1907, and which is known as the age pension law. Since this law went into effect Mr. Steenerson has received hundreds of applications for pensions under this act and he has them all filed away.

WOMEN IN HOSPITALS

Experiences of Mrs. Rockwood and Miss Tierney

MISS MARGARET TIERNEY

MRS. CHAS. A. ROCKWOOD

A large proportion of the operations performed in our hospitals are upon women and girls for some organic trouble.

Why should this be the case ?

Because they have neglected themselves, as every one of these patients in the hospital beds had plenty of warning in those dragging sensations, pains at left or right of abdomen, backaches, nervous exhaustion, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, and other organic weaknesses.

All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the female system and if not heeded the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation. When these symptoms manifest themselves, do not drag along until you are obliged to go to the hospital and submit to an operation—but remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, has saved hundreds of women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured more cases of feminine ills than any other one remedy. Such letters as the following are constantly being received by Mrs. Pinkham to prove our claims.

Mrs. C. A. Rockwood, teacher of Parliamentary Law, of 58 Free St., Fredonia, N. Y., writes:

"For years I suffered with female trouble. It was decided that an operation was necessary, and although I submitted to a serious operation my sufferings continued, until Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended and it proved a marvelous remedy, so quickly did it restore my health. I cannot thank you sufficiently for the good it has done me."

Miss Margaret Tierney, of No. 328 W. 25th Street, New York, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"When only eighteen years of age our physician decided that an operation was necessary to permit of my womanly organs performing their natural functions. My mother objected and being urged by a relative to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did so. I soon improved in health, the proper conditions were established and I am well and strong, thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

No other remedy has such unqualified endorsement as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. No other remedy in the world has such a record of cures of female ills.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of her vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that may help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

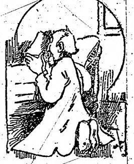
WANTED GAME WORTH CANDLE.

Uncle Joe's Practical Prayer on Subject of Bribery.

I have an old uncle down on a farm on Long Island, and up to last fall he had never taken enough interest in politics to go to the polls, says a writer in the Cincinnati Enquirer. He finally became aroused over the trust question, and talked so much that he became a candidate for the legislature and was triumphantly elected. A few days before he went up to Albany I dropped down to see him, and after we had talked for awhile I said:



I Heard Him Praying.

"Well, Uncle Joe, you will find yourself in a rather tough crowd up there. The papers are already predicting that certain measures will be carried by bribery."

"You don't believe that I could be bribed, do you?" he asked, as he turned on me.

"Of course not, but you will certainly be approached and tempted."

"D'ye think so?"

"I haven't the slightest doubt of it. You will be offered anywhere from $200 to $1,000 for your vote."

He shook his head and then changed the subject, and we did not get back to it again. Nevertheless, after I got to bed that night I heard him praying, and caught the words:

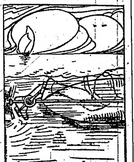
"My nephew, who knows the wiles of men, says that I shall be tempted up at Albany, and I want to say, O Lord, that if I am let it be something worth while instead of a measly little hundred or two hundred dollars."

I thoroughly believe in Uncle Joe's honesty, but I am going to keep an eye on him, just the same, until the session is over.

MACHINE FOR SWIMMERS' USE.

Closely Resembles a Bicycle in the Water.

Swimming machines, which in one form or another have appeared at intervals during the past few years, seem likely to become quite popular next season. The most interesting invention of this type recently patented is shown here. In this swimming machine the frame is constructed of tubing, bent in the form of a narrow ellipse. Within the frame is a cigar-shaped float, which buoyantly supports the swimmer in an outstretched position. Extending from the rear of the frame is a rod carrying a small propeller, which is operated by foot pedals journaled near the rear end of the frame. The position taken by the swimmer is clearly shown in the illustration, the steering being by means of a rudder on the front end of the frame and operated by the hands. This machine should certainly appeal to all lovers of aquatic sports.



Foot-Propelled.

A strange story is being told in connection with the death of Samuel Hughes, a salt merchant of Blackwood, England, whose body was found beneath the railway bridge at Crumlin. His wife, who was sitting up alone, states that at the time of the accident, early in the morning, she heard a loud voice calling "Bess! Bess!" She opened the door and saw a tall figure in black clothes and wearing a silk hat. In a minute it disappeared and she went outside, but could not see anyone.

Agassiz Didn't Know.

Sitting at our family table, Agassiz asked my father: "Doctar! what kind of a fish do you call de chowdar?"

A smile passed over our faces, and Agassiz joined in our hearty laugh when he understood.

Traveling together in the White mountains, they sat on the top of the stage and discussed the geological formation of the region.

The driver was asked: "Who have you up there?" "Oh," he said, "a party of 'naturals.'"—Boston Herald.

Sorry for Him.

Miss Angelina (to Lucy, the parlor maid)—Lucy, if any one calls to see me this afternoon, don't forget that I am only at home to Mr. Fitznoodle.

Lucy—Yes, miss.

Interval of an hour, and Lucy reappears, looking rather flushed.

"Well, Lucy?"

"Please, miss, there's been five gentlemen call, and when I told them you were out to everybody but Mr. Fitznoodle, they all seemed surprised and annoyed, while the last one said: 'I am sorry for Mr. Fitznoodle.'"

THE ARTISTIC WALL.

One of Solid Color Will Always Give Best Effect.

The dearest, daintiest, most artistic wall is a solid colored wall. It furnishes a perfect background for all kinds of pictures, it throws them out in their correct proportions, and does not detract from their artistic value. The solid colored wall is also much better as a background for furniture, and harmonizes much more artistically with carpets and rugs than any other method of wall treatment. The less breaking up of color on a wall the more artistic it is.

The most successful form of the solid colored wall is an alabastined wall. There is as much difference between tinted walls, as there is between shoddy and all-wool gowns. The shoddy gown holds its color for a few days, while the all-wool keeps its color to the very last thread, so also in solid colored walls, there are shoddy walls and permanently colored walls which retain their color down to the very last particle. The ideal wall coating never rubs off, never flakes nor chips off and is always ready for a fresh coat. If there is wallpaper on the wall, soak it off with warm water, then go over the plaster after you have removed the paper with warm water to remove every trace of paste. Have the wall thoroughly clean for a clean wall cannot be built on an unclean foundation. If there are any particles of foreign matter adhering to the wall scrape them off with a putty knife. Then if there are any discolorations on the wall, size it with a material made from cheap varnish, thinned down with benzine and japan added for a drier, then cover your wall with your tinting material.

Be sure your man uses a tinting material mixed with cold water. If he comes to you and asks for warm water, you can make up your mind that there is glue in the material which he proposes to put on your wall, and you can be certain that you are going to have a shoddy wall, for glue means shoddy. Glue means that it will hold its color long enough for the man to collect his bill and not much longer. Insist on your tinting material being mixed with clear, cold water. Be sure that your wall is made from pure materials, then you will have a permanent, artistic, sanitary wall. A wall that will be a "thing of beauty and a joy forever."

Proved.

"Are you sure the people are more prosperous than they used to be?"

"Of course I am," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "If they weren't, how could they afford to pay the price we charge 'em for foodstuffs?"

Stood the Test.

Allcock's Plasters have successfully stood the test of sixty years' use by the public; their virtues have never been equaled by the unscrupulous imitators who have sought to trade upon their reputation by making plasters with holes in them, and claiming them to be "just as good as Allcock's."

Allcock's plasters stand to-day indorsed by not only the highest medical authorities, but by millions of grateful patients who have proved their efficacy as a household remedy.

Prepared.

"Really," began Mr. Stinjay, "I don't like to give you all this money to carry around. You know the doctors say bacteria lurks in bank notes."

"That's all right," replied his wife. "I'll use some of the money to get vaccinated, if necessary."

CEMETERY FOR 4,000 DOGS.

Marble Slabs Commemorate Some of the More Notable Pets.

On the occasion of a lawsuit brought by a marble cutter some interesting details have come out in a Paris court concerning the dog cemetery founded on the Ile des Ravageurs, near Paris in 1899.

There are already 4,000 "graves" in the cemetery. Some of them leased for a long term, have cost as much as 2,000 francs. The lowest price paid for any concession is 5 francs and the expenses of the most discreet burial are 25 francs.

Visitors to the cemetery pay 50 centimes as an entrance fee. On one of the tombstones they may read "Homage to a faithful heart" and on another "Here lies Black, killed by a civilized savage." The above victim, explains the keeper, died at the hands of an indignant concierge.

Another marble slab mounted on cement rock contains the following: "Neither name nor date; what matters it?" And again: "Beneath these stones reside the material remains of that which during its life was my joy and consolation."

FOOLED THE PREACHER.

A Doctor's Brother Thought Postum Was Coffee.

A wise doctor found out coffee was hurting him, so he quit drinking it.

He was so busy with his practice, however, that his wife had to write how he fooled his brother, a clergyman, one day at dinner. She says:

"Doctor found coffee was injuring him and decided to give Postum a trial, and we have used it now for four years, with continued benefit. In fact, he is now free from the long train of ills that follow coffee drinking.

"To show how successful we are in making Postum properly I will relate an incident. At a dinner we gave, Doctor suggested we serve Postum instead of ordinary coffee.

"Doctor's brother, a Clergyman, supposed it was old fashioned coffee and remarked, as he called for his second cup: 'If you do preach against coffee, I see you haven't forgotten how to make it.'"

This goes to show that well-made—fully boiled—Postum has much the flavor and richness of good coffee although it has an individuality all its own. A ten days' trial will prove that it has none of the poisonous effect of ordinary coffee, but will correct the troubles caused by coffee. "There's a reason." Name furnished by Postum Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

THE VALUE OF PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE

Personal knowledge is the winning factor in the culminating contests of this competitive age and when of ample character it places its fortunate possessor in the front ranks of

The Well Informed of the World.

A Knowledge of Forms, Knowledge of Functions and Knowledge of Products are all of the utmost value and in questions of life and health when a true and wholesome remedy is desired it should be remembered that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., is an ethical product which has met with the approval of the most eminent physicians and gives universal satisfaction, because it is a remedy of Known Quality, Known Excellence and Known Component Parts and has won the valuable patronage of millions of the Well Informed of the world, who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual use that it is the first and best of family laxatives, for which no extravagant or unreasonable claims are made.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent family laxative. As its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well Informed of the world to be the best we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of—Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects, always note, when purchasing the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package, whether you call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

COMMISSION IN LUNACY FOR THAW

JUDGE HANDS DOWN DECISION ORDERING INQUIRY INTO HIS SANITY.

PRISONER IS FULL OF HOPE

PERSONNEL OF COMMISSION ADDS NEW DISTINCTION TO CASE.

New York, March 28. — Harry K. Thaw may never again face the jury empaneled more than nine weeks ago to try him on the charge of murder in the first degree. Justice Fitzgerald yesterday unexpectedly handed down a decision ordering a commission in lunacy to inquire into the present state of mind of Stanford White's slayer. The decision of the three disinterested men named to conduct the inquiry will guide the future action of the court as to ordering Thaw to an asylum for the insane or directing that the indefinitely interrupted trial for his life shall proceed.

Breaks News to Husband.

Justice Fitzgerald announced the appointment of the commission privately in his chambers. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was there with the lawyers and it became her task to break the news to her husband in the Tombs. Thaw received the court's decision philosophically and said he had no doubt the commission would declare him a sane man to-day.

Personnel Is Notable.

The men who will determine Thaw's mental capacity are:

Morgan J. O'Brien, a former justice of the appellate division of the supreme court; Peter B. Olney, former district attorney of New York county and a lawyer of high legal attainments; Dr. Leopold Putzel, a practicing physician and authority on mental disorders.

Thaw's lawyers and the defendant himself were downcast when they were first made acquainted with Justice Fitzgerald's decision, but all were manifestly pleased when the later announcement as to the personnel of the commission of inquiry was made.

Affidavits at Odds.

Judge Fitzgerald based his decision on the conflict of affidavits as presented by the opposing sides, saying they were too diametrically at odds to permit of a decision other than in favor of an impartial inquiry.

Later in the afternoon Thaw sent out a statement in which he said:

"Everything is perfectly satisfactory to me. I am sure I will be able to satisfy the commission that I am sane at the present time. Anything Justice Fitzgerald does is all right. He has always acted in a fair and impartial manner."

BUCHAREST THREATENED.

Disorders in Roumania Assume Proportions of Civil War.

Vienna, March 28. — The rising of the peasants in Roumania is assuming the proportions of civil war. The movement is directed not only against the Jews, but also against the Christian land-owners. The trouble now extends from one end of Roumania to the other, and even the capital city, Bucharest, is in fear of an attack. Reports of sanguinary encounters are received constantly, and each day shows the disorders to be more deep seated and far reaching and the situation more serious.

FEED ON HUMAN FLESH.

Starving Chinese Turn Cannibals in Some Sections.

Shanghai, March 28. — The famine-stricken Chinese have been practicing cannibalism in localities where the distress is most acute. The spread of fever continues, and the heavy rains are increasing the general misery. Spasmodic rioting has occurred, but the outbreaks have not been serious.

Seek Gum; Are Killed.

Maplehurst, Wis., March 28. — Two children met instant death at the Squaw Creek Lumber company's landing. They were crawling over the rollway in search of gum that is found on tamarack and balsam logs, when the rollway broke loose and the children were caught between rolling logs and crushed almost beyond recognition.

Fired for Grafting.

CHANGE IN THAW COMMISSION

JUSTICE O'BRIEN RESIGNS AND DAVID M'CLURE TAKES HIS PLACE.

New York, March 28. — After the jury which has been trying Harry K. Thaw for more than two months was excused yesterday until Monday morning, and the members of the lunacy commission named Tuesday by Justice Fitzgerald had been sworn in, there came the sudden announcement that Former Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, chairman of the commission, had resigned. In a letter to Justice Fitzgerald Judge O'Brien stated that upon reflection he was forced, because of the condition of his health and professional engagements, to decline to serve as a member of the commission. Justice Fitzgerald immediately appointed David McClure, a well known attorney of this city and a member of Former Police Commissioner McAdoo's advisory committee of citizens, to fill the vacancy. Mr. McClure met the other members of the commission yesterday afternoon and was selected as chairman. Later he announced that the first session of the commission would be held this afternoon.

WITH THE LAWMAKERS

Work Accomplished by the State Legislators.

St. Paul, March 23.—Friends of the county agricultural school bill won a victory in the first round of the fight against the bill in the house. An effort to have the bill sent to the agricultural committee was defeated by a vote of 65 to 42. Speaker Johnson took the floor and led the fight in favor of the bill. The debate was long and spirited.

The bill proposes the establishment of eight schools in which agriculture shall be taught, and appropriates $20,000 for the maintenance of each.

Representative Case offered a bill providing for a constitutional convention to formulate a new state constitution or amendments to the present constitution.

Two constitutional amendments affecting the apportionment of representation in the legislature was proposed by Representative White. One amendment provides that in 1910 senators in the even numbered districts shall be elected for four years, and those in the odd numbered districts for six years, and after the expiration of those terms they shall be elected for four-year terms. The other amendment provides that after each state census, the legislature may, and after each federal census shall, reapportion the congressional, judicial and legislative districts.

Representative Rodenberg introduced a bill to regulate loaning companies that make a specialty of loaning to wage earners or upon security of personal property or upon personal notes.

Representative Bicknell offered a bill exempting mutual fire insurance companies from the percentage tax on net premiums imposed by the state.

The house passed a memorial to congress asking that loans of the federal funds be made to states for aid in building roads and bridges.

In the Senate.

The reciprocal demurrage bill, in amended form, was reported for passage to the senate yesterday by the railroad committee. Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock was fixed as a special order for the consideration of the bill.

Senator McColl introduced a bill which prohibits discrimination by fire insurance companies in giving rebates on premiums to favored patrons. There is a similar bill in respect to life insurance companies.

The binding twine bill was up for discussion, and after a short debate further action was postponed until Saturday. According to the bill the dealer may, if he gives credit, charge an advance of 1 1-2 cents in place of 1 cent, and the board of control may, in the event of a failure of crop or unfair competition on the part of the harvester trust, sell the twine outside of Minnesota.

The bill which requires that chattel mortgages be filed in the offices of register of deeds was passed.

Other bills passed: Relating to the employment of prisoners in the state prison and state reformatory; relating to the salaries of officers and agents of life insurance companies; to create county boards of education for unorganized territory; to authorize railroad and warehouse commission to fix time when local warehouse men shall keep house open for business; to regulate the killing of tuberculous cattle and glandered horses, and to provide for compensation; to prevent fraud and deception in the sale and manufacture of food; to establish a state hospital for indigent crippled and deformed children in St. Paul; providing a fruit breeding farm for the state university.

St. Paul, March 25.—Senator Sageng introduced a bill to make the office of county superintendent of schools a non-political one. The bill declares the office to be non-political, and provides that all candidates shall be known and designated as independent candidates. A candidate for the office may file at primary elections, but he shall not be required to state his party affiliations, and his name shall be placed on the ballots of all political parties to be voted for at such primary election.

The use of automatic shotguns and pump guns in hunting any quail, prairie chicken, grouse, wild goose, brant, wild duck or any variety of aquatic fowl is prohibited by a bill presented by Senator Stephens.

Authority to consent to the adoption of minors by societies organized for the purpose of securing homes for children is granted in a bill introduced by Senator Durment.

Twenty-six bills were recommended for passage in committee of the whole. The most important were: To prevent unjust discrimination in fixing fire insurance premiums, and to provide for the appointment of a fire marshal and defining his duties; to fix a uniform method of buying and selling grain and to prevent combinations to control prices; to tax separately as real estate mineral rights and reservations in lands when held or owned by one who does not own the lands in fee simple; to appropriate money for the locating, marking and surveying of the battlefield of Wood lake.

In the House.

The house had another constitutional argument on the 5 per cent gross earnings tax bill, which also makes railroads subject to local improvement taxes. Doubt was raised as to the constitutionality of the bill by several of the members. Representative Dorsey, the author of the bill, produced an opinion from the attorney general holding that the bill is constitutional. The objection to the placing of the bill on general orders was then withdrawn.

The actual and necessary traveling expenses of all county officers and their assistants and deputies are provided for in a bill introduced by Representative Case.

Veterans of the Spanish-American war are to be exempt from the cost of a peddler's license, just as the veterans of the Civil war are at present, under the bill introduced by Representative Handlan.

The township drainage bill was passed under suspension of the rules. The bill was a redraft by the drainage committee of several such bills introduced by different members. The bill permits town boards to order ditches constructed upon petition of one or more property owners. The proceedings for hearing and for appraisal and payment of benefits and damages is similar to the present county ditch laws.

Other bills passed: Repealing certain special laws relating to Goodhue county officers' salaries; fixing salary of judge of probate in Fillmore county; relating to the salary and compensation of county commissioners in counties of not less than 30,000 nor more than 75,000 inhabitants.

St. Paul, March 26.—The inheritance tax bill which provides that one-half of the tax go to the county in which the deceased lived at the time of his death, instead of all to the state, as the present law provides, was killed in the senate yesterday. It came up on general orders and was the subject of considerable debate.

The bill authorizing the state board of control to sell the prison binder twine outside the state when, in its judgment, such action is for the best interests of the state, and authorizing dealers in prison twine to charge a profit of 1 1-2 cents a pound when the twine is sold on credit, was passed by the senate.

Amendments to two sections of the code relating to the sale of land for taxes are proposed in a bill introduced by Senator Wilson.

A minimum penalty of twenty-five years' imprisonment for burglary with explosives is provided in a bill offered by Senator Stephens.

Authority for one of the two persons owning a joint bank deposit to withdraw the amount on deposit or any part of it, whether the other be living or not, is given by a bill presented by Senator Stephens.

Other bills introduced were: Making 360 days a year for purpose of calculating interest; relating to incorporation of fraternal societies and to legalize such corporations heretofore attempted; establishing a law uniform with laws of other states relative to the transfer of stock of corporations; providing for the furnishing of statements of tax liens and tax sales by the county auditor; creating borough councils, boards of equalization and defining their duties and powers; providing for protection of purchasers of coal in certain cities, villages and boroughs and providing for the enforcement thereof.

The bill making contracts entered into with trusts and combinations null and void was recommended for passage in committee of the whole.

In the House.

The tonnage tax bill, calling for a flat tax of 5 cents a ton on ore of more than 49 per cent iron will be reported for passage by the house committee today.

The bill to increase the gross earnings tax of railroads from 4 to 5 per cent was passed by the house last night.

The house committee on express, telegraph and electric railways introduced a bill to regulate the stringing of wires over railroad tracks.

The bill providing for a girls' training school at Red Wing was placed on general orders. The bill had previously been reported for indefinite postponement.

Bills introduced: Relating to limitations of actions for recovery of real estate; amending laws relating to dependent and neglected children; relating to registering of land titles; relating to consolidation of railroads; prohibiting taking of otter or beaver between May 1 and Nov. 1.

St. Paul, March 27. — Two bills of more than ordinary interest were introduced in the senate yesterday.

Senator Nelson put in an automobile bill covering also vehicles of like character. It fixes the license at $3 and requires the number to be plainly displayed. Speed in cities and villages shall not exceed eight miles an hour, and not more than four miles at crossings when any person is using the crossing; on roads passing through a timber country not more than fifteen miles an hour. The operator shall stop on signal from any person driving horses or mules on a road and going in an opposite direction, until the team has passed.

The pharmacy law is amended in a bill by Senator Robinson, providing that upon a payment of a fee of $5 any person over twenty-one years old, with ten years' experience in a drug store, may be registered and receive a certificate to practice as a registered pharmacist without an examination. Applications to the pharmacy board must be made within thirty days after the passage of this bill.

Senator Sageng offered a bill fixing rates for public printing. Notice and tax list not more than 10 cents a description; for other legal publications not more than 50 cents a folio for the first publication and 25 cents a folio for each subsequent insertion.

Senator Wilson presented a bill providing that county commissioners shall have authority to erect and maintain a detention home for dependent, neglected and delinquent children.

Senator Dunn introduced a new election bill relating to state officers, which provides that on the first Tuesday in June, preceding each regular election wherein state officers are to be elected, there shall be held an election, designated a "party delegate election," in each election district, for the selection of all party delegates to county conventions held to elect delegates to delegate conventions held to nominate all state officers of all political parties.

The committee on general legislation offered a bill for the reorganization of the labor bureau, the name of which is to be changed to the bureau of labor, industries and commerce.

Senator Sageng offered a bill whereby the question of license or lid can be raised by a petition signed by 10 per cent of the voters.

In the House.

After a somewhat spirited debate in the house, Thursday of this week was selected as a date for the special consideration of the tonnage tax bill, which was reported out by the tax committee.

For the second time the house defeated the bill compelling engineers on trains to have an experience of three years as firemen. It was rejected by a vote of 58 to 44. The explanation given by a number of those who voted against the bill was that it would cripple train service generally.

A tax commission is provided for in a bill introduced by Representative Tighe. It is to be composed of nine persons, three each to be named by the governor, house and senate. The commission is to report to the next legislature. No salaries are to be paid. The sum of $15,000 is set aside for the use or the commission.

The county agricultural school bill was recommended for passage by the house in committee of the whole. A hard fight was made against the measure.

The mortgage registry tax bill was also recommended for passage. The bill imposes a tax of 50 cents on each $100 of all mortgages filed for record.

The bill to pension all citizen soldiers and others who participated in the defense against the Indian outbreak of 1862 was reported for passage by the committee on appropriations.

St. Paul, March 28.—The semi-centennial exposition bill was killed in the senate yesterday by one vote. The bill was a special order for the afternoon session and over five hours were spent in the discussion of the measure. The fight was the hardest and bitterest of the session. The vote stood 31 for and 30 against the bill, 32 being necessary for passage. One senator was absent.

The bill has not yet been disposed of in the house, and its friends are confident that it will pass that body and may pass the senate if all the members are present.

The senate passed the reciprocal demurrage bill yesterday, after a long discussion. The vote was 51 to 9. The senators voting against the bill were: Alderman, Calhoun, Durment, Gunn, Hardy, Laybourn, Pugh, Smith and Vail.

The initiative and referendum bill was made a special order for Tuesday at 2 o'clock.

In the House.

The house yesterday passed the county agricultural school bill, the vote being 68 to 43. The bill permits any county to establish an agricultural school and gives state aid for maintenance, but the special feature is the appropriation of $20,000 to the eight towns, Breckenridge, Austin, Willmar, Madison, Marshall, Morris, Slayton and Wadena.

Other bills passed were: Relating to registration of dentists; providing method of foreclosure of mortgages by advertisement; to provide a registry tax on mortgages of real property; providing for the discharge of judgments against persons discharged from bankruptcy; accepting a donation for a hospital and site at the state university.

The house yesterday put the finishing touches to the question of county option, when by a vote of 60 to 55 it killed a motion to take the bill from the hands of the temperance committee and place it on general orders. The bill already has been killed in the senate.

Representative Gates introduced a bill providing for a mercantile license tax on all dealers in goods and merchandise in the state. Retailers must pay a tax of $2 plus 5 mills on each dollar of their gross volume of business in the state. Wholesalers are to pay a tax of $10 and 3 mills for each dollar of business.

A constitutional amendment providing that county superintendents of schools shall be required to have educational qualifications, to be determined by the legislature, is proposed in a bill offered by Representative Case.

Soldiers and sailors of the Civil war shall be given the preference in every public department and upon all public works in appointments, employment and promotion under a bill passed under suspension of the rules.

Ten high schools in any county may receive state aid under a bill offered by Representative McNeil. At present only seven schools in any county may receive aid in one year.

The house committe eof the whole disposed of several bills on general orders.

LEAVE HONDURAS TO FATE

SALVADOR WITHDRAWS TROOPS AND ASKS MEXICO TO STOP WAR.

City of Mexico, March 28. — Mexico has been at last requested to intervene and use her best efforts to bring about peace in Central America. The request came from the republic of Salvador and was made to President Diaz by Dr. Baltazar Estupinian, the minister to Mexico from Salvador. Minister Estupinian received a telegram from his government saying Salvador was withdrawing all her troops from Honduran territory and was eager for peace. As soon as Dr. Estupinian read the message he drove to the National palace and was granted an interview with President Diaz.

Asks United States to Join.

What transpired is not known, but as a result of the conference a message was immediately sent to Ambassador Creal in Washington by the president. The contents of this dispatch were not made public; but it is stated on good authority that President Diaz has instructed Mr. Creal to join the American government in a demand for the cessation of hostilities. Salvador has been an active ally of Honduras, and in requesting Mexico to step in and end the war it is thought she has wished to let the world know that hereafter Honduras was to be left to her fate.

No News in Washington.

Washington, March 28.—No conclusion regarding Salvador's request for Mexican intervention in the Central American troubles was obtainable here last night. Mr. Creal, the Mexican ambassador, had retired for the night when the news was received.

"Perfect Peace" Now Reigns.

Washington, March 18.—The Venezuela charge d'affaires received a telegram from the secrtary of state at Caracas announcing that the invading forces of Gen. Penaloza, in the province of Tachira, on the Venezuelan-Colombian frontier, had been dispersed and that "perfect peace" now exists. No further details are given.

THREE BLACKS FALL IN FIGHT.

Battle Between City Officers and Members of Negro Society.

Muskogee, I. T., March 28.—As a result of a fight between members of an organization of negroes known as the United Socialists on one side and city and government officers on the other, late yesterday afternoon, John Cofield, a white police officer, was shot fatally; Guy Fisher, white, was shot through the shoulder; Sam and Elbert Barker and a man named Scott, all negroes, are dead; two other negroes were badly wounded and are in hiding with friends and six negroes are in jail.

The fight took place at a house occupied by the members of the organization. Officer Cofield went to the house to serve a warrant on Elbert Barker and was shot down.

A riot call was sent out and several officers responded. The negroes opened fire on the officers and about fifty shots were exchanged, resulting in the killing of three negroes and the injuring of two others. Nearly every white man in town is armed in anticipation of further rioting.

NO ADS; LOSE BUSINESS.

Butte Merchants Sorely Feel Effect of Newspapers' Suspension.

Butte, Mont., March 28.—The value of newspaper advertising has never been so strongly impressed upon the minds of the merchants of this city as during the suspension of the newspapers here and at Anaconda for more than a month past on account of trouble with their employes. Some of the large department stores, which usually carried page "ads" in the local papers claim that their business has fallen off 60 per cent since the suspension. Some other lines of business practically were wiped out. Merchants tried to meet the situation by lavish scattering of handbills and circulars and by advertising in the Helena and Missoula papers, but the results were not at all satisfactory.

FIRE EXPOSES A FRAUD.

A Little Cement and Iron Frame All Left of a Petrified Indian.

Cloquet, Minn., March 28. — The Great Northern station at Swan river was burned recently, the fire exposing an interesting fraud.

Some years ago, the story runs, the body of a supposed petrified Indian woman was dug up near Cass lake. It was shipped to Swan River and never called for. Charges accumulated and the express company stored it in the Swan River station.

After the recent fire nothing remained of the "corpse" but some cement and the iron in the frame.

Lovely Is Weaker.

Albert Lea, Minn., March 28.—The condition of Judge Lovely has not materially changed during the last few days, although he seems to be losing his physical strength.

FAMINE IN FRISCO.

Horses Doomed to Starvation and People Suffer as Result of Storm.

San Francisco, March 28.—Alarm is freely expressed in all departments of this city's commercial and industrial activities over the disastrous effect of the storm. Building is almost at a standstill, teaming is stopped, workingmen in all lines are idle, prices of foodstuffs are jumping alarmingly, and starvation is facing the thousands of animals which do the heavy hauling for rebuilding a metropolis.

BIG STRIKE NOW SEEMS CERTAIN

CONFERENCE AT CHICAGO FAILS TO BRING ABOUT SOLUTION.

MAY STRIKE IN 48 HOURS

INCREASE OFFERED BY RAILROADS DOES NOT COME UP TO DEMANDS.

Chicago, March 28. — The 45,000 trainmen of the Western railroads seem nearer a strike than at any time since negotiations were begun, two months ago, with the general managers for an increase in wages and a shorter workday. The conference yesterday between the representatives of the men and the railroad officials lasted four hours, but failed to bring about a solution of the trouble.

Increase Too Small.

The railroads offered the men increases of 7 per cent to passenger conductors and 10 per cent to brakemen, firemen, baggagemen and allied workers. The men had demanded an increase of 12 per cent and a nine-hour workday, and when the railroad officials declared their offer was the best that could be made the conference came to an end, as the men by a referendum vote taken last week had decided to accept nothing but their demands.

Strike Seems Certain.

After the conference broke up the representatives of the union considered the advisability of calling a strike. Just what decision was reached is not known, as the union men declined to discuss what had taken place. They were a unit, however, in declaring that a settlement of the controversy can only be reached by the general managers offering concessions. Another meeting of the union men has been scheduled for to-day, and the general belief last night was that a strike would be called within the next forty-eight hours unless the railroad officials request another conference.

Ask Government to Intervene.

The United States government will be asked to intervene to prevent a strike of the conductors and trainmen on the Western railroads, and if the plans of the general managers do not miscarry the whole controversy will be submitted to arbitration. Late last night the general managers gave out a statement in which they declare that they will demand arbitration under the Erdman act.

DENIES THAT HE IS DEAD.

Pennsylvania Solon Wires After House Adjourns in His Honor.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 28.—The early session of the lower branch of the Pennsylvania legislature was interrupted yesterday by an unusual incident. A few minutes before 12 o'clock Mr. Riley of Allegheny announced the death of Mr. Murphy, one of his colleagues. Out of respect for Mr. Murphy the house at once adjourned. A few moments later a telegram was received from Pittsburg stating that Mr. Murphy was alive and that his condition was much improved.

MILLIONAIRE DEAD.

"Silent" Smith, Heir to $50,000,000, Dies on Honeymoon in Japan.

Chicago, March 28. — James Henry (Silent) Smith, one of the wealthiest men in the world, is reported dead in Japan.

Smith was on a round-the-world trip with a bride of a few months. He was heir to a $50,000,000 estate left by George Smith of Chicago.

WILL ENLIST NO NEGROES.

Recruiting Stations Get Orders That Colored Men Are Not Wanted.

Houston, Tex., March 28. — Announcement was made yesterday at the local recruiting station that orders have been received from the war department at Washington instructing that no more negroes be accepted for service in the army.

Policeman Stabbed to Death.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 28.—Albert Shuka, a special policeman, was stabbed to death last night just after he had left a dance hall where he had been on duty. Shuka had trouble with several young men whom he ejected from the hall and after the place was closed the party renewed the trouble.

Falling Girder Knocks Down 12 Men.

New York, March 28.—A steel girder slipped from the top of a power house under construction for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company and carried away a scaffolding upon which a dozen men were working. Two of the seven men injured will die.

Stage-struck Girls Caught.

Chicago, March 28. — Three girls who ran away from their homes in St. Louis were arrested here yesterday and will be held to await advices from their homes. The girls said they came to Chicago to go on the stage.

Grand Jury Keeps at It.

San Francisco, March 28.—Twelve witnesses were examined yesterday by the grand jury in its investigation of bribery and graft during a session which lasted from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until after 6.

We expect to have a real live commercial club in operation at St. Hilaire next week. Are you a member? If not, why not?

The Minnesota supreme court now decides that the Great Northern can issue sixty millions of new stock. Another melon to be cut. It's easy; turn on the hose.

It has been advertised quite extensively lately by the newspapers in this part of the state that St. Hilaire has money in the bank. Now watch someone try and get it.

John E. King, publisher, and Sam S. Haislet, local editor, will have charge of the Red Lake Falls Courier in the future. A good team, and they ought to work well.

If the stealing of the county seat removal petition was done by a partisan of Red Lake Falls, he has done more harm for his home town than has been done before. The people of Red Lake county will not countenance work of this kind. The petition should be given a fair hearing and stealing it will do more harm than good. Such work may prove a temporary gain but will lose in the end.

The railroads are very anxious to have the two-cent fare bill killed and have offered the following:

> In the matter of passenger rates, the roads have offered a 2½ cent rate for one way tickets and a flat 2-cent rate for round trip tickets, good at any time of the year. They have also offered 500-mile family mileage books at 2 cents a mile and 2,000 mile mileage books at 2 cents a mile. The books will be unlimited as to time. The unused portions of the 500-mile books will be made redeemable on the roads issued and the 2,000-mile books will be accepted on any road.
>
> In addition, the roads will offer a general reduction in freight rates, which will amount to two-thirds of the 17 per cent reduction ordered by the railroad commission some time ago.

Would it not be nice if all of us could dictate the kind of legislation we wanted.

School Notes

MARCH 28, 1907.

The school closes Friday for a week's vacation. A whole week without having to go to school once! Won't we be eager to take up our work again on April 8th!

S. H. Sheakley, representing Houghton, Mifflin & Co., called at the school house Monday afternoon.

Twenty-four papers were sent down to the examiner as a result of the examinations Thursday and Friday.

It is a rare thing indeed to see an examination paper in history that is worth full credit. Under the stress of the test it is so easy to get a date or two wrong or to forget for the moment just what led up to this or that war, this or that great event since Columbus crossed the "pond." To him, then, who succeeds in setting down all the essentials in answering the questions and mixing in nothing that shouldn't be there, all honor is due. The state examinations last week brought out such a paper. It was written by Oscar Johnson.

The fourth grade geography class is making booklets containing descriptions of various kinds of plants. The booklets also contain drawings of each plant and a map showing in colors where each one is grown.

This is test week, a week which is enjoyed immensely by both pupils and teachers. And—what's that you say?

These pupils were neither absent nor tardy during the month of March:

Primary room—Elsie Adams, Floyd Atwood, George Brink, Roy Bjerk, Viola Corno, Esther Fricker, Harriet Jackson, Audley Lemieux, Josephine Loe, Alta Olson, Edward Palmgren, Olive Patterson, Delia Payment, John Payment, Adolph Maltin.

First grade—Albert Benson, Annie Benson, George Corno, George Fricker, Ruth Gigstad, Norval Johnson, Vine Kolstad, Delos Payment, Alfred Peterson, Alver Selberg, Agnes Simonson, John Steen.

First Intermediate—Annie Anderson, John Anderson, Theodore Benson, Elmer Brink, Melvina Finn, Olga Fricker, Hilda Foss, Clara Finn, Oscar Gigstad, Clarence Johnson, Echo Olson, Leonard Peterson.

Second Intermediate—May Alberg, Carl Benson, Edwin Benson, Selmar Benson, Oliver Bjerk, Blanche Hoff, Ruth Hoff, Minnie Johnson, Lydia Kolstad, Napoleon Payment, Lilie Payment, John Peterson, Ethel Patterson, Selma Simonson, Ella Skeie, Delor Corno.

Grammar room—Ella Corno, Grace Hall, Alice Hoff, Carrie Simonson.

High School—Myrtle Eickhoff, Elesa Hendrickson, Selma Hoff, Robert Jackson, Mabel Remington.

The following composition shows how much one 4th. Grader got out of reading Ruskin's beautiful legend, "King of the Golden River."

Napoleon Payment, Fourth Grade.

There was once three brothers. Their names were Schwartz, Hans and Gluck. Schwartz and Hans were cruel to Gluck and they often beat him and made him work. The brothers were farmers and very good farmers they were. They killed all the animals which were of no use. The brothers had great heaps of gold on their floor. They did not sell their corn till it would bring a high price. They lived in the Treasure valley. They raised large crops every year. It happened that one day there came a heavy rain storm. The brothers went out and left Gluck alone to toast the mutton. Gluck sat by the fire and watched it. He said "I don't see why my brothers don't ask their neighbors to come and eat with them." Just then he heard a rap at the door but he thought it was only the wind blowing against the door. But there came another rap. He went and looked out of the window. There he saw a man, who said "Come and open the door. I am all wet." He was about four feet high and he had a cap about his height and at the top of his cap he had a long feather. He sat down by the fire. When he saw the mutton he asked Gluck if he could have a slice from it. But Gluck said if he should give any away he would be beaten by his brothers. The little man kept asking him, so at length Glucd said he would give him the piece which his brothers had promised him. Just as he had cut it he heard a rap at the door. He put the mutton back and went to open the door. Then Schwartz came in, throwing his parcel into Gluck's face. "Why did you keep us waiting in the rain?" When Schwartz saw the man he asked "Who is this fellow?" "I am only a poor old fellow," said the little man. "How did you come here?" said Schwartz. "I let him," said Gluck, "because he was so very wet." "Have the goodness to walk out again, then" said Hans. Schwartz took a rolling-pin and was going to hit the man, but the little man sent the rolling-pin into the corner, then Schwartz went after it. Hans tried to hit him but he went after them. There they laid, all three in the corner. Then the little man said: "Good bye, I will call again at mid-night." Schwartz got up and said to Gluck, "Never let me catch you at such a trick again. Dish the mutton." "Bless me!" said Schwartz, "The mutton has been cut." "You promised me a piece," said Gluck. "You cut it and was going to catch all the gravy. Go down to the coal cellar and stay there till I call you," said Schwartz. Then they ate all the mutton that they could and then they went and got drunk.

All night it kept on raining. The roof was blown off Schwartz' and Hans' bed-room, but it had not gone off Gluck's. When the brothers got up in the morning they saw the little man, and all the water that was on their floor. "You had better go into Gluck's room," said the little man. The brothers could not find their gold in the morning. They looked out and saw that their valley had turned into red sand. Hans said: "We will have to turn goldsmiths and mix copper with the gold that we have left. So Schwartz and Hans hired a furnace and made Guck watch it, while they spent their money at the ale house next door. One day Schwartz and Hans stayed away all day. Before they had gone they had thrown Gluck's mug into the furnace. Just as the mug melted a little man sprang up and said to Gluck: "Any person that will drop some holy water into my stream, it shall turn into gold." When the brothers came home they were very drunk. Gluck tolk them what the King of the Golden river had told him. His brothers laughed at him and then began to beat him till they fell in a chair. Then they got up and beat him again till their arms were tired, and went to bed. The next morning they began to fight with their swords to see which one should go to the golden river first. The neighbors heard this and went and got the marshal. Hans ran and hid but Schwartz was taken to prison. Hans went to the priest to get some holy water but the priest would not give him any. That evening Hans went to vespers for the first time and stole a cup of holy water. The next morning he set off on his journey; he put some bread and two bottles of wine in a basket. He put his holy water in a flask and hung it on his belt. On his way he had to go over a glacier. He met a man on his way and the man asked for water. Hans said "I have not enough for myself," and went on. He next met a little child who moaned for water; but he said he did not have any. Then he met a dog that was dying from thirst, but he only kicked it and went on his way. When he threw his water into the stream he was changed into a black stone. When Gluck saw that Hans did not return he went and told Schwarts in the prison. The next morning when Gluck got up there was no bread in the house and he went and hired himself to another goldsmith. He worked so hard that he soon had enough money to pay Schwartz' fine. Schwartz went and got some holy water from a bad priest. He did the same as Hans and when he threw his holy water into the stream he, too, was changed into a black stone. Gluck went to the priest and got some holy water and took some bread in a basket. He gave water to everyone he saw suffering from water; and when he came to the golden river he did not have any more water. The king of the golden river picked up a flower in which was dew. He poured it into the flask which Gluck held. He said to Gluck: "Pour this into my stream and then hasten home." Gluck did as he was told and as he was walking towards home he heard the water running under the ground. When he got to the Treasure valley he saw a large stream of water washing away the sand. After this he raised large crops and he became rich. The poor were never driven from his door when they were suffering.

Daniel O'Connell.

After a dinner at Lord Dungarvan's, Lady Morgan writes in her diary, I met the redoubtable Dan O'Connell. Dan is not brilliant in private life, not even agreeable. He is mild, silent, unassuming apparently absorbed and an utter stranger to the give and take charm of good society. I said so to Lord Clanricarde, who replied: "If you knew how I found him this morning! His hall, the very steps of his door, crowded with his clientele. He had a word or a written order for each, then hurried off to the law courts, thence to the Improvement society and was the guest here today. Two hours before he was making that clever but violent speech to Mr. la Touche, and now no wonder that he looks like an extinct volcano."

A Curious Epitaph.

The following epitaph is copied from a tomb in the vicinity of Port Royal, Jamaica: "Here lieth the body of Louis Caldy, Esq., a native of Montpellier, in France, which country he left on account of the revocation. He was swallowed up by the earthquake which occurred at that place in 1692, but by the great providence of God was, by a second shock, flung into the sea, where he continued swimming until rescued by a boat and lived forty years afterward."

Good Idea.

First Beggar—How is it that you always manage to get something from both of those women on the ground floor of that apartment house? Second Beggar—Dead easy. I ring both bells at the same time. Both women come to the doors at the same time and each one wants to outdo the other. —Fliegende Blatter.

An Obliging Man.

Heine (at the village barber's)—I say, do you know why this man's shop is hung all over with sacred pictures? Beine—Oh, yes; that is for the convenience of his customers, so that they may call on all the saints when he shaves them.—Meggendorfer Blatter.

RE-OPENING OF LANDS.

Ceded Lands Will be Re-opened.—Those Desiring to File Will Soon Know When They Can File.

Under the provisions of the Indian appropriation bill for 1905 an appropriation of $15,000 was made for a drainage survey of the ceded Indian lands in Minnesota, and the lands were withdrawn from entry pending the survey and report. Under the last Indian bill it was provided that these withdrawn lands should be made subject to entry upon the settlers agreeing to pay for drainage when the same is actually made. Many settlers are desirous of making entry on these withdrawn lands, says the Crookston Times. Yesterday Congressman Steenerson telegraphed the Commissioner of the General land office inquiring on what date they would be subject to entry, and received a reply that the instructions relative to the re-opening of the withdrawn ceded Chippewa lands had been prepared and would be forwarded to the local land office at an early date.

It is therefore expected that persons desiring to file on these withdrawn lands will know within a couple of weeks when they can file on the land and under what conditions the filings will be accepted.

COMMERCIAL CLUB

Will Organize and Elect Officers Next Wednesday Evening.

There was a well represented attendance of the business men of the village at the village hall last Tuesday evening to start a business men's club. The report of the committee on organization was taken up and an organization perfected. It was decided to call the new organization the St. Hilaire Commercial Club. The constitution and by-laws were taken up in sections and after discussion amended to suit. The new club will have a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and an executive committee of five members, the officers being also members, making an executive committee of nine members. All of the officers will serve without salary.

It is the intention of the club to devote itself exclusively to the betterment of St. Hilaire and surrounding country, and the members are expected to devote considerable of their time and some of their money to that end. The fees to join will be five dollars and there will be dues of $1.00 per quarter.

The committee on membership is still at work and they hope to induce every one who has interests in St. Hilaire and vicinity to join. They will report at the next meeting which is called to meet at the village hall on Wednesday evening, April 3rd, at which time there will be an election of officers for the ensuing year.

C. H. Peterson, who is working a medicine route near Devils Lake, N.D., came home the first of the week and will stay here until the country roads improve.

Peter Dainard left last Saturday with his family for Bemidji where he will work at the saw mill. He took seven or eight men from here who will also obtain work.

The Hotel Markham will open next Monday under the management of Hans Wilson, of Wylie. Mr. Wilson will thoroughly overhaul the place and put it in first class condition and should receive the patronage of all.

A refunding bond of Red Lake county for $10,000 is due and becomes payable April 12th. There being insufficient funds to meet this obligation at the present time, the county board has made application to the state for a loan to take up these bonds. This $10,000 obligation was incurred at the time of the organization of Red Lake county in 1896 to paying running expenses until tax money should begin to come into the treasury.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: N. E. Beebe, a prosperous St. Hilaire farmer, is in the city doing duty on the grand jury. Mr. Beebe is a hustling dairyman and his monthly check is one of the biggest given out at the St. Hilaire creamery. The editor knew "Norm" years ago in one of the oldest towns in the southern part of the state and knows that he comes of stock that will help to make Red Lake county famous in both the dairy and farming line.

Will Visit Norway.

Rev. L. W. Nordhus Walnum preached his farewell sermon last Sunday evening at Imperial hall before a large audience. He was presented with a neat sum of money and many expressed their appreciation of his work and hope he will some time return here. He left on Monday for Eau Claire, Wis., where he will spend a few days before departing for an extended trip to Norway.

Tiger's Tiny Foe.

The tiger bird, so called because he is the one thing the royal beast of India fears, is no larger than the English sparrow. Yet so bold and combative is he that if the great cat is surprised by a sufficient number of the little creature's kind far from the protecting shelter of the jungle, it will go hard with him. Build up your system with golden grain belt beer, the ideal home beverage. It is a liquid bread—pure, wholesome and nourishing. ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Red Lake Courier: County Attorney Germo and Sheriff Nelson were called to Thief River Falls Monday on a very serious criminal case, and as a result of their visit R. B. Hamilton, a brakeman on the Soo line west from Thief River Falls, is held in the county jail in this city, awaiting trial on the charge of rape. It is understood that the grand jury returned two separate counts against him, one for rape and one for indecent assault, and it is possible that he will be tried on both charges.

Hamilton is a freight brakeman on the Soo, and the complainant is at Thief River Falls. She alleges that she boarded the freight at Viking last Monday morning to go to Thief River Falls, and that while alone in the caboose with Hamilton the assault was committed. On reaching Thief River Falls she at once complained to the authorities with the result that Hamilton was arrested and brought down to the county jail here that evening. His bail was placed at $4000, in default of which he is kept in confinement. It is probable that the trial will come up Monday or Tuesday of next week.

Hamilton, of course, professes innocence of any assault, and the conductor and other brakeman of the crew are here and will be witnesses in the case. Hamilton's wife and her sister have also been here since Monday and will remain for the trial.

County Attorney Germo will conduct the case for the state, and Hamilton will be defended by Attorney Perl W. Mabey, of Thief River Falls, and Attorney F. A. Grady, of this city.

Machinery Damaged.

Some time between Saturday night and Monday morning a crowd of boys damaged a couple of electric light machines which had been taken out of the mill to be shipped to a firm at Minneapolis. They took a large casting and broke off all of the brass fixings on the machines and some of the stuff taken has been found in dealers' hands where it had been sold. The machines are about ruined and the damage will amount to several hundred dollars. The matter is being looked up and it is more than probable that several of the boys will have a good chance to attend the state reform school. There has been considerable complaint lately from different quarters that articles are being stolen and it is time it was stopped. The machine damaged is owned by a Minneapolis firm who handle second hand machinery.

PETITION IS STOLEN

The County Seat Removal Petition Cannot Be Found.

Thief River News: Where is the petition calling for the removal of the county seat from Red Lake Falls to Thief River Falls? Has it been stolen, and if so by whom?

As will be remembered, the state supreme court in February handed down a decision in the county seat case. The decision was to the effect that the petition was a legal one in every way "upon all points raised or which might have been raised," to use the language of the supreme court. It was referred back to the county commissioners and the only question left for them to decide was whether or not the petition contained the required number of signatures.

Last week the decision came back from the supreme court and on Monday the local attorneys started to prepare notices to be issued calling the commissioners together to consider the petition. It was then discovered that the petition had been stolen from the vaults of the county auditor's office. There is of course no proof as to who took it, but suspicion rests upon the men who have been at the head of the Red Lake Falls county seat committee, as they would be more concerned in the matter than anyone else.

The vault in which the petition was kept is one used by other county officers and it is said that a dozen or more residents know the combination as this had not been changed when Auditor Ford went out of office. The stealing of this petition has resulted in placing Thief River Falls somewhat at "sea," but of one thing there can be no doubt and that is that the county seat fight will be continued until the people, who are to be the final judges of the matter, have had an opportunity to vote upon the proposition. It is quite probable that it may be necessary to circulate a new petition and commence the fight all over again, although some of the local lawyers believe that there is a chance of having the courts make a special ruling upon this case. In all of the county seat fights that have been carried on, this is the first time a county seat removal petition was ever stolen so that it raises a new point of law.

BANK STATEMENTS

Show That St. Hilaire Banks Have Plenty of the Needful.

The bank statements which are published in The Spectator this week make a very flattering showing. The statement of the Merchants State Bank shows that it now has on deposit over $70,000. For an institution that has only been organized about three years in a town of this size, the showing made is an excellent one and reflects credit on the management. Since its organization each succeeding statement has shown a substantial increase in deposits and amount of business done.

Dairying Pays this Man.

C. O. Carlson, of Erskine, who won the first prize in the Jim Hill contest last summer, and who will be remembered as one of the speakers at the farmers' meeting held in St. Hilaire last month, spoke at Twin Valley recently and talked interestingly, and in a business way about the dairy cow and how to handle and feed her. He stated that on his farm 44 cows are being milked this winter. The milk is weighed and tested the 1st and 15th of each month, samples taken and tested for butter fat. The figures for Feb. 1st are as follows: Pounds of milk for the day, 879.2. Percentage of butter fat, 4.1 or 36 pounds of butter. Price 31c per pound, giving a daily income of $11.16 per day or $334.80 per month. The cost of feeding the cows per month is $120.43, leaving a net profit of $214.37 per month. One object of weighing and testing the milk is to enable one to feed the cow the proper amount of grain, one-third the amount in weight of the milk given. Another object is to enable one to know the relative values of his cows, that the best ones may be kept and the poorer ones got rid of.

PE-RU-NA A MEDICAL COMPOUND

In any medical compound as much depends upon the manner in which it is compounded as upon the ingredients used.

First, there must be a due proportion of the ingredients. Each drug in the pharmacopeia has its special action. To combine any drug with other drugs that have slightly different action, the combination must be made with strict reference to the use for which the compound is intended. The drugs may be well selected as to their efficacy, but the compound ENTIRELY SPOILED BY THE PROPORTION in which they are combined.

It takes years and years of experience to discover this proportion. There is no law of chemistry, of pharmacy, by which the exact balance of proportion can be determined. EXPERIENCE IS THE ONLY GUIDE.

In compounding a catarrh remedy Dr. Hartman has had many years' experience. In the use of the various ingredients which compose the catarrh remedy, Peruna, he has learned, little by little, how to harmonize the action of each ingredient, how to combine them into a stable compound, how to arrange them into such nice proportions as to blend the taste, the operation and the chemical peculiarities of each several ingredient in order to produce a pharmaceutical product beyond the criticism of doctors, pharmacists or chemists.

WE REPEAT, THAT AS MUCH DEPENDS ON THE WAY IN WHICH THE DRUGS ARE COMBINED AS DEPENDS UPON THE DRUGS THEMSELVES.

The compound must present a stability which is not affected by changes of temperature, not affected by exposure to the air, not affected by age. It must be so combined that it will remain just the same whether used in the logging or mining camps of the northwest or the coffee plantations of the tropics.

A complete list of the ingredients of Peruna would not enable any druggist or physician to reproduce Peruna. It is the skill and sagacity by which these ingredients are brought together that give Peruna much of its peculiar claims as an efficacious catarrh remedy.

However much virtue each ingredient of Peruna may possess, the value of the compound depends largely upon the manner and proportion in which they are combined. The right ingredients, put together rightly, is the only way a medical compound can be made of real value.

HOUSE A "HOODOO"

TRAGIC HISTORY OF OLD WASHINGTON STRUCTURE.

Remarkable Series of Disasters Followed Residents of Building That Once Occupied the Site of the Russian Embassy.

In addition to its architectural beauty and the brilliant life for which it furnishes a setting, the Russian embassy, in I street, facing Farragut square, is one of the historically interesting dwellings in Washington. Until the present owner of the mansion leased it to the Russian government a curious superstition prevailed that since the early days of the civil war the property has suffered from a "hoodoo."

When New York city was young and Gen. Tracy failed to capture the mayoralty of the city as then constituted there were persons in Washington ready with the "I told you so" of defeat, who boldly asserted that the political ill luck was part of the misfortune which overtook the general when as a member of Benjamin Harrison's cabinet he decided to live in the house which then occupied the site of the Russian embassy.

All went well for a while and the "haunt" was forgotten—thought to be "laid," no doubt, by the gayety and cheer that characterized the secretary's home. And then one morning Washington was horrified by a tragedy that annexed to the history of the premises a chapter of disaster that was written in letters of flame. This was no other than the terrible conflagration in which Mrs. Tracy, Miss Tracy and one maid perished. The house and its victims were sacrificed a little before seven o'clock one morning in the early spring.

Preceding the civil war fashionable Farragut square was a mud hole. At that time the northwestern section of the city was regarded as a questionable neighborhood. In the uncared for and gloomy expanse one wretched hovel tottered in the mire, and here the spirits of darkness were said to be invoked by a "charmer"—a negress of forbidding aspect. Following the improved condition of the neighborhood at the close of the war the shanty was replaced by a more respectable looking frame building. Its exterior belied its true character, however, when the mask of respectability was removed in a startling manner.

That famous piece of statuary, "The Greek Slave," by Powers, had been brought to this country during the uncertain times of war. Of a sudden its whereabouts became a mystery, but it was thought to be somewhere in or near Washington. The search for the missing art treasure was diligently pursued until public interest in the subject was eclipsed by a sensational report that a beautiful captive—either octoroon, slave or creole—was confined in the redoubtable frame dwelling. Rumor asserted that this exquisite creature was without clothing and that her wondrous beauty was responsible for her being kept a prisoner.

Just as Washington was scandalized to the point of probing the mystery the late W. W. Corcoran, of Washington, founder of the Corcoran Gallery of Art, who had continued his search for the Powers statue with unabated persistency, traced it to the neighborhood of muddy Farragut square.

The house of ill omen was not a place in which anything of value was likely to be hidden; but, performing a brilliant coup, Mr. Corcoran, in company with a single member of the police force, affected an entrance one night and found the "Greek Slave" in marble and the reported beauty in the flesh to be one and the same piece of perfection.

The statue, as well as its owner, had fallen a victim to the inmates of the haunted house, and had not Mr. Corcoran's suspicions been aroused the renowned piece of sculpture might not figure to-day as one of the leading attractions in Washington's famous gallery of art.

Might Take a Chance.

A coterie of Washington "cabbies" were waiting for their patrons after the show the other night. The numbers were being called out, and one by one the drivers hurried away with their fares. Finally but two remained, and then came the call for one of them. As he whipped up his horses he tantalizingly cried: "Come on along;" and quick as a flash came the reply: "Ah, I might as well; my party is so cross-eyed he won't know his number anyhow."

Trials of the Missionary

Dr. John Gibson Paton, the missionary, told in his autobiography how depressed he was when he first arrived in the New Hebrides in 1858. The natives were in their war paint and nakedness; a fight was going on, and five or six men had been killed. His native servant, who went out to procure water for tea, came back without it. The savages had cooked and eaten the dead bodies at the only available spring; had washed the blood into the water and had bathed in it. The missionary drank cocoanut water for a good while after that.

OPEN THE WINDOWS

FRESH AIR ESSENTIAL TO PREVENT CONSUMPTION.

Dangerous to Neglect Even an Ordinary Cough or Cold—Simple Remedy Is Effective.

So we are told by the great scientists who are certainly doing wonders in reducing the death rate from Tuberculosis. They also warn us not to neglect a cold or cough, and it is most important that this advice be followed. While the cough or cold may not bring consumption, it is better to be on the safe side and take no chances.

Here is a simple remedy that will break up a cold in twenty-four hours, and cure any cough that is curable: Glycerine, two ounces; Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), one-half ounce; good Whisky, a half pint. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses every four hours. The ingredients can be secured from any good prescription druggist at small cost, but must be pure to effect the desired results. For this reason it is always best to purchase the ingredients separately and prepare the mixture at home.

Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) should be purchased only in the original half-ounce vials put up for druggists to dispense. Each vial is enclosed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper, with the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure); guaranteed under the Food and Drug Act, June 30, 1906. Prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, O.—plainly printed thereon. Imitations and oils sold in bulk pay dealers larger profits, but they are dangerous to health and should never be used.

No Longer Worried.

"I thought," said the visitor, "I'd drop in and tell you what your hair restorer did for a friend of mine. When he started using your elixir there was only a few hairs on his head, but now it's completely covered."

"Indeed?" exclaimed the patent medicine man.

"Yes; by six feet of earth."

OVER $1,000 A YEAR AND "LIVING."

That Is the Story of a Michigan Farmer Who Lives in Western Canada.

Olds, Alberta, Dec. 10, 1906.
Mr. M. V. McInnes, Detroit, Michigan:

Dear Sir and Friend—It will be four years next May since I came to Olds, and have lived here ever since.

Since I came here wheat has run from 25 to 45 bu. per acre, oats from 65 to 115, that I know of. I raised that last year, 115 bu. to the acre of the finest oats I ever saw, and oats that I sowed 31st day of May this year went 72½ to the acre and weighed 41 lbs. to the bushel. My barley went 40 bu. last year and 50 this year, and was not sown until the latter part of May. I had 3 acres of potatoes this year and sold 700 bushels and put 275 bu. in the cellar, and no bugs to pick.

We have a fine Government Creamery at Olds. Our cows made $41 per head and I didn't feed any grain; only prairie hay, so you see we are doing well. We have the patent for our homestead now and am very thankful that we came to Alberta. We have made a little over $1,000 each year besides making our living. I would not go back to Michigan to live for anything. If I had my choice of a ticket to Olds or a 40-acre farm in Michigan I would take the ticket and in two years I could buy any of them 40-acre farms. This is the country for a poor man, as well as a man with money.

I will close, thanking you for our prosperity, I remain yours truly,

(Signed) OTTO YETTING,
Olds, Alberta, Canada. Box 159.

Extreme Frost.

"Was she so cold at your birthday dinner?"

"Cold? Why, when my health was proposed she drank it in ice water, and wouldn't take anything from me but frozen pudding."

"Let me see," said the great merchant, "is this the time for our grand annual clearance sale?"

"Goodness, no," replied his partner. "You have been getting your dates mixed. This is the regular time for our 'unprecedented bankrupt sale.'"

FIFTEEN YEARS OF ECZEMA.

Terrible Itching Prevented Sleep—Hands, Arms and Legs Affected—Cuticura Cured in 6 Days.

"I had eczema nearly fifteen years. The affected parts were my hands, arms and legs. They were the worst in the winter time, and were always itchy, and I could not keep from scratching them. I had to keep both hands bandaged all the time, and at night I would have to scratch though the bandages as the itching was so severe, and at times I would have to tear everything off my hands to scratch the skin. I could not rest or sleep. I had several physicians treat me but they could not give me a permanent cure nor even could they stop the itching. After using the Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura Ointment and two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent for about six days the itching had ceased, and now the sores have disappeared, and I never felt better in my life than I do now. Edward Worell, Band 30th U. S. Infantry, Fort Crook, Nebraska."

Days are sacred in proportion as they serve high ends.

People appreciate the delicate taste and natural action of Garfield Tea, the mild herb laxative. Best for liver, kidneys and bowels. Guaranteed under the Pure Food and Drugs Law.

Rich living often makes the poor life.

Mixed.

Woes of the Suburbanite.

"Hold on to the ham and the flour and the go-cart," shouted Mrs. Stubb, from the porch of the cottage, "and please walk faster."

"Keep quiet, Maria," gasped Mr. Stubb, who was floundering in the snow with a great collection of bundles, "you must think I am a horse."

Mrs. Stubbs laughed banteringly.

"Oh, no, John," she replied, sweetly, "I don't think you are anything like a horse. From the way you puff and break down every few minutes I think you must be an automobile."

Another Visit Counted.

"I've come to pay my bill," said the patient, "120, I believe."

"Yes," replied Dr. Soakem; "making a total of $122."

"Er—I don't quite understand."

"That brings it up to date, including today. I charge $2 for office visits, you know."—Philadelphia Ledger.

from the same physical disturbances, and the nature of their duties, in many cases, quickly drift them into the horrors of all kinds of female complaints, organic troubles, ulceration, falling and displacements, or perhaps irregularity or suppression causing backache, nervousness, irritability, and sleeplessness.

Women everywhere should remember that the medicine that holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female ills is made from simple native roots and herbs. For more than thirty years it has been helping women to be strong, regulating the functions perfectly and overcoming pain. It has also proved itself invaluable in preparing for child-birth and the Change of Life.

Mrs. A. M. Hagermann, of Bay Shore, L. I., writes:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"I suffered from a displacement, excessive and painful functions so that I had to lie down or sit still most of the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman so that I am able to attend to my duties. I wish every suffering woman would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and see what relief it will give them."

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female illness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. for advice. She is the Mrs. Pinkham who has been advising sick women free of charge for more than twenty years, and before that she assisted her mother-in-law Lydia E. Pinkham in advising. Therefore she is especially well qualified to guide sick women back to health.

HARRIMAN SLAPS AT THE PRESIDENT

ACCUSED ROOSEVELT IN LETTER OF ASKING FOR $250,000 FOR CAMPAIGN.

PRESIDENT MAKES DENIAL

CHARACTERIZES CHARGE AS DELIBERATE AND WILLFUL UNTRUTH.

New York, April 4.—What is ostensibly a private letter from E. H. Harriman to Sidney Webster of New York, embodying serious implied charges of bad faith against President Roosevelt, was made public here yesterday. Reduced to plain terms, the letter charges that just before the election of 1904 the president asked Harriman to raise a big fund particularly to help the Republican party in New York; that Harriman undertook the task with the distinct understanding that Depew was to be disposed of by naming him ambassador to Paris, and that later the president repudiated any agreement or understanding to this effect. It is also insinuated that there were contributions from insurance companies in the fund raised by Harriman, and that the president must have known this fact.

Mr. Harriman protested vehemently against the publication of this letter, threatening to prosecute any New York paper which used it.

President Enters Denial.

Washington, April 4. — The president was prompt to enter a denial of the charges made in the Harriman letter to Webster. He issued a lengthy statement, in which he made public letters written to Representative Sherman of New York during the campaign of 1906. Every point made in the Harriman letter is covered in minute detail. Sherman, during the 1906 campaign, had repeated to the president the Harriman charges, whereupon the president wrote the letter made public yesterday. The charge that he had asked Harriman to raise $250,000 to be used in carrying New York for the Republican party in the election of 1904, the president characterizes in his letter to Sherman as "a deliberate and Willful Untruth.

By right it should be characterized by an even shorter and more ugly word. I never requested Mr. Harriman to raise a dollar for the presidential campaign of 1904."

The president's reply is believed to be stronger, as a letter to Sherman, bearing date of last October, than if prepared to-day in consequence of the Harriman charges.

The president showed how he regards the whole matter by saying to a group of newspaper men yesterday, when he gave out the reply denying Harriman's charges:

"I feel particularly fortunate in having been attacked within the last few days by both Former Senator Burton of Kansas and Mr. Harriman."

BUSSE IS MAYOR OF CHICAGO.

Defeats Dunne by Safe Majority—Settles Street Car Question.

Chicago, April 4. — Chicago's postmaster, Frederick A. Busse, the Republican candidate, was elected mayor of the city yesterday, having a plurality of 13,121 votes over Mayor Edward Dunne. The total number of votes cast for Mr. Busse were 164,839, and for Mr. Dunne 151,718. The Prohibition candidate polled 5,875 and the Socialists 13,459. Two years ago, when Mayor Dunne was elected to office he polled 163,189 votes, and John M. Harlan, the Republican candidate 138,671. The Socialist vote the same year was over 40,000, and yesterday's vote was a great disappointment to the leaders of that party.

The new mayor will have the city council with him, but it is very close, as the makeup of this body shows 35 Republicans, 34 Democrats and 1 Independent Democrat.

The ordinances settling the street car question were carried by a good majority. The total vote on this question was 165,846 for and 132,720 against.

CABINET MAN UNDER FIRE.

Laurier Accepts Resignation of Emerson, Minister of Railways.

Ottawa, Ont., April 4. — Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday announced in parliament that he has accepted the resignation of H. R. Emerson as minister of railways until Mr. Emerson has had an opportunity to clear away charges of immorality made against him by a New Brunswick newspaper.

Floods About New Ulm.

New Ulm, Minn., April 4.—The Minnesota river is on a rampage and has been steadily rising for the last week at the rate of a foot every twenty-four hours. The lowlands and roads leading into the city are flooded.

Travel from Nicollet county has been completely cut off, and farmers are compelled to board the Minneapolis & St. Louis trains in order to reach the city. In some places the river is over a mile wide. It is about twelve feet above low water mark and is exceeding the flood of last year.

MAKES HIS VERSION PLAIN

REPLIES TO JUDGE PARKER'S CHARGES ABOUT CONTRIBUTIONS.

Washington, April 4. — President Roosevelt discussed with a number of his callers yesterday various features of the controversy between Mr. Harriman and himself growing out of the publication of the letters between them. He made it plain that his version of Mr. Harriman's visit preceding the election of 1904 was that Mr. Harriman wanted assistance from the National Republican committee to help Chairman Odell in the New York state campaign towards whose expenses he (Harriman) had raised raised $100,000. The president promised to communicate with Messrs. Cortelyou and Bliss to see what could be done.

Did the Same Before.

He did in this case, he declared, just what he had done in other instances where he had been appealed to for aid in state campaigns. To some of his visitors the president referred to the statement made public Tuesday night by Judge Alton B. Parker in Albany, in which he said that it has never been denied that $150,000 was turned over by the Equitable, Mutual and New York Life Insurance companies to Mr. Cortelyou's committee, and that congress had refused to investigate the corporate contributions of 1904 or to pass a law prohibiting such contributions in the future.

President's Statement.

The president referred to a statement which he made Nov. 4, 1904, in which he said in part:

"That contributions have been made to the Republican committee, as contributions have been made to the Democratic committee, is not the question at issue."

"Mr. Parker's assertion is in effect that such contributions have been made for improper motives, either in consequence of threats or in consequence of improper promises, direct or indirect, on the part of the recipients. * * * But there is not one particle of truth in the statement."

Contributions Returned.

Neither Mr. Parker, nor his supporters, the president declared, have been able to traverse or question the statements in that answer. The president said that to his own knowledge about a dozen constibutions offered by corporations had been declined by Chairman Cortelyou, but the others had been accepted. The president asserted that none of the corporations that contributed to the campaign fund in 1904 had come to him for favors, either directly or indirectly.

SCHOONER MAY BE LOST.

Parted From Tug During Gale and Has Not Been Seen Since.

Charleston, S. C., April 4.—The tugboat Paul Jones came into port yesterday seriously damaged by a storm experienced east of Lookout. The captain reported that the schooner Thomas W. Lawson, which was in tow, parted the hawser during the height of the gale and had not been seen since. The Lawson was loaded with oil and had a full crew and equipment.

MAKES READY FOR HEIR.

King Alfonso Signs Decree for Presentation of Child.

Madrid, April 4.—King Alfonso yesterday signed a decree ordering the necessary preparation for the presentation of his heir to the high officials of Spain and the diplomatic representatives accredited at Madrid immediately after the birth of the child.

WANT PREXY TO STAY.

Board of Regents of North Dakota U Refuse Resignation.

Grand Forks, N. D., April 4.—The board of regents of the state university late yesterday declined to accept the resignation of President Webster Merrifield as head of the university and urged that he withdraw his resignation.

Fire Causes Panic.

New York, April 4.—A fire following an explosion of a tube of benzine on the third floor of a seven-story building did thousands of dollars damage, and caused a panic among 200 women and 75 men yesterday.

Tribute to Two Jurists.

St. Paul, April 4. — Memorials to Judge George B. Young and Judge Isaac Atwater were presented to the state supreme court yesterday afternoon by committees representing the state bar association.

Attempt to Wreck Train.

Philadelphia, April 4.—An attempt was made yesterday to wreck a Pennsylvania express train near Tacony, a suburb. A track walker discovered a break where a foot of rail had been sawed out.

Ready for Insurance Investigation.

New York, April 3.—The grand jury which is expected to take up the investigation of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company was sworn in yesterday in the supreme court of this county.

Haywood's Trial Next Month.

Boise, Idaho, April 3.—The trial of Haywood, one of the officers of the Western Federation of Miners, for connection with the assassination of Former Gov. Steunenberg is set for May 2.

WITH THE LAWMAKERS

Work Accomplished by the State Legislators.

St. Paul, March 29.—The senate yesterday passed the house concurrent resolution authorizing the conference committee on the 2-cent fare bill to receive and consider the compromise proposition offered by the railroads. The railroads propose, in return for a 2 1-2 cent fare law, to make certain reductions in commodity rates and to continue the usual excursion rates. Mileage books are to be sold at 2 cents a mile, giving the public practically a 2-cent rate in this state. Considerable time was taken up by different senators who persisted in discussing the merits of the proposition, notwithstanding the fact that the question before the senate was whether or not the committee should be given authority to consider the proposition of the railroads. The resolution was carried by a vote of 48 to 12.

Senator Nelson offered a bill providing for a reward of 50 cents for each rattlesnake killed in the state.

Senator Durment introduced a bill appropriating $42,186.50 for the repair of the old capitol.

Senator Nelson offered a bill that grants authority to the board of control to select from the lands of the state not more than six sections contiguous to each other, to be set apart and kept as a site for public institutions.

Senator Elwell offered a bill prohibiting members of the board of regents from holding any other state office.

Senator Sundberg presented a bill appropriating $2,000 annually to the Farmers' Club of Minnesota, to be expended for the promotion of agricultural interests.

A bill was introduced authorizing the city of St. Paul to issue bonds for $1,000,000 for the purpose of acquiring land for capitol approaches.

In the House.

The special joint committee appointed to investigate the advisability of a tonnage tax on iron ore reported against the proposed tax. It is impracticable, unconstitutional and unwise, declares the committee, and should not be adopted. Instead the ad valorem tax on the mines should be increased. The special order for the consideration of the tonnage tax bill was extended to Tuesday at 2 o'clock. An effort will be made in the meantime to get definite information as to whether or not the steel trust intends to establish a steel plant at Duluth.

The house passed, under suspension of the rules, the bill providing for a state hospital for indigent, crippled and deformed children, to be located in St. Paul.

A bill to make the state militia conform in organization with the regular army was introduced by Representative Gates. Another bill increases the salary of the adjutant general to $3,500.

The Peterson bill pensioning all who participated in the defense against the Indian uprising of 1862 was passed.

A resolution was adopted commending the board of state capitol commissioners, now about to retire, for its fourteen years of painstaking, efficient work.

Representative Young presented a bill appropriating $1,000 for a monument to be erected to the memory of Col. Zebulon M. Pike, one of Minnesota's early explorers. The monument is to be erected in Morrison county, on the banks of the Mississippi river. This is supposed to be the site of the stockade erected by him.

In committee of the whole the house adopted the bill for the establishment of a normal school in the northern part of the state. The selection of the place is left to the state normal board.

St. Paul, March 30. — The observance of Good Friday was evident in the attendance in the house yesterday, fully a third of the members being absent. The work of the session was confined to general orders, and a number of bills were advanced to the calendar.

Three railroad bills were passed under suspension of the rules. One prohibits railroads from abandoning any track or switch without first having the permission of the railway commission. The second requires all railroads making extensions of lines or building new ones to file with the railway commission complete data concerning the same and also the cost. The third permits one railroad commissioner to conduct a hearing when a complaint is involved. New evidence bearing on any matter must be taken with the entire commission sitting as a court.

The house adjourned for the day at noon.

The senate was not in session.

St. Paul, April 1.—The judges' salary bill recently passed by the senate was recommended to pass by the house in committee of the whole Saturday.

The house got down to real business Saturday, and as a result forty-two bills were reported for passage and two or three were killed. Most of the bills were of minor importance, many being corrections in the code or local bills, but some of them were important bills that have been previously discussed and progressed in the committee.

The sum of $895,200 for the maintenance and improvement of the state university during the next two years is provided in a bill introduced by Representative Timberlake.

Other bills introduced: Establishing county weed inspector; appropriation for expenses in Itasca State Park; relating to loans from school and university funds; relating to inspection of ballots in recount; providing a license tax on all except national banks; amending game laws; relating to duties of school district clerks.

St. Paul, April 2. — Yesterday was the last day for the introduction of bills and they poured into both houses during the day. In the house 118 bills were received and sent to the committees, and in the senate 93 were handed in, making a total of 2,056 introduced during this session.

The great majority of the bills received in both houses were of minor importance, a large number being bridge bills.

The senate held an evening session and put in an hour to good advantage on general orders, several bills being reported out for passage.

An income tax in lieu of all other personal taxes will be collected from all, persons whos annual income exceeds $600, after May 1, 1908, if a bill introduced by Senator Stephens becomes a law.

Senator Pugh presented a bill giving the right of eminent domain to public service corporations, organized for the purpose of generating electricity by steam or water power.

The disposition of stocks of goods for the purpose of defrauding creditors is attempted to be prevented by a bill introduced by Senator Vail.

The selection of a county seat for a new county may be left until after the proposition of creating the new county shall have been accepted by the residents of the district if a bill introduced by Senator Vail becomes a law.

The senate passed ten bills yesterday. The most important were: Authorizing boards of education of independent school districts to designate depositories for funds of such districts; to tax separately as real estate mineral rights and reservations in lands when held or owned by one who does not own the lands in fee simple; to authorize the board of county commissioners of any county in the state to change the name of any town within such county; to authorize counties having not less than 40 per cent of uncultivated land to appropriate money to be used for the purpose of maintaining an exhibit at the state fair; making certain contracts entered into with unlawful trusts and combinations null and void, providing civil remedies in such cases, together with rules of pleading and of evidence and other procedures in reference thereto; providing fees for serving notices of expiration of redemption from tax sales.

Absolute prohibition is proposed in a bill introduced by Representative Higgins, one of the Prohibition members of the house. The bill proposes a constitutional amendment to be voted on in 1908, providing that the "manufacture, sale or transportation of alcoholic liquors shall be prohibited forover after Jan. 1, 1910."

The general legislative reapportionment bill was introduced in the house. A general reapportionment affecting nearly every county in the state is proposed. The number of senators is left at 63, but the representatives are increased from 119 to 129.

In the House.

Representative Brady offered a bill making the terms of county officers four years.

A bill to increase the salary of the governor from $5,000 to $7,000 was presented by Representative Brady.

A macadamized state road, starting from St. Cloud and headed for the Twin Cities is provided for in a bill introduced by Representative White.

The house took a large-sized whack at the general orders yesterday and a large number of bills were reported out for passage. None of them, however, were of more than passing interest.

The state officers' salary bill was killed in committee of the whole.

Two bills were passed, as follows: Providing for a judicial system of drainage of lands and meandered bodies of water, etc., providing methods for construction, etc., reimbursement, also for the collection of costs, etc., prescribing powers and duties, appropriating funds for payment of assessments, etc.; amend chapter 230 of the General Laws of Minnesota of 1905, and repealing chapter 311, Laws of 1905.

St. Paul, April 3.—The compromise proposals of the railroads on the rate question was transmitted to the legislature yesterday by the conference committee, together with a 2-cent passenger fare bill. The report was received without comment, and the 2-cent bill passed without argument, only four votes being cast against the bill in each branch of the legislature.

The report reviewed the work of the committee, the various meetings held and the action taken at each, including the offer of a compromise received from the railroads. It wound up by recommending the 2-cent bill. The report contained the proposals which the committee had been given to understand would be made and the written proposals received Monday. As the proposal received was not what was expected the committee reported that it could not recommend acceptance and in the same sentence recommended the passage of the 2-cent rate bill.

The bill provides for a maximum charge of 2 cents a mile for passengers over twelve years of age and 1 cent a mile for those under that age, with an allowance of 150 pounds of baggage in the former and 75 pounds in the latter case. The bill fixes the maximum penalty at a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment not to exceed five years, or both.

The senators voting against the bill were: Alderman, Calhoun, Durment and McNeil.

The initiative and referendum bill was killed in the senate, it lacking two votes of a majority.

The senate passed the bill detaching Pipestone county from the Thirteenth judicial district and adding it to the Ninth district, and providing for an additional judge for the Ninth district.

The senate passed three other bills, all of minor importance.

Considerable time was spent in committee of the whole discussing the bill to appropriate $200,000 for each of the next two years to aid in building and repairing bridges and constructing and repairing highways in the state. The bill was recommended for passage.

In the House.

The tonnage bill was killed in the house. The vote was close, there being 51 for the bill and 58 against. The bill was probably the most important before the legislature. It came up as a special order for yesterday, and the members spent more than four hours discussing it. The special joint committee which had been appointed to investigate the matter of a tonnage tax reported against the measure some time ago.

Passing bills under suspension of the rules, advancing pet measures to the calendar and placing others at the head of general orders were the features of the morning session of the house.

The bill establishing a state farm hospital for inebriates was advanced to the head of general orders.

St. Paul, April 4.—The senate yesterday passed the bill providing for the appointment of a permanent tax commission of three members, who will have "general supervision over the administration of the assessment and taxation laws of the state, over assessors, town, county and city boards of review and equalization and all other assessing officers, in the performance of their duties, to the end that all assessments of property be made relatively just and equal in compliance with the laws of the state." The members of the commission are to be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, within ten days after the passage of the bill.

The senate passed the reapportionment bill after some discussion. The vote was 34 to 5.

The bill prohibiting the sale or manufacture of impure ice creame was passed.

The bill which exempts from taxation in this state stock of banks in other states, which banks pay a tax in their own states, was passed.

Under suspension of the rules a bill was passed to secure uniformity of procedure where municipalities wish to sell their bonds to the state.

The anti-cigarette bill was the subject of long debate in the senate in committee of the whole. It was finally recommended for passage.

In the House.

The house yesterday concurred in the senate amendments to the reciprocal demurrage bill, and it now goes to the governor for his approval.

The bill prohibiting the manufacture, use, sale or giving away of adulterated cigarettes was passed. The bill also prohibits the sale of cigarettes or tobacco to any one under eighteen and to any student under twenty-one. The penalty is a fine of $50, with the option of thirty days in jail.

The house passed the bill to tax all board of trade and chamber of commere transactions. A stamp is to be attached to each trade, and it is to represent each $100 of business involved. The stamps will cost 2 cents each.

The bill regulating fraternal and beneficiary associations in the state was passed without opposition.

The state drainage bills, which were a special order for yesterday afternoon, were laid over until Friday afternoon on account of the opposition of members from the southern part of the state. In the meantime the bills are to be discussed further in the drainage committee.

Fifty-one bills were passed by the house yesterday, the largest day's work of the session. Among them were: To give the railroad and warehouse commission jurisdiction over track scales used by common carriers for the purpose of weighing carload freight; to abolish the board of managers of the state public schools and to confer upon the state board of control the exclusive management thereof; gross earnings tax on telephone companies in the state; to make Good Friday a legal holiday; to regulate and license persons acting as clairvoyants, trance mediums, palmists and fortune tellers; to prevent the sale of unwholesome substances for use as food; relating to the enforcement of the laws for the suppression of disease; regulating inheritances in case of unlawful killing; to provide for inspection of canneries, publishing report of same and establishing a grade for canned fruit and vegetables; relating to the kinds of business insurance companies may transact; fixing the rate of taxation of inheritances, devise, bequest, legacies and gifts.

HAGUE PROGRAM COMPLETE

PEACE CONFERENCE WILL BE HELD AT THE HAGUE ABOUT JUNE 15.

Washington, April 4.—Russian representatives abroad have been directed to communicate a circular note regarding the Hague peace conference, the main feature of which is the announcement that Russia, Germany and Austria reserve the right to abstain from the discussion of questions "which in their opinion cannot lead to practical results," meaning the limitation of armaments.

Russia, in making her reservation, reaffirms her adherence to the former program for the conference.

Other Reservations.

On the other hand, Great Britain and Japan reserve the right to abstain from the discussion of any points in the Russian program, from which, according to their views, satisfactory conclusions are not obtainable.

The question of the limitation of armaments, according to the Russian note, is proposed by three powers—the United States, Great Britain and Spain—the United States also proposing the addition of the Drago doctrine to the program.

Several states reserve the right to present independent propositions to the conference on questions connected with the Russian program, but not directly mentioned in it.

Will Be Held in June.

In conclusion the note states that the Russian minister at The Hague has been instructed to ask the government of The Netherlands to issue final invitations to the conference, in order that it may be opened in the middle of June.

The understanding here has been that the date would be placed some time between June 1 and June 15, The Netherlands government having stated that it could most conveniently entertain the delegates about that season.

PEACE SEEMS NEARER.

Strike on Western Railroads May Be Avoided.

Chicago, April 4.—A settlement of the controversy between the Western railroads and their conductors and trainmen seems nearer than at any time since Commissioners Knapp and Neill have interceded in behalf of peace. After delivering the ultimatum of the general managers to the representatives of the men yesterday afternoon a long conference was held and the final result was that the labor leaders came to an agreement which they requested the two government officials to deliver to the managers to-day.

ANOTHER FREAK BILL.

Iowa Solon Would Prohibit the Exposure of Shapely Female Limbs.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 4.—A bill has been introduced in the house by Teter of Marion prohibiting any female from appearing on the stage unless clothed in a skirt that reaches not less than twelve inches below the knees, and restricting the material in the skirt to opaque substances.

NO PRINCE FOR HARVARD.

Emperor William Has Not Decided to Send His Son.

Berlin, April 4.—Count von Eulenburg, Emperor William's chief court marshal, who is in constant attendance on his majesty, says he has not heard of anything tending to confirm the report that the emperor intended sending his fifth son, Prince Oscar, to Harvard.

Plundered and Murdered.

San Salvador, April 4.—According to reports circulated here from Honduras, when the invading Nicaraguan and Honduran revolutionary armies occupied Tegucigalpa they plundered the place and murdered several persons. The children of Gen. Teofile Carcamo, it is added, were hanged by the invaders.

Held Up in His Own Yard.

Billings, Mont., April 4. — Harry Cedergren was held up and robbed last evening by two unknown men. He was coming from his barn, where he had been attending to his horses, when he was hit over the head with a heavy timber, knocked down and robbed of $25 and a gold watch.

Kills His Two Daughters.

Montreal, April 4. — William Simpson, during his wife's absence shot and killed his two infant daughters, and then tried to kill himself. Physicians say that excessive affection for his children caused insanity.

Spanish Boy a Captive.

Tangier, Morocco, April 4.—A son of Gen. Delbrell, governor of the Spanish fortress of Alhucemas, on the Moroccan coast, was recently captured and beaten by tribesmen at Devasso, Morocco.

Wife Dead in Well.

Jewell Junction, Iowa, March 29. — Mrs. Charles Caruth was drowned in a well near here. The planking covering the well had rotted and gave way under her. Her body was found by her husband.

Passenger Coach Derailed.

Fargo, March 29.—A passenger train struck a broken rail near here. One coach was derailed and thrown on its side. The passengers were given a severe shaking up, but no one was seriously injured.

HARRY THAW HAS PRIVATE ORDEAL

SUBMITS TO MENTAL AND PHYSICAL EXAMINATION FOR TWO HOURS.

IS EXTREMELY CONFIDENT

COMMISSION'S WORK NOW COMPLETED AND IT IS BELIEVED TRIAL WILL GO ON.

New York, April 4.—The Thaw lunacy commission completed its work last night and will report to Justice Fitzgerald to-day.

Thaw underwent a private mental and physical examination for more than two hours yesterday afternoon. In this last crucial test he was alone before the commission, even the district attorney and his own counsel being barred. When the three members of the commission had completed their examination, they shook hands with Thaw in a most cordial manner. He went back to his cell in the Tombs with a light heart and declared later that he felt the commission would surely declare him sane.

Attorneys Optimistic.

The attorneys share their client's optimistic view. District Attorney Jerome would not commit himself in any way. Thaw's counsel declared they were ready to proceed with the case, and believed that Mr. Delmas might begin his summing up address before noon. In that event, they said, Mr. Jerome would address the jury Friday and a verdict might be expected before the week end.

The last public session of the commission was held yesterday morning to hear the testimony of two more alienists, Dr. Allen Rose Diefendorf for the prosecution and Dr. Charles G. Wagner for the defense. Dr. Diefendorf gave a purely academic decision, based upon assumed facts and writings of the defendant, and declared Thaw was incompetent.

No Evidence of Unsoundness.

Dr. Wagner said he had talked with the prisoner almost daily for two months and had been unable to find anything upon which to predicate an opinion of mental unsoundness at this time. When the commission began its private examination of the defendant, the members questioned him particularly about the delusions from which it had been testified he was suffering at the time he shot and killed Stanford White. Dr. Putzel of the commission conducted the brief physical examination to which Thaw was subjected, using all of the standard tests of the reflexes, the pupils of the eyes, the Romberg test for evidences of locomotor ataxia, etc. Thaw is said to have undergone these in a thoroughly satisfactory manner.

TAKES HAMMOND'S JOB.

J. W. Foley Is Made Secretary of State Railroad Commission.

Bismarck, N. D., April 4. — At a meeting of the state board of railroad commissioners yesterday the resignation of C. C. Hammond as secretary was accepted, and J. W. Foley of this city elected in his place.

Buried Without Permit.

Stevens Point, Wis., April 4. — Joseph Klemansko, a Polish farmer living near Rosholt, in the northeastern part of Portage county, has been fined $50 for burying the dead body of his wife and baby without a proper permit.

Two Burned to Death.

Sutton, W. Va., April 4.—Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Gares of this place were burned to death last night when the Riverview hotel was destroyed by fire, causing a monetary loss of $18,000.

Kill Two Mad Dogs.

Aberdeen, S. D., April 4.—A policeman has shot one mad dog which was running along the street and a veterinary surgeon has shot another. An epidemic of rabies is much feared.

Found Dead in His Shop.

Pocahontas, Iowa, April 4.—J. Golinvoux was found dead in his blacksmith shop. He had not been seen since Saturday evening. The coroner's verdict was strangulation.

Killed With Monkey Wrench.

Lightning Kills Woman.

Cuban Officer Is Slain.

Havana, April 4.—Jose Ayala, former chief of police of Guines, Havana province, was assassinated at Guines. The crime apparently was political.

Mother and Four Children Burned.

Passaic, N. J., April 4.—A mother and four of her children perished in a tenement house fire here yesterday.

Forty Thousand Fire Loss.

Waterloo, Iowa, April 4. — Woods Bros.' furniture store suffered a $40,000 loss by fire yesterday.

"Push and pull, but don't knock or hammer," should be the motto of the Commercial Club.

The legislature will adjourn on April 24, in time to get home and plant a tree on Arbor day, April 26.

The legislature is costing $1730 a day, says an exchange. The two-cent fare bill will help us forget the cost.

"Who stole the county seat petition?" may become as much a mystery as "Who struck Billy Patterson?"

May good luck and prosperity attend the new St. Hilaire Commercial Club. Well directed energy will do the work.

Duluth is happy over the promise of a ten million dollar steel plant. Here's hoping she won't forget her country friends when her prosperity comes.

Louis W. Hill is now the president of the Great Northern, his father, James J. Hill, partially retiring by acting as chairman of the board of directors.

Thief River Falls claims that the county seat petition was stolen by Red Lake Falls partisans and the Red Lakers claim it was thieves from up the creek that did the work.

"St. Hilaire," says the McIntosh Times, "has discovered that as a business producer a creamery beats a sawmill. Wherever there is a prosperous creamery you will always find prosperous farmers and prosperous merchants."

A re-apportionment bill was introduced this week that puts this county in a district with Marshall and gives us one senator and two representatives. It is expected, however, that the senate will kill the bill as it would legislate them out of office.

We were all ready to send word to our legislators that if they could not come home for two cents a mile they had better not come, when they passed the bill, which the governor promptly signed. After May first you can ride a mile on any railroad in the state for two cents, and the law gives you the right to arrest any agent who refuses you a ticket at that price.

Won Both Fee and Girl.

A young lawyer in a western city was asked by a business man against whom a $25,000 claim was about to be pressed to incorporate his business so as to render him judgment proof. It was his first chance for a fat fee, and he did the job with immense success. "They couldn't find a cent!" jubilantly exclaimed the client after the usual supplementary examination. Pocketing his fee, the attorney hastened to a summer resort to press his suit for the hand of a fair maiden. Only the paternal consent was lacking, so he determined to make himself particularly agreeable to the father. One evening as they were pulling their after dinner cigars the father suddenly asked if the lawyer knew a Mr. ——. Most assuredly the suitor did.

"Well, that old rascal owes me $25,000," grunted the father, "and a telegram informs me that some slick lawyer has fixed him up so I can't recover a cent."

A hilarious outburst followed a minute of silence on the part of the attorney. He told the whole story—and won the girl.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Orchestra Tuning Explained.

Doubtless many theater goers have wondered why it is a practice of orchestra musicians to make their appearance so far ahead of the time of beginning the performance and sit in their seats with nothing to do. Then, at a seeming given signal, all hands begin to "tune up," torturing the ears of the early arrivals with a series of squeaks and scrapes. The mystery was explained by an orchestra leader the other day. "The instruments have to be in accord with the temperature of the house," said he. "There may be several degrees difference between the temperature of the music room below stage and the house itself. If we tuned our violins downstairs they would all be flat when we take our places in the orchestra. For that reason we come upstairs earlier and let our instruments get the house atmosphere before the actual tuning begins."—New York Press.

When Longfellow Dined.

"Yesterday I dined with Dominican friars at the convent of San Clemente. Archbishop Manning and several people of note were there. We had a jovial dinner and good wine, and every dish was Italian, not to say Italianissimo. After dinner we went into a small coffee room, where the inquisitor tried to light a fire, with small success. Some one cried out, 'Ah, padre, the days have gone by when fires can be lighted by inquisitors!' and there was a roar of laughter, in which the padre aforesaid joined heartily."

"Yesterday Lowell gave a supper to Thackeray. We sat down at 10 o'clock and did not leave the table until 1. It was a very gay affair, with stories and jokes.

"'Will you take some port?' said Lowell to Thackeray.

"'It will be a long while before that becomes a man.'

"'Oh, no,' cried Felton; 'it is fast turning into one.'"—Extracts From Longfellow's Letters.

A North Atlantic Curiosity.

"In the midst of the north Atlantic there is an enormous field of floating seaweed which kept its place presumably for centuries," said an old sea captain. "It occupies an immense eddy about the fifty-sixth degree of west longitude and between the twenty-second and twenty-eighth degrees of north latitude. There is a great difference of opinion regarding the origin of this floating mass. Some believe it to be detached from rocks at a considerable depth in the latitude where it floats. Others suppose it to come from the shores of the northern seas, having been detached from the rocks by the violence of the winds. Some again imagine that it comes from the rocky shores of Florida and Mexico, while many others agree with me in believing that it has never had any other than its present place of abode. No one has ever seen it attached to rocks, nor have roots ever been discovered belonging to it."

What a Man's Beard Tells.

"You can tell some of a man's habits and read some of his traits of character from his beard," said the old barber. "If a man spends his days at a desk beside a window his hair and beard will grow faster on the side toward the window. Plants and beards both flourish under the influence of sunlight. Why, one of my customers found the effects of the side light so pronounced that he changed his office desk to face the window. Another interesting fact is that, when a man is up late or works long hours, he needs a shave oftener than if he took the usual amount of sleep. That's because in being awake he keeps the vital processes of his body in greater activity than when asleep. The growth of the hair depends largely on the circulation of the blood, and the heart slows down when we sleep."—Kansas City Star.

A Small Horror.

The weasel is one small horror. Astonishingly strong, apparently fearless and as persevering as an ant, when once he has settled to the track of a rabbit that particular bunny is indeed in grave peril. The rabbit seems to know it, too, and the knowledge to half paralyze him, for he seldom attempts the one saving chance—a straightaway, long sustained run at top speed. And the end of the patient, if-we-do-but-wait-the-hour sort of pursuit! 'Tis indeed bloody murder. The fiend, within angel garb finally toils within deadly distance. There is a snakelike stroke, most likely aimed at the big vein near the butt of the rabbit's ear. Once there, the brute sticks leechlike to the blood sucking, while the trembling, wailing rabbit totters aimlessly about till its drained body falls limply, to pay its tax to mother earth.—Edwin Sandys in Outing Magazine.

Noncommittal.

"Guilty or not guilty?"

"Yes," responded the man at the bar.

"What's that?" queried the court sharply.

"You asked whether I was guilty or not guilty, and of course I am. Of the two conditions I could not well escape both."

"But which are you?"

"Aw, go on, judge! What's the jury for?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Slur on a Great State.

It is told of the Right Rev. Daniel S. Tuttle, D. D., LL. D., who had been attending an important conference at Lambeth palace, London, that during a very formal function he and his wife were loudly announced as "the bishop of Misery and Mrs. Tuttle!"—Harper's Weekly.

How We Do Change.

CLUB HELD MEETING

Commercial Club Elects Set of Officers for the Ensuing Year.

The St. Hilaire Commercial Club held their first meeting under their new constitution and by-laws at the village hall last Wednesday evening and elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

President—O. F. Post.
Vice-President—J. C. Cummings.
Secretary—Jens Nelson.
Treasurer—K. O. Gigstad.
Directors—Daniel Patterson, H. E. Ives, Leonard Holmes, M. L. Hanson, J. K. Hannay.

Considerable business was brought before the meeting. A special committee was appointed to report at a special meeting next Wednesday evening on the prospects of a telephone line. Outside parties are asking for a franchise and local parties are also figuring on the matter.

The secretary was instructed to correspond with parties who may conclude to put in a flour mill. It is the intention of the club to have a list prepared of all the vacant farms in this vicinity with a view of securing tenants or purchasers.

Courier: Nap Miller and family came down from St. Hilaire Saturday evening and remained over Easter with their relatives in this city. They also took in the Easter ball at the opera house Monday evening, returning to St. Hilaire Tuesday.

At Bemidji last Thursday James Wesley, known as "Shorty," was convicted of murder in the first degree for the killing of the Dahls in 1904. Paul Fournier, also accused, will probably meet the same fate, and justice, although late, prevails.

Red Lake Courier: Coroner Joseph Belair was called to Wyandotte yesterday, by a message announcing that a man was found dead in that township. On arriving there Mr. Belair found it to to be Ole T. Omoth, who lived alone on section 18 of Wyandotte. Mr. Omoth was here last week on the petit jury but was excused on account of illness and left for home. He went out from St. Hilaire and seemed to be feeling better for a few days. A young man from a neighboring farm assisted him with his chores, and on going to the Omoth place yesterday morning he found him dead in a chair. Heart failure was the cause of his death. Mr. Omoth was a bachelor and had lived in that part of the county for a great many years.

Millinery Opening.

Mrs. C. L. Gray wishes to announce to the public that she will open a millinery store in Mrs. Dickinson's building on Broadway on or about April 11th. A complete and up-to-date stock will be displayed.

Cot Made for Travel.

The traveler who loves a clean and easy bed will appreciate the portable cot, a recent invention. Made to fit into a suit case, it may be used on a thousand and one occasions; anywhere, in fact, where a couch or bed is appropriate. As a safeguard against disease we suggest the daily use of golden grain belt beer. It is brewed from the best of nature's products and should go into the home as a health-maker. THROWN OPEN AGAIN

You Can Now File on Lands in the Chippewa Reservation.

Lands in the Chippewa Indian reservation, which were withdrawn from entry last fall by the government, have again been thrown open to settlement. A letter was received at the Crookston land office this week giving the necessary instructions and how anyone may file upon the land.

The lands were withdrawn last fall in order that the government could make a survey of the territory to see if it would pay to have it drained, and if so, those who filed upon it would be compelled to pay their share of the assessment for this work. The survey has been partly completed, but there is still much work to be done.

It has been decided by the government, however, that the lands will be thrown open to settlement immediately but those who file upon it must agree to pay for any drainage which is done upon it after the survey is completed. The government later will go ahead with the survey and it will be determined later on whether or not the territory is to be drained.

It is only on this condition that a person can file upon the lands.

The territory which is thrown open by this order of the government includes all of the reservation, except that which has already been settled upon prior to the order withdrawing the land, last fall.

Want More Money.

The Western Union Telegraph company has notified the local agent that beginning April 1st there will be a decided advance in rates. Heretofore for a great many years a ten-word message could be sent to the cities for twenty-five cents, but the new rate will now be forty cents for the same service. Now that the legislature has passed the two-cent fare bill they might tackle the telegraph company.

Prospects Good.

It was clearly the intention of the new council at their first meeting last Tuesday night to take up the work of putting in the municipal electric light plant where the old council left off. The work of securing a contract from the lumber company will be pushed as fast as possible, and if a favorable contract is secured the plans will follow in a few days and the actual work begin. In a very short time the matter ought to be definitely settled.

What They Say About Our Banks.

Gazette: The bank statements of the Merchants State Bank and the First State Bank of St. Hilaire appeared in last week's SPECTATOR and made a very substantial showing, the deposits of the two banks aggregating close on to, $112,000.00, with the Merchants State leading by about $22,000. This is not so bad for a town which last year lost one of its biggest institutions—the saw mill. St. Hilaire has a good substantial farming community to back her up and promises to hold her own with her sister towns.

Courier: Red Lake Falls people are pleased to note the splendid advancement being made by the Merchants State Bank of St. Hilaire, under the guidance of C. L. Hansen and K. O. Gigstad. The statement published last week shows a marked increase in the bank's business during the past few months, and it is fast becoming one of the leading financial institutions of the county.

AN EXPLANATION

Thief River Falls' Postmaster Tells How He Was Mistaken.

Editor News: In order to set right, as far as possible, a wrong impression prevalent relative to the changing of R. F. D. Route No. 1 from St. Hilaire to this city, I submit herewith the following facts:

About a month ago, J. A. Thorstad from St. Hilaire appeared at this office and inquired of Mr. Kratka if he could help him to prepare a petition so as to change the St. Hilaire F. D. R. to this city. Mr. Kratka turned Mr. Thorstad over to me. I promised him that I would write out a petition as soon as I had time. Afterwards I found that in order to prepare the petition properly I had to have the description of the route they proposed to travel, and I wrote to Mr. Thorstad in regard to the matter. He came up here again and tried to show me the road on which he wanted the carrier to travel, but failed to do so to my satisfaction. He then returned to St. Hilaire and a few days later appeared with the route marked out on a map. I then made arrangements with him to send the petition to him as soon as I could get time to prepare it but as I never found time to prepare the petition I turned the matter over to an attorney of this city who prepared same and sent same to Mr. Thorstad at St. Hilaire.

We all had the impression here that Mr. Thorstad was the mail carrier of that route, and that is why the prevailing opinion became current here that the carrier was the original mover in the matter.

As the original carrier was up here to explain matters we are now better informed and can certify to the fact that the carrier had nothing whatever to do with the matter as far as we know and that he was not the one who was up here in the first place. I spoke to some of the business men here that they were trying to change the route from St. Hilaire to this city, and there was not one in favor of the project. They said that they would have nothing to do whatever with anything that would hinder the welfare of St. Hilaire. And as far as this office is concerned, we are not in favor of the change, as we have our hands full here now.

N. K. Nelson,
Deputy Postmaster.

I hereby certify to that the above is a true statement of the matter as it occurred, that our only aim was to accommodate Mr. Thorstad in the matter and that I am not in favor of the move, as we have our hands full here without the additional mail to be handled.

I had the impression from the first that Mr. Thorstad was the carrier, and that is why I made the former statement that the carrier was the mover in the matter. But as I have now found out the truth I can certify to the fact that the carrier had nothing whatever to do with the matter as far as I know.

Frank H. Kratka,
Postmaster.

Barrel Racing on Ice.

An exciting form of winter sport in which Canadian boys excel is barrel racing on the ice. Ordinary barrels, with their heads removed, are placed at regular intervals along the race course for about a quarter of a mile. Then at a given signal all the boys skate for the first barrel. Many reach it together, and as each skater must crawl through all the barrels in order to win it is to be imagined that there is quite a scramble for first turn. Sometimes a barrel wheels completely around while the boy is working his way through it, and when he comes out he is so confused that he skates off in the wrong direction. Usually the laugh of the spectators makes him realize his blunder, and he quickly turns about and tries to make up for lost time. It is quite an exciting sport and an interesting one also for the spectator, as the boys and barrels bob about in the most amusing fashion.—Chums.

Getting Her Legal Rights.

An old colored woman, arrayed in a rusty black dress and a gorgeous purple picture hat over which was a black crape veil, appeared at the courthouse of a Carolina town.

"Am yo' de jedge ob reprobates, sah?" she asked, cautiously opening a crack of the office door.

"Yes, I am the judge of probate, aunty. What can I do for you?" was the smiling reply.

"Yassah! Tanky, sah! I's heah 'cause mah ole man died detested an' lef' fo' lil' infidels, an' Ah wanter be 'pinted ter be dere executioner, ef yo' please, sah."—Success Magazine.

Hinged Houses.

"Ye haven't seen our newest hotel, have ye?" asked an Irishman.

"No," replied the Yankee.

"Well," said the Irishman, "it's so tall that we have to put the two top stories on hinges."

"What for?" asked the American.

"So we can let 'em down while the moon goes by!" said Pat.—Pearson's Weekly.

TONIC FOR MOTHERS

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Are Safe and Reliable—A Favorite Household Remedy.

Motherhood may be the crowning blessing of a woman's life or it may bring grief and sorrow. Mrs. M. J. Wight, of 170 Seventh Street, Auburn, Maine, relates her experience after the birth of her daughter in 1901, as follows: "I was all run down at the time the baby came and did not improve in health rapidly after. I was pale, thin and bloodless. My stomach distressed me being full of gas all the time and my heart fluttered so that I could scarcely breathe.

"Finally I remembered that a friend had recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to me so I commenced using them. I gained in strength rapidly while the baby throve also. When I expected my next child I started taking the pills again as a tonic and strengthener and had no such difficulty as before. I got up better and my strength came back much sooner.

"A year ago last winter I had an attack of rheumatism in the hands which went from one hand to the other. The joints swelled up and were so stiff I could not move them. The pain extended up through my arms and shoulders. I felt sick enough to go to bed but did not do so. This attack lasted for several months. I tried several remedies but finally came back to using the pills which had done me so much good before and found that they benefited me almost at once. I have not been troubled since."

All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or they will be sent by mail post-paid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. Send for book of cures.

ARE NOT CURIOUS

WASHINGTON CITIZENS SHOW LACK OF INQUISITIVENESS.

Leading Lights of the Nation Too Common at the Capital to Command More Than Passing Attention from Residents.

Living in Washington is a man 99 years old who has passed nearly 80 years there and has never set foot inside the capitol.

At the Virginia end of the Aqueduct bridge, across the upper Potomac, is a woman past 80, who, living within half a mile of Washington all her life, has never been in Washington.

The old Washingtonian, who is hale and intelligent, said when questioned that he'd never cared to go inside the capitol. There was no business calling him there. He'd always been perfectly willing to let the folks inside the capitol go their ways if they'd only let him alone.

The old woman at the other end of the Aqueduct bridge observed in response to an interviewer's inquiries that she'd never crossed over to Washington because she'd never cared to. She'd always had enough work to do without gadding about.

These two old persons fairly represent the lack of inquisiveness which is perhaps the strongest characteristic of the people who live in and around Washington. Washingtonians are probably the least curious people on earth.

On New Year's day, when the president received the general public, the double line of people eager to grasp his hand curved in two directions out of the White House grounds and upon the streets till four or five o'clock in the afternoon, though the reception began at noon. Of the thousands in those two patient lines hardly any were Washingtonians.

Washingtonians don't attend public receptions at the White House. The lines were made up of visitors who came here especially for the purpose and of folks residing here transiently. If, by dropping a cent in the slot, the average Washingtonian could be instantly whisked to the White House, there to receive the double mitt from the president, a "Dee-lighted!" or two, and a little narrative about a bull moose or the art of hitting a timber wolf or a fawn in the left shoulder with an express bullet, it isn't in the least likely that the average Washingtonian would be attracted by the investment.

This feature of Washington's characteristic indifference is a growth of comparatively recent years. Washingtonians did go to Mr. McKinley's public receptions in quite considerable numbers. They attended the public levees of Mr. Harrison and Mr. Cleveland, too, and they fairly swarmed through the east room when Mr. Arthur was president. But they have entirely remained away from these affairs at the White House in recent years.

Washington folks don't flock to the capitol at all. The big people don't appear to interest them. Washingtonians are pretty close to the wires of government, and this may account for the lack of interest in the wire manipulators.

A representative of congress is an almost inconsequential figure in Washington. A senator isn't so much, either.

Every day the vice president of the United States walks down Pennsylvania avenue from the capitol, accompanied by some senator or other. The vice president is a very tall person—so tall as to make him an unusual figure, on account of his stature and the silk hat atop of the stature, almost anywhere. But never a Washingtonian wheels around to gaze after the vice president.

Hint for Vice President.

A New York man visited the senate gallery in Washington and from his coign of vantage there had a good look at the vice president's carefully concealed bald head. On returning home he wrote to his congressman, saying: "If you have any influence with Mr. Fairbanks, for heaven's sake get him to cut off that scalplock that he drapes over the top of his head and admit that he is bald. The people will elect a bald-headed man president sooner than they'll elect a man who tries to deceive them as to his baldness."

Few Senators Hear Prayers.

Attendance at prayers in the United States senate is not large, but it always includes Senators Platt and Depew, who usually sit together and withdraw before the business of the day begins. Sometimes there are only five or six who assemble to hear Dr. Hale's invocation. Upon a recent occasion there were seven, and a curious observer made a memorandum of their names. In addition to Platt and Depew there were Perkins of California, Smoot of Utah, Dick of Ohio, McCreary of Kentucky and Clark of Montana.

Room for Improvement.

Some friends of Speaker Cannon were discussing with him the news that "Len" Small of Kankakee had been converted by Evangelist Sunday, ex-baseball player. It was suggested that perhaps Mr. Small's conversion might interfere with his usefulness as a party man, but the speaker did not see why such should be the case. Mr. Cannon went on to say that he had no doubt of the genuineness of his friend Len's conversion, he being a thoroughly sincere man in every respect. The conversataion drifted on to the subject of conversion, "Uncle Joe" expressing the opinion that it would do no harm if a few conversions could take place in the house. However, he did not wish to mention any names.—Chicago Chronicle.

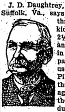
CURED OF GRAVEL.

Not a Single Stone Has Formed Since Using Doan's Kidney Pills.



J. D. Daughtrey, music publisher, of Suffolk, Va., says: "During two or three years that I had kidney trouble I passed 2½ pounds of gravel and sandy sediment in the urine. I haven't passed a stone since using Doan's Kidney Pills, however, and that was three years ago. I used to suffer the most acute agony during a gravel attack, and had the other usual symptoms of kidney trouble—lassitude, headache, pain in the back, urinary disorders, rheumatic pain, etc. I have a box containing 14 gravel stones that I passed, but that is not one-quarter of the whole number. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills a fine kidney tonic."

Poet in Training.

"Did you beat the carpet, dear?"

"I did," replied the poet.

"And the stove pipe—have you taken it down?"

"I have."

"That's a dear! Now, go and dig in the garden for exercise, and then you may go to your garret and write love songs for groceries."

Hours of Labor.

"As a matter of fact," boasted a chronic idler who had been remonstrated with on the score of laziness, "I always do my hard work before breakfast."

"Indeed!" said his friend, considerably astonished. "Whatever's that?"

"Getting out of bed!" was the slothful man's reply.

BLOOD GETS SOUR.

Every Family Should Make Up This Home Mixture and Take Now.

At this time of year, says a well-known authority, the Kidneys become weak, clogged and inactive, failing to filter out the poisons and acids, which sour the blood, causing not only facial and bodily eruptions, but the worst forms of Rheumatism, Nervous and Stomach troubles, Backache and painful, annoying Urinary afflictions.

It is worth anyone's time now to get from some good prescription pharmacy the following ingredients: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after your meals and at bedtime.

This simple home-made mixture will force the Kidneys to normal, healthy action, so they will filter and strain all uric acid and poisonous waste matter from the blood, and expel this in the urine, at the same time restoring the "full blood count"—that is, 95 per cent. red blood corpuscles—which is absolutely indispensable to perfect health.

Certainly.

Friend—Do you think that the widower will pay for the bill for attending his wife?

Friend—Oh, how they must have hated each other.

TARRED ROADS IN ENGLAND.

Process Simple and Results Declared to Be Highly Satisfactory.

The road is first thoroughly cleaned by dry sweeping, then roughly distilled tar is poured over it and spread evenly, after which sand is thrown on and the road is immediately ready for traffic. A fortnight or three weeks later a second coating is applied, and in a short time the road has the appearance of an asphalt street. It appears also that a short stretch of road in Beckenham was treated with tar oil, which is poured over again until the pores of the road exude the preparation.

This tar oil, however, dries up quickly, does not make an oily and nasty mess in wet weather and is said to be much cheaper than the tar process, but it requires more frequent renewal. A comparatively small quantity of the material is available, and this is a difficulty in the way of its general adoption. The Beckenham district council is spending about $9,000 in laying down two short stretches with the most up-to-date tar macadam.

A FRIENDLY GROCER.

Dropped a Valuable Hint About Coffee.

"For about eight years," writes a Mich. woman, "I suffered from nervousness—part of the time down in bed with nervous prostration.

"Sometimes I would get numb and it would be almost impossible for me to speak for a spell. At others, I would have severe bilious attacks, and my heart would flutter painfully when I would walk fast or sweep.

"I have taken enough medicine to start a small drug store, without any benefit. One evening our grocer was asking husband how I was and he urged that I quit coffee and use Postum, so he brought home a pkg. and I made it according to directions and we were both delighted with it.

"So we quit coffee altogether and used only Postum. I began to get better in a month's time and look like another person, the color came back to my cheeks, I began to sleep well, my appetite was good and I commenced to take on flesh and become interested in everything about the house.

"Finally I was able to do all my own work without the least sign of my old trouble. I am so thankful for the little book, 'The Road to Wellville.' It has done me so much good. I haven't taken medicine of any kind for six months and don't need any.

"A friend of ours who did not like Postum as she made it, liked mine, and when she learned to boil it long enough, her's was as good as mine. It's easy if you follow directions."

Name given by Postum Company, Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

FURIOUS HUMOR ON CHILD.

Itching, Bleeding Sores Covered Body —Nothing Helped Her—Cuticura Cures Her in Five Days.

"After my granddaughter of about seven years had been cured of the measles, she was attacked about a fortnight later by a furious itching and painful eruption all over her body, especially the upper part of it, forming watery and bleeding sores, especially under the arms, of considerable size. She suffered a great deal and for three weeks we nursed her every night, using all the remedies we could think of. Nothing would help. We tried the Cuticura Remedies and after twenty-four hours we noted considerable improvement, and after using only one complete set of the Cuticura Remedies, in five consecutive days the little one, much to our joy, had been entirely cured, and has been well for a long time.—Mrs. F. MEN ADMIRE a pretty face, a good figure, but sooner or later learn that the healthy, happy, contented woman is most of all to be admired.

Women, troubled with fainting spells, irregularities, nervous irritability, backache, the "blues," and those dreadful dragging sensations, cannot hope to be happy or popular, and advancement in either home, business or social life is impossible.

The cause of these troubles, however, yields quickly to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs. It acts at once upon the organ afflicted and the nerve centers, dispelling effectually all those distressing symptoms. No other medicine in the country has received such unqualified indorsement or has such a record of cures of female ills as has

Miss Emma Runtzler, of 631 State St., Schenectady, N. Y., writes:—"For a long time I was troubled with a weakness which seemed to drain all my strength away. I had dull headaches, was nervous, irritable, and all worn out. Chancing to read one of your advertisements of a case similar to mine cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I decided to try it and I cannot express my gratitude for the benefit received. I am entirely well and feel like a new person."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most successful remedy for all forms of Female Complaints, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation and Ulceration, and is invaluable in preparing for childbirth and the Change of Life.

One of the Important Duties of Physicians and the Well-Informed of the World is to learn as to the relative standing and reliability of the leading manufacturers of medicinal agents, as the most eminent physicians are the most careful as to the uniform quality and perfect purity of remedies prescribed by them, and it is well known to physicians and the Well-Informed generally that the California Fig Syrup Co., by reason of its correct methods and perfect equipment and the ethical character of its product has attained to the high standing in scientific and commercial circles which is accorded to successful and reliable houses only, and, therefore, that the name of the Company has become a guarantee of the excellence of its remedy.

TRUTH AND QUALITY

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing, therefore we wish to call the attention of all who would enjoy good health, with its blessings, to the fact that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and the use of medicines dispensed with generally to great advantage, but as in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time, the California Fig Syrup Co. feels that it is alike important to present truthfully the subject and to supply the one perfect laxative remedy which has won the appoval of physicians and the world-wide acceptance of the Well-Informed because of the excellence of the combination, known to all, and the original method of manufacture, which is known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent of family laxatives, and as its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well-Informed of the world to be the best of natural laxatives, we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects always note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package, whether you simply call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—is the one laxative remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. and the same heretofore known by the name—Syrup of Figs—which has given satisfaction to millions. The genuine is for sale by all leading druggists throughout the United States in original packages of one size only, the regular price of which is fifty cents per bottle.

Every bottle is sold under the general guarantee of the Company, filed with the Secretary of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., that the remedy is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906.

H. P. HALL ANSWERS DEATH'S SUMMONS

VETERAN NEWSPAPER MAN DIES SUDDENLY OF HEART FAILURE.

ACTIVE LIFE COMES TO END

KNOWN PERSONALLY BY MORE PEOPLE IN NORTHWEST THAN ANY OTHER MAN.

St. Paul, April 11.Harlan Page Hall, dean of the newspaper profession in the Northwest, who knew more people and probably was known personally by more people in the Northwest than any other man, died suddenly at the office of Dr. G. M. Coon, in the Lowry arcade, yesterday afternoon. He was discovered dead in a chair by an attendant who, seeing his quiet form, supposed he had fallen asleep. Some people entered the office, but they did not notice anything unusual, supposing that Mr. Hall was sleeping in the chair.

Mr. Hall went into the building about 2 o'clock to see Dr. Archibald MacLaren. Finding the door closed, he stepped into Dr. Coon's office to wait. He picked up a newspaper to read, and while perusing it passed quietly away. Death was due to heart failure, for which he had been treating, together with kidney trouble, since last winter.

Was on Duty During Day.

He was at the capitol in the morning and attended to his duties as clerk of the committee on general legislation in the senate. He was around town during the noon hour and talked in his usual cheerful manner with many people. Despite the fact that he was verging close to threescore and ten, he had been enjoying his usual vigor until about a year ago.

Mr. Hall was a life member of the Minnesota Historical society and Ohio society. He is survived by two daughters, Miss Elizabeth B. Hall, St. Paul, and Mrs. M. B. Gardner, Cleveland, Ohio, and one son, Harlan W. Hall, Pasadena, Cal. Mrs. Hall died about two years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Hall were married at Cleveland, Ohio, April 9, 1862, so that yesterday was the forty-fifth anniversary of their wedding.

Mr. Hall's Career.

Mr. Hall was born Aug. 27, 1838, at Ravenna, Ohio. He learned the printer's trade in his father's office at that place. He came to St. Paul in 1862 and was employed in an editorial capacity at various times on the St. Paul Press, St. Paul Union and St. Paul Pioneer. In 1868, in partnership with David Ramaley, he established the Dispatch, which he sold eight years later. Subsequently he established the St. Paul Newspaper Union for the purpose of furnishing ready-printed sheets to country newspapers.

In 1878 Mr. Hall started the St. Paul Globe, which he owned seven years, selling it to Lewis Baker. His next newspaper enterprise was a paper called the Daily News. In the early '90s he established the Morning Call, which had a brief career. Later he purchased the St. Paul Trade Journal, which he conducted eight years. In recent years he has devoted his time mostly to literary work.

Mr. Hall was the founder of the Minnesota Editorial association and was a member of the executive committee.

DEPREDATIONS BY INVADERS.

Nicaraguans Stir Up Ire of People of Honduras.

San Salvador, April 11.—Philip M. Brown, charge d'affaires of the American legation at Tegucigalpa, Honduras, has left here to return to Amapala, where President Bonilla is shut in by the Nicaraguans.

It is reported that the invaders are committing depredations in Honduras, and public sentiment in that country is aroused.

Salvador has a strong army on her frontier, and the country is prepared to repel invasion.

Washington, April 10. — A day of conferences between the Central American representatives here in the effort to reach a basis for peace had no marked results.

ROUND UP OF HORSE THIEVES.

Determined Effort Is Being Made to Capture "Kid" Curry Gang.

Havre, Mont., April 11.—Congressman-elect Charles N. Pray of Montana last night led a surrounding search which intends to bring to justice all the surviving members of the "Kid" Curry gang of horse thieves and train robbers. It is hoped even to capture the "Kid" in the Little Rockies.

Suicide at Emmons.

Albert Lea, Minn., April 11.—Lars A. Williams of Emmons village committed suicide by shooting himself in the head. He had been in the saloon business in Emmons and was despondent because license was defeated there for two successive years.

Killed in a Sawmill.

Menominee, Mich., April 11. — Charles Turk died as the result of injuries received while working in a sawmill. He was struck by a heavy stick of timber.

CUT BY 400; GOES CRAZY.

Late Missouri Senator's Widow Is Insane From Brooding.

Webb City, Mo., April 11.—As a result of brooding over being denied admission into Joplin society several years ago, when her husband, the late State Senator Thomas Connor, became suddenly rich from mining operations, Mrs. Connor was yesterday adjudged insane.

Get New Rural Routes.

Washington, April 11. — Complete rural delivery service in Big Stone and Stevens counties, in Minnesota, has been ordered, effective May 16. The total number of routes in Stevens county will be thirteen, of which one is new. The total number in Big Stone county will be thirteen, of which two are new.

Convicted of Murder.

Chicago, April 11.—Howard Nicholas and Leonard Leopold were yesterday convicted of the murder of Mrs. Margaret Leslie, the actress. Nicholas was sentenced to life imprisonment, while Leopold was given a fourteen-year term in prison. Robbery is said to have been the motive for the crime.

Town Is Dynamited.

Vincennes, Ind., April 11.—The business section of Sandborn was damaged by a dynamite explosion yesterday. The supposition is that persons enraged at David Bruner, a druggist, who is alleged to have operated his store as a "blind pig," did the work. The estimated property loss is $100,-

Caught in Machinery.

Holcombe, Wis., April 11.—Wilfred Loiselle, while working in a sawmill, got his hand caught in the machinery. It was necessary to amputate the arm,

WITH THE LAWMAKERS

Work Accomplished by the State Legislators.

St. Paul, April 6.—The legislative salary bill was passed out by the house committe of the whole yesterday without opposition. The bill gives each member of the legislature $500 for each year for which he is elected and $5 a day additional for the speaker of the house and the president of the senate. There was another struggle over the judges' salary bill yesterday, and the bill as amended and passed out yesterday stands a good chance of passing. The salary of the supreme court justices is left at $7,000, as provided in the senate bill, but the district judges are cut to $4,200, with $1,500 additional in the three large counties. This is an increase of $2,000 for the supreme justices and $700 for the district judges.

A bill appropriating $300,000 for summer sessions at the state normal schools was passed under suspension of the rules.

The house passed the two drainage bills prepared by the drainage committee. The general bill provides a comprehensive system of draining state lands and leaves the work in charge of the present commission, composed of the governor, auditor and secretary of state. A detailed system of procedure for the establishment of ditches is provided. The owners of private lands may start the proceedings by petition or they may be started by the commission, but in all cases the private land owners are to be assessed for benefits the same as under the county or judicial drainage system. The second bill provides that the cost of drainage of state lands shall be added to the minimum price for which state lands may be sold and also that 3 per cent interest shall be charged upon this amount until it is paid.

In the Senate.

The senate passed the bill proposing an amendment to the constitution authorizing the state auditor to levy an acreage tax on lands insured against loss by hail, at the option of the land owners, for the purpose of creating an insurance fund against damages to crops from hail storms.

The bill providing for a registry tax on mortgages was made a special order in the senate for Tuesday at 11 o'clock.

The bills proposing changes in the primary laws will come up as a special order for Monday at 3 o'clock.

The bill amending the corrupt practices act by removing the limitation on the amount to be expended by candidates was passed. The law still requires the candidate to file his statement and the amount disbursed.

The bill restoring the double liability clause to the banking law was passed. The clause inadvertently had been left out of the code.

The senate passed the bill providing for the payment to the members of the state board of health $10 a day for the days spent in attendance at the meetings of the board, not to exceed $100 in any one year.

A bill raising the rate of interest on local improvement certificates to 12 per cent was passed under suspension of the rules.

In committee of the whole the senate recommended thirteen bills for passage. None of them were of more than passing interest.

St. Paul, April 8.—The house Saturday passed the bill raising the salary of members of the legislature. The bill passed by a vote of 68 to 29. The bill gives each member $500 for each year of the term and $5 a day additional for the speaker of the house and the president of the senate.

The bill authorizing counties to appropriate money for making exhibits showing the resources of the counties at the state fair in 1908 was passed.

Representatives Jefferson and Bjorge offered another resolution relative to the iron mining industry. This time they want the legislature to instruct the railroad and warehouse commission to cut the freight rates on the two ore roads, the Duluth, Missabe & Northern and the Duluth & Iron Range. A cut of 40 per cent is suggested.

Among the bills passed were: Proposing an amendment to Article XIX. of the constitution of the state relative to taxation: relating to the removal of all logs, posts, poles, timbers and lumber abandoned, submerged and sunken in the beds of and obstructing the waters, lakes and watercourses of Minnesota, and to define and determine the ownership and provide for the disposition thereof.

In the Senate.

Liberal provision for the state university in the way of additional grounds for the campus and new buildings is made in a bill reported for passage by the senate finance committee. The bill provides for the levying of a tax sufficient to raise $300,000 for 1907 and for each of the next three years, making a total for the four years of $1,200,000.

The senate passed under suspension of the rules the bill which allows the county surveyor to carry on road repair work for seven months in the year instead of four, as the present law allows.

The senate passed the bill which is designed to make the Pullman company pay a considerably higher tax than it is now paying. The bill provides for a tax of 4 per cent on gross earnings of sleeping car companies.

Three hours' work was put in in committee of the whole. Thirty-four bills were advanced to the calendar.

The primary election bills were made a special order for Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock instead of Monday, as was decided upon Friday.

St. Paul, April 9. —The house had a slight attendance yesterday morning, and spent the time passing bills on the calendar. In the afternoon the house went into committee of the whole, and a number of bills were recommended for passage.

The bill proposing the constitutional amendment relating to the adoption or amendment of home-rule charters was favorably reported. The bill provides that charters may be adopted by a four-sevenths vote of those voting on the proposition and may be amended by a vote of three-fifths of those voting on the amendment, instead of those voting at the election, as at present.

The committee of the whole passed favorably on the bill placing the regulation of street railways in the hands of the railroad and warehouse commission.

The bill requiring the licensing of peddlers was also recommended for passage.

The bill authorizing cities or villages to prohibit bucket shops or their agencies within their corporate limits was passed.

The house passed the bill providing for a state board of nurses' examiners and requiring the examination of professional nurses.

The bill authorizing the annexation of territory adjacent to cities of 10,000 to 20,000 was passed.

The house in committee of the whole last night killed the bill to abolish capital punishment in Minnesota.

In the Senate.

The senate passed the bill carrying an annual appropriation for road and bridge work, the money to be expended under the supervision of the county commissioners.

The senate passed twelve bills in all, but except for the foregoing none were of general interest.

In committee of the whole the following bills were recommended: To prevent deception in the sale of paint; to authorize the board of control of state institutions to maintain a plant for the manufacture of barb wire, woven wire and wire nails at the state prison; to establish a state board of visitors for state institutions; to create a state board of examiners for chiropractic methods and to regulate the practice of the same; to prevent candidates for elective offices pledging themselves, without knowledge of the electors, to favor or oppose measures and bills and to prevent the solicitation of such pledges from candidates; to abolish the board of directors of the Minnesota school for the deaf and blind and to confer upon the state board of control the exclusive management thereof.

St. Paul, April 10.—The house yesterday went on record as favoring a third term for President Roosevelt. Representative Swan Nelson of Minneapolis presented a resolution to that effect, which was adopted by a rising vote and without debate. The Democratic members did not vote.

The end of the railroad litigation which, it was expected, would tie up freight and passenger reductions during the next three to five years is now in sight. The house last night passed a freight rate bill which is a compromise between the present commodity rates and the reduced commodity rates ordered by the state railroad commission. The bill provides an average reduction in commodity rates of 10 per cent.

It is believed that the railroads will accept the rates provided in the bill. It is also suggested that the roads will accept the 2-cent passenger fare bill. Should they do so the people of the state will be the gainers by nearly $4,000,000, as much as if the railroad commission's order went into effect now, as the reduction in freight rates provided in the bill with the reduction in passenger fares from 3 to 2 cents a mile will amount in the aggregate to the same as the reduction of freight rates ordered by the commission without the passenger fare reduction.

The house last night passed the bill judges' salary bill by a vote of 64 to 31. The bill increases the supreme court justices from $5,000 to $7,000, and the district judges from $3,500 to $4,200, with the present additional $1,500 in the three large counties.

The house killed the bill the purpose of which was to enable voters of cities to legislate for themselves. The bill proposed an amendment to the constitution to make practicable the adoption and amendment of home-rule charters.

The bill requiring all corporations in the state to pay a fee when filing their articles of incorporation was passed.

The house passed the bill requiring an examination of the eyes and ears of all pupils in the public schools.

The bill for the creation of a hospital farm for inebriates was passed. Under the bill a tax of 2 per cent of all license money collected in the state is to be levied to provide funds for the site, buildings and maintenance. The farm is to care for those habitually addicted to the use of intoxicants and drugs.

The child labor bill was passed yesterday. The bill is patterned after the law which Senator Beveridge of Indiana is trying to have congress enact. It changes the present law so as to make it more effective and make possible the enforcement of some of the provisions of the present law.

The anti-treating bill was killed by the adoption of the report of the house committee on temperance.

The two tax commission bills were made a special order for Friday at 2 p. m. in the house.

The house concurred in the senate amendments to the bill to prohibit school fraternities and repassed the bill.

In the Senate.

The senate passed the mortgage registry tax bill, with thirty-eight votes in the affirmative and fourteen in the negative. The tax is 50 cents per $100 of the amount of the mortgage, which is to be paid when the instrument is registered. Mortgages upon which the tax is not paid will not be considered valid.

The senate passed the bill providing for a state board of examiners for nurses and for the registration of professional nurses.

The woman suffrage bill was made a special order for 11 o'clock Friday morning.

The Iowa distance tariff bill was killed after long discussion. The bill came up as a special order for the afternoon session, and failed of passage by a vote of thirty-three in the negative and twenty-two in the affirmative.

St. Paul, April 11.—The bill passed by the house Tuesday containing a schedule of commodity rates somewhat higher than those contained in the order of the railroad and warehouse commission of a few months ago, and now tied up in litigation, came up in the senate yesterday, and after some discussion was sent to the railroad committee to be printed and reported back not later than Friday.

The senate passed the afternoon considering primary election bills. Senator McColl's bill providing for the selection of a candidate for United States senator by direct vote of the people was killed by a vote of 26 to 28.

Senator Dunn's bill providing for the election by all political parties of delegates to county conventions which are held for the purpose of electing delegates to state conventions was passed by a vote of 34 to 25.

The Sundberg anti-cigarette bill was killed by a vote of 31 yeas and 21 nays, the affirmative vote being just one short of a majority.

The bill providing for a state board of veterinary examiners and the registration of veterinarians was passed.

The senate passed the bill providing for summer sessions at the normal schools and appropriated $30,000 for this purpose.

United States Senator Nelson addressed the legislature in joint session yesterday. Senator Clapp also made a brief speech.

In the House.

The house railroad committee reported an anti-pass bill yesterday, after having had several bills under consideration. The bill will be printed and considered in its order.

The bill giving counties 5 per cent of the money paid into city or village treasuries for liquor licenses was killed by a vote of 41 to 46.

The house advanced the girls' industrial school bill on general orders, so that it may be considered at the same time as the bill for the new girls' school at Red Wing.

The house refused to concur in the senate amendments to the bill providing for a mortgage registry tax, and a conference was asked.

The house had an argument over the bill requiring deaf and dumb children to attend the state school for defectives at Faribault, but the bill was laid over without action.

The bill prohibiting the sale of liquors and cigarettes within one mile of the state agricultural college was passed.

A resolution was passed directing the attorney general to give the legislature a detailed report of all the suits pending for or against the state, and urging him to bring them to a rapid termination.

The house held a night session last night, at which forty-six bills were passed, all of a local nature. Among them was a bill authorizing St. Paul to issue bonds for $1,000,000 for capitol approaches.

Son of Dakota Pioneer Introduced Liquor Into Reservation.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 11.—A jury in the federal court returned a verdict of guilty in the case of Max Lyman, a mixed-blood Sioux Indian, on the charge of introducing liquor into the Yankton reservation. Lyman is the son of Maj. Lyman, one of the more prominent of the early pioneers of Dakota Territory.

SHOPS AT SUPERIOR.

Great Northern Said to Be About to Erect Car Plant.

Superior, Wis., April 11.—President Louis W. Hill of the Great Northern, who is making an inspection of terminals in this city, yesterday stated that a plant for the manufacture of cars will be built in Superior.

Steamer Sunk by Ice.

Charlevoix, Mich., April 11. — The steamer M. J. Nesson of Manistee was cut through by ice and sank in two minutes in South Arm lake yesterday while bound from East Jordan to Chicago.

PROSECUTOR IS MERCILESS

MAKES BITTER ATTACK ON HARRY THAW AND FLAYS HIS GIRL WIFE.

New York, April 11.—Charged with the responsibility of deciding the fate of Harry Kendall Thaw, the jury which since Jan. 23 has been sitting in judgment on the young slayer of Stanford White, retired at 5:17 p. m. yesterday to begin the consideration of their verdict. Six hours later they had failed to report an agreement, and shortly after 11 p. m. were locked up for the night in the jury room of the criminal courts building. The jury was said to be almost hopelessly divided, and none of those connected with the case would venture the hope of anything better than a disagreement.

Thaw Much Depressed.

Thaw, who was much depressed at the close of District Attorney Jerome's impassioned attack upon him as a "cowardly, brutal murderer—a rich illiterate, who always had had his own way until he fell into the clutches of the law"—revived in spirits as the evening wore on and the chances of an unfavorable verdict seemed more remote.

The judge's charge, lasting an hour, was a concise outline of the law and gave to the jury the alternative of rendering any one of the following four verdicts: Murder in the first degree, murder in the second degree, manslaughter in the first degree, or not guilty on the ground of insanity.

Jerome Is Merciless.

The district attorney's summing up was a comprehensive and forceful review of the evidence. He declared at the outset that romance and sentiment did not enter into the issue; it was not a question of Stanford White's character or Evelyn Thaw's sufferings; it was a plain, matter-of-fact homicide.

"A common, cowardly tenderloin murder," he termed it. The novel plea of "dementia Americana," made by Attorney Delmas, was repeatedly referred to in tones of sarcasm. Mr. Jerome dealt mercilessly with Evelyn Thaw, to whom he referred as the "angel child;" and to Thaw, whom he termed alternately, "St. George" and "Sir Galahad."

NEW YORK HERALD FINED.

Pays $31,000 for Using Mails for Improper Purposes.

New York, April 11.—Judge Hough in the criminal branch of the United States circuit court yesterday imposed fines aggregating $31,000 against the New York Herald Publishing company, James Gordon Bennett, proprietor, and Hanley W. Gillam, the advertising manager. Mr. Bennett appeared in person.

The fines, which were immediately paid, were imposed as the result of pleas of guilty interposed to indictments charging employment of the United States mails for improper purposes.

SLIP IS FATAL.

Employe Who Is Oiling Machinery Falls From Platform.

Grand Forks, N. D., April 11.—The dead body of Edward McFarland, twenty-four years old, was found in the boiler room of the plant of the Grand Forks Electric and Gas company. McFarland's neck had been broken by a fall from a platform where he had gone to oil some machinery.

Theft of Copper.

Houghton, Mich., April 11. — Carefully concealed in barrels supposed to contain hides destined for Chicago was found chunks of native copper aggregating in all 280 pounds, stolen from local smelting works. Harry Goldstein, the shipper, was arrested.

Captures Five of Raisuli's Wives.

Tangier, Morocco, April 11.—Kaid Moballa, acting for the minister of war, has captured five negresses, wives of Raisuli. The women were abandoned by the bandit leader. They have been brought into Tangier and imprisoned.

Discovers New Sun Spot.

New York, April 11. — Dr. S. A. Mitchell, instructor in astronomy at Columbia university, announced that he had discovered a new sun spot, which he says is as large as that discovered by Prof. Brashear of Allegheny Feb. 13.

Whisky Caused His Death.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 11.—Driving home while intoxicated Chris Nabauer, a farmer near Battle Creek, Iowa, fell from his wagon over the bridge rail and into Maple river, where he was drowned.

Woman Killed.

Adams, Minn., April 11.—Mrs. A. O. Njos was killed while returning home from town. A train on a nearby railroad frightened her team, which started to run and threw Mrs. Njos out, fatally injuring her.

BLINDED BY EXPLOSION.

If Woman Survives Scalds She Likely Will Be Sightless.

Atlantic, Iowa, April 11.—By the explosion of a friction top can, in which she was boiling lamp burners, Mrs. Charles Jacobson yesterday was so badly burned and scalded that her life is despaired of.

Even should she recover from her burns, it is believed her eyesight will be lost.

DELMAS PLEADS IN THAW FINALE

ELOQUENT CALIFORNIAN APPEALS TO SYMPATHIES OF JURORS.

EVELYN'S MOTHER IS LASHED

ARGUMENT BASED ON STORY OF DEFENDANT'S WIFE—WHITE SCORED.

New York, April 10. — The trial of Harry K. Thaw, charged with the murder of Stanford White, is nearing the end. Attorney Delmas yesterday afternoon began his closing address to the jury and after he had spoken for more than two hours and a half an adjournment was taken until morning. Mr. Delmas expects to conclude before the luncheon hour is reached.

Declaring he would not base his plea upon the "unwritten law" because his client found ample protection in the written statutes of the State of New York, Mr. Delmas made a striking appeal to the sympathies of the jurors.

Evelyn's Mother Denounced.

He based his argument solely upon the story of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. With flushed cheeks but dry eyes, that young woman heard her life history repeated and bowed her head as her mother was denounced in the bitterest tone the eloquent lawyer could command. Mr. Delmas went with great detail into the life of Evelyn Nesbit. He told of Thaw's great love for her and his efforts to rescue her from the clutches of Stanford White.

White Bitterly Scored.

Mr. Delmas poured out a torrent of denunciation upon the architect who became the victim of Thaw's pistol, accused him of the crime of "rape" and then declared that President Roosevelt had said in a message to congress that such a crime should be visited with death.

Mr. Delmas declared that God heard the cry of the fated child upon whom Stanford White had fixed his gaze and had determined should be his. He quoted from Scripture that "He who afflicts a fatherless child shall perish," and declared that Providence had sent Thaw to avenge the wrong.

APPEALS TO "UNWRITTEN" LAW.

Delmas Concludes Plea for Thaw in Drmatic Flight of Oratory.

New York, April 11.—With an oratorical appeal to both the written and the "unwritten" law for the justification of his client, Delphin M. Delmas, the California attorney, concluded his exhaustive summing up address to the Thaw jury yesterday afternoon.

With the exception of the moments when he was reading from testimony, Mr. Delmas' speech yesterday was one of sustained oratorical effect. He threw about the form of Harry Thaw the cloak of chivalrous knighthood.

Thaw a Brave Man.

"Why, he shouted, "should we, who admire the chivalry of the knights of the Middle Ages, who went about redressing wrongs and rescuing maidens in distress, withhold our sympathy from this brave man?" Bitterly the attorney again assailed Stanford White. He declared White sought to play with the girl so long as her beauty remained and then would have thrown her away "like a dirty rag, to float down life's sewers to a grave in the potter's field."

Instrument of Providence.

With dramatic emphasis Mr. Delmas cried out that when Harry Thaw beheld Stanford White on the Madison Square roof garden, the story of his wife's wrongs overcame him. He pictured in an instant, as a dying man may picture his past life, all that Stanford White had done, the ruin he had wrought; and he struck—struck as the tigress strikes in defense of her young; struck for the home; struck for American women; struck for humanity—and Stanford White fell."

"Ah, gentlemen," the advocate went on, "if Harry Thaw believed he was the instrument of Providence, who shall say he was mistaken?"

"Unwritten Law."

It was in discussing Thaw's mental state that, Mr. Delmas came at last to the "unwritten law." He declared the experts had been at a loss to classify the form of insanity from which Thaw suffered.

"I will suggest its name," he declared. "I would call it 'dementia Americana.' It is a species of insanity which has been recognized in every state of this Union. It is that species of insanity which makes the American man believe his home, his wife, his daughters, are sacred, and that whosoever stains the virtue of his threshold violates the highest of human laws."

Thieves Rob Pants Pockets.

Billings, Mont., April 11.—Burglars entered the house of James Carroll and secured about $10 from the pockets of Mr. Carroll's trousers. They also took a purse belonging to Mrs. Carroll, which contained a small sum of money. There is no clue to the thieves' identity.

Saturday, April 13, 1907.

The state legislature will conclude its labors in about ten days.

Travel will be considerably heavier after May 1st, when the new two-cent fare is effective.

Temperance measures and woman's suffrage bills have not fared well with the present legislature.

Minnesota creamery patrons received over twelve million dollars in cash for their product last year.

The lower branch of the legislature has passed a resolution asking President Roosevelt to again be a candidate.

Few men did more for Minnesota or made more warm friends than Harlan P. Hall. Friends were not sacrificed for money and he died poor.

The North Dakota legislature mended their prohibition law and the traveling salesmen who sold liquor in that state don't like the looks of it and will quit. It looks like a dry time for North Dakota.

"That the Chicago wheat pit is only 24 feet wide but is reached clear down to hell," once wrote a writer. The width of the N. Y. stock exchange is perhaps greater, but the depth is about the same.—East Grand Forks Valley View.

Editor Sullivan of the Halstad Reporter, who has been playing a losing game trying to run a newspaper in a hand-bill town, says good-bye in the following manner:

With this issue of The Reporter, we bid farewell to all. In short, our reason for doing this is that we believe there are other places on earth besides Halstad, and in some of them there are business men and wide awake people. The entire plant will be moved to another town and The Reporter is a thing of the past now. We have no apologies to make to any one. We do not owe the Halstad people for any favors. Our outside business has been good; the outside customers and subscribers we wish to thank each and every-one as their patronage has been thoroly appreciated.

An Old Time Playful Prisoner.

Over a century ago there occurred in London what the Annual Register called "a most unparalleled atrocity." It was only the theft of a pocket handkerchief from a pocket, but the circumstances of the deed explain the vehemence of this denunciation. Four men were on their trial for assaulting a man in his house at Ponder's End, putting him in fear and stealing from him, and one of them relieved the tedium of the trial, which lasted eight hours, by picking the pocket of one of the turnkeys as he stood in the dock. An official had the presence of mind to order the restoration of the handkerchief, and the prisoner had enough presence of mind to obey "with the most careless indifference," but the court, we read, "were horror struck." Justice, however, pulled itself together sufficiently to sentence all four men to death.

Swords and Scimiters.

The scimiter of the Saracens was the most effective sword for cutting purposes ever devised. It will be remembered how, according to the story of Sir Walter Scott's "Talisman," with such a weapon the pagan Saladin chopped a soft cushion in two at one blow, to the amazement of Richard Coeur de Lion. With a straight sword one can make a hack or thrust, but to slice an adversary one must saw with it. The scimiter, being curved and wide and heavy toward the end, slices by the mere fact of striking.

His Scheme Failed.

"I wonder why it is," remarked one of the two men who had just lunched, turning to speak to the other, "that they always have pretty cashiers at these restaurants."

But the pretty cashier, though she blushed and smiled, did not fail to detect the Canadian quarter he threw down in payment of his check.—Chicago Tribune.

Exposed His Hand.

Mrs. Potts—I can't see why you always stay late at your office these nights. I don't see that you gain anything by it. Jack Potts (absentmindedly)—That's so, but I won't always be a loser. Luck will change.—Catholic Standard and Times.

His Own Portrait.

Mr. Misfit (savagely)—Before I married you, was there any doddering idiot gone on you? Mrs. Misfit—There was one. Mr. Misfit—I wish to goodness you'd married him! Mrs. Misfit—I did.—Illustrated Bits.

Men Are Careless.

The average man comes very near being an idiot in taking care of himself. You have seen him wearing a fur cap on his head while his shoes let in the snow and water. He wears an overcoat on his back and nothing but a thin shirt over his chest. He is mighty scared about freezing his fingers while his throat is exposed to blizzards and he is often ailing or thinks he is. It's herb tea, root tonics, Peter's pills, Paul's pine tar and cordials or plasters and cures, until the balance wheel in the machine comes to a stop. Nature wants to keep going, but she can't. He drinks whiskey and that clogs the valves; he drinks beer and that clogs the wheels; he pours down lemonade, ginger ale, buttermilk, ice water, tea, coffee and what not, and then wonders why the fires under the boiler do not burn. If you should take an ox and put him through a like performance he'd be dead in a year. The simplest and plainest laws of health are outraged every hour of the day by the average man. Did Adam smoke? Did Eve wear corsets? Did Solomon chew tobacco? Did Ruth chew gum?

March Apportionment.

Monday of this week County Auditor O'Brien received a check from State Auditor Iverson for Red Lake county's share of the March apportionment of the state school funds. The apportionment this year is made on a basis of $1.60 for each pupil. Red Lake county was credited with 3837 pupils who had attended school the required length of time, which made this county's share $6,139.20, which taken with the county fund of $1,725.65 makes a total of $7,865.85 to be divided among the different school districts. Of this fund Independent district No. 15, Red Lake Falls receives $1,033.20; Ind. dist. No. 18, Thief River Falls, $1,873.70; St. Hilaire, $528.90; Dist. No. 16, Plummer, $88.15; Dist. No. 1, Wylie, $51.50; while the balance, $4,280.40, is divided up among the other districts of the county.

Japanese Lacquer.

This is the most beautiful material of the kind in the world, and it has recently been the subject of a special study by two chemists. The special qualities of Japanese lacquer are its brilliance, its great hardness and toughness, and its resistance to acids, alcohol and boiling water. It is made of the gum of the Rhus vernicifera which grows and is cultivated in China as well as in Japan. For the weak and overworked we suggest the daily use of golden grain belt beer. Its daily use will build up and feed your nerves and induce sleep. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Fog and Sound.

In a fog at sea the toll of a bell buoy is singularly grave and solemn, well matched by the weird note of a whistling buoy. Unfortunately the value of both is lessened in foggy weather from there being but little motion of the sea. Nothing, too, is more difficult than to distinguish in a fog the direction from which a sound comes. This is in part due doubtless to the interference offered to the straight course of the waves carrying the sound, but also probably to the absence of the normal, although unsuspected, co-ordination of eye and ear in locating the origin of sound. The assistance of the eye on sea and land is instinctively given to the ear in many different ways. In a fog the ear has only itself to trust to.—London Spectator.

Describing a Railroad.

The Pall Mall Gazette in 1890 asked its readers to name the worst railway in England. And one English kicker answered thus: "Sir—The Southeastern railway is the very worst railway in the world. The engines are asthmatic. Its lamps are trimmed by foolish virgins. Its fares are excessive. Its carriages let in the snow in winter and are furnaces in summer. Its motto is unpunctuality. Its principal station is approached through the neck of a bottle. It ruins the temper, destroys the digestion and enables one to realize the horrors of Dante's 'Inferno.' I am, sir, yours obediently, the Worm Who Turns."

A Sad Case.

"This milk is blue," said the customer angrily.

"I know it, and I'm very sorry," replied the milkman, "but the weather we've been having lately has given the cows melancholia, and it shows up in the milk."—Brooklyn Citizen.
